UNITED COUNTIES ELECT RICKARD AS 1933 WARDEN

Had Plurality of Seven Votes Over Reeves Stinson and Gray.

JANUARY SESSION.

New Warden Issues Appeal for Retrenchment in First Address.

COBOURG, Jan. 25.—By a plurality of seven votes Reeve W. F. Rickard of Newcastle was elected Warden of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham last night on the first ballot in a brief and decisive contest with Reeve Percy Stinson of Millbrook and Reeve Fred S. Gray of Manvers.

Mr. Stinson was the first to congratulate the new Warden, and, subsequently in a little speech that rang with the manly tone of sportsmanship, gracefully accepted the adverse result of a quiet but spirited campaign, and promised Warden Rickard every possible assistance and co-operation for the welfare of the counties throughout the year.

Predictions of keen interest in the wardenship election were substantiated by the largest attendance of ratepayers within the last fifteen or twenty years. The small accommodation for the public in the council chamber was crowded to standing room, and the overflow was packed into the anteroom and narrow corridor. Many of the farmers who had driven from comparatively distant parts of the counties, some of them former members of the council, were unable to hear or see the opening proceedings of the council, and had to be content to wait for the announcement of the election.

Rev. A. J. Jackson, curate of St. Peter's Anglican church, conducted the customary introductory service invoking divine blessing on the work of the council, and Counties Clerk E. N. MacNachtan then called for nominations.

Reeve Stinson was proposed by

50 FISHERMEN CAUGHT ON ICE

Rescuers Pick Up All But Eight Drifting Into Oneida Lake.

FLOES BREAKING UP.

ONEIDA, N.Y., Jan. 25 (C.P.). — Fifty ice fishermen were swept out into treacherous Oneida Lake to-day when wind, sweeping across the lake in a north-westerly direction, broke up the ice that had been weakened by spring-like sunshine. Quick work by rescuers using almost every available small craft on that end of the lake made possible the rescue of all but eight of the men within two hours after the ice had gone out.

The rescuers worked desperately to reach the others, through the field of floating ice cakes, before the larger sheets ground themselves down and dropped the fishermen into the chill waters.

Floe Disappears.

By noon, despite the vigilance of a shore patrol, all sight of the remaining floe was lost. Big row boats were hastily put on gigs and stationed along the north shore east of Cleveland, and similar action was being prepared along the south shore. Tugs and motor boats were doubly hampered, for, where the floe was last seen, there were huge masses of detached floating ice being borne slowly away. This prevented the launches from Sylvan Beach from venturing further south. Meanwhile the further the men on the floe were taken, the greater the danger became.

Shortly after noon it was estimated that the remaining fishermen must have drifted 12 miles into the open lake.

THE DIFFERENCE.

BALTIMORE. — Women as taxicab drivers are not so generous as men. This was told the State Public Service Commission by Louis Lingerman, taxicab operator of more than 20 years' experience.

"When a man pays his fare I just stuff it in my pocke," Lingerman said. "But when a woman hands me a handful of dimes, nickels, and pennies, I always count them."

Centenarians Go to Vote

DUBLIN, January 25 (C. P. Cable). — Two centenarians were among the first to cast their vote in Donegal as the Irish Free State went to the polls, it was learned to-day. In Kenmare a husband and wife, aged 101 and 99 years respectively, voted their preferences, while the Monaghan register included a child 2 years old. A Galway man cycled 100 miles to cast his vote, while an enthusiast in Kilarney walked 40 miles to do his bit for his party.

U. S. IS HEADED FOR REVOLUTION

URGES INFLATION.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25. (AP)—Speaking in vigorous support of the domestic allotment farm relief bill, Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, told a Senate committee to-day that "unless something is done for the American farmer we will have a revolution in the countryside in less than twelve months."

O'Neal was the first witness as the Agriculture committee began hearings on the price boosting bill passed by the House of Representatives.

As he spoke of "Revolution" Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, a leading exponent of currency inflation, broke in to ask him how it might be averted.

O'Neal replied that the "fundamental" need is inflation by reducing the gold content of the dollar but that the allotment bill would go far to "bring back faith and confidence in the countryside.

KILLER IS GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE

FIGHT OVER WAGES.

SHERBROOKE, Que., Jan. 25. — (C.P.)—Sentence of life imprisonment was to-day imposed by Mr. Justice Charles White upon Freddie Appleton, convicted last week of manslaughter. Appleton was tried for the murder of Alberic Couture, 41, crippled gasoline station proprietor, but the jury brought in a verdict convicting him of the lesser offense.

Last April neighbors who missed Couture about his place of business entered his room and found him dead in bed. He had been killed by blows over the head, apparently delivered by a wrench found nearby The body was tied up in the bedclothing and Couture's money was gone.

A few days later Appleton, a former employee was arrested and charged with murder. At the trial an alleged confession by Appleton was introduced which said there had been a quarrel over wages and Appleton had retaliated after Couture attacked him with a chair.

Most of the defense was in support of the contention that Appleton was weak mentally. Appleton has been a professional boxer and the defence claimed the knockout blows received in the boxing ring had affected his mind.

Two heavy doors of the garage were hurled 150 feet by the explosion. No one was near the garage at the time, so far as is known.

Buildings in the district were shaken and windows in homes opposite broken.

EARLY RETURNS GIVE DE VALERA SLIGHT MARGIN

Balloting Heavy — 90 Per Cent. of Register in Many Districts.

IMPERSONATION RIFE.

(By George Hambleton, C.P. Staff Writer.)

DUBLIN, Jan. 24.—(C. P. Cable.)—First results reported in the Irish general election this afternoon gave President Eamon De Valera's Republicans a net gain of one. The National University returned two Republicans and a Nationalist in contrast to two Nationalists and a republican at the last election. Michael Hayes, former speaker of the Dail Eireann, lost his seat to Mrs. H. Conconnan, Republican.

It took a second count to assure the election of Mrs. Conconnan, who will be the first woman Republican member of the Dail Eireann.

Including acclamation, the standing tonight, with 146 seats to be reported, was as follows:

Republicans (Government) 3.
Nationalist (Opposition) 1.
Independent (Opposition) 2.

Heavy Voting.

Returning officers struggled with exceptionally heavy polls as counting of votes cast in the Irish Free State elections began today. The voting in some districts was as high as 90 per cent. of the register.

Meanwhile both parties complained of widespread impersonation at the polls and a score of persons were under arrest on charges in this connection. Disorders were comparatively light, the biggest free-for-all occurring at a polling booth in Ashburton. Tear-gas bombs used by troops finally ended the row, civil guards having previously found they were unequal to the situation.

Some results may be known tonight, but the real test comes in the later stages of the transferred preferences and the trend of the election may be unknown until tomorrow night. As the counting of votes progresses, a seat may be won or lost on the transfer of a single vote. In one constituency last election, there were 18 counts before the final result was announced.

Contrary to earlier expectations the National University, Dublin may be among the first to report its results. The university is now represented by Conor Maguire, Attorney Genera in the Fianna Fail, P. McGilliran, Minister of Industry in the former Cosgrave cabinet, and Michael Hayes, former speaker in the Cummann na nGaedhael.

There are four acclamations, E. H. Allen, Sir James Craig and W E. Thrift, all Independents of Dublin University and Frank Fahy, Fianna Fail, of Galway, speaker in the Dail.

Trouble.

As the laborious task of counting the ballots got under way, belated reports were still coming in of outbreaks of violence in yesterday's elections. Late reports included an attack on a group of the "white army," Nationalist supporters, in North Kerry, where one man got a bullet wound in his leg. Telephone wires had been cut. At Ballyduff the windows of the civic guard barracks were smashed. Reinforcements of civic and military guards were rushed from Listowel but the excitement had died when they arrived.

In Dublin six men and three women, arrested on charges of impersonation at the polls, were remanded in district court. In some cases the charge was they had attempted to use the names of voters who are dead.

Will Hold Inquest Into Payton Death

Major importance is attributed by court officials to the inquest to be held to-morrow evening into the strange circumstances surrounding the sudden death of J. Mitchell Payton, local manufacturer's agent. The late Mr. Payton met his death while driving his motor car on Monaghan Road at noon on January 17, when apparently stricken by a heart attack. Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young ordered an autopsy to be performed on the body at that time, and it is indicated that circumstances brought to light by the post-mortem examination by two medical men made necessary the ordering of an inquest.

Live Fish Found High Up in Tree

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., January 25 (C.P.). — W. E. Geiser, Tuscarawas Park superintendent, offered these statements to-day as facts:

1—Sawyers working on a rotted tree in the park found a seven-inch catfish in a watery crevice of the tree, 40 feet above ground.

2—The fish was thrown into the lake and swam away.

As an opinion, Geiger added: A bird, possibly a kingfisher, probably carried the fish to the tree, where it survived in the water on the fork.

$1,006 CHARGED FOR CLOTHING NONE GIVEN OUT

TREASURER IN BOX.

Food Accounts Padded in Order to Collect Light Bills.

STURGEON FALLS, Ont., Jan. 25.—(CP)—Returns to the Ontario government showed clothing valued at $1,006 had been purchased in Sturgeon Falls last June when actually no clothing was distributed and no clothing account ever passed by council, according to J. L. Fortier, town treasurer, in testimony before the Royal Commission today.

The commission today scrutinized monthly relief returns to the government. June relief accounts passed by council amounted to $4,6896, plus shelter. According to the returns to the government, $2,430 shelter was paid. Actually, the payments only amounted to $1,510 plus $80 shelter claimed for houses owned by the town or $1,590 altogether.

"We only paid two-thirds of the shelter," Fortier said, when asked why the town's statement to the government claimed $2,430.

"Two thirds of $2,430 is $1,620," said W. H. Williams, K.C., commission counsel.

Fortier was unable to explain the difference between $1,590 and the $1,620.

Food accounts in June were padded by $240 in order to collect water and light accounts from the government, Fortier admitted.

"Why did you include that in the food account?" asked Mr. Williams.

"I don't know that anybody told me, but everything showed it had been done that way so I followed the same practice. The tax collector gave me her list, the council and mayor approved, so I put it in that way."

August Accounts Highest

The accounts were higher than at any other time of the year in August. Returns to the government totaled food, $11,548; clothing $12,517; medical services, $104 and shelter $2,766.

The clothing account was so large because of outfitting children for school, Fortier explained. All odds and ends, uncollectable otherwise, were put in the food account, including $818 to Miss L. Shank, his stenographer, he said.

"Miss Shank must have an awful appetite. How did she eat that much?" asked Mr. Williams.

"It represents cash paid to gravel haulers," witness replied.

Another account of $907, entered as food, actually was water and light accounts which the government refused to pay.

BROKERS' STRIKE FRENCH BOURSE, NO PRICES GIVEN

Protest Finance Group's Action in Tearing Down Govt's Intended Economies.

EXTRA POLICE OUT.

Troops With Fixed Bayonets Guard Entrance to Bank of France.

PARIS, January 25 (C.P.)—The Bourse was tied up to-day by a strike of brokers who refused to quote prices in protest to the Chamber of Finance Committee's action yesterday in tearing down the Government's contemplated economies Police reinforcements watched the scene.

There was no trading. No quotations, including those of foreign exchange, were posted except rantes (Government loans) when the Bourse opened at noon.

The big building was devoid of the usual noise, with brokers quietly standing around the boards which were b'ank except for yesterday's figures.

Bank Guarded.

The entrances to the Bank of France also were guarded by soldiers with fixed bayonets.

The Chamber of Deputies Committee yesterday returned a budget with only 915,000,000 francs in economies and 2,530,000,000 francs in new taxes provided. The Government had called for 10,000,000,000 francs in economies and new taxes.

A notice of the Brokers' Unions advised an orderly demonstration "before the mortal peril to our business caused by the Draconian measures of the Finance Committee."

It said "the demagogic" action would despoil savings, ruin shareholders, and cause the flight of capital and fortunes abroad.

Bolivians Leave 190 Dead In Battle

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Jan. 25. — (C.P.)—The Paraguayan Minister of War announced to-day the bodies of 190 soldiers of the Bolivian 41st Infantry had been counted on the battlefield since the victory which the Paraguayans asserted they had won in the Gran Chaco yesterday.

Unofficial reports last night were that a Paraguayan cavalry regiment had routed a regiment of Bolivians after a stiff engagement.

The Minister's announcement said: "The enemy retired in disorder. In the Fort Herrera sector the Paraguayans repulsed a strong Bolivian attack, causing heavy losses. Other sectors were quiet."

Lad 16, Charged With Wounding School Teacher

Attack Alleged To Have Been Made With Knife, Before Classroom, When Principal Rebuked Accused For Failing To Do Work.

CHASE FOLLOWS IN BROCKVILLE DISTRICT; VICTIM IMPROVES—CASE ADJOURNED 8 DAYS.

MORRISBURG, Ont., Jan. 25. —(CP)— Arnold Redmond, 16-year-old Iroquois school boy surrendered to provincial police here this morning on a charge of stabbing Fred C. Beaupre, school principal yesterday.

Provincial Constable Fred Rose laid a charge of wounding against the boy and Magistrate John McCormick prepared to adjourn the case eight days. An application for bail was opposed by the crown attorney and a telephone call was put through to Hon. W. H. Price, attorney-general for his decision.

When Redmond and his father walked into the provincial police office shortly before 11.30 o'clock, it ended a manhunt that was extended along the St. Lawrence river front since yesterday afternoon. The attack on the 50-year-old school teacher followed a brief altercation before a crowded classroom. Redmond was called to account for failure to complete some special work assigned to him as a punishment for playing truant. He was told to go home and stay there until he finished it.

Scuffle and Stabbing.

Principal Beaupre rebuked the boy for loitering around the streets and then, the pupils say, attempted to slap Redmond. In a skirmish that followed, Redmond is said to have drawn a hunting knife and plunged it into the principal's side. He then disappeared from the school.

Authorities at Brockville General Hospital this morning reported Beaupre to be much improved and were hopeful of his recovery

While Beaupre was being rushed to the hospital for an emergency operation, Redmond took to the highways. He hitch-hiked his way to Kingston, where he telephoned Allan Doan of Ottawa a cousin attending Queen's University.

Advises Returns

Doan, after questioning young Redmond and getting the full story, advised him to return to Iroquois and surrender to police. Not content with the advice Doan drove Redmond to Iroquois, arriving there about 2 o'clock last night. Redmond went to his own home, sleeping there for the rest of the night. This morning his father, Wesley Redmond drove him to PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25. (AP) Broadway never may hear Libby Holman Reynolds' torch songs again. Since the tragic death July 6 of her husband Smith Reynolds, heir to tobacco millions, she has indicated her desire for quiet and retirement.

Mrs. Louisa Carpenter Jenney, close friend of Mrs. Reynolds, disclosed yesterday the young actress is being treated for a nervous breakdown at the hospital where her child was born two weeks ago.

Her son, although he weighed only about three and one-half pounds at birth and has been kept since in a modified incubator, was said by physicians yesterday to have gained four ounces and should weigh about six pounds within a month.

HIGHER TARIFFS HINTS HOOVER

Only Stop Block President Sees is Greater Stability in Foreign Currencies.

U. S. FEELING REACTION.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (C.P.). — President Herbert Hoover feels that the United States is faced with the necessity either of increasing its tariff walls or action to gain stability in foreign currencies and to-day he was considering possible moves for speeding up the approach to the World Economic Conference.

It was stated in a high administration source the President desires to avoid major increases in the tariff, but feels this may be necessary unless the World Economic Conference, as a forum, can act quickly to bring about greater stabilization of foreign currencies.

Whether the President has been in communication with President-Elect Franklin Roosevelt since their conference last week was not made clear, but intimation was given that Mr. Hoover will continue to urge speedy action looking toward the earliest possible convening of the world parley.

Mr. Hoover, it was stated, believes that only in the past four or five months has the United States felt the full re-action from the departure of various European countries from the gold standard more than a year ago.

YOUTH'S FIGHT ENDS IN MURDER

CLIMAX TO GRUDGE.

METEGHAN, N.S., Jan. 25 (C.P.). —Murder following a quarrel between two farm hands shocked the quiet Acadian village of St. Alphonse de Clare last night, according to a story brought back to Meteghan to-day by Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Johnny Jeddry, 25, is dead with a bullet wound one inch above his heart, and Herbert Hatfield, 17, is held in Little Brook Jail on a charge of murder.

Police said the two had quarrelled in the village post office, which is housed in the residence of Noel Comeau.

The villagers told the police Jeddry and Hatfield had nursed grudges for some time. They met in the post office last night and an argument flared into violence.

The police to-day had a revolver which they said Hatfield had carried and which had been fired during the fight.

Hatfield did not try to escape after the tragedy. The police located him shortly after they rushed to the village from Yarmouth and Meteghan.

Jeddry and Hatfield worked on separate farms, not far apart. Hatfield, who will be given a preliminary hearing at Little Brook, is an adopted son of Joseph Leblanc.

COUNTY COUNCIL NAMES MEMBERS OF COMMITTEES

Old Age Pension Board Re-appointed From Council Members.

BOARD REPORTS.

325 Persons in County Receiving Old Age Pensions.

Some doubt was expressed by members of Peterborough County Council this morning as to the advisability of the Old Age Pension Board being constituted solely of members of the Council, although after much discussion the old Board was re-appointed in its entirety with the exception of Reeve C. Steenburgh, who takes the place vacated by Warden John MacIntosh.

After the standing committees had been struck, it was considered advisable that before the appointment of the Old Age Pension Board and the County Roads committe was made, reports on the past year's activity should be presented by the respective chairmen. This having been done, the appointments were made as follows:

County Roads Committee. — Reeves Ferguson, F. D. Leahy, Allan B. Mann, W. H. Montgomery and Deputy Reeve Percy Davidson.

The only changes on the County Roads Committee, are the appointments of Reeve Montgomery in place of Warden McIntosh, who is ex-officio member of the committee, and Deputy Reeve Davidson, to replace Mr. McIntyre, whose term has concluded.

The appointment of the Old Age Pension Board was made by the carrying of an amendment to the

DEBT SOLUTION MUST BE FINAL

HAILED BY PRESS.

LONDON, Jan. 25. (AP)—Chief aims of the British government at the proposed Anglo-American conference in Washington soon after March 4 will be to reach a new debt settlement that will be "final" and "not involve resumption of German reparations."

Even before the British government has taken official action on the United States Government's offer to discuss the debt, Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer has declared these must be the "essentials" of a new agreement. This declaration of British policy was welcomed in the London newspapers to-day as a clear and able statement of the British view.

The Morning Post said to-day that "settlement of the debt problem offers America a sufficient share in the resultant opportunity of a common revival as abundantly illustrated by Chamberlain."

The Telegraph said "The real significance of the speech was that it points to cancellation or revision so drastic as to virtually amount to cancellation."

The Daily Mail interpreted Mr. Chamberain's reference to reparations as stating "America's debtors must not be asked to pay America when they are not receiving payment from Germany."

The News-Chronicle called it the "best exposition of the British case anybody has yet made . . . the one blot being the passage dealing with reparations which adds little to the argument and will needlessly irrate American opinion."

BENNETT PLANS PERSONAL VISIT TO CONFERENCE

Announces at Hamilton He Will Represent Canada at World Parley.

REVIEWS PARTY HISTORY.

Claims People of Dominion Always Turn to Conservatives in Time of Crisis.

(By Thomas Green—C.P. Staff Writer).

HAMILTON, Jan. 25 (C.P.). — Prime Minister R. B. Bennett will attend in person the World Economic Conference to be held in London at an early date. This definite statement was made by Mr. Bennett in his address last night before the Macdonald Club of Hamilton.

(1) Confidence and hope that the World Economic Conference will restore trade and clear up other problems essential for world recovery.

(2) The beneficial trade for Canada and all members of the Empire "family" through the Ottawa Imperial Conference agreements giving a formidable lead for the coming world parley.

(4) Declaration that 70 per cent. of Canadian industrial life would be closed up in six months if the suggestion of Hon. Vincent Massey, Liberal, for restoration of this country's tariff to the 1930 level and an increase to 50 per cent. of the British preferential were effected. No such destruction would take place, as Liberals well knew they could not attain office, Premier Bennett declared.

Party History.

The Prime Minister, too, outlined the history and background of the Conservative Party from the days of Sir John A. Macdonald. In times of crisis, history showed, Mr. Bennett proceeded, that the people of Canada always turned to the Conservative Party.

Confederation, steps for the building of one transcontinental railway, a national policy for trade expansion, and other milestones had been the result of Conservative administration. The Great War and post-war rehabilitation were further matters of administration for Canada by the Conservative Party. Now there was the world crisis—"and the signs of danger which appeared on the horizon early in 1929 had been disregarded by the Liberal Government of the day."

It was the second official visit of Prime Minister Bennett to Hamilton. With Lord Willingdon, Mr. Bennett had officiated at the opening of the Empire Games in September, 1930. Three dining-rooms in the hotel were used to accommodate the overflow crowd.

C. W. Bell, Dominion member for Hamilton West, Gordon C. Wilson, Dominion member for Wentworth, Frank Fearman, president of the club, and other speakers, also addressed the gathering.

RIVER CLAIMS TEACHER'S LIFE

Principal at Bradford Sinks in Effort to Save Two Companions.

ON SHOOTING PARTY.

BRADFORD, Jan. 25 (C.P.). — Effort to aid two companions who broke through the ice of Holland River, sent George G. Atkinson, 36-year-old principal of Bradford Public School, to death last night in the icy waters of the river.

Mr. Atkinson, principal of Bradford Public School for the past nine years, was a member of a skating party that included Harold L. Blackwell, manager of the Bradford branch, Canadian Bank of Commerce; Bert Broderick, accountant; Mrs. Atkinson, and Miss Adelaide Keeney.

They were skating on the treacherous ice of Holland River, 4 miles north of here when Blackwell and Broderick went through the ice. Atkinson went to their air and in doing so was carried underneath the ice to his death. Broderick and Blackwell managed to reach safety. Broderick skated to Bradford and notified police of the tragedy.

Mrs. Atkinson and Miss Keeney did not go through the ice. Provincial Constable Sam Ervine of Bradford organized a party in an effort to recover the body, but up to a late hour last night they were unsuccessful.

Atkinson is survived by his widow, formerly Miss H. Kilkenny, Bradford, one young son, and his parents in Streetsville. He served overseas during the Great War and was popular in sporting circles in this vicinity.

Two Men Arrested For Fraud In Relief

TORONTO, Jan. 25 (C.P.). — Charged with obtaining relief goods from the city by fraud, two men, John Meskin and Percy James Comdey, are under arrest to-day.

At the home of one of the men, who were arrested last night, a quantity of dry groceries equal to six weeks' supply was seized, together with 28 weeks' supply of canned pilchards.

Police alleged Meskin, who was temporarily employed at the relief depot, turned in only a part of the tickets collected by him. The tickets retained were distributed, it is said, among Meekin's friends, who proceeded to cash them in again for further supplies of relief groceries.

PROPOSE RATE OF TEN MILLS FOR COUNTIES

United Counties' Council Would Have to Budget on That Rate.

SOMETHING NEW.

Motion is Laid Over for Further Consideration of the Council.

COBOURG, Jan. 25. — Reversing the traditional municipal method of budgeting by which estimates of expenditures are prepared and the tax rate struck on the assessment to provide for them, a resolution presented by Reeve Davey and Deputy-reeve A. E. Burd of Hamilton township at last night's inaugural meeting of the counties council proposed that this year's rate be tentatively fixed at 10 mills, and that expenditures be kept within that limit.

That would be cutting the coat according to the cloth. If the resolution carries during the present session it means that the council will determine to spend "so much money and no more." Something may have to be crimped by that plan, but it would not be the shrunken resources of the ratepayers.

Instead of letting the resolution go to a committee, Reeve Hooton of Gavan said that it seemed too important for that routine procedure, and on his motion it was laid on the table for further consideration by the whole council.

"Moved by Reeve Davey and seconded by Deputy-reeve Burd that whereas it is imperative that more definite control be exercised over the initiation of the expenditure of money by these united counties in order that the present burden of taxation upon the people be lessened;

And whereas the annual expenditure for debenture debt, principal and interest over which we have no control amounts to $91,099, an increase of $37,964.56 over and above the 1932 levy for these requirements and necessitating a debenture levy of 2.5331 mills for 1933, and increase of .9166 mills;

And whereas the unavoidable expenditures imposed on these united counties by provincial statutes, over which we have no direct control, amounts approximately to $223,000 or a levy of 6.2006 mills;

And whereas an apportioning rate of approximately 8.7339 mills upon the equalized assessment of these counties will be required to meet these aforementioned obligations, leaving an amount of approximately $45,531.79 or a levy of 1.2681 mills to cover controllable expenditures to keep within an apportioning rate of 10 mills upon the equalized assessment of these counties;

Be it therefore resolved that no authority be granted by these united counties to any person, board or commission to authorize or incur any new obligation on behalf of these counties except statutory payments now authorized by by-laws

A. R. BOTTUM IS COUNTY WARDEN

Elected to Victoria Position Over Reeves Endicott and Begg.

POGUE HOME DESTROYED.

LINDSAY, Jan. 25.—At the opening session of the County Council yesterday, Reeve A. B. Bottum, was elected to the position of warden. His opponents for the honor were Reeve S. Endicott, of Ops, who received three votes, and Reeve J. B. Begg, of Lindsay, who was given one vote. The Bottum family has quite a distinguished record in the service of the county, the father of the present warden as well as his grandfather having filled that office.

The residence and contents of Ted Pogue, of Deep Bay, Gull Lake, near Minden, was destroyed by fire a few evenings ago. There was no insurance. Cause of fire has been traced to defective chimney.

FATE.

COATESVILLE, Pa.—For years, Giovanni Diplaoli, 65, a crossing watchman, walked to work on the railroad right-of-way. About a month ago, the management ordered him to take a safer course. Yesterday, as he trudged to his post, a truck roared down the Lincoln highway and killed him.

HYDRO MEMBERS DECIDE TO PAY U.S. EXCHANGE

Accept Readjustment Plan as Presented by Chairman J. R. Cooke.

MEIGHEN, MAGUIRE SPEAK.

Commission at Toronto Will Assume 46 Per Cent. of Burden.

TORONTO, Jan. 25.—By a vote unrecorded, but apparently of about two to one proportion, Commissioners of Ontario Hydro Municipalities decided yesterday, at the Royal York Hotel, to accept the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission's exchange-payment compromise, or "readjustment," as Chairman J. R. Cooke preferred to term it in his discussion.

This readjustment from the original notification terms which aroused so much controversy involves the payment from Hydro Commission Contingency Fund as part of capital costs of 46 per cent. of the $1,700,000 exchange costs found to be a charge upon the refunding of a loan in the United States.

The Hydro municipalities assume the other 54 per cent. of the exchange bill, which is represented by exchange on interest costs, and, therefore, according to the insistent argument of Chairman Cooke, Senator Arthur Meighen and Commissioner Maguire at yesterday's assemblage, rightly payable by Hydro municipalities as part of their money costs.

Resolution Favored

The resolution, which was adopted by the meeting after a four-hour session, attended by several hundred municipal Hydro representatives, was moved by Mayor Beck of Brampton and seconded by Chatham's representative. It came as an amendment to a Niagara Falls resolution that the Commission should meet the exchange bill out of the $65,000,000 Hydro reserves, and read as follows:

"That the recommendation of the Provincial Hydro-Electric Commission of the Province of Ontario re exchange be approved, namely, that the Provincial Commission assume the exchange on the bonds maturing, and that the local Commissions assume the exchange on the yearly interest charges."

"KLONDYKE BOB" HITS LAST TRAIL

SAILED THE SEVEN SEAS.

VANCOUVER, Jan. 23. —(CP)— An adventurer who had sailed the seven seas and later endured the hardships of the prospectors' trail, Robert "Klondyke Bob" Henderson is dead. Seventy-eight years of age, he died at his home here.

"Klondyke Bob" is the man whose discoveries at Gold Creek — later named Hunger Creek—in 1895 started thousands of gold-crazed adventurers on the trail of '98 to the Klondyke. Fortune eluded him. He told others of the discoveries, his claims were staked while he was absent, and he had to take up his search for wealth. Often he staked, once selling for next to nothing a claim that later produced $3,000,000 in gold.

Henderson in his pioneer days located rich placer deposits in the Yukon. Only last year he interested mining promoters in his claim, near Carcross, Y. T., flew with them to make a survey, and plans for development were underway when he died.

Born on a farm near Pictou, N.S., "Klondyke Bob" went to sea at an early age, returned to his farm and after a few years once again set out in search of adventure, first in Colorado, where he mined copper, and then in the unknown northwest.

JAP MINISTERS GIVEN WARNING

Told They Must Prepare to Make Grave Decision Shortly.

OVER LEAGUE ATTITUDE.

TOKYO, Jan. 25. (AP)— Under bold headlines—"Grave decision confronting Empire" and "Great danger ahead"—Japanese newspapers reported a special cabinet session to-day which heard Foreign Minister Uchida's report on the League of Nations' virtual abandonment of efforts to conciliate the Sino-Japanese dispute. The foreign minister warned his colleagues they must prepare shortly to make a decision of grave import.

It was understood the meeting adjourned without a decision, pending further developments at Geneva, though it was generally believed the government holds Japan compelled to withdraw from the League if charges are made against Japan of territorial aggression or violation of the League covenant, Anti-war Pact or Nine-Power Pact.

CHRIST CHURCH, CAMPBELLFORD SHOWS PROGRESS FOR 1932

Increased Sunday School.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 25 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Despite depressed financial conditions during the past year, Christ Church, Campbellford, finished the year in a very sound condition, registering a distinct increase in all branches of its activity and starting the current year on a sound financial basis. The annual congregational meeting, which was held on Monday evening, revealed this satisfactory standing of the church and its organizations, the Parish Hall being well filled for the occasion and presided over by the Rector, Rev. T. H. Floyd.

Officers appointed and elected for 1933 were: Wardens—Rector's, R. C. Ramsden; People's, J. V. Bedford (re-elected by acclamation); Clerk, R. C. Ramsden; Treasurer, to be appointed by the Wardens.

Advisory Board.—Appointed: N. A. MacColl, Marshall West, C. W. Smith, Hilton Beatty, William Collard! Choir, Major J. M. Bygott; Willing Workers, Mrs. F. Linton; J. P. Archer, S. H. Neal, Archie W.A., Mrs. J. P. Archer; elected, Hatfield, Dr. F. deP. Free, A. T. Linton, Nelson Lloyd.

The report given by Mr. Floyd of the work of the church showed progress along all lines of activity. Attendance at church were on the increase, the choir had increased its membership, and a greater interest was being shown in this branch of the work; and the Sunday School as it stands to-day was one of the largest in town with a high average attendance and a greater increase in numbers over the previous year.

Encouraging Feature

A very encouraging feature of the report was the result of a recent canvas of the congregation which had netted approximately, $460. This money was raised to meet the financial needs of the church and was wholly up to expectation and reflects the eagerness and willingness of the people to help carry on the work of the church successfully.

Reporting for the A.Y.P.A., Mr. Floyd stated that this church organization had in two months successfully raised the sum of $100 for the church; an obligation they pledged themselves to meet.

The report of the W.A. was given by Mrs. Marshall West and showed that as well as its church and missionary activities it had given to the general funds of the church $24.

The Willing Workers had also done splendid work during the past season and had handed to the church treasurer $160 as their portion of church finances. This report was given by Mrs. F. Linton.

The Junior W. A. Report was given by Mrs. (Rev.) T. H. Floyd, and that of the Sunday School by M. H. Sergeant, the latter stressing the splendid advances that were being made in this important sphere of church work, including increased attendances and a higher average attendance..

The total receipts for the year amounted to $2,570.26. All salaries and running expenses have been met and but few outstanding obligations are being carried.

Hearty votes of thanks were sponsored for the church verger, A. Mills, for his faithful attendance to his duties; the choir, and organist, W. Pearson, for the splendid work accomplished during the past season, and to all officers of the different organizations for the interest in and support of the church in 1932. Mr. Floyd also voiced his appreciation of the very satisfactory work of the wardens during the past year. A. T. Linton retired from the office of rector's warden after four years in that office.

Warden's Address

After his installation, Warden Rickard thanked the council for the confidence that had been placed in him by his election.

"I am especially grateful for this honor" he said, "because I believe that we have in Northumberland and Durham two of the finest counties in Ontario, and we have a personnel that is hard to equal. It is an honor to be elected Warden, but it is also a great responsibility, and with general conditions as they are today it is a duty that will be hard to fulfill. With the co-operation of the council we shall do our best to administer the affairs of these counties in a way that will be creditable to us, and I hope that when my term expires you will have no regret for electing me tonight.

This year we must not only economize, but retrench. Road debentures of $875,000 mean a lot of money and the interest will be a big thing for the next fifteen or twenty years. With 320 miles of paved and gravel roads we must cut down expenses on our county road system. I shall do all I can and with your help to lighten the burden on the taxpayers.

In regard to an agitation to do away with the county councils, I believe there is no better organization to handle our affairs than councils. We know better what are needs, than do those men who sit in Toronto, and if the government did without some of the high salaried officials there I think it would be much better and more economical than doing away with county councils.

In our uncontrollable expenditures we have $39,000 or $30,000 a year to pay on provincial highways, and I think we should have some say as to where that money is to be spent. We are not consulted about any new road the department starts and it seems to me the only way to take action is to refuse paying the bills when they come in to us.

There is also the matter of criminal justice accounts which we simply have to pay. We have been objecting to them, but if we are to get anywhere the only way is to say we will refuse to pay them."

Reeve Stinson

Reeve Stinson in extending his congratulations to Warden Rickard alluded to the fact that his part of Durham county had its share of the wardenship honors in recent years. Parenthetically it may be recalled that James McCamus and George Hooton of Cavan and W. T. Wood of Millbrook have been prominent Wardens of the united counties within the last few years, and one comment that had been heard against the candidature of Reeve Stinson was expressed some time ago by another Durham reeve who said: "Is there no other part of the county than Cavan and Millbrook to be considered."

"I realized that I would have a difficult proposition on my hands", Reeve Stinson remarked. "The Wardenship is the highest municipal honor in these united counties, and I congratulate Warden Rickard in his election. We have come to a time when we have to look facts straight in the face, and every cent of unnecessary expense has got to be out off. If we do that the people will have faith in us, and in the institution of the county council. Otherwise the movement against county councils will make some headway and perhaps gain momentum.

I feel that we must cut down on our county roads system. I don't think there should be any construction this year, and the grant of $46,000 we are to get back from the government on the money we spent last year should be sufficient for what we need this year. I promise the Warden that I will be behind him in the best interests of Durham and Northumberland."

COUNTY COUNCIL RECEIVES BILL OF $268 FROM SCHOOL BOARD AS FEES FOR SHELTER CHILDREN

J. B. WILSON REPORTS.

Young People in County Are Taking Increased Interest in Agriculture.

What was stated by members of Peterborough County Council to be an unprecedented situation, has arisen as a result of a bill of $268 from Peterborough Board of Education in respect to fees for tuition of thirteen inmates of the Children's Shelter. The children range in ages from six to fourteen years, and the County is being assessed for their tuition at King Edward School at the rate of $4 per month per pupil.

The matter was referred to the Finance Committee, and it is proposed that John Edgar, superintendent of the Children's Shelter shall be asked to provide the council with full information as to the original homes of the children concerned.

Peterborough Board of Education forwarded the following communication to the council over the signature of the secretary-treasurer of the Board:

"I enclose herein an account for tuition of pupils from the County maintained at the Children's Shelter and attending King Edward School, and shall be glad to receive cheque to cover the amount.

"For your information the following is a copy of the regulations of the Department of Education:

"A person of school age maintained in a county house of refuge or a children's shelter shall be deemed to be a non-resident, and the county shall pay to the Board of the school attended by such persons, such monthly fees as may be agreed upon, or at least the average cost per pupil of the maintenance of the school."

Opening sessions of the council were brief. After the election of Reeve John McIntosh as Warden for the year 1933, and when the correspondence had been dealt with, a motion was recorded, moved by Reeve W. A. Anderson and seconded by Reeve W. H. Montgomery in which the council extended their sympathy to T. P. Lancaster, M.P.P. who was recently bereaved. The clerk was directed to send Mr. Lancaster a letter of condolence.

J. B. Nelson, district representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture was permitted to address the council, and tendered a splendid verbal report in which he touched upon the numerous activities which had been conducted from his office during the past year, as well as distributing typewritten statistics relating to the work of the Peterborough County Branch of the Department.

Congratulated Warden

The office of the Department of Agriculture was being used more extensively than ever before, Mr. Nelson claimed, and throughout the county there was a healthy growing interest on the part of farm young people. "I notice through all parts of the county a general move to revive young peoples' activities. The young people are beginning to organize their own good times and in so doing are receiving experience in executive work that will stand them in good stead in later years," Mr. Nelson remarked.

The total number of school children participating last year in junior agricultural projects was 2,027, with an additional total of 598 young people over school age. In the entire county there were 1,627 children who took part in the annual school fairs, and 400 who engaged in competition at the Championship School Fair.

Nine junior extension projects were conducted by Mr. Nelson, including the supervision of ten school fairs; six boy's club projects; boy's home plowing competitions; judging competitions; inter-county judging teams; correspondence course in agriculture; short courses for one month at Westwood; three-day judging course at Havelock; and the junior section at Peterborough Exhibition.

In all Mr. Nelson had a total of 11,924 direct contacts, with school children, young people, and adults, not to mention the many contacts he made when out on visits throughout the county. His office work included the receipt of 1886 letters from farmers; 2636 telephone calls and 2275 personal visits to the office by farmers. In addition he acted as secretary of the Plowmen's Association; Vegetable Grower's Association; Livestock Improvement Association; and the Junior Committee Peterborough Exhibition.

He also addressed 55 meetings on some farm subject and attended 82 meetings in connection with rural activities. Among the senior extension projects, Mr. Nelson had listed, the placement of 35 approved bulls; placement of grade rams, and selected sows and boars; organization of cheese factory patrons; conducting of two livestock field days; and also fertilizer trials, and the distribution of 83,872 trees for reforestration and wind-breaks.

NERVOUS, SLEEPLESS

WHEN nervous and in need of a blood tonic—when you're anaemic, with weight below normal, and you feel tired-out and weak, follow the advice of Wm. Downing of 5 Hamilton Road, London, Ont., who says: "For many years our family has relied upon Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for good health. At one time when my health failed I became very much discouraged. My nerves were all unstrung, I couldn't sleep, my appetite was poor, I became weak and suffered from pains in my back—in fact I was sick all over. But the first bottle of the 'Discovery' produced a wonderful change so I continued to use it until I felt normal again."

Asserting that he "wants to die with a smile," Yukio Ozarko, veteran Japanese statesman who was once mayor of Tokio, recently sailed from England for his native Nippon and what he believes is certain assassination. It was Ozaki who presented the cherry trees that line the Potomac river in Washington.

PASTOR ASKED TO STAY.

MARMORA, Jan. 25. (Examiner Correspondence)—The annual congregational meeting of Marmora St. Andrew's United Church took place in the Church on Tuesday evening with the pastor, Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth, presiding.

The ministers' report dealt with his six months' survey in which he had noted approximately 160 families on the charge. He considered they should have a robust chuch with the possibilities before them. He wished the congregation Godspeed and hoped all would realize the opportunity and privilege of service.

H. W. Sabine gave the report of the Church School. The average attendance during the year was 87. The financial side was very satisfactory. Mrs. W. Kerr, junior, gave a series of three short mother poems. W. A. Sonderson having given the report of the choir, the leader A. E. Smith, B.A., added a few words. A vote of thanks was accorded.

Arthur Sweet who represented the congregation at Presbytery then gave a short talk. The work of the Women's Association was told in two excellent reports. Mrs. F. R. Wells mentioned the total expenditures for the year as being $616.93. Mrs. E. R. Prentice gave a brief summary of the organization and the work done. he name was changed in December from that of Ladies' Aid. The membership of 25 had an average attendance of 12 at the monthly meetings in 1932.

Men's Association

Ralph Neal brought in the first report of the St. Andrew's Men's Association which has held six bimonthly meetings and from the start of nine memzers has grown to a membership of 4. D. E. Bell gave the report of the Missionary and Maintenance Fund which yielded $116.41 in the past year.

G. B. Airhart in reporting the church funds mentioned that there were 81 systematic givers. The subscriptions for the current fund reached $2135.84 last year and five hundred dollars was received for the Building Fund. The next item of business was the appointment of H. W. Sabine as representative to Presbytery for the year. It was decided to invite the Presbytery to meet at Marmora for the spring meeting. The pastor then announced that he would later name a committee for the Missionary and Maintenance Fund. The matter of looking after the communion set which was brought to the notice of the congregation by the pastor, was left to the Women's Association.

New Officers

Members of the session of elders were then elected as follows: W. A. Sanderson, A. Sweet, T. S. Pearce, G. B. Airhart, H. O. Loveless, H. W. Sabine and Dr. D. L. Curtis—one of these to retire at the end of the year.

The committee of Stewards was then elected to comprise the following: H. R. Haacke, C. W. Gladney, E. C. Prentice, T. N. Marett, W. Billings, Dr. D. Thomson, D. E. Bell, W. J. Pack, T. R. Wells, A. Wallbridge and T. E. Laycock.

A vote of appreciation to Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth and a cordial welcome to remain another year was voiced by G. B. Airhart. The latter was re-elected treasurer of the church after which the meeting adjourned. All repaired to St. Andrew's Hall where two interesting contests were put on by Mrs. (Rev.) C. W. Hollingsworth and a delicious lunch served by the ladies. The ladies also held a miscellaneous kitchen shower to equip the new kitchen, an undertaking which met with good response.

of these counties and bank interest;

And that no resolution authorizing expenditures of any description be passed by the members of this council before and until proper complete detailed estimates of all expenditures that must necessarily be made for the year 1933 in order to obtain a balanced budget for this year, have been submitted to and approved by a majority of the members of the council of these counties;

And be it further resolved that we tentatively strike a rate of 10 mills, and that we make a united effort to curtail all our controllable expenditures so as to enable an apportioning rate of 10 mills upon the equalized assessment of these counties to be sufficient to liquidate all estimated liabilities of these counties for 1933, and so as to permit of some reduction being made of the deficit carried forward from 1932.

THE LOGICAL STEP.

The Toronto Star in an editorial dealing with the Queen City's tax rate made a suggestion that might well be considered by all municipal governments.

"This year's Board of Control," says the Star, "must set a tax rate that the people can pay. They must settle on such a rate before they begin their study of the estimates, and must then cut the estimates until that rate is made possible."

That, of course, as The Examiner explained in a recent editorial, reverses the usual procedure, which is to decide first upon what expenditures are to be made and then endeavor to secure the necessary amount through taxation, but many people will feel that in view of present-day conditions the change would be completely justified.

There is no use selling a tax rate that the people cannot possible pay, and the wisest policy under the circumstances, therefore, would be to decide the amount that can be raised through taxation and cut the appropriations to meet that figure.

There are many expenditures that are uncontrollable, but, as a contemporary points out, the inability of the taxpayer to pay is also uncontrollable, and that conditions call for the utmost economy and the most serious inquiry into even the smallest expenditures this year.

THE NEW WARDEN.

The election as warden of Reeve John McIntosh of North Monaghan, the dean of this County Council both in years and experience, would seem to have given the county body the right kind of leadership for these troublesome times.

The new warden, who comes back to the chair after a gap of fourteen years, knows county business and problems from every angle, and his long training in the conduct of municipal affairs should admirably fit him for the heavy responsibilities which have to be assumed by all civic leaders in this period of economic distress.

Warden McIntosh can be depended upon for sane, careful consideration of important issues and for steadiness and resolution in the handling of public business, and has the qualities essential to his important office, especially having regard to the conditions of to-day.

These are not easy times for municipal governments; everywhere the problem is to maintain essential services and at the same time to reduce expenditures sufficiently to afford a measure of relief to taxpayers whose incomes have been sadly reduced.

That will be the task of the Peterborough County Council, and with that serious situation to be dealt with, the county body is to be considered fortunate in its choice of the experienced reeve of North Monaghan as warden for 1933.

KNOWN IN ADVANCE.

Currency inflation may be an issue in the coming session of Parliament, but so far as the Government is concerned the question is settled in advance.

There is to be no departure from sound money, Premier Bennett has declared in an earnest speech before the Toronto Board of Trade, in which he characterized inflation proposals as absurd in the face of Canada's obligations abroad and the necessity of maintaining her credit structure.

The firmness with which the Prime Minister stated the position of his Government in regard to the currency issue left not the slightest doubt as to what will happen when the matter comes before Parliament, as it most certainly will.

Recent speeches by Hon. Ian Mackenzie and Mitchell F. Hepburn, prominent Liberal members of the Federal House strongly endorsing inflation, show that the independent groups in Parliament will have the backing of a section of the official opposition, but, on the other hand, it is equally certain that the Government will be supported in its allegiance to sound money by many on the Liberal side.

It may be that there will be some desertions from the Government ranks, but Mr. Bennett is able to command sufficient support, even without assistance from other sections of the House, to defeat any attempt to juggle with Canada's currency as an emergency measure.

Nevertheless the question should prove one of the most interesting to come before Parliament during the session.

MAKING IT HARDER.

A new angle on instalment buying is to be furnished by legislation which is to be introduced at the present session of the Quebec Legislature.

It is proposed to divide goods bought on credit into two classes, luxuries and necessities.

No change is to be made in the law as regards necessities, but in the case of articles of luxury, such as pianos, radios, gramophones, automobiles, etc., the new legislation will provide that merchants selling such goods on the instalment plan must get an initial cash payment of 50 per cent.

Of course, the Legislature has really no power to actually dictate to a merchant as to what cash payment he must exact, but it has the authority to change the lien law so that such a condition of sale will be enforced.

If the merchant does get the 50 per cent., he will be protected against seizure of the goods by the landlord when rent is not paid; if he does not so protect himself, the article would be liable to seizure for rent.

The intention is also to adopt the French law in all such cases, which provides that if the 50 per cent. cash payment is not insisted on the merchant loses his right to repossess the goods for non-payment.

An interesting provision is to be made in regard to house furniture.

For example, a man who is contemplating matrimony will be allowed to buy up to $500 worth of furniture on any terms agreed upon, but on any amount over that sum he must pay 50 per cent. in cash.

The Retailer Merchants' Association of Montreal is said to have approved of the proposed legislation.

IT MEANS.

Up on Parliament Hill Dominion and provincial statesmen are considering how Canada may embark upon contributory unemployment insurance.

What is that?

When we speak of contributory unemployment insurance, what exactly do we mean? Are we clear, or just muddled, about what such a system would aim at, about how it would work, about who would bear its cost?

It is easy to talk, or write, about unemployment insurance "sustaining the standards of workers." Or about it "eliminating the stigma attached to charity." Or about it "tiding over periods of depression." It is more difficult to show how unemployment insurance would do these things. Or to explain what the processes would be. Or about the matter of costs.

About unemployment insurance there is a vast literature. The Parliamentary Library is full of it. But the trouble with most of this literature is that it is prejudiced; that it is for or against; propaganda. When, therefore, the Government of Canada comes to determine whether Canada should adopt unemployment insurance, it can't simply go upon theories and platitudes, or upon propaganda. It must find out what a lot of economic jargon means in plain English. It must discover whether what has worked under the conditions existing in other countries would be likely to work under Canadian conditions. Finally, and most important of all, it must know who is going to pay for unemployment insurance, and how. The state of the treasury insists upon that.

There are those who, their faith in governments transcending all facts, see in unemployment insurance a panacea for all ills. They see it ending unemployment, or at least the evils of unemployment; see in it the provision of money from some unspecified or mysterious source keeping the wolf from the door whether people are employed or not.

It is not quite as simple as that. It is, in fact, complex and extraordinarily difficult, calling for careful pondering over such questions as these:

1. What conditions are necessary to make insurance practicable?
2. Do all types of unemployment lend themselves to insurance
3. What plans of unemployment insurance are in operation in other countries?
4. What elements of strength and weakness have been manifest in these schemes?
5. Have the plans been self-supporting?
6. Have they been accompanied by reduced unemployment?

Nor are these questions all. In addition, and assuming that constitutional and other difficulties can be overcome, and that some scheme of insurance is to be adopted, consideration will have to be given to the following:

1. How comprehensive should an insurance plan be and what group of workers should be covered?
2. What kinds of unemployment are insurable?
3. Should the plan be compulsory or voluntary?
4. Who is to contribute to the fund and how much should the respective contributions be?
5. Should the contributions vary with different industries and according to range of salary?
6. What should be the qualifications and disqualifications for receiving benefit?
7. How much should the benefit be?
8. Should it vary with salary or the number of dependents or with age or sex?
9. What should be the maximum duration of benefit?
10. Should provision be made for part-time employment?
11. Should provision be made for rewarding employers or employees with good employment records?
12. What is to happen if—over a prolonged period of unemployment—the fund becomes insolvent?
13. Should provision be made for borrowing, if necessary, or should benefits cease when the fund is exhausted?

All of these things—and they are but a few of many problems inherent in unemployment insurance—must be considered. They must be considered if for no other reason than that, whatever happens, no one should want the state, already over-burdened with social costs, to have to put up for unemployment insurance. The thing, if it is to work, must be self-sustaining.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

"Irish election closes with cracked heads," says a newspaper heading. There is more than a suspicion that the campaign started in a similar manner.

There is some cause to believe that somehow or other Mr. Bennett does not favor currency inflation as a way out of our present difficulties.

Sturgeon Falls claims that it will be ruined if it pays any more relief. And, as a contemporary points out, if relief had been given out everywhere in accordance with the Sturgeon Falls plan the whole country would be ruined.

The Scottish Rite has made a splendid contribution to the Relief Fund. Which local organization will be the next to join the Big Parade?

HOW TO GET OUT OF BED

It's dark. It's cold. If you get up now, two seconds after the alarm goes off, you'll not need to hurry. You will have plenty of time for anything—time to shave, time for two cups of coffee, time to feel virtuous about your strong will and stern adherence to duty. You might even have time for one of those mythical cold showers that some people say they take.

But the question is: Do you wish to feel virtuous, or would you rather be comfortable?

You went to bed early. Well, rather early. Eleven o'clock, or so. You opened the windows and pulled the covers well above your nose. All night you sleep easily. If you dreamed you do not remember. They were not violent dreams. No bulls chased you in pastures. You fell from no 20-story buildings. No wild and wooly aviator took you for a ride. Sweet peace wrapped your soul, as in cotton, all the night through.

Now it's up to you to get up.

But how?

Well, I've been in the business a long time. When I was a kid, I used to get up at 5 o'clock in the morning to peddle papers. When I was in the army, stern sergeants roused me in the dim, dark hours, ordering me to "rise and shine." I slept lightly then, too. The tinkle of a field telephone in a dugout would rouse me from slumber. The faint swush of a bombing plane, with its motor cut off, would get me out of bed instanter....

So I know about getting up. I've done it 13,000 times.

And my advice, which is very, very good about such matters, is the only way to get out of bed on a cold morning is to stay there half awake, half dreaming, half defiant of the exigencies of life, at least half an hour after you should be shivering around the house. They say that one hour before midnight is worth two after that, but I say—and perhaps you'll agree—that half an hour after the alarm goes off is worth two before midnight....

That's the sweet time, that's the fair time, that's the precious interval of life.

Only a "lazy bum" would do such a thing—stay in bed when he ought to be up?

Very well, then, only a "lazy bum" would do it.....But "lazy bums" certainly do know how to get out of bed on a cold morning. Who says they don't?

MIRACLES AND SUPERSTITIONS AND BUGLES

OUT OF the dark, moist earth a small blade comes, pushing up toward the sun....In the long nights, in the short days, in rain and storm and wind, it was down there in earth, changing, preparing, mighty in its littleness....Out of a man who seems hard and unselfish and ruthless comes a good act, strong and unselfish and kind. Somewhere in his dark self there was a seed or a bulb of goodness, and beneath the crust of his cynicism it was growing....A miracle? No, I hardly think so. It happens too often to be a miracle, or miracles are more common than we suppose.

I said, "I almost never catch a cold," and as the words left my lips my right hand reached out to knock on wood....I am not superstitious. I have no conscious faith in the dark region of such foolishness.... But my hand did start forth to knock on wood....Is my hand, then superstitious? Does it believe as I do not? Or did it move because other hands do move in this same way?....How many of our proud actions are beyond our own directions?

You never were going to make any mistakes. You intended to be right, always. You would not slop over, blow up, make an idiot of yourself....Not you. You would be wise. You would be strong. You would be just about as perfect as any human being could ever be.... How about it? How have you gone along??....You have been foolish, careless, angry, sloppy, idiotic? And when you look back, curiously enough, you find that you have more affection for some of the acts the world calls foolish than for some of those others that won the world's approval....Isn't that true?

A little girl I know wanted a bugle for her birthday....She is not "musical," but once when she had her cousin's bugle in her hands she discovered that she could make a loud noise with it—and no one else in the family could....That's why she wanted the bugle, just to make a loud noise that no one else could make....She did not get it; she got doll clothes, instead. And I think she thought her parents were rather "mean," though she didn't say so....A talent, sometimes, is a dangerous thing. And many a time we do something merely because we CAN do it, and for no other reason ....Have you ever blown a bugle?

MURDER IN EDEN

By Charles Winfield Smith.

Dorotha spoke with a sincerity that was convincing. She met Nanette's questioning glance frankly, openly, squarely.

"I'll show you," she said.

She went back into her bedroom and returned with a slip of paper and handed it to the actress. Nanette took it and read:

"Miss Deane, Miss LeRoi telephoned and asked that we get word to you that you need not call for her at the beach. She said to tell you that friends would bring her home."

Dorotha said, "That was sticking in the front door when I came home. I supposed you had called one of the neighbors and asked that the message be left for me."

Bewilderment darkened Nanette's features. At last she said, "Someone has played a cruel prank on us, Dorotha. I left no message for you."

They talked for a moment and decided that it was only a prank, and that they could arrive at some conclusion as to what to do tomorrow. Nanette said she was tired and wanted to get some sleep.

She went to her boudoir, after declining Dorotha's assistance, undressed and crawled in between the cool white sheets. But she did not go to sleep. She lay there for hours in the darkness staring at the gloomy ceiling.

Who was so familiar with her actions that her presence at the beach was known? She had told no one she was going. And yet, in view of what had happened tonight she knew that someone was keeping a close watch on her. Which but presented another question: why?

She allowed her toughts to wander back over the events of the night. First, Larry Weldon nd Lucy Wilbur had sought to overtake her as she left Pete Russell's cottage. What did they want? What did they intend to do to her?

Then, Dorotha had failed to call for her, as she had instructed, and when the cowboy actor brought her home she found Rodolf Holmes awaiting her, to bitterly arraign her for going to the party when she should have been conducting herself more decorously, in consequence of her reputed engagement to Richard Bailey.

And finally, she learned that someone had impersonated her, leaving word that it would not be necessary for Dorotha to call for her. Was her life in danger? Did the same fate await her that had befallen the director who had befriended her and then attempted to betray that friendship?

Richard Bailey! The thought of him caused shudders of revulsion to wrack her body. He had betrayed her; he had——

"Tomorrow," she muttered with determination, "I'm going to the police and tell everything I know."

And with that determination in her mind she dropped off into a fitful slumber, to dream frightful dreams of paying the supreme penalty for murder.

In another room several miles away another young actress was lying in bed, staring at the ceiling, wondering what would happen next. She was afraid, deathly afraid.

Lillian Hull saw a thousand fingers pointing at her from the darkened corners of her tiny apartment. She buried her head under the sheets, trying to shut them out, but they seemed to reach right through the thin cover to burn her cringing flesh.

"Oh, why did I do it?" she moaned. "Why did I do it. If I'm caught—"

She trembled at the thought. In the corridor a heavy football sounded, coming toward the door of her apartment. Her heart almost stood still. She could vision an army of blue-coated policemen marching in to get her. But the footfalls passed on down the corridor and stopped in front of another door.

Outside in the street a siren shrieked mournfully. She leaped out of bed and looked out of the window. A white ambulance raced by and disappeared in the direction of the emergency hospital.

She could stand it no longer. She switched on the lights and reached for her clothes. She struggled into them, pulled a slouch hat down over her eyes and went out.

Outside in the street she paused and gazed about. Where would she go? What would she do? How could she get away from her troubled thoughts?

She turned up Highland Avenue toward Cahuenga Pass. A steady stream of cars whirled past her, their lights glaring into her eyes as though they were seeking to probe her tortured soul. Unconsciously, she turned into a by-street. With dragging feet she plodded up a steep hill.

The street was bathed in gloom. She had been afraid of the lights of the well-traveled thoroughfare; now she was afraid of the dark. But on she went, unheeding, blindly, with no thought of where she was going.

Unconscious of what she was doing, as though she were traveling a well-known route, she crossed the deserted silent street.

Presently, she turned into a winding automobile driveway leading up to a house in which the lights were burning brightly. It wasn't until she set foot upon the steps that she awoke to a realization of where she was. The home of Richard Bailey!

What was she doing there? How had she gotten here? It was as though she had been in a trance. She could not remember walking here? That she had walked? Yes. That she had come here? No.

Now but one thought was uppermost in her mind. She must get away from here before she was discovered. What would happen to her if the police found her here? What would they do to her? She must get away.

But as she turned to precipitate flight the door opened suddenly and a hand laid heavily upon her shoulder.

"Oh, no you don't," a gruff voice declared. "You'd better come in."

Lillian turned to find a huge bulk of black shadow standing in the door looking at her. The shadow took her by the arm and fairly dragged her into the house.

"I found her prowling about outside," the gruff voice said.

She looked at a scowling faced individual who had appeared from the door leading into Bailey's den. She recognized him as John Lee, chief of police.

"You're just the little lady I want to see," the chief said. "Won't you sit down?"

Lillian Hull stared at him, unable to speak.

"Sit down," he repeated firmly. "I have some questions I want to ask you."

Like an automaton, she dropped into the nearest chair. It was cruelly hard and uncomfortable. John Lee stood above her, his hands thrust deep into his pockets, staring down at her with a sardonic grin.

She cringed before his accusing look. Wildly, she cast about for some means of escape. She saw only the bulky forms of the police chief and four of his men. Fearfully, she looked up at Lee.

"What do you want with me?" she asked through drawn lips.

He did not speak at once. He looked at her, his lip curling into a sneer. Then:

"It's as true as the fact that the sun rises in the east and sets in the west," with maddening calmness.

She did not understand. Her expression said so.

"The murderer always returns to the scene of his crime," he went on. "That's why they get caught."

CONTINENTAL LIFE SETS NEW RECORDS

Assets and Surplus Grow, President Reveals at Annual Meeting.

TORONTO, Jan. 25.—The thirty-third annual report of the Continental Life Insurance Company was presented by the President, G. B. Woods, at the Annual Meeting of shareholders and policyholders held at the Head Office of the Company here to-day. The outstanding feature of the report is the item "Surplus Funds to Policyholders" which now stands at $675,132.26, a record high figure. The assets of the Company total $7,722,926.23, reserves $6,776,940.00, and insurance in force covered by 21,881 policies amounts to $37,432,865.00. The total income for 1932 was $1,587,890.79.

Payments to policyholders and beneficiaries during the year reached the new high figure of $913,381.42. Of the amount paid under this heading, over 80 per cent was paid to living policyholders in dividends, matured endowments and cash surrender values. No reduction was made in the scale of dividends paid to policyholders and during the year the sum of $91,680.14 was disbursed on this account.

The sound and conservative policy of the Company is reflected in its most favourable mortality experience which was lower than in 1931; in its low expense ratio and in the very satisfactory average rate of interest earned on its investments, 5.80 per cent. Conservation of existing business received a great deal of attention; at the same time new business was secured on an economical basis.

The investments of the Company are valued very conservatively; in fact, they are carried at a figure $55,809.58 below the Dominion Government authorized values. The total assets are distributed as follows: Bonds and Debentures, 36.6 percent, First Mortgages, 30 per cent, Policy Loans, 20 per cent, Real Estate, 7.5 per cent, Preferred and Common Stocks and Cash on hand, 4 per cent.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

A DAY OF CONSECRATIONS

This date, the festival in the church calendar of the Conversion of St. Paul has been the consecration of many bishops in both the Church of England in Canada and the Roman Catholic Church. The first was in 1668 when Monsignor Jean Baptiste de Saint la Croix Chevrial de Saint Vallier was consecrated as the second Bishop of Quebec. Then in 1801 in the ancient Basilica (or rather its successor) took place the installation of Mgr. J. O. Plessis, who stood so firmly for the British cause and fidelity of the people of Lower Canada to their obligations to Britain.

No fewer than five Anglican Bishops chose this date for their consecrations to the episcopal office, Rt. Rev. A. N. Bethune as coadjutor Bishop of Toronto, 1867 (he succeeded Bishop Stachan the following November), Rev. W. B. Bond as the third Bishop of Montreal, 1897; Rev. George Holmes as the third Bishop of Athabasca, 1900; Rev. L. W. Williams as the sixth Bishop of Quebec, 1918, and the installation of Rt. Rev. C. A. Seager (translated from Ontario) as fifth Bishop of Huron 1932. This date has also been a favorite with many prelates of the Church of England itself, the lessons and offices for the day being so appropriate.

COURT MARTIAL PROBES QUARREL

Officer Accused of Attempting to Molest Brother Officer's Wife.

SHOOTING AT MASQUERADE

WINNIPEG, Jan. 25.—(CP)—Co-defendants before the first general court martial to sit in Canada in two decades, Captain C. G. Brown and Captain R. H. Rebitt, M.C., D.S.O., members of Lord Strathcona's Horse, last night awaited the outcome of a military tribunal. Both are charged with serious offences against military law and discipline.

The court was cleared to take evidenceof Mrs. R. H. Rebitt, wife of Captain Rebitt. Her testimony was kept secret.

The charge against the two accused is a sequel to a masquerade ball of Hallowe'en, 1932, held at Fort Osborne barracks. Following a quarrell between the two it is alleged Capt. Rebitt fired a revolver at Captain Brown. Captain Rebitt will face charges under the Army Act after the case of Capt. Brown is disposed of.

Captain Brown was charged with "behaving in a scandalous manner, unbecoming to an officer and a gentleman." It is alleged on the night of the masquerade, "he caused the wife of a brother officer to accompany him to a single officer's room, where they remained for an undetermined period, during which he attempted to molest her." He pleaded not guilty.

Open To Public

The evidence taken yesterday was concerned with the location of the rooms in the building in which the masquerade was held, their construction and relation one to another. A. S. M. Ross, K.C., counsel for Captain Brown made application for trial in camera. A conference between counsel was taken, after which it was anlounced proceedings would be open to the public.

The scene in the court room was in sharp contrast to a session of a civil court. On a high dais at one end sat members of the court. In the centre was the silver-haired president, Brig.-Gen. J. F. L. Embury, as straight-backed as when he strode shell-bitten Flanders fields at the head of the 26th Battalion.

Flanking him, on the right, sat Col. J. A. Hope, Perth, Ont., the judge advocate, and to either side the six members of the court. Major E. Stethem, R.C.D., Toronto, acted as prosecutor. The clanking of sword scabards, and the tinkle of spurs played a military obligato to the swish of legal gowns and the low voices of counsel and prosecutor.

TOKYO, Thursday.—It was authoritatively stated to-day that the decision of the Japanese cabinet concerning withdrawal from the League of Nations had been postponed until the nature of the report being framed in Geneva concerning recommendations on the Sino-Japanese situation becomes known.

NO EVIDENCE OF ARSON

TORONTO.—"I am compelled to find not a shred of evidence has been brought forward to show the fire was desired, designed or set with malice aforethought," declared E. P. Heaton, Provincial Fire Marshal, in his report on an enquiry into the burning of the Clifton Hotel at Niagara Falls, on Dec. 31. Damage of $650,000was caused by the fire, while $390,000 insurance was carried, the Fire Marshal said.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

STANDARD EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Jan. 25 (C.P.) — Howey Gold took the play on the Standard Mining Market this afternoon when a report was broadcast that a special price had been offered for a large block of the stock and that the management had decided to double the mill capacity without delay. The price advanced to 80, but weakened a little under profit-taking before the close. The rest of the market was strong and the buying heavy.

The big gold producers were under accumulation, Lake Shore advancing to 34.25, Teck Hughes to 4.35, and McIntyre to 23.25, while Hollinger, Dome and Wright-Hargreaves closed practically unchanged.

WINNIPEG EXCHANGE

WINNIPEG, Jan. 25 (C.P.) — Opening fractionally higher in sympathy with firm overseas cables, wheat moved within a very narrow range during early trading to-day. Traders generally were marking time pending new developments.

At mid-session wheat prices were ⅛ higher in all futures. May was quoted at 46⅝; July at 47⅝, and October 48⅝.

Inter-market spreading operations were negligible, export business in Canadian wheat was very disappointing, while operations by locals were very thin and extremely uninteresting.

Liverpool wheat scored gains at the start, but trading in the English market was dull due to expectations of large wheat shipments from Southern hemisphere countries this week and quotations near the close were ⅜d higher per 100 pounds. Buenos Aires wheat at noon was ⅛ lower per bushel.

TORONTO EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, Jan. 25 (C.P.).—Consolidated Smelters, C.P.R., and British American Oil turned over in comparatively heavy volume on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day, while the list broadened out to some extent. The market developed an upward tendency in the afternoon, with net gains showing for the leaders.

Under heavy selling C.P.R. weakened in the morning session but came back in the afternoon rally to close unchanged at 14 3-8 and Smelters climbed to 64 for a gain of 3. Ford "A" closed higher. The oil group closed unchanged or slightly weaker. Imperial at 8 5-8 was off 1-8 but Supertest Ordinary gained ¼ to 13.

One Sample Sheep Without Any Tariff Is Unique Request Sent Wool Growers

LONDON, Ont., January 25 (C.P.). — There seems to be something interesting in sheep. The Canadian Wool Growers' Association has received the following letter, written by an unnamed person in an Ontario county:

"I wonder if you have any sample sheep you give away. Even a small one would be all right, as I will have to keep it in my office until I can get some pasture for it, where I can put it out and have it pasteurized.

"I would like a nice medium-weight all-wool sheep, in stripes, if you have them—one I can skin and make a jacket out of later on.

"When you skin a sheep, is that the end of it? Or can they be skinned regularly like a human being?

"I have an old sheep skin in my office I have been living off for 25 years, and I thought if I had a whole sheep I might do better. I see by the papers there is a lot of trouble these days about the tariff on wool; so if you can pick out a sheep that hasn't any tariff on the wool, it might save me cleaning it when it comes here. Does this tariff come back after you once get rid of it?"

DEPOSITS DOWN.

TORONTO, Jan. 25 (C.P.)—In its annual statement for the last year the Dominion Bank reports profits of $1,179,931, a decrease of $142,356 from the year before. The profits were sufficient to cover all dividends, and the usual charges such as write-off, Dominion and Provincial Government taxes, officers' pension fund and leave a balance of $560,773, to be added to the credit of profit and loss account.

Deposits, both current and time, were down slightly, indicating less idle funds held by business firms. Notes of bank in circulation are down from $5,832,000 by about $430,000.

Assets of the bank remain in a high state of liquidity, the cash amounting to $21,241,000 in the bank's possession equalling more than 20 per cent of the liabilities to the public, while readily realizable assets including bonds and short term loans, total $60,569,000, equivalent to 57.58 per cent of the bank's public liabilities.

Current loans and discounts in Canada total $53,645,000 and are down $7,604,000 from the previous year, due to the low level of business which has reduced the demand for commercial accommodation.

LAD 16 CHARGED WITH WOUNDING

Morrisburg to surrender to police.

There were no formalities when Redmond walked into Provincial police headquarters here. His father had advised Constable Frank Rose he would surrender his son this morning and Magistrate McCormick had motored from Winchester to be present. The formal charge was laid and the application made for bail. Redmond, police said, appeared unruffled by the experiences and sat quietly in one corner of the room while waiting for the bail application to be settled.

Up to Magistrate

TORONTO, Jan. 25. (CP)—Enquiries at the Attorney General's Department authorities had not communicated with the Department regarding the granting of bail or otherwise to Arnold Redmond, held in conection with the stabbing of a school principal.

In any case, officials of the department pointed out, the matter rested entirely in the hands of the Magistrate at Morrisburg.

BEER PRESENTED TO JUDGE

SARNIA.—Judge Albert E. Taylor was formally presented with two bottles of beer by W. S. Haney, Crown Attorney, in the presence of Sheriff A. J. Johnson. But who owned the beer prior to Judge Taylor, no one knows.

The registry office is near a dance hall. The beer was found on the registry office steps. Apparently the bottles had been left there by someone who used the steps for a beer cache.

Gunmen Miss Shots At Capone's Sister

CHICAGO, Jan. 25 (C.P.).—A report that Mrs. Mafalda Maritote, sister of Al Capone, former "car" of Chicago's gangland, barely escaped death when four bullets were fired in her direction, was under investigation by Chicago police today.

The report, published in a Chicago newspaper, said the shots were fired yesterday by gunmen from an automobile while Mrs. Maritote was walking from a residence with her nine-months-old daughter Mrs. Maritote, however, denied that anyone had shot at her, and said the noise similar to shots came from two cars half a block away. She thought the sound was due to the cars "back-firing."

CITY OFFICIALS

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Sir,—In different places in Ontario, according to reports in the newspapers they have made an effort to lower expenses by reducing salaries of officials, in some cases letting some go altogether as there was nothing for them to do under the depression.

I suppose through time something like that will happen here. If our officials had been working in a factory they would have had a stiff cut long before this time and possibly their time of working cut in two and only paid for the time they worked.

All over our country there are men who have worked a lifetime in some person's place of business and through adverse circumstances were not able to make provision for old age, possibly some of them felt that their old employer would not see them in want, but some of the old firms have met reverses and cannot, much as they would like to do so, give any help. There are many in our City who are having a desperate struggle to pay their way. I think our City officials ought to show some appreciation of the easy time they are having.

Short Time.

YOUNG PEOPLE OF TO-DAY

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—Would you kindly allow me to give expression to a few things that have appeared in the press of recent dates. The first is the editorial which appeared in your issue early in the month upon gossiping, taken from the Rotary Magazine which put that evil in the right light, and you should be congratulated for it. Usually, if you find men and women circulating some dirty gossip about someone, they are just telling the public, in a sly way, just what they would do if placed in the same circumstances. Now, "if the shoe fits, put it on."

The second is where Manson Doyle, according to your issue of January 16th, scored the press for conspiring against the young people of to-day. Personally, I think it far better to cover up that which is degrading and to bring to light that, which is elevating. The best way to make a good boy, is when he does a thing well, tell him of it.

The third is that of Campbell Morgan, who for years away from home, meeting many young people goes back home and broadcasts, That he believes in flaming the young people, that they are of a higher type than they are credited for, and the evil that is in them is largely created by the example of the older.

And the fourth, and the last I will mention is that of the Ideal Girls' Organizations of the United States, in their last campaign for the grand president of their organizations, where Doris Heyn, that homespun Chicago girl, that could cook, bake and play the piano, who took, endorsed by her campaign manager, for her platform, no petting, no kissing at early dates, and no drinking from their boy friends, and snowed their rival under in votes, seven to one.

Now, I want to ask every citizen of Peterborough, did they ever see the day when the young people of this city made a better appearance on the streets, and in their daily vocation than they do at present.

Thanking you, I remain,

Yours,

W. H. Merrill.

BURDEN OF TAXATION

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—The burden of taxation and how to reduce same seems to be giving people considerable food for thought in these days. Many citizens, the country over, are looking at educational costs, and believe that here lies a field for considerable reduction in expenditures.

In recent months, MacLean's Magazine, The Financial Post, The Financial Times of Montreal, Toronto Daily Star, Montreal Standard, and other leading papers have been featuring articles, showing that there is a growing feeling among thinking people that the cost of education to the general taxpayer is too high and out of all proportion.

Following is an excerpt from the Border Cities Star, Windsor, January 18, 1933. I hope you can find space for it in your paper.

Sees Curtailment of Free Education

"The time is coming, in the opinion of W. Donald McGregor, a member of Windsor's Board of Control and a former school trustee, when an intermediate high school education will be the highest provided by taxpayers. Beyond that, pupils will have to be charged for tuition.

This, he believed, is one of the things that will be done to reduce the costs of education to the taxpayers.

"Education costs are growing," he said, "and something must be done. I think it's getting higher than we can afford to pay."

Mr. McGregor's comments were made before the Board of Education last night, at a meeting on estimates at which he represented the Board of Control. His remarks, incidentally, were directed at Education costs generally, and not at those of the Windsor Board.

"I'm not speaking as a member of the Board of Supervisors now," he said, "but as an ex-member of the Board of Education."

There is a possibility, he explained, that education cost reductions will be sought through the replacement of collegiates by junior high schools in which teachers' salaries can be lower than in the high schools of to-day.

"I think the time is coming when we'll take pupils through the intermediate high school, and from then on they'll have to pay the costs of tuition," he predicted.

"I don't think it's necessary for the taxpayer of the community to give every child an education to fit them for a university."

Many of those who complete collegiate courses do not use the education they receive, he maintained, and besides, there is much that one can teach oneself after leaving school.

"I just offer these things because something has to be done about it," he commented.

Commenting further upon the probable limitation of secondary education, Mr. McGregor said that "beyond the second form in high school, I think the time is coming when the pupil will have to be charged the cost of tuition."

Yours very sincerely,

J. A. McKone.

HORTICULTURISTS TAKE NOTE

To The Editor:—

It gives me great pleasure to see how generous The Examiner has been in the past to boost in various ways the work of the Peterborough Horticulturist Society, the efforts of which are having far reaching results throughout the district, in greater appreciation of beauty in trees, flowers and home surroundings as well as greater care for planted areas in our public parks and boulevards.

The Horticultural Society however feel this work can be further extended in many ways and would like all citizens interested in their city and district to co-operate by sending along any suggestions they may have for work they consider could be usefully undertaken by the society.

A meeting will be held in the office of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, 287 George street on Thursday, January 26th at 8 p.m., prompt to which all horticulturists are invited to attend and bring along suggestions for development or for premiums. Others unable to attend forward their ideas in writing and so help the active members to extend their sphere of influence. Depression maybe the prevailing note, but man requires something to occupy his leisure time, and flowers, shrubs, trees and vegetables will grow equally as well during such times as in periods of prosperity. Simple pleasures are not always expensive.

Therefore let me urge all interested in growing things, whether members of the society or not to come along to that meeting with the desire to assist the work.

E. Bradshaw.

ON SHORT TIME

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—Please give me a little space in your paper about this relief. A man entirely out of work gets more than my hueband who is working on short time and averages about six dollars a week, and we have to pay for rent, fuel, groceries, etc., with that.

There are aldermen in the factories who know that they are getting no more wages than that to live on. I think that a man on this short time should have a little help as well as the man out of work.

A Discouraged Housewife.

THE MAINTENANCE OF OUR EDUCATIONAL STANDARDS

An Open Letter to the People of Ontario From The Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation.

The achievements of the Province of Ontario in the last sixty years have been marvellous. On the material side there has been a wonderful development in agriculture, commerce, industry, transportation, engineering, architecture, finance. On the spiritual side there has been a steady development in literature, art, music, religion. To call the roll of all these achievements would require a weighty volume, but the general story is familiar. It may be fairly said that taking all phases together, material and spiritual, this province compares creditably with any other province or state in the world.

The roots of this development lie in the homes, the churches and the schools of the province. From its inception, Upper Canada believed in these three institutions and through its history it has fostered all three. To education this province has given a generous support, for our people have been firmly convinced that the quality of the schools was one of the main determining factors in the quality of the nation. From the first our citizens have been willing to sacrifice to give their children an education. The establishment of elementary schools was followed by the establishment of high schools, and later by vocational schools and schools for exceptional children. Education has been made free and compulsory and a complete system created, extending from kindergarten to the university.

The results of this generous support of education, adapting the system decade by decade to the growing needs of the community and the increasing demands of world conditions, may be seen in the achievements of the province in material and spiritual realms. No one can suppose that we should have made our advances, if we had not laid the foundations in the training of our youth. The schools have reason to be proud of this story, and this province may well be proud of its schools.

Now, what of the future? Is there to be in this period of temporary financial stringency a lowering of the standards of our schools? Are our boys and girls to be offered an education distinctly inferior to that which we have been giving? Can this province afford to retreat from the advanced educational position we have attained by our long years of effort?

Of course we all know that the conditions of the past three years have borne very heavily upon many of our people and that large sections have suffered severely. Canada has not escaped the world-wide depression. The shrinkage of three fifths of the volume of the world's trade in the past few years has taken its toll of us, as it has of all other countries. No man, no nation, has been able to stay the hand of this grim fate. But no man can look in the faces of our boys and girls and be willing to penalize them for the mistakes of their elders. No man who knows the people of this province and who knows our history and who has any grasp of the wealth of our resources, material and spiritual, can believe that we are going to allow present circumstances to master us. We will find a way out, as we have done before.

In the meantime we are asking the people of this province to give their best thought to this tremendously important matter of the maintenance of our educational standards. If sacrifices are to be made, can they not be elsewhere than in the upbringing of our children? Any lowering of standards now is a menace to the future. Every effort now to sustain our schools is the wisest kind of investment.

On behalf of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation,

A. D. R. Fraser, Convener,
J. H. Hardy,
E. A. Hardy,
F. D. Wallace,
Publicity Committee.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN

TORONTO, Jan. 25.—Approximate prices track shipping point — Wheat, 40c to 42c; oats, 20c to 22c; barley, 30c to 32c; corn, 32c to 34c; rye, 28c to 30c; buckwheat, 28c to 30c.

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, Jan. 25.—During the past two weeks the local egg market has been difficult to follow as prices were slipping so rapidly, and sometimes readers of this page might have been found some variation in prices printed and those quoted by buyers on the same day. But the prices on this page are always for the day previous to publication and are always taken from dealers late in the afternoon. Sometimes dealers do not grade on the day the eggs are received and, of course, they pay the prices in effect on the day they do grade.

Egg Prices.

Accurate prices on fresh eggs from country shippers to retailers and on the brokers' market Toronto yesterday follow: Country shippers were quoted 18c for extras, 16c for firsts and 14c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned. Retailers were offered extras in cartons at 26c, extras loose at 24c, firsts loose at 22c and seconds loose at 19c per dozen. Brokers quoted graded eggs in free cases at 21c for extras, 19c for firsts and 18c for seconds.

Butter Steady.

The undertone to the butter market was steady, but trading was slow. Brokers offered fresh made No. 1 Ontario solids at 20¾c and regraded Ontario and Western makes at 21c, with No. 2 offerings at 20½c. Prices on creamery prints to the retail trade were unchanged at 24c to 25c for No. 1 and 23c to 24c for No. 2.

Cheese Firm.

Prices on cheese were steady. New makes were offered by local brokers at 10c for large, 10¼c for twins and 10½c for triplets. Retailers were offered all qualities of cheese at steady prices with new at 11¼c for large, twins at 11¾c, triplets at 12c and Stiltons at 14c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Jan. 25.—With receipts continuing to increase, egg prices again moved lower on the Montreal produce and dairy market yesterday.

Fresh graded eggs in carlots or less lost 1c to 2c a dozen. Extras were off 1c to 2c at 22c, with firsts and pullets easing 1c to 20c a dozen. To retailers quotations were off 1c to 3c a dozen. Receipts totalled 1,829 cases.

Carlots or less of No. 1 grass butter declined a quarter of a cent at 20¾c a pound, buyers holding off on account of the recent shipment of New Zealand stock. Receipts were only three boxes.

Current receipts of Ontario cheese were unchanged at 9c for white, 10c for colored and 10½c to 11¼c a pound for early make. Receipts were only three boxes.

Current receipts of Ontario cheese were unchanged at 9c for white, 10c for colored and 10½c to 11¼c a pound for early make. Receipts were 18 boxes.

Potatoes held steady, New Brunswick Green Mountains per 80-lb. bag being quoted at 80c; Prince Edward Island Green Mountains, per 80-lb. bag, at 85c, and Prince Edward Island Green Mountains, per 90-lb. bag, at 95c.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.— Advance in British exchange, together with good-sized corn export business from the United States, helped give a lift to grain values yesterday.

With United States corn quoted in Europe more than 2c a bushel lower than Argentine corn, to-day's overseas purchasing of corn from this country was estimated at 500,000 bushels, the largest amount this season. Crop reports about domestic winter wheat were extremely unfavorable, and European advices told of severe frosts, especially in the Balkans and Southern France.

Wheat closed firm, 1-8c to ¾c above Monday's finish; corn, 1-8c to 3-8c up; oats unchanged, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, January 25. — Given a good start at the opening, wheat futures continued the upward trend of the past week on the grain market here yesterday, holding steady throughout a quiet session to close more than ½c higher. Though no improvement in export demand was seen, offerings continued light and a better feeling toward the market prevailed.

At the finish, values were ⅜c to ½c up, with May resting at 46½c, July at 47¼c, and October at 48¼c.

Reflected to some extent in the pit trade, evidence was seen of shipping interest in grain for movement from Montreal in the spring. This was the only constructive development in the wheat-export situation, no overnight business being reported.

Some buying for Eastern accounts sent prices fractionally higher at the start, and, with offerings limited, advances were easily held for the remainder of the session. Spreading operations between Winnipeg and Chicago were not extensive.

BETTER BUSINESS REPORTED IN MANY BRITISH TRADES

Coal, Iron, Steel, Cotton, Woollen and Motor Industries Improving

BANK CLEARINGS UP

London.—Reports from many basic British industries show the outlook improving all along the line.

Coal, iron, steel, and cotton, and woollen trades and motor car manufacturing, all provide definite indications.

Bank clearings of cheques recently have been at the rate of £105,000,000 a day, as against £93,000,000 a year ago.

One of the most satisfactory features is that British coal is again being shipped all over the world.

It is expected that this year Canada alone will take over 2,000,000 tons of anthracite and bituminous coal produced from the Welsh and Scottish mines.

South Wales, Sheffield, and Lancashire all report better business.

In Wales not only the coal trade, but the tinplate trade is showing marked improvement. Orders from Canada formely placed in the United States are being received in South Wales.

Sheffield, which has resisted all temptations to "go shoddy" during the depression, is reaping the benefit of its decision to remain the centre for high quality steel goods.

Much research has been carried on. An outstanding example is the business in magnet steels. These were formerly produced on the continent, but Sheffield turned her attention to the problem, improved the continental steels, and now does the bulk of the world's business in this type of steel.

Sheffield is also expanding her production of scissors. Germany recently was sending scissors into this country at the rate of nearly seven million pairs a year. The imports now are negligible, and a trade which vanished from the country has been recaptured.

The Birmingham and Coventry motor trade is developing extremely well. Motor-car exports for the past year to date are over £6,400,000 as against £5,900,000 a year ago.

In Lancashire there is a large increase in the cotton piece trade with India, which had fallen to a very low level. Exports for the past year are up from 275,000,000 square yards to 329,000,000 square yards.

Mr. and Mrs. Weir and their children were all sleeping in the one upper room, measuring only 12 by 8 feet.

FALL WHEAT UP AND PASTURES ARE GREEN

Farmers Plowing and Sowing and Birds Piping Spring Tunes

London.—The unusual mild weather of the past two months is upsetting all the calculations of farmers. They have been sowing oats and peas more than a month earlier than usual.

Wheat sown in the last week of November and the first week of December is well up. Usually it is not through until early spring.

Pastures are covered with fresh grass, and in marsh districts there is more grass than can be remembered for this time of the year.

Dairy herds have been lying out at night.

Early lambs are being born in the open, and are thriving well without protection.

Plows have not been withdrawn from the land for a single day. Arable land in all parts of the country is in advanced preparation for the reception of spring cereals.

The big sugar beet harvest, which is now drawing to a completion, has been carried through with great success.

Birds are singing a month before their usual time.

Few woodcocks have been seen on the east coast, where, normally, they arrive with the easterly wind. There also are few wild geese, and gulls are not to be seen on the uplands in search of food.

Garden lawns are carrying six inches of grass, instead of being practically bare.

"The situation is unparalleled," says Mr. J. F. Wright, the secretary of the Norfolk Farmers' Union. "Of course, there is the other side of the picture. Farmers would like to see some frost. It pulverizes the soil and aids the fattening of cattle."

DUFFTOWN'S WALK A YEARLY EVENT UNIQUE IN SCOTLAND

A QUAINT TRADITION

Dufftown, Scotland.—The most interesting figure at Dufftown's famous juvenile society's 99th annual "walk" this year was Mr. James Petrie, retired farmer, Alford, who made a pilgrimage to Dufftown specially to take part in the parade after a lapse of 72 years.

As a boy of ten in 1800 Mr. Petrie, who then lived in Dufftown district, participated in the walk, and it was to see once again the procession which so captured his imagination in his youth that the octogenarian made the long journey.

On arriving in the town Mr. Petrie, who farmed in Inseh district before retiring, called upon Provost Spence, and, on explaining the object of his visit, was introduced to the leaders of the society, provided with a sash, and given a prominent position in the procession.

The Dufftown Juvenile Society, which has been in existence since 1834, is unique of its kind in the north of Scotland.

The founders were a group of feuars and others in the town who decided that the members should be boys who would pay sixpence per year for ten years at end of which time the funds would be disbursed equally among the members. This year sees a division of the funds, and each of the 400 members will receive 10s 1d.

Always in the first week of the year a walk has been held, followed by a ball in the evening, and the society had not been long in existence before the date of the procession came to be looked upon as the red-letter day in the year in Dufftown.

Each male child born in the town was made a member as soon after birth as possible, and this is a tradition that is kept up in many families to this day.

Joining the society was, and still is in many cases, as much a natural part of the early stages of the child's career as the christening ceremony.

As a result, Dufftown natives and those who got their early up-bringing in the town each year feel a tugging at their hearts when the day of the walk comes round, and like, if possible, to renew their acquaintance with this picturesque institution.

Next year the society will celebrate its centenary, and there is every indication that when that time comes it will be in as thriving a condition as at any stage of its career.

Dr. Grant of Balvenia House is president of the society, and Mr. James Fraser, Bellevue, is secretary.

This year's walk and ball were as successful as any that have proceded, the procession numbering 400, including 291 boys and girls.

Led by the pipe band, under Pipe-Major Duncan, Towiemore, the happy crowd paraded with the ancient banner, dated 1835, and battleaxes prominently displayed.

The children's ball finished at ten and afterward the older people made merry until well into the morning.

One well-known figure missing this year was Mr. Robert Garrow, shoemaker, Church St., who did not venture into the cold owing to slight indisposition. Mr. Garrow, who has been in over 60 walks, is the daddy of the society, although 30, 40 and even 50 years' attendances at the function are not uncommon.

STIFFKEY CHURCH HAS A NEW RECTOR

Black Kitten Omen on Path at First Service

Stiffkey, Eng.—Glorious sunshine and spring-like weather greeted Rev. Charles Harold Pitch, the newly appointed rector of Stiffkey, on his arrival to conduct his first service at the church in this quaint old Norfolk village, where Rev. Harold Davidson, who has had such country-wide notoriety, used to preach.

The new rector's path to the church door had only a few seconds previously been traversed by a black kitten.

The congregation numbered 70—the average during recent years was fifteen. Among them were two church-wardens who refused to serve under Mr. Davidson during the last part of his ministry.

LADY YULE BUYS A BIG RACING STABLE

Ballaton Lodge, Newmarket, Accommodates 40 Horses

Newmarket, Eng. — Lady Yule, widow of Sir David Yule, millionaire India merchant, has bought the important race-horse training establishment at Ballaton Lodge, Newmarket.

There is accommodation at Ballaton Lodge—which is noted both as a training headquarters and for its beautiful gardens—for about forty race-horses.

Among her best horses are Le Phare, which she bought from the Aga Khan for £3,255 a year ago, and the mare Pisa, for which she paid £5,880 recently. Others are Golden Pomona and Royal Brocade, both winners last season. Royal Brocade is entered for the One Thousand Guineas and the Oaks.

J. H. Cannon, who now trains for Lady Yule, will be trainer at Ballaton Lodge.

KING TUT'S CURSE IS CROPPING UP AGAIN

Queer Accidents in Oxford Laboratory—Wood From Tomb Being Examined

Oxford, Eng.—"Death shall come on swift wings to him that toucheth the tomb of Pharaoh."

Once more the baneful influence of this curse of ancient Egypt is being talked of; this time in this city of gray towers and colleges so remote from any hint of the east.

It has often been quoted in connection with the tragedies that have befallen so many archaeqiogists and others associated in the investigations of King Tut-ankh Amen's tomb.

At the Imperial Forestry Institute here, a tiny square of wood, taken from the shrines outside the sarcophagus, is being microscopically examined. The work is in the hands of Dr. Laurence Chalk, a young scientist who has made some interesting discoveries regarding this 3,000-year-old relic of a vanished age.

In making them, Dr. Chalk and his assistants had their investigations held up by a series of strange occurrences.

The wood refused to react to a certain test which was successful on many previous occasions; a beaker in which it was being boiled mysteriously fell to pieces, and later the bottle containing the wood exploded in the laboratory, and the whole inquiry had to be begun again.

In addition, Mr. C. W. Bond, who took a large part in the investigations, got severe influenza, having to be off duty for more than a month.

"Each of the accidents—if we can call them that—has a possible explanation," says one of the laboratory officials.

"If you like to believe in curses you may read into these happenings what you like.

"The beaker which fell to pieces was apparently perfect when it was left in the room. A few minutes later another assistant found it smashed, and there were only a few pieces of broken glass lying on the floor with the little square of wood almost hidden under the table."

King Tut-ankh Amen, who ruled Egypt more than 3,000 years ago, was buried in a rock tomb at Luxor, which was discovered and opened ten years ago by Lord Carnarvon and Mr. Howard Carter.

104 TRAINS DAILY BETWEEN LONDON AND BRIGHTON NOW

Fast New Electrified Service Includes Hove, Shoreham and Worthing

THE COST IS £2,750,000

London.—The new electrified service from London to Brighton, Hove, Shoreham, and Worthing—six trains an hour each way and refreshments all the time was opened on a recent morning by the lord mayor of London, Sir Percy Greenaway.

He and his party, accompanied by newspapermen, left Victoria station at 11.12 and reached Worthing in an hour and 12 minutes, where they were greeted by T. E. Hawkins.

At Brighton a few minutes later Mayor Frank G. Beal and council entertained the party to luncheon. This took place in the banqueting hall of that strange exotic structure in Brighton which was a royal palace more than a century ago.

One hundred years ago the first steam coach arrived in Brighton by road from London. Those passengers, too, had luncheon. They needed it. The journey had taken them seven hours.

Then there was the once famous

STEAM TRAM QUITS

Old Dublin and Blessington Line Will Be Scrapped

Dublin.—The last tram has been run on the Dublin and Blessington Steam Tramway, and the line will be scrapped. It was started in 1887 and ran through attractive country, and the famous waterfall of Poulaphouca, attracted large numbers of visitors annually, and the steam tramway did well for a time. The rolling stock and equipment of the company, which originally cost £110,000, will be sold at scrap.

Red Rover coach that broke all speed records with horses on the Brighton Rd. with a time of 4 hours 21 minutes.

Someone else had an idea of taking passengers to Brighton on a monorail propelled by sails, but gave it up.

On September 20, 1841, the first steam train arrived in Brighton on rails.

The electric service now inaugurated has cost about £2,750,000. On week days it will provide 104 trains and 35,120 seats daily between Brighton and London.

An increase of at least 4,000 passengers a week over existing traffic is expected.

SIR WALTER RUNCIMAN GETS PEERAGE AT 85

Oldest So Honored and Only Merchant Captain With Two Hereditary Titles

Newcastle, Eng.—Everyone here is congratulating Sir Walter Runciman on being the oldest man who has ever been given a peerage.

"I know I'm 85, but I can only tell you I'm the youngest man I know."

This was what he told a reporter who rang him up at Shoreston Hall, Seahouses, where he lives among the fishermen. He said he was going to take the title of Lord Runciman of Shoreston.

"Here's a record, if you like," he said. "I am the only captain of the merchant service that has received a baronetcy and then a peerage.

"I ran away to sea when I was twelve."

"I am taking Lord Jellicoe, another old sailorman, with me on a trip to Cyprus in the spring," he said.

ROYAL CONGRATULATIONS

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hickin of Brixton Hill, S.W., London, who celebrated their diamond wedding recently, received a message of congratulation from the King and Queen.

HELD FOR ESCAPE OF PRINCE FROM ASYLUM

New Chapter in Tragic Life of Brother-in-law of King Fuad

London.—Fate is writing another chapter in the tragic history of Prince Seif-ed-Din, brother-in-law of King Fuad of Egypt.

Seven years ago the prince thrilled all Europe by escaping from a mental institution at Ticehurst, Sussex, and dashing across the continent to Constantinople.

Now a former attendant at the institution, William Pilbeam, is charged at Hastings with complicity in the escape.

The chief constable of Hastings, Mr. F. James, described how the prince, while visiting the resort one day, was smuggled aboard the steamer Devonia by Pilbeam and taken to Boulogne.

There he was met by friends and taken overland to Turkey.

Another attendant, Alexander John Bastone, also assisted in the escape. Bastone was before the Hastings court in May, 1928, and was fined £20, but Pilbeam had been living with the prince since 1925.

Prince Seif-ed-Din is now 51.

Thirty-four years ago he was one of the most envied young men in the world. He had inherited vast estates in Egypt and the Sudan, he owned a large part of the city of Alexandria, his income was £150,000 a year, and the present monarch of Egypt, then Prince Fuad, was his brother-in-law.

But the year 1898 was to see him humbled, his life wrecked.

His sister, Princess Chivekar, married Prince Fuad in 1896, and one day she said something about her royal husband which enraged Prince Seif-ed-Din and he seized a revolver and shot at his future king.

The wound was not serious, but Prince Seif-ed-Din was sentenced to seven years' penal servitude.

Later he was certified insane and taken to the Sussex private institution where for 20 years Pilbeam was his faithful personal attendant.

PANIC IN MILL WHEN TWO-TON COG BURSTS

No Deaths But 600 Westhoughton Looms Will Be Idle a Month

London. — A cogwheel, weighing two tons, which was geared to a giant flywheel, burst into fragments in a weaving shed belonging to the Hall Lee Manufacturing Company, Westhoughton, Lancashire, wrecking looms and sending girls and men running for their lives.

He was leaning over the great flywheel in the engine-house when the accident happened. Half-stunned, he stumbled to the controls and stopped the engine.

A piece of steel, weighing more than a hundred pounds was thrown fifty yards, and missed a girl by inches.

Lillian Scott, aged eighteen, had just left her looms to interview the manager. She was only a few yards away when the bursing of the wheel smashed the looms into small pieces.

There was panic in the alleyways of the shed as the weavers rushed out.

Six hundred looms and 270 workers will be idle for nearly a month.

PRESENTS TOWN WITH PICTURE IT THREW OUT

Inverurie, Scotland. — The town council of Inverurie is having presented to it a painting, believed to be of great value, which it threw out as worthless over a year ago.

The queer situation created by the restoration of the picture, which is attributed to Jacus Jordaens, a Dutch master of the seventeenth century, resulted from the interest taken in the canvas by Mr. George Martin, a well-known business man.

About 70 years ago the picture, which shows "Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden," was presented to Inverurie town council by the then Earl of Kintore and it hung for more than half a century in the town hall.

Several years ago the frame collapsed, the picture became dirty and was rolled up and consigned to a store-room.

Three years ago Inverurie town hall was burned down and had the picture been in its accustomed place it would have been destroyed.

However, it lay untouched—and almost forgotten—in the store-room until, at the suggestion of Mr. Martin, the council had it sent to the curator of Aberdeen Art Gallery, for his opinion. Mr. Townsend reported that the picture was only a copy of a work by Jordaens and not worth renovation.

Mr. Martin still thought a lot of it and the council said he could have it. He sent it to a firm of London experts, who cleaned it, and it is claimed to be worth from £500 to £1,000. Mr. Martin is now handing it back to the town.

COUNTESS IS BEGGAR

Once Wealthy Aristocrat Well Known in Europe in Dire Straits

Budapest.—Countess Karoline Czaraky, once a leader of the wealthy Hapsburg imperial aristocracy in Vienna and Budapest, her brother-in-law having been a chamberlain to the Emperor Francis Joseph, has formally applied to the Budapest police for a license to beg in the streets. She is completely destitute.

She is the second wife of the late Count Johann Czaraky, whose smart equipage, decorated with scarlet and drawn by four horses, was a well-known sight in both capitals.

LEAVES NICE SUMS TO SERVANTS AND NURSE

Sisters Employed by Mrs. Salomons for 30 Years Receive £5,100 Each

London.—Two family retainers of the old style consider themselves about the luckiest persons in London.

They are sisters, servants of the late Mrs. Annie Martha Salomons, whose will has just been probated at more than £99,000.

Lilian Amelia Turrell and Amelia Lilian Turrell are the fortunate pair. They have each been left £100 in cash and £5,000 in trust.

The sisters have been in Mrs. Salomons' service for 30 years.

Being servants of the old school, the sisters would not consent to receive the congratulations of a reporter in person, but remained discreetly in the background.

Mrs. Salomons was the widow of the late Mr. Leopold Salomons who, among other bequests, left Box Hill to the nation.

Mrs. Salomons also left £300 and £4,000 in trust to her nurse, Jean Simpson, "for her great care and devotion to duty during my illness." Miss Simpson had been in constant attendance ever since Mrs. Salomons underwent a serious operation five years ago.

NAPOLEON'S ELEPHANT REACHES AGE OF 150

Brought By Emperor from Egypt to Paris

Budapest — An elephant, named Siam, brought by Napoleon I. from Egypt, still lives in the Budapest Zoo. The French Emperor took Siam back with him to Paris, but it was such a wild animal that it was a source of constant trouble, and, actuated probably by relief as much as by generosity, Napoleon presented the elephant to his father-in-law, Franz I. of Austria. When it arrived in Vienna it showed that it had not mended its manners and it was sent to the Hungarian capital, where it has lived ever since.

Siam is now about 150 years old, and spends most of its time begging money from visitors, with which it buys bread and other delicacies for itself.

FIND AMUNDSEN DIARY

Stockholm—A telegram from the Soviet meteorological station at Cap Chelyuskin, received here reports the discovery of a snowed-in hut and a duplicate diary which beyonged to the late Captain Amundsen.

The diary, together with duplicate observations, were deposited there by Amundsen in 1919 during his Arctic expedition of 1918-21 from Norway to Nome, in Alaska, via the north-eastern passage.

He was imprisoned with his ship, the Maud, in the ice outside Cap Chelyuskin from October, 1918, till September 12, 1919. Before leaving he deposited the documents in case misfortune befell his expedition. Amundsen, however, arrived safely at Nome in August, 1920, after having been imprisoned another winter in the ice.

THUG GIVES SELF UP ON MOTHER'S DEMAND

Wrote for Permission to Come Home After Series of Robberies

Berlin—"Before you come home make your peace with society and give yourself up to justice." This was the order given by a German mother of Spartan breed to her son, who had left her to join a band of thieves, but had later repented and written for permission to return.

The result was that the four members of the band — well-educated youths belonging to good families—appeared before a Berlin court. The four told a story of robberies and burglaries, planned in a cabaret in a fashionable quarter of Berlin, and executed with varying fortunes in small jewellers' shops and restaurants.

They decided to seek bigger game and drew up a plan for murdering and robbing a postman entrusted with money sent by post. One night they lay in ambush, intending to shoot him and make off with his satchel, but he had providentially taken another route to reach his destination, and so escaped.

It was then that one of the band decided to reform, and in a letter to his mother said: "I could not soil my hands with blood." He obeyed her stern reply and gave himself up to the police, and his three companions were soon arrested.

GIRL IS KIDNAPPED ABOUT TO TAKE VEIL

Leader of Gang Was Her Sweetheart—Wedding to Follow

Rome—While walking with her mother and sister to a convent where she intended to take the veil, Signorita di Pruco, the beautiful daughter of wealthy parents of Avellino, near Naples, was kidnapped by three masked men.

The leader of the kidnappers was her sweetheart, a youth named Francesco di Prisco. They took the girl away almost from the door of the convent.

Within 48 hours the couple were found by the police. They questioned the girl, and she said that she had thought it over again, and decided that she did not wish to become a nun. She also added that she would marry the young man.

The youth's story was that he had repeatedly told the girl that he would never consent to her entering a convent. He had warned her that it was a waste of time on her part to try.

"She even tried to persuade me," he said, "to become a monk."

Since the would-be bridegroom has declared that it is his intention to marry the girl, the police will no longer interfere with him. They are, however, continuing their efforts to trace the two men who assisted in the kidnapping.

ARTISTS TRADE WORK TO COBBLERS, DOCTORS

Barter Fair Exceeds 1931 Total of $16,000—No Money Used

Paris. — Lovers of art and also artists are doing excellently at the Barter Fair now being held at the Porte de Versailles. Artists are exchanging their pictures for goods or services. In 1931 business of the value of about $16,000 was done, but in 1932 the fair has been even more successful. No money changes hands.

One artist who is much in need of medical attention has given a picture to a surgeon in payment for an operation for which he is shortly to undergo.

A hotel proprietor has paid for a number of pictures by coupons which entitle the artist or any person he names to some months of free lodging.

A little water-color sketch has been passed over to a cobbler who has promised to keep the painter well-shod without charge for a year.

Another exhibitor whose work aroused the admiration of an insurance agent has exchanged a picture for a life insurance policy.

CHARGE NAZIS SEND MURDERERS MONEY

Germany Asks Italy to Surrender Three Men

Berlin.—Mussolini is to be asked by the German government for the extradition of three Nazis charged with murder.

They are alleged to have killed another young Nazi named Hentsch in the neighborhood of Dresden. Immediately after the crime they fled to Venice, where they are stated to be living on regular remittances from Nazi party funds.

The murder was carried out with extreme brutality, and the reluctance of the Nazi party to co-operate with the police in their search for the criminals has provoked deep indignation throughout Germany.

SHOOTS WIFE, DAUGHTER HUSBAND THEN SUICIDES

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 25 (C.P.). — A man, his wife and their 21-year-old crippled daughter were found shot to death in their home early to-day.

Police, summoned by Leonard Shaffer, 27, the only remaining member of the family, described the case as "double murder and suicide."

The youth, who ran to police headquarters in his pyjamas, told the officers, they say, that his father, John Shaffer, 64, shot his mother, Margaret, 53, and then fired on his sister, Virginia.

He told them that his mother and father quarreled. The woman threatened her husband with separation, police were informed.

TECHNOCRATS SPLIT FORCES

Three Leading Thinkers Resign, Leaving Scott in Leadership.

HIS VIEWS GIVEN.

(By J. R. Brackett.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(A.P.)—"What is technocracy?" The answer to that now famous question becomes even more of an enigma with the revolt which has developed in technocracy's ranks.

Four men have been generally recognized as technocracy's thinkers: Howard Scott, the director; Walter Rautenstrauch, head of the Department of Industrial Engineering at Columbia University; Frederick Ackerman, architect and economist; and Bassett Jones, electrical engineer and mathematician.

With the resignation of Rautenstrauch, Ackerman and Jones, technocracy as the specific description of a group of men thinking along similar lines now is confined to Scott and his adherents. The lines along which they are thinking are: That the price system (which is any social system that measures value in money) is outmoded and must collapse; that a principal factor which will make it collapse is an overwhelming and ever-growing burden of debt; and that another, and perhaps a major, factor is the advance of the machine which must throw men out of work if the machine's production is sold at a profit—that is, produced and distributed for personal gain rather than purely for use by the whole society.

Thomas Parker of Mariposa Township Painfully Injured.

LINDSAY, January 25. — Thos. Parker of Pleasant Valley, Mariposa Township, was painfully injured while working in the woods near his home. A tree which he was felling came crashing down before he got clear of it, and one of the limbs struck him on the leg, crushing it badly.

The late Mrs. George Greer, a life long resident of the district, was laid to rest in Riverside cemetery on Sunday. The deceased who was in her 76th year, was born at Pleasant Point, Verulam Township, Eliza Jane Henderson, town, widow of the late John Free, formerly of Campbellford, was also interred in Riverside Cemetery on Sunday.

LITTLE BACKING.

MEXICO CITY. — The suggestion made by the Mexican Consul at Pittsburgh, Pa., J. A. Valenzuela, that Canada, Mexico, and the United States form an alliance found little official encouragement to-day when the Mexican Secretary of Foreign Relations, Dr. Jose Manuel Puig Casauranc, asserted that consular officials had no power to initiate such action.

IN MEMORIAM

DUKE. — In loving memory of Q.M.S. Harry Duke, who passed away one year ago to-day, Jan. 25.
Good was his heart, his friendship true;
Loved and respected by all he knew.
To a beautiful life came a sudden end.

PETERBORO' HUMANE SOCIETY HEARS ARCHDEACON BLAGFRAVE

Inspector in Annual Report Reveals Many Cases of Cruelty.

WORK MUST GO ON.

"One of the worst things that could happen would be a condition in which societies concerned in any way with welfare should, because of pressure of the times, throw up their work.

"A knowledge of history should teach all of us that this period is bound to pass, and to pass soon, and if institutions of this type should surrender their activities, it would be disastrous and also very injurious to the cause of good. There would be consternation among thousands of the people of this city if the Humane Society should cease to exist. It is comparable in its humane activities to the human activities that occupy the attention of the children's Aid Society and it seems a cruel thing that over activities of either type should loom the terrible cloud of lack of money."

Speaking to the members of the Humane Society, at their annual meeting held last evening in the Chamber of Commerce, Rt. Rev. Archdeacon Blagrave delivered one of his inspiring and optimistic talks. The Archdeacon was the first president of the organization on its inception here, some eleven or twelve years ago, and his interest is manifestly actively engaged in its welfare and progress.

The meeting was imbued with that atmosphere of cheerful friendliness that invariably animates the gatherings of this society and that has much of its inspiration from the kindly president, Thomas E. Sargent. Details of revolving cruelty may be gleaned from the report of the very energetic inspector, Dr. Thomas Johnston, but the members lose none of their optimistic and friendly feeling.

Last night, despite the fact that thir membership and their finances, like those of every other organization, showed considerable decreases, also despite the fact that the inspector is carrying on without any salary, still they were one and all determined to keep going and strive just as hard as ever to look after the interests of the dumb creatures who cannot speak for themselves.

Inspector's Report

An idea of the scope of the work and the manner in which animals are treated by those who are cruel to dumb things, is given in the report of Inspector Thomas Johnston.

During the year, 102 dogs were destroyed; 34 were placed in homes or returned to owners; 108 cats were destroyed; 6 were placed in homes; 12 dogs were hurt by motor cars (5 killed, 7 with fractures); 40 market inspections were made; 5 horses were destroyed; 75 complaints were received and 50 cases were investigated; 3 cases were brought to court, with 2 convictions; 300 street inspections were made, and 150 trips to the incinerator; 100 calls for food were received; 40 warnings were given; 10 inspections of stock yards were made; 1,000 telephone calls were answered; 312 horses were examined, 100 cattle and 250 other animals.

A carload of seventeen old horses was inspected at the stock yard, en route to Quebec and one was condemned.

"I would advise people to destroy old horses and not send them on long journeys" said the inspector.

The inspector gave several examples of cases, as follows: At Warkworth he found a horse with an abscess on the withers "as large as a twelve-quart paid." This was destroyed by County Constable Kelly and the owner was warned.

An aged mare was destroyed west of Millbrook. It had ringbones on both forefeet and was a cripple, but was hitched up by a boy and forced to work under punishment.

Someone cut the tail of a cat close to the body and let her go. Two boys tied a cat by the tail with cord and hung it to the limb of a tree. The skin gave way and left the bone bare. Two boys set two dogs on a pig which was lacerated badly and left lying for two days.

"Two boys at Apsley, I am told, pulled a cat apart. I have this to investigate."

A farmer left a horse lying outside in the cold in a deplorable condition. He has not yet paid the court fine which was levied in this instance. The horse died.

Hit and run drivers were brought to court and many stables were investigated and conditions altered. Investigation of a case at Apsley where a bear was supposed to be ill treated found the animal in good condition.

Cases were investigated at Hastings, Campbellford, Healey Falls, Young's Point, Hall's Glen and Wallace's Point, where Mr. Cardwell's fine police dog was mutilated and died from the results of the torture.

Constable Carey of Cobourg was asked to look after a case in Haldimand township where a horse died from starvation and other stock was seized and fed.

In conclusion, Dr. Johnston thanked all who had assisted him during the year especially three men, led by Mr. Johnson of Murray street, who crossed to an island recently and rescued a dog marooned there; also the president, T. Sargent, for assistance and good advice", the city police, the Fire Chief and his men; the provincial police and those of other places; The Examiner for publicity and editorials; the ladies of the city and district, "for most of these cases come to my knowledge through the kindness of some lady"; and the general manager J. McNab Wilson of Toronto, who recently helped by sending investigators down for a special case.

Archdeacon Blagrave

Archdeacon Blagrave, the speaker of the evening, commented on "Dr. Johnston's impressive and interesting report" and spoke of the splendid manner in which the society and its officials functioned in times which were full of "rough sailing."

"This particular work must continue to be done" he went on, "because we speak for those who cannot speak for themselves yes. It is a defensive and preservative organization for animals, wild and domestic.

"You need money to carry on your work. It is strange how people always expect a society like this to keep going, and want it to keep going, just as they expect the church to do, and yet they do not stop to think that they should do their part by contributing to its funds."

Speaking of his surprise at the revelation of cruelty in an age which boasts of its humanitarian principles the reverend speaker said that such cruelty comes from the "poor stuff" which is present in every community.

"Many people are cruel to animals because of profit they may derive, others are cruel through neglect and still others are so because they think that animals do not feel suffering. But they are just like people, in varying degrees, in their sensitivity to pain."

"In the end, it is a matter of cultural development and training. It is just like the struggle against war. Unless the heart of the race is impregnated with a sense of the stupidity and folly and inhumanity of war, you will never stop it."

The Rev. Dr. Blagrave remarked on the enthusiasm and zeal shown by Dr. Johnston, and said: "There is no remuneration sufficient to repay him for the work he does-"

In opening the meeting, the president, Thomas Sargent, referred to the difficulties encountered by the society and to plans being made for a campaign for members.

The suggestion received the support of the members that the society sponsor a picture at the Regent Theatre.

The treasurer, E. S. Martin, gave a brief financial statement, showing a small balance remaining in the bank when all outstanding accounts are paid.

A very pleasing feature of the program was the inclusion of an attractive recitation and its encore, by Eleanor Dunford. With clever imitation of the wife "At the Baseball Game" Miss Dunford delighted her audience with her bright powers of mimicry. In response to a rousing encore, she gave the brief bit "Willie."

Mr. Sargent voiced the appreciation of the audience to Archdeacon Blagrave and to Miss Dunford.

A vote of appreciation to The Examiner for publicity was also accorded the commendation of the meeting.

The election of officers will take place at the next meeting, possibly on Tuesday of next week.

CHICKEN THIEVES AIDED BY VICTIMS OF THEIR RAID

HILLSBORO, Ore., Jan. 25 (C.P.). —Two youths rapped at the door of E. T. Murphy, farmer, and asked help in extricating their truck from the mud in front of his house. Murphy aided.

Later, when the youths were arrested in Portland, Murphy was informed they borrowed the truck to haul away the chickens they had stolen from Murphy's coop, and the chickens were aboard when he gave them the boost.

BURNS WAS BORN 174 YEARS AGO

Scotsmen To-night Will Celebrate Anniversary of Great Poet.

POET OF SIMPLE THINGS.

One hundred and seventy-four years ago to-day "A lad was born in Kyle," and Scotsmen the world over will meet to-night to drink a toast to the "Immortal Memory" of Robert Burns. The star that rose on that stormy night of January 25th, 1759, and illumined an auld clay biggin' on the banks of Doon has not yet reached its setting. "It shines by night, it shines by day, and never grows dim with time." On his deathbed the poet predicted, "I'll be more respected a hundred years after I am dead than I am at present," and that prediction has been more than fulfilled.

Best-Loved Poet.

Robert Burns, if one may judge by the reverence paid his memory, and the popularity of his works, is the best-loved poet in English literature. Burns is not for an age but for all time. So long as there are wrongs to be righted, so long as man's inhumanity to man exists so long as want and care are found in the world, and human hearts are touched by love, the songs of Scotland's ploughman poet will be sung and his memory remain fresh and green in the affection of mankind.

He was the poet of simple things. Most of his exquisite lyrics have to do with everyday objects and incidents. The "wee, timorous beastie," disturbed in the furrow by the ploughshare; the daisy, its poor wee head cut off with the scythe; sunrise and sunset; happy love and firesides of home. On these simple but universal themes Burns turned the full glow and glory of his magic pen, so that they were hallowed and illumined for all time. Lesser lights write for a group or a decade or a section of society, then pass away and are forgotten, but Robert Burns wrote for all time.

Much has been said of the poet's sins and shortcomings. They were grave, without doubt, but it is generally worse sinners than he who are loudest in their condemnation. If he sang a little of the doubtful pleasures associated with strong drink, he also painted the most exquisite picture of a Christian home as the foundation of a nation's greatness. He did not look to any earthly tribunal for judgment. "Wha made the heart," he said, "'tis He alone, decidedly can try us."

He departed from this world on July 21st, 1795, a time of the year when the summer sun was glowing over land and sea, so if nature seemed to scowl when he entered the world, she seemed to have had a change of heart as the hour of his departure drew nigh. He needs no one to champion his cause in the realm of morals. Leave him to God, Who alone has right to deal with such matters. It is not by his faults but by his virtues that he is remembered to-day, and through the imperishable legacy of sacred song that he has bequeathed to mankind.

LEAD TEAMS FAVORED IN 2ND ROUND

Pitted Against Outfits of Lesser Calibre in Scottish Cup Draw.

CELTIC AT FALKIRK.

GLASGOW, Scotland, Jan. 25.—(C.P. Cable).—The leading soccer teams in the Scottish League are generally given fairly easy tasks in the second round of the Scottish Cup.

The draw for the second round, announced to-day, shows 24 teams will compete on February 4. The better teams in the First Division are pitted against outfits of lesser calibre and, barring upsets, should come through unscathed.

The League-leading Rangers are at home to Queen's Park, who are at present in 13th position, while Motherwell, who share the top rank with Rangers, are to play Montrose on Motherwell's grounds. Montrose, Second Division team, advanced to the second round last Saturday by defeating East Stirlingshire of the First Division.

Celtic play against Falkirk, but should have little trouble in staying in the running. The game is on their own grounds, and the players will be out for victory from the start. The fourth team of the division, Hearts, like the others, enjoys the privilege of playing on its own grounds. Hearts tie up with Airdrieonians.

Hibernians, leaders of the Second Division, have to play off a tie with Forfar Athletic, but should they come through this they will meet Aberdeen, holders of fifth place in the First Division.

The draw is as follows:
Dundee United vs. St. Johnstone.
St. Mirren vs. Kilmarnock.
Aberdeen vs. Hibernians or Forfar Athletic.
Leith Athletic vs. Clyde.
Celtic vs. Falkirk.
Motherwell vs. Montrose.
Dumbarton vs. Albion Rovers.
Stenhousemuir vs. Third Lanark.
Dundee vs. Stranraer or Bo'ness.
Ayr vs. Partick Thistle.
Hearts vs. Airdrieonians.
Rangers vs. Queen's Park.

ICEBREAKER RELEASES MAROONED STEAMER

TOKYO, Jan. 25 (A.P.) — The Ochiishi Government wireless station intercepted wireless messages to-day, reporting the Soviet steamer Eakhalin, ice-bound since January 12, in the Sea of Okhotsk off the Northeastern Siberian Coast, was reached yesterday by the Soviet icebreaker Dobrynia Nikitch.

The rescue ship was said to have found all the passengers and crew safe. Two of them were reported ill. There were 254 Russians aboard, 200 of them passengers.

Although partly burned, the Sakhalin was reported able to proceed under its own power with the powerful icebreaker cutting a path.

Seek Bodies Anew Of Lost Londoners

SARNIA, Ont., Jan. 25. (CP)—Search was renewed along the shore of Lake Huron to-day for the bodies of three Londoners, Eric Chapman, Reginald Appleyard, and Douglas Milne, believe drowned on Sept. 2, 1932. The three young men left Bayfield for Detroit in a sailboat and it was believed the boat struck a hidden shoal off Kettle Point. The boat was washed ashore but no trace of the occupants.

C. B. Chapman who is making the search to-day voiced belief that the high winds of last week-end might have washed the bodies ashore. A reward offered for their discovery still stands.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

THERE ARE TWO WAYS of entertaining house guests. One is with a succession of events whereby they will be kept occupied. The other is to let them become, for the time being, a part of the family.

* * * * * * *

Thus they enter into the usual regime of the household and take its daily life with, perhaps, a few extras in the way of entertainment, not as an outsider, but as a close friend.

When guests are asked for a week-end, continual social events are often planned. It is a holiday period for most families, as well as guests. It is when there are mid-week house guests or those who are making rather prolonged visits that continual festivities may be tiring to friends and family alike.

* * * * * * *

To be permitted to enter into the life of a family as one of it, is a compliment to be desired as much as to be considered an outsider for whom one must do special things.

* * * * * * *

Like all things, however, there is a "happy medium." For example a hostess should arrange enough entertainment to introduce highlights into the visit.

* * * * * * *

Are cards liked An evening of this game, or an afternoon, can be planned whereby the visitor will meet and be met by congenial persons.

* * * * * * *

A theatre party which may consist of the family, with but one or two others, may prove just the sort of entertainment pleasing to the family and friend alike.

* * * * * * *

Or driving to some especially beautiful or notable part of the country and having tea there can give the guest a glimpse of the surroundings which will be carried away as a happy memory to visualize.

* * * * * * *

It is a mistake to so strain at entertaining that the pleasure of visiting with the guest is lost to the hostess. After all, friends come to see and enjoy the family or else they are but casual acquaintances.

* * * * * * *

For a guest to realize or to discover that her visit was a tax on her hostess robs the time of its happy aspect. Unless there are plenty of servants in a household where continual entertaining is going on, the homemaker's energies are drained and the visitor's nervouss system, also.

* * * * * * *

There are occasional gala periods when house guests and family revel in a series of festivities. A few days of rest and relaxation are necessary afterwards to make the balance right and restore normal times.

Your Health

by DR. LOGAN CLENDENING

Some evidence has been accumulated to show that catching cold is precipitater by an acid condition of the body. Such eminent investigators as Dr. Smiley, of Cornell, subscribe to this belief. To overcome this they believe in using alkalis, and especially an alkaline diet.

The old saying that you should "Feed a cold and starve a fever" has caused a great many people with a cold to be stuffed with substances which, it may be, prolong the cold rather than stop it.

The diet usually recommended is one in which fruits, vegetables and fluids predominate. Vitamin A, which is found in cod liver oil, prunes, spinach, carrots and other foodstuffs, is also supposed to operate in the prevention of colds.

As far as aborting a cold by other methods is concerned, an honest examination of the facts would show that there is very little possibility of it. There is an old saying that "a carefully treated cold lasts two weeks, while one that is not treated at all lasts fourteen days." And there is a great deal of truth in that.

Local applications to the nose and throat, according to most specialists in this line, do more harm than good, because they break down the defensive powers of the mucous membrane of the nose.

About the best thing that you can do for the patient is to try to make him comfortable. One way to do this is to keep him in bed, warm, with plenty of fluids. As nearly everyone knows, a useful drug is aspirin.

Inhalations, when secretions are troublesome, are always grateful. These can be made by putting a teaspoon of compound tincture of benzoin on a basin of steaming water, or burning eucalyptus cones.

Counter-irritants are also valuable. These range from a mustard plaster on the chest, to rubbing the chest with various sorts of aromatic oils or greases.

One of the most annoying things about a cold in its middle stage is the irritation of the throat, with the consequent coughing which produces no result. The best way to combat this is by the use of lozenges. The most important ingredient of lozenges is the sugar, and, therefore, a cheap, easy and pleasant way, is the use of a little stick candq.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

L. S. G.: "My husband, who used to be a great cigar smoker, has had a sore on his lower lip for about 25 years. This sore is just where he held the cigar. Do you think that this is contagious and how should it be managed?"

Answer: In spite of the length of time the sore has been there such things are always suspicious, and should be regarded as possibly cancerous. I believe the proper treatment would be to have it, or part of it, removed surgically and examined under the microscope to see whether cancer is present or not.

MARRIED WOMAN HAS SPOT IN SUN

Forty-fifth Birthday Just Another Graduation — Grey Hairs No Drawback.

BEST YEARS AHEAD.

(By Ruth B. Cowan)

CHICAGO, Jan. 25. (AP) — The middle aged married woman has her place in the sun, and if she has prepared herself for it, her 45th birthday is just another graduation, this time from the role of Mrs. Housewife. These matrons need not take a back seat, and indeed should not.

That comes from the president of the largest organization of women in the world to matrons who think life's sweet song is in the final stanza when "there are silver threads among the gold."

Said Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole of Brockton, Mass., and Washington, D.C., head of the General Federation of Women's Clubs:

"A woman when she is approximately 45 is reaching the age of emancipation. Her family is almost reared, her household duties are reduced and she has more leisure. Her emotional life is more stable. She has had experience and should have more wisdom and tolerance.

"She has ahead of her some of the best years of her life, if she has prepared for it, studied, trained herself mentally and kept physically fit. It is not right for a middle aged woman sorrowfully to resign herself to a lounge seat in a hotel apartment or to a cozy corner in a private home, leaving activities to young women.

"She is emerging into an era of greater personal freedom. She has time to take a greater interest in clubs, community welfare and politics.

"What's to keep her from going actively into politics, running for Governor, if she likes?"

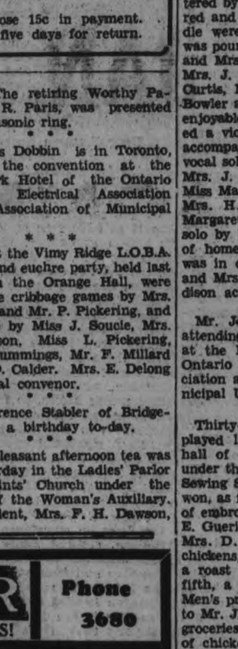
LACK OF CONFIDENCE IN PARTNER

Inability to believe partner is one of the greatest point losers, whether partner's conduct justifies the suspicion or because the other player suffers from a belief in his own superiority. The hand below shows a serious loss, due to Z's evident intention to become declarer.



Z made a questionable opening bid of 2-Hearts. Y properly bid 3-Diamonds. Z bid 3-Hearts. Y showed his second long suit by bidding 4-Clubs. Instead of bidding spades next, Z bid 4-Hearts. When Y disclosed the real strength of his minor suits, by bidding 5-Clubs, of course Z should have supported diamonds. Instead of doing this rational thing, Z made a crazy bid of 6-No Trumps.

An opening spade lead caused the declarer to go down three tricks, undoubled.

Any good player can make a small slam at diamonds. An expert should make a grand slam at that make, and against any defense. To do this he must win one spade trick, four hear tricks, two club tricks (discarding four of his clubs on dummy's established hearts), and six diamond tricks. As declarer, Y should at once see this possibility. To do this he must find adverse hearts divided 4-3, and trumps divided 3-2, and be able to guess which adversary holds the missing Q of diamonds. This guess gives the declarer a 50-50 chance for a grand slam, in case either a small or a grand slam has been bid.

Suppose B makes an opening lead of a spade. To make a grand slam, play the hand as described. Win the trick with dummy's Ace. Lead a small heart and ruff. Lead the J of diamonds. If B covers, win with dummy's ace. If B does not put up his Q on the first trump lead, the declarer's J holds the trick. Lead a small trump, and win with dummy's Ace, giving the fourth straight trick, and assuring a grand slam.

Lead a small heart and trump, thus establishing four good hearts in dummy. Lead the K of trump, picking up B's last trump, and leaving one good trump in the declaring hand, with which to trump himself back into his own hand. Thus far the declarer has won six tricks, consisting of one spade trick and five diamond tricks. The seventh trick must be won with dummy's Ace of clubs. The next four tricks are taken with four good hearts in dummy, while the declarer discards four clubs. Declarer trumps a spade lead, then leads off his K of clubs, to win his thirteenth trick.

On Moonless Nights The Milky Way A Sight Of Wonder And Brilliance

By H. W. L. MAHOOD

The Milky Way is the marvel of marvels. It has held the mind of many spellbound through all the centuries. And the marvel grows. But man in his own personality over matches this marvel of the skies. At Mount Wilson mechanism has been devised by which the heat of a common candle one hundred miles away can be accurately measured. The heat can be accurately measured at the end of any mile of the hundred. The distance of the candle from the observer can be determined by the heat record on the instrument. Modern astronomy invites us into the Hall of Magic. These astronomers have discovered that the temperatures recorded on some of the stars would have approximately the same effect on the entire United States that all the sun's rays would have on one square yard of the earth's area—The heat of Venus has been measured. It is a very cold planet. Its heat never rises above twenty-five degrees below zero. The heat of some of the stars measured have fifteen hundred degrees of temperature, centigrade.

How enormously distant must be the star constellations the light of which reaches us as pin points? Telescopes of the immense size of the one at Mount Wilson with a lens of one hundred inches in diameter have discovered in the Milky Way clouds of stars, and stars in streams like flowing rivers, and stars in clusters, and among the stars great nebles, and dark lanes like night paths strangely running through vast spaces. Nebulous masses as if new worlds were in creative evolutionary unfolding. Intermingled with these star masses, are often seen immense stretches of green nebulous matter, which serve as a background, or sky for the stars.

"Throughout the Galaxy's extended line
Unnumbered orbs in gay confusion shine,
Where every star that gilds the gloom of night
With the faint trembling of a distant light
Perhaps illumines some system of its own
With the strong influence of a radiant sun."

The Milky Way is regarded as the fundamental reference plane of the entire universe, as the equator is of the earth.

This but begins the story of this path of light across the sky from South-East to North-West.

Folks interested might draw two circles—one within the other. The outer circle a quarter of an inch from the inner. Between the circles at the north write Northern Horizon. At the south or bottom write Southern Horizon. At the left or east write Eastern Horizon. And at the right write Western Horizon. Trace in very fine dots or specks the path of the Milky Way from the East to the North West. We now have a flat surface at your feet. In imagination stand at the center of a line drawn at your feet. In imagination stand at the center of a line drawn from North to South. In imagination lift this flat surface up into a dome. Stand under it. Imagine!

Pork is inexpensive and many people like it almost as well as chicken, they say. Pork shoulder makes a particularly economical meat dish and is good eaten hot or cold.

Today's Recipes

Roast Pork Shoulder.—Have a fresh picnic shoulder trimmed and skinned at the market. Wipe it with a damp cloth, sprinkle it with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Place the roast fat side up on a rack in an open roasting pan without adding any water. Put in a hot oven (490 degrees F.) and sear for 30 minutes, or until lightly browned. Then reduce the temperature very quickly to a moderate heat (300 to 325 degrees F.) and continue cooking until the meat is done, allowing 30 minutes per pound. Do not cover the roaster nor add any water during the cooking process.

BALMY BREEZES FOR SIX WEEKS

Weather Forecaster Declares Much Sunshine and Little Rain.

QUITE MILD THIS WEEK.

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 25 (C.P.)—"I saw a sign in the sun, a secret sign," declared H. F. Wastell, London's very unofficial weather forecaster, in making his prognostications on future weather programs. "I rarely miss," he admitted. "I don't think any man in Ontario can beat me."

There'll be six weeks of balmy breezes, much sunshine and a little rain, Mr. Wastell predicts. For the balance of this week, he is absolutely certain there will be no snow, no skating, locally.

Two weeks ahead are quite simple. Three weeks to come is a bit more difficult to forecast, but this secret sign is uncanny in its accuracy — weather still mild. Fourth, fifth and sixth weeks from now, well into the month of March, the weather will still be balmy. "And that's pretty clever to predict six weeks ahead."

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

When Rome was at the height of its glory, bathing became so popular that it was made a form of public recreation. Huge, elaborate baths were constructed and the city had to be supplied with 300,000,000 gallons of water every single day. Which is sufficient proof that those Romans knew what was good for them.

The Japanese, however, are just as wise. They have a method of bathing that is distinctly their own. And it's so excellent a procedure that I am going to describe it to you so that you, too, may reap the beautifying benefits that it extends.

The trouble with bathing as we Americans do it is that the average individual steps into her tub, scrubs herself, and then expects thoroughly to rinse away all soapy water. That's one reason why, so often, a woman's skin becomes dry, rough and itchy. All the soap is not thoroughly rinsed away, and the alkali in it removes too much of the natural oils that help to keep all skins soft, smooth and supple.

The Japanese woman, however, wisely does all her scrubbing before she steps into her tub. Using a small flesh brush and a pure, bland soap, she scrubs her entire body. Tiling space and drainage are provided for this. But the American woman can stand in her bathtub, if necessary, while doing such scrubbing. The entire body is thoroughly gone over with the brush, in order to remove all dirt and salts of perspiration before the soaking, and to stimulate the circulation. After the scrubbing, the soapy lather is sponged away, the tub is filled with warm water, and the soaking and rinsing commenced. The Japanese woman relaxes in the warm water for a bit of soaking. Then, using a coarse washcloth, she scrubs herself again —without soap, this time. And when she leaves the tub, she can be secure in the belief that all the soap has been removed from her skin.

This method of scrubbing first and then soaking and rinsing in a tub of clear water, seems to me to be a very logical manner of bathing. And if you wish to keep the skin of your entire body smooth and velvety, rather than dry and rough, I'd suggest that you try it a number of times and note the results you obtain.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Freckles

Betty: Lemon juice and dilute peroxide are both good freckle bleaches. Permit either bleach or dry on the skin, and then apply a bit of cold cream to counteract any drying effects.

Vinegar Rinse

A. G. D.: The vinegar rinse is a softening rinse that brings out highlights in hair. It should be made of half a glass of cider vinegar and a pint of clear water.

Mouth Wash

Brownie: An excellent mouth wash can be made by dissolving one-fourth teaspoon of borax, one-fourth teaspoon of peroxide and one-fourth teaspoon of salt in a glass of warm water.

Plastic Surgery

Rosa: It is indeed possible to have a humped nose successfully reshaped by plastic surgery. Only an expert, however, should be permitted to do such work.

Gossip and Such

FOR THE FIRST TIME IN more than 30 years, a familiar face is missing from the annual roster just mailed out by the New York Giants. The little booklet is a tasteful gray, embellished with gold-lettering and well-chosen type-styles. But something's gone.

IN ITS PLACE ARE THE youthful features of Bill Terry who makes a handsomer appearance but—well, maybe 30 years or so from now the features of Bill Terry will be as great a Giants' trademark as the mugg of McGraw has become.

* * *

THE GIANTS' BOOKLET IS crammed with interesting facts. For instance, six pitchers have names beginning with S—Salveson, Schumacher, Shores, Smith, Spencer and Starr. Reminds one of that one-time great Brooklyn "M" pitching staff. Let's see—Mamaux, Marquard, Miljus, Miller, Mitchell and Mohart who hurled for the Dodgers in the days of their last pennant around 1930.

ALSO INTERESTING IS THE fact that none of the New York's four catchers were with the club during the early part of last season. Only one played with the Giants at all last season. He was Frank Healey, a rookie, who finished the season with the Terriers. Gus Mancuso, Harry Danning and Paul Richards have never worn New York spangles.

MOST INTERESTING IS SOME data in regard to games won and lost by the Giants in National League play since New York broke into the circuit some 51 years ago.

IT IS INTERESTING TO NOTE that the New Yorkers have an edge over every club. The easiest foes, strangely enough have been the Cardinals, the Giants have licked the St. Louis representatives 518 times with the Mound City crew, garnering but 323 wins. Next are the Phils, New York's advantage being 564 to 384.

ONE CLUB HAS A CHANCE TO swing the balance in its favor next season. That's Chicago. The Giants have but a nine-game edge on them and they've clashed for 50 seasons without a miss. New York won 489 games, Chicago 460. By winning 16 games out of 22 from the Giants this season the Cubs can change the Chicago-New York all-time record to Chicago 466, New York 466.

IN ALL, ACCORDING TO THE Giants' proud statement, New York has won 3,555 National League games and lost but 2,754. That is actually an overwhelming show of superiority over a period of half a century.

SO FAR AHEAD OF AN EVEN split are the Giants that for the next five seasons, playing 154 games a year, New York could lose every contest and still show more National League wins than defeats.

PROUDEST MUST BE THE Giants of their one-two-three finish record. In 50 pennant races, the New Yorkers have topped them all 12 times, finishing second 13 and third 7. In other words, the Giants have been contenders 32 times, or two-thirds of the time since league first operated.

LOCALS ASSURE THEMSELVES OF POSITION IN PLAY-OFFS BY DEFEATING BOWMANVILLE

Dallin and Creighton Goals in Third Period Turns Tide to Give Homesters' 5-3 Victory—Contest Marked By Persistent Back-checking and Heavy Bodying.

WEIR AND MILLER ARE STARS FOR BLUES; PIPERS, JAMIESON STANDOUT FOR VISITORS

Peterborough intermediates swept into undisputed possession of first place in their O.H.A. grouping, and assured themselves of a playoff berth, by reason of their 5-3 victory over Bowmanville at the Brock last night. It was a gruelling game played on ice that became heavier as play progressed, with a good-sized crowd of fans roaring approval at the fast action.

Only in the third period did the hard-working Petes show any advantage as the score see-sawed back and forth for two frames. It was 2-1 for the visiting veterans at the end of the first, and 3-all going into the last chapter. The contest was cleaen throughout, though marked by persistent backchecking and heavy bodying. The locals had one penalty against them and the other side two.

Weir and Miller were standouts for the Blue and Whites, the former starring in an all-around performance. His fast skating, fine stickhandling and effective checking had considerable to do with the win. He scored two of the locals' goals. Miller muffed one soft one in the first stanza, but was practically unbeatable the rest of the way, showing up unusually well in the hectic third session. Ellis and Dundas played their usual steady game, always dangerous, while both Dallin and Creighton flashed smart offensive hockey at times. Jarvis was the best of the Petes' at backchecking, though Hatton went well in this department also. The whole squad worked well the last half of the fixture.

Stand Out for Visitors

The Piper brothers and Jamieson were the best of the Bowmanville Olympias, while Densem, Cameron and Martyn were good defensively. The goalie looked sloppy at times, but he was hard to beat and saved some fine ones. The visitors never stopped trying and for the first part of the game outplayed the Petes.

The teams sparred around a bit to start, and then G. Piper got through the defense alone to whack in his own rebound, scoring in two minutes. This pepped things up and play was hard the rest of the way. A few minutes later, Weir pulled off a beautiful lone dash down the ice to go around defense and outguess the goalie, tying the score. The Redshirts had most of the play for awhile till Cameron drew a penalty for tripping. The combination wasn't so good, but play was fast and exciting with both goalies having their hands full. Jarvis and Creighton almost tallied, and then I. Piper's long shot on the ice from the blue line rolled through Miller's skates. Play was slower at the bell.

Tie Count in Second

The Petes turned it on to start the middle canto, and they balanced the count within a minute, Ellis passing from a faceoff in the corner to Dundas who batted it in. Ellis almost got another but the goalie's dive beat him. Dallin was chased for tripping, and Jamieson followed suit right after for the same thing. Weir flashed another fine solo sortie right in but Martyn came out of the net for a spectacular save. Weir came back again and rifled one from the defense. Martyn got his hand on it but it was too hot to stop. G. Piper again evened matters shortly when he pounced on a loose bootheel inside the Petes' territory and blazed it into the twine from close range. The boys were rattling each other's teeth with hard bodychecks and tearing back and forth furiously, about evenly. Miller stopped a couple of tough ones at the close.

Wall Section Topples

Early in the third, several fans unwillingly got into the midst of play when their section of the wall fell over from too much pressure, and the game was stopped a minute. Dallin was trying hard and finally netted one on a passout from the corner by Dundas. Bowmanville came back furiously in an effort to again sew it up, but Miller wasn't missing any. The visitors were getting right in on nice two and three-man rushes but hard checking and smart goal-tending kept them from sinking the equalizer. Hatton and Jarvis went through but the shot was blocked, and play was wild and woolly again. Weir and Dallin tried one and Jamieson came back with a dandy rush. The Petes began shooting the puck down the ice to relieve pressure and Bowmanvile began sending four and five players upon the attack, making the pace red hot.

With three minutes to go, "Red" Creighton snapped one of his high, fast specialties from an angle at defense and it got by Martyn. The Petes continued to check hard and play defensively, while Bowmanville was fairly peppering Miller as the final gong went.

The Teams

Bowmanville—Goal, Martyn; defense, Cameron and Densem; centre, G. Piper; wings, I. Piper and Jamieson; alternates, Chartren, Candler, Jackman and Hooper.

MANY HIGH-SALARIED DODGER CLUB PLAYERS BALK AT TERMS

CLARK DISSATISFIED.

(By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 (A.P.)—If Ed Barrow, business manager of the New York Yankees, thinks he has any monopoly on the season's baseball holdouts, he'd better take a look at the Brooklyn Dodgers. Already the Dodgers can point to a half dozen several high-salaried players who are balking at terms. And several more counties are virtually certain to be heard from.

William Watson Clark, the willing southpaw, is the latest member of the Dodger cast to reject the club's first contract. The Dodgers offered Clark the same salary he received last season, $12,000, but the southpaw thinks his work entitled him to a raise. He won 20 games, the only southpaw in the National League who reached that figure.

Al Lopez, Hack Wilson and Joe Stripp are bona-fide holdouts and Glenn Wright, veteran shortstop, is understood to be far from pleased with terms offered him.

The Yankees accomplished a neat stroke of business yesterday when they announced that Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, the accomplished southpaw, had ended his brief campaign for more money. Gomez asked for a larger increase than the club was ready to give him but whether he got it or not was not stated.

Tweed Black Hawks Beat Sulphide 5-0

TWEED, January 25 (Examiner Correspondence). — Before a fair crowd the Back Hawks defeated Sulphide to the tune of 5-0. Both sides displayed good play and gave and took some hard knocks. During the first period the Black Hawks placed two counters in the net and then played defence. The Sulphide boys attempted to even up the game but were unsuccessful. In the second period both teams started off determined to gain more points. The Black Hawks gained another pair of counters to place them 4 to 0 in the lead, while the last period resulted in the Black Hawks gaining a fifth point. Both teams displayed good combination and speed, while the goalies in their part played their positions very well. The younger boys boys displayed better judgment in their moves than was displayed in the Cobourg versus Tweed match, when Tweed ost to the count of 8-7.

The leading position in the senior Ontario Hockey Association parade has a new occupant to-day. Hamilton Tigers dislodging Toronto Marlboros, when they picked up four points with a 2-1 win over University of Toronto at Toronto last night.

Marlboros divided points with Kitchener on Hamilton ice last night, the teams deadlocking 3-3 after 90 minutes of hockey.

The youthful Dukes had clung tenaciously to the top position since the middle of December, but with a record of two losses and a tie in their last three games, the inevitable happened, and to-day they are in second place, two points behind the erratic Bengals.

Tigers, who previous to last night, suffered two successive shutouts, broke into the scoring column in a hurry, Herbie Cain, their leading shipeer, losing the trick on a backhand shot, inside the first two minutes.

After Don Smillie, the Blues' defenceman, tied the score on a solo effort, it devolved upon Red Whitehead, former Varsity player, to bring ignominy to his Alma Mater, his drive from outside the defence slipping past Frankie Shipp for the winning goal.

3-3 Tie at Hamilton.

Kitchener, who have transferred a few of their home games to Hamilton ice, appear to have benefitted from the change. Starting in where they left off, after beating the Tigers 1-0 last week, Empires matched goal for goal with the Dukes and stuck to their checks throughout.

Tommy Berner in the Kitchener nets was a standout with his remarkable display. Despite the fact his teammates drew 12 of the 18 penalties meted out, and on one or two occasions three Kitcheneriters being off at the one time, Berner refused to allow Marlboros to score, while thus handicapped.

Whitey Farrant, Art Whittaker, and Jack Shill notched counters for the Dukes, Teddy Olliver assisting in two of them. Roter Roth, Harlock, and Lederman scored for Empires.

Border City Canines Tie London Tecs 1-1

TORONTO, Jan. 25 (C.P.).—Undefeated in their last five games, Windsor Bulldogs breathed a little easier to-day, following their 1-1 tie game last night with London Tecumsehs at Windsor. The close proximity of a loss can be gauged by the fact the Windsor goal was scored when only 32 seconds of play remained.

Dr. Stan Brown, Bulldog defenceman, scored the tying goal, when his shot was screened by an opposing defence player and the puck was netted before Goalie Herbie Stuart knew it.

The point gained from the tie was the only one Windsor have succeeded in taking from London on their own ice this season. On three previous occasions, they went down to defeat before the League-leaders.

Mike Neville displayed some nice work in scoring Tecumsehs' goal. Taking a pass from Gene Carrigan, he swung around the Windsor defence, pushed the disc between Andy Bellemer's skates and recovered it to beat Normie Smith cleanly.

MAROONS WIN 3-0.

TORONTO, Jan. 25.—(CP)—All along there has been nothing the matter with Montreal Maroons in a goal-getting way. The trouble was—and it was so serious the Redmen were just about hog-tied by the effect—that one of hockey's highest scoring teams showed the welcome mat altogether too prominently to foe marksmen.

Until last week, when Coach Eddie Gerard waved in young Dave Kerr to play goal and old Reg Noble up beside Lionel Conacher on defence, Maroons were taking it with even greater frequency than they could dish it out. Now they are ducking the fast ones.

Kerr, former Toronto amateur netman, put up his second straight shutout last night as Maroons ran a new-born winning streak to three games by beating Chicago Black Hawks 3-0. He has been on the winning end ever since replacing Flat Walsh in the Maroon cage.

Advance To Second Place

Montreal's triumph sent the Gerard squad up to second place in the National League's Canadian section as New York Americans, suddenly as deep in a slump as they were a week ago in a winning streak, lost to New York Rangers 3-2. It was the third straight upset for Americans.

Hooley Smith's first-period goal provided Maroons with a working margin that had to do through the second period. But early in the third Jimmy Ward scored on a solo rush and just before the finish Paul Haynes notched another tally.

Americans fought furiously at New York to avert defeat and the third period was all but over before the Cook brothers located an opening and fed Frank Boucher the puck for the winning goal. Ching Johnson and Doug Brennan got the other Blueshirts goals and George Patterson and Normie Himes counted for Americans.

Doug Brennan

Boston and Ottawa had the fireworks, Eddie Shore causing almost as big a rumpus before Bruin followers as 8,500 fans could work up in unison at Ottawa. Without Art Ross who is ill, the Bears beat Canadiens 3-2 but even with plenty of support Senators had to take a 4-2 defeat from Toronto Maple Leafs.

Shore, using placid Sylvio Mantha as a target, started flailing his mighty arms in the third period when the score was tied and the excitement tense. Referee Cooper Smeaton, who has seen Eddie in these moods before, so far neglected to search his memory that he stepped in to haul Shore from the battle. A righthand punch grazed the official brow, so Mr Smeaton, not to be caught twice, shifted his hauling efforts to Mantha, a very angry defenceman by this time.

Judge of play Smith, lacking the Smeaton experience in Shore fistiana, grabbed Eddie and was sent toppling to the ice pronto. Smeaton and Mantha went down, too before the round ended and Smeaton handed out five minute penalties to the defence pair.

Reports that the official would report the incident to President Frank Calder were unconfirmed.

Red Beattie won the game for Bruins with a goal mid-way through the period—his second of the night. George Owen got the other, Wildor Larochelle and Pit Lepine scoring for Canadiens.

Senators and Leafs finished their battle on paper-littered ice because Ottawa fans protested against a ruling that disallowed Alex Smith's goal in the third period by throwing everything at hand on the ice. Rink attendants picked up the pennies and other weightier debris but they couldn't keep up with the shower of programs so the players completed the session skating around and among the paper.

Gracie Scores

Harvey Jackson and Bob Gracie scored for Leafs in the second period and Cooney Weiland got the only Senator goal. Joe Primeau made it 3-1 in the third period, Bill Thoms added another and Syd Howe's final Ottawa goal didn't mean anything.

FORMER CADDY WILL ATTEMPT U. S. GOLF FINAL THIS SEASON

Cocky Nebraskan Eliminated Bobby Jones in 1929 Amateur Championship.

BUYS NEW SET OF CLUBS.

(By Hugh Fogarty, A.P. Staff Writer.)

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 25 (A.P.)—The Mighty Mite of 1932, Johnny Goodman, is the stock slave of 1933, with his eyes set firmly and confidently on the major task of the United States amateur golfers—regaining the national championship from the sturdy grip of C. R. "Sandy" Somerville, of London, Ont.

Last September at Five Farms it was Goodman who fought it out with Somerville. But he "blew" a two-hole lead on the last nine and the title, for the first time in American golfing history, went to the Dominion.

Ready Again

Now Johnny is ready for Somerville again, and the rest of the field, with 15 pounds added to his weight, a new set clubs, and his customary air of self-assurance.

The additional heft may be the final touch the cocky Nebraskan needs to carry him up the long, torturous path to the title. The weight has been added to his legs and shoulders. He tips the beam close to 160 pounds. It means the extra bit of stamina he needs to stand off fatigue, to prevent defeat on the final nine.

The 23-year-old former caddy who leaped into prominence by eliminating Bobby Jones one up in the first 18-hole round of the 1929 amateur championship at Pebble Beach, has spent the winter in intensive practice.

"My game is better than ever," he reports. "I've thrown away my old clubs and I'm using a heavier set. I've been getting 15 yards more with my tee shots."

1932 Olympic Games Paid $150,000 Profit

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 25 (C.P.).—The Olympic Games here last summer returned a net profit of approximately $150,000.

While no financial statement of the international classic has been made, this figure was revealed in a statement from the Community Development Association that it "hoped to contribute to the city and county of Los Angeles the final surplus of the Olympic games in the neighborhood of $150,000."

The Los Angeles organizing committee, almost the same as the Community Development Association, has announced it would retire the bonds of $1,000,000, voted by the State Legislature for promotion of the games. The $55,000 premium on the bonds also will be paid.

This would raise the net over operating expenses to approximately $1,200,000.

(By C. J. P.)

"A smart intermediate team this year," was the general opinion of the hockey fans as they streamed out of the Brock last night. They had just seen a hard game with the Petes showing enough in the third period to pull out a 5-3 win over those Bowmanvile battlers. It wasn't any cake-walk for the locals by a long shot. They had to fight for that game, but it was a sweet victory. They can't be shaken out of a playoff berth now, and what is more important, they showed they can lick the Olympias this season.

* * * * * * *

It was 2-1 for Bowmanville at the end of the first period, 3-3 to wind up the middle go, and then the Petes clamped on the lid in the third. That's about the way it went, though the Petes were hardly two goals better in the last session. Miller had to be good in this frame as the red-sweatered oldtimers showered rubber at him. They have good combination, a quick hard shot dead on, and plenty of hockey brains. But the Petes were a little better last night and earned the win.

* * * * * * *

Archie Weir was in top form and did a lot of damage. His rushing was pretty to watch—but not for the other team. And he wasn't jabbing any love taps at the enemy citadel when he let her go, either. He, Lebarr and Howe, used their weights plenty effectively and some of those Bowmanville boys will be eating their next few meals off the mantel-piece, we're thinking, and maybe favoring a shoulder to. Boy! what bodychecks, and they weren't all on the part of the local lads, not at all. Some of the Petes were bounced just as hard off the sturdy form of Messrs. Hooper, Cameron and Densem.

* * * * * * *

Both home forward lines showed up well, though sticky ice interfered with good combination. They looked better at backchecking. Jarvis shone at this, but did too much needless stickhandling to threaten the other goal. Creighton's shot wasn't on till late in the game, but then it was dangerous. Ellis and Dundas were always troublesome, while Dallin and Hatton were in there fighting as hard as anyone. The Wright-managed crew is beginning to click now, and didn't do bad last night after the week's layoff.

* * * * * * *

The comedy relief was supplied in this game early in the third period. Play was furiously exciting around the northwestern part of the rink and several husky fans pressed too hard on one of the detachable "gates" of the side.. Yeah, it became detached all right with a suddenness that threw three or four customers right into the middle of the play.. They were quite nonplussed, to say the least, to find themselves parked on the ice with a gang of players tearing around them, and the players were just as surprised at the sudden rain of fans on them. However, it was all cleared up shortly as laughter swept the stands. The game was unusually clean and was well-handled by Jack Sabatino.

* * * * * * *

Both East Peterborough League hockey games at the Brock tonight ought to be good—more even and hard-fought, in fact, than that last E.P.L. double-header. It's Westclox against Lakefield at 7.30, with Carters and Norwood tangling at nine. The light-clad Alarm outfit will have a mean handful in those fast-skating youthful Lakefield lads, and we wouldn't predict the outcome of this one. And Mister A. Kempt's Combines, including our own Pat Calladine and Bill and Fred Cripps will be running smack into probably the toughest defence in the loop—that of the Carters, made up of Lackey, Swanger, and Foley. Should be plenty of exciting hockey up there this e'en.

* * * * * * *

Joe Lung, Chinese goalie for Sugar Bowl last night, made his hockey debut in good order, his side getting a 7-5 nod over another candy shop, or is it shoppe? We mean the Hollywood Inn. At that, the latter boys are thinking of demanding a recount, but they should have had a recount on the players in the last period as they came and went with utmost freedom. Lots of fun and a lot of laundrymen up there to cheer the amiable Joseph along.

* * * * * * *

A cheerful little earful reached us to-day, a prominent Lakefield sportsman praising our stand against rough hockey. He says Grove School and P.C.I. played a fine 3-3 tie up there, and it was a real pleasure to see the clean playing of both sides after a lot of crude hockey. They are looking forward to another contest of the same calibre in Peterborough against P.C.I. shortly. Thanks; we like to have good news slipped to us once in a while. Incidentally, we'd like to congratulate Chubby Blewett on his work in building up a new young bunch on the Lakefield team this year. They've got a smart outfit now, and should be a hard one to stop in another year.

Four good South-end League games were run off on heavy ice last night at the Sacred Heart. And by the way, all managers in this circuit should be at the meeting on Friday at 7.30 in Duffus' to return stubs and unsold tickets in their draw. These may be returned the night before at the games at the Sacred Heart Rink to Mike O'Brien, secretary. The S.E.L. and Church Loop are both going strong now.

Passing it along: Here's a bouquet to St. John's Ambulance Corps for always having a member with first-aid kit at hockey games in the Brock upstairs.....And a bunch of orchids to the local doctors who sliced off good chunks of their bills for injured soccer players recently to help the league.....Plans are being made to make the Merrett Benefit Night a dandy; he's been home from hospital a week.....Officers of the gals' softball loop should apply to the Council for a grant if they want a grand stand built before the estimates' meeting in March.....City and district games the rest of the week are listed elsewhere to-day.

East Peterborough Twin Bill To-Night

The four East Peterborough Hockey League teams swing into action to-night at the Brock, in a promising double-header. The ice should be fair and the action exciting. Lakefield and Westclox tangle in the opener at 7.30 o'clock, with Norwood meeting Payne's Carters in the second fixture at nine bells. These games should be much better-balanced than was the case in the previous twin-bill here.

The Lakefield boys are improving every time out, and they will give the Clockmakers a hard, fast contest, with the issue just a toss-up. Both sides favor speedy, open hockey, and this will make for a clean, hard game. The husky Norwood Combines, sitting pretty on top of the heap, will meet tough opposition to-night in the hard-hitting Carters. More heavy checking will be seen in this tussle than in the first, and little difference is likely between the squads.

Besides his own Norwood and district experienced pucksters, Alex. Kempt has three classy local players in Fred Cripps, "Bad Man Bill" Cripps, and Pat ("Rocket") Calladine. They will doubtless be much in the limelight again in trying to pierce the Lackey-Swanger-Foley stellar defence, while the fast-breaking and hard-checking Carter forwards are likely to give Beavis a tough evening between the gas-pipes. All in all, both E.P.L. games to-night have all the earmarks of plenty of close, thrilling hockey, making it a promising bill of fare for local fans and followers of the game, as well as district fans who come with the Lakefield and Norwood teams.

ANTIPODEANS WILL CONSIDER M.C.C. REPLY ON JANUARY 30TH

CONFIDENCE IN TEAM.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 25 (C.P. Cable). — The Australian Board of Cricket Control is to hold a special meeting on January 30 in Sydney, to consider the reply received on Monday from the Marylebone Cricket Club answering Australia's charges that the English test team was playing "unsportsmanlike" cricket that would ruin the good feeling between the cricketers of the two countries.

Meanwhile there appeared to-day in the newspaper Age a leader editorial headed, "On With the Game," which said: "Fortunately for the future of international cricket there is nothing in the reply from the Marylebone Club that will provoke further ill feeling."

Answering a cable of protest from the Australian Board of Cricket Control which took exception to the deadly bowling of Harold Larwood who was successfully exploiting a "leg theory," the M.C.C. cable expressed full confidence in the style and naïveté of the English cricketers and while they regretted several batsmen had been hit by Larwood they were convinced there had been no infringement of the laws or spirit of cricket.

The English response voiced regret of the whole affair, but suggested that if the Australian body so chose, it could cancel the two remaining games.

Rangers Score .500 Per Cent On The Road

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 (C.P.). — With the half-way mark of the National Hockey League schedule only recently passed, statistics compiled by a Gotham hockey expert and published in the World-Telegram, show that New York Rangers are the most dangerous team in the Calder loop when playing on the road.

By figuring actual points gained against total points possible, this expert has proven Rangers hit .500 per cent. while meeting the enemy in his own back-yard.

Toronto Maple Leafs are the "homers" of the League, travelling at a .785 clip in the Leaf ice plant.

BIKE-GRIND FIELD IS CUT TO 10 TEAMS

Colorful Torchy Peden is Forced to Retire From Cleveland Bikeathon.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 25 (A.P.) — The original field reduced by injuries from 14 teams to 10, Cleveland's first six-day bicycle race approached its final hours to-day with the veteran Reggie McNamara and Norman Hill holding the lead they took early in the grind. The race ends to-morrow night.

The colorful William (Torchy) Peden, who raced by airplane and ship from Berlin in six days to arrive in time to compete, was forced out of the race last night after he disregarded doctors' advice for 20 hours by continuing to ride. His partner, Jules Audy of Montreal, was paired late in the evening after Jack Sheehan of Ireland, whose partner, Waldorf McClay, retired voluntarily due to a bad cold.

After he abandoned the race, Peden quickly decided to desert the scene as well and left at 4.30 a.m. to-day for his home at Victoria, B.C. He promised race physicians he would undergo there an X-ray examination to determine if the bad gash he received on his head in a spill late Monday night might have caused concussion. He also suffered bad bruises on his body from being thrown against the fence at the top of the track and then catapulted to the bottom while travelling at an estimated 90-mile-an-hour speed.

CLOSE VICTORIES FEATURE SOUTH-END LEAGUE TANGLES

NORTH-ENDERS LOSE 4-3.

Four fast fixtures were run off by the Southend Hockey League at the Sacred Heart rink last night, one goal being the margin of victory in three cases. Warne Bros. bantams took the first from Empire Cubs, 2-1; the second one went to Albion Knitting, 4-0, over Brady's Blackhawks; with Park Hill intermediates squeezing out a 1-0 win over Canucks in the third tussle; and Pirates' intermediates winding up the evening with a close 4 to 3 win over Northenders. The ice was somewhat rough, but play was fast and clean.

There was little difference between the two battling bantam outfits all through. Heal and Watson got the Warne goals, with McIlmoyle, another School Hockey League product, getting the losers' lone marker. Williams turned in a smart game, proving a chip off the old block. Both goalies also shone. The teams:

Empire Cubs: Goal, Depellaro; defence, Webb and Gardino; centre, Williams; wings, Johnston and Lucas, alternates, McIlmoyle, Sweetman, Vitarelli, and Charlton.

Warne Bros.: Goal, Hardy; defence, Brady and Wright; centre, Watson; wings, Heal and Cournea; alternates, Connolly, Leith, Scully and Pulkinghorn.

Blank Hawks 4-0

Albion Knitting turned back Bradys' Blackhawks in a fast affair, 4 to 0. Despite the four goals, Driscoll was very hard to beat in the losers' net and had no chance on those that beat him. Both sides fairly burned up the ice and play was never one-sided. While checking was hard, it was not a rough game. Todd got two, and Connors and Mowry one each for Albions. There was no particular stars. The teams:

Albion: Goal, Clarke; defence, LeSurf and Depellaro; centre, Vitarelli; wings, Post and Jobe; alternates, Connors, Todd and Mowry.

The first intermediate contest was a fine one between well-matched outfits composed of smart players. Kearney got the only marker of the hectic up-and-down contest, which was featured by clever stickhandling, fair combination, hard checking and good goal-tending, Heffernan covering himself with glory by reason of his work in the Canuck citadel. The teams:

Park Hill: Goal, Ralph; defence, McGillen and Starr; centre, Wilshaw; wings, Kearney and Garvey; alternates, Driscoll, Clancy, Kearney and Kennedy.

Canucks: Goal, Heffernan; defence, Lasure and Ashmore; centre, Ridley; wings, Heffernan and Collins; alternate, Collins.

Hard-fought Tussle

The last game was another close hard-fought tussle with Pirates getting a 4-3 decision over Northenders. A number of spectacular lone rushes and steady net-guarding on the part of both sides made it an even and exciting game. "Suitcase" Simpson and "Moose" Bailey were outstanding for the Buccaneers, while Gledhill copped the spotlight with his fine network for the Northenders. The teams:

Sugar Bowl Robins Beat Hollywoodites

Dormer's Sugar Bowl Robins defeated Hill's Hollywood Inn Collegians last night by a score of approximately seven to five. That was the score according to the referee, but the individual players each claimed to have scored anywhere from one to five goals apiece. Play looked almost, but not quite, like the Maple Leafs and Canadiens at the top of their form. The main difference was that the pros. play from a standing position, while last night's game was played in positions which ranged from merely sitting down for a rest to sliding à la baseball.

Penalties were few and far between, murder and mayhem being the order of the day. Just before the final bell all the players of both teams took the ice in a general melee which netted the Robins two goals, to break the tie score of five all.

Stand-out stars (by reason of their being on their feet at least 50 per cent of the game) were: for the Bowl, G. Dormer and Joe Lung, and for Hollywood Inn, Jimmy White and Clarke, the first line defence and the last line to fall down.

At last census the line-ups were:

Sugar Bowl.—Goal, Joe Lung; defence, Hewitt, Playford; wings, Baker, Dormer; centre, Kingdon; subs., McGinnis, Johnston, Best.

Hollywood Inn.—Goal, R. D'Arcy; defence, Clarke, White; wings, Williamson, Richardson; centre, Wainman; subs., G. Hill, Robertson, Rutter.

PLAYERS PLAN PRESENTATION

Cathedral Players Will Present Play in Collegiate Auditorium.

"IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE."

The "Cathedral Players," of St. Peter's Cathedral Parish, a recently organized group of dramatic and musical artists, will present, in the Collegiate Auditorium on the evening of January 31st, the popular stage success, the comedy-drama entitled, "It Pays to Advertise." The cast, including several newcomers probably unknown to former Peterborough theatre audiences, has given months of painstaking preparation to ensure a really worth-while production. The cast includes, the Misses Marcelle McNuity, Peggy Roche, Hilda Sullivan, Helen Archambault and Messrs. Jack Roach, Jack Madden, Jack McCabe, Tom Ryan, Dr. E. M. Crough, Dave Edwards, Ernest Archambault, Frank Lonergan, with Miss Geraldine Collins as the evening's soloist.

GOODNIGHT STORIES

By Max Trell

A little fly
Met a hungry lizard,
Now the fly
Is in the lizzard's gizzard.
—Shadow Saying.

It was all Knarf's faul that he expected to find the ocean on the desert. The desert, you see, was covered with sand, and Knarf expected that wherever there was sand there would also be the ocean. He thought that the only place you could find sand was the seashore.

Well, he looked and he looked, and Mij, Flor, Hanid and Yam (you know them, I hope) helped him look. But even if you had looked and I had looked and all our friends had looked, I'm sure we shouldn't have been able to find an ocean on the desert, because there wasn't any ocean.

By and by they met a lizard.

"What's your first name?" Mij asked the lizard.

The Daily Menu

"I haven't got any first name," answered the lizard. "I haven't even got a second name."

"All right then," Knarf broke in, "what's your third name?"

The lizard told the shadows that it lived on the desert, and so did its mother and father and all its brothers and sisters. Hanid asked the lizard what it ate.

"Do you mean for breakfast?" Hanid nodded.

"For breakfast," said the lizard, "I generally eat flies."

"And for lunch?"

"For lunch? Just let me see."

"What do you eat for breakfast?" they asked the lizard.

The lizard waited a minute or two before it replied: "For lunch I generally eat flies."

This time the lizard didn't hesitate at all before it answered: "Flies."

"You always eat flies, don't you?" the shadows said. The lizard shook its head.

"Not always."

"When don't you?"

An Invitation.

"When I don't catch any," it told them. The shadows asked the lizard if living on the desert wasn't too hot for it. "Oh, it's not so hot after you get used to it. I'm used to it. I never use a fan any more." The shadows were surprised to learn this. They never knew that a lizard could use a fan at all.

"It's really lovely living on the desert," the lizard went on. "Do you think that I wear an overcoat in the winter time?"

"No!" all the shadows answered together.

The lizard smiled. "You're all very smart. I don't wear an overcoat in the winter time." Then the lizard walked away. It looked behind once. "If you're hungry, drop in for a bite. There are always a few flies in the ice box." But the shadows didn't think they would.

For Thursday, January 26

A rather surprising and unforseen turn of events may be presaged from the lunar transits in operation on this day. There may be a sudden and important development of affairs, despite delays, postponements and obstacles With industry, determination and patience there may be substantial progress as well as profit, but be careful of small losses and extravagances.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of some surprising developments, with progress and profit to be wrested from impediments, postponements and disappointments. Rather important matters will call for much acumen A child born on this day should be diligent, studious, skillful.

TRIP UNFOLDED BY LADY BAILEY

Talked in Sign Language to Native Who Spread News of Her Plight.

ILL—OUT OF GAS.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Rain, illness and incomplete maps were the chief obstacles with which Lady Bailey had to contend in her flight across the Sahara en route to Cape Town last week which ended in French West Africa while the world wondered as to her whereabouts.

Arriving here yesterday enroute to England, Lady Bailey said that on leaving Oran January 16 she strayed from her route and landed in the Tanesruft region, tired and ill. She spent the night in the cockpit of her plane.

When she awoke, she said, she was astonished to find that it was raining. Her spark plugs became wet and these she had to dry before she could continue.

She was determined to fly as far as her meagre supply of gasoline would carry her, but when night came she was forced to land near Tahoua, where she was found by a native with whom she conversed in sign language.

At first mystified at the plane, the native carefully examined it and then disappeared, leaving Lady Bailey alone to spend the night in the desert.

The native informed inhabitants of a nearby oasis and authorities

SURVEY MADE FIFTEEN CITIES OVER PROVINCE

OPERATING IN 11 CITIES.

Taxpayer Answering Call in Most Cases Being Allowed 5 Per Cent.

TORONTO, Jan. 25 (C.P.)—Ontario's citizens, in these so-called days of depression, willingly lay their money on the line in taxes for the old home town. Survey of 15 cities, in which 11 have put into effect tax-prepayment plans, shows discount-on-advance-pay system is generally well received and operating successfully.

The tax-payer who answers the call of his city by paying in advance received, in most instances, interest at the rate of five per cent. up to the time the payment is due. A few cities have a graduated scale of interest allowance. Receipts, in the form of scrip and in denominations of $5 or $10 up to $1,000, are issued prepayers.

Among cities covered by the survey, Toronto, Sault Ste. Marie, Galt, Windsor, Ottawa, Kitchener, Stratford, London, St. Catharines, Sarnia and Sudbury have adopted the prepayment scheme. Guelph, Brantford, Peterborough and Woodstock have not.

In Toronto.

Toronto annually collects about $1,000,000 of its $34,000,000 of municipal taxes during January and February by the receipt plan. Prepayment receipts are sold in denominations of from $10 to $1,000, to be applied on first instalment taxes dut in May, and provide for prepayment discount of approximately five per cent. per annum.

In Sault Ste. Marie, about $4,500 has been paid so far this year, where the plan has been in effect several years. Taxes are estimated on the basis of the previous year's rate, and interest is allowed at five per cent. until June 15, when first payment is due. At that time, five per cent. discount is allowed on the second payment, due October 15.

Galt has had the plan three years. Prepayments to date are $1,500 ahead of last year, and it is anticipated $13,000 will have been received by the end of the month. The discount rate is five per cent. to July 2, first instalment date, and also to December 2, the second payment date. City Collector McCartney says not enough revenue is provided to declare the plan a success.

In Windsor, one-half of one per cent. per month is allowed for time prior to the due date. This year payments are due in instalments May 1, August 1, and November 1.

In Ottawa

Ottawa reports a decrease this year, with $110,000 expected by the end of the month as against $129,048 last January. The discount begins with two per cent. in January on a graduated scale.

Kitchener reports more than 50 per cent increase in prepayments this year, with payments to date in excess of $55,000, and $60,000 expected by the end of January. The plan has operated three years. Five per cent is allowed up to the June installment date, and those paying in full during January receive an additional two per cent for advance payment of the second installment.

Stratford has the plan for the first time this year. From Jan. 1 to 16, $53,000 was obtained and some additional was expected before the second period expires at the end of the month. The five per cent. discount is allowed.

In London, a two per cent. discount is granted to those who pay all three installments in advance in addition to five per cent interest based on the number of days accounts are paid ahead of due date. Consideration is being given to a plan to allow payment every two months, making six installments. Since Jan. 1, $107,000 has been collected, and it is expected the total will reach $135,000 by the end of the month. This is on a par with last year.

In St. Catharines.

St. Catharines' plan calls for scrip issues from $5 to $1,000. Five per cent. per annum discount is allowed for all payments during the half-monthly discount periods provided. The last date for purchase of scrip is May 15, but further discounts will be allowed those paying second and third installments together. Installments are set for June 7, August 3 and October 4.

Sarnia enters its second year under the plan with $35,000 expected by the end of the month, reported larger than last year. A sliding scale of discounts is allowed. If $100 in taxes is owed the cost in January is $97.50; in February $98; in March $98.50, and so on to the full amount.

Sudbury is just beginning its prepayment scheme along the same lines as other cities, and expects $30,000 by the end of the month. Prepayment receipts may be purchased up to the end of February.

There was a large attendance at the league meeting on Friday night when the principal business was the election of officers.

Clifford Chaplin took over the program for the meeting. Rev. S. A. Kemp chose the nominating committee of five: Mrs. John Scott, Miss Bessie Inkster, Miss B. G. French, Messrs. R. M. Umphrey, and Rufus Redden, who were to withdraw from the meeting to hold a conference regarding nominations for the new officers, subject to the approval of the League members.

After the Mizpah benediction the gathering repaired to the dining hall where 13 tables were arranged for progressive crokinole under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. Score cards were issued but there were not sufficient tables for the crowd, as there was an attendance of about 125. Miss Doris Scott read the rules and acted as time keeper for the games, the result of which for Ladies, first, the Misses Fleda Thompson and Bessie Inkster tied for first place with a score of 650, but in the draw Bessie Inkster won. Learl Humphries won the highest gentleman's score, 845; the prize for each was a box of home made candy.

Messrs. Learl and Hamilton Humphrey favored the gathering with a vocal duet and ably responded to a hearty encore.

Ten dollars was added to the treasury of the Ladies' Aid Society. Mrs. Thomas J. Brown and Mrs. R. W. Umphrey were the door keepers.

WARSAW

The play, "Our Awful Aunt," was put on in Clarina school-house on Friday evening, by the Presbyterian Young people, who gave it at the Presbyterian S.S. entertainment. Rev. J. W. Wilkinson and W. S. Anderson took car loads from Warsaw.

Besides the play there were several other numbers, among them a reading by W. S. Anderson; song by Mary Bell; reading by Albert Bryan; duet by Milo and Meta Payne, and music by the juvenile orchestra. The building was fairly well filled, and the proceeds are to go towards buying an organ for the school.

A heavy thunderstorm came up about four o'clock Sunday afternoon; the first this year. Rain fell in torrents and even on the Dummer Road water was rushing over the road.

SURPLUS SHOWN BY APSLEY FAIR

Balance of $7.45 After All Prize Money Paid.

V. WINDSOR, PRESIDENT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, January 25. — The annual meeting of the Agricultural Society was held in the Parish Hall on Thursday evening and was very well attended. The president, Rev. C. A. G. Spence, was the chairman and gave a report on the activities for the past year, and a detailed statement of the annual fair which had been the most successful one in the society's history, the number of exhibits nearly reaching the 1000 mark, and being almost double that of the previous year.

All the prize money had been paid and the society has a balance of $7.45, according to the auditors' report. A vote of thanks, on motion of Malcolm Tucker and Vernal Windsor, was accorded Mr. Spence for his good work as president for the two past years, and the interest he has shown in the society since its reorganization. He was nominated for the same office again but declined to stand remarking that a younger man should assume the responsibilities of the office.

Vernal Windsor, Malcolm Tucker and E. M. Emmal were nominated, the two latter withdrawing. Vernal Windsor was appointed President. M. Tucker and E. M. Emmal retain their office as first and second vice-president, respectively.

The following directors were then elected: C. S. Windsor, Joe Tucker, F. McFadden, John Tucker, A. Downing, W. Johnston, Owen James, Simon Windsor, Wm. Earnshaw, Jr., Walter Tucker, Norman Lean, Mrs. W. Lean, Mrs. C. S. Windsor, Mrs. Emmel, Mrs. R. Tucker.

Delegate to Association of Fairs: John Tucker. Auditors: Mrs. Kilborn and Mrs. W. Staples.

Rev. C. A. G. Spence was unanimously appointed Hon. President.

At a subsequent meeting of the directors, Mrs. R. Tucker was reappointed secretary-treasurer.

ORANGEMEN HOLD SOCIAL AT WARSAW

Pleasing Program Presented in Orange Hall—Presbyterian W.M.S. Holds Regular Meeting.

WARSAW, Jan. 25 (Examiner Correspondence).—The L.O.B.A. and Orange Lodge of Warsaw held a social on Thursday evening in the Orange Hall, to which they invited friends. Considering the condition of the roads, a goodly number turned out.

Cards, lost heir, crokinole and other games and social converse took the early part of the evening. For the program Rev. J. W. Wilkinson was chairman. There was assembly singing led by Henry Batten, with Mrs. Stuart Clysdale at the piano, then a reading, "Elaine," by Miss Dorcas Lloyd; solo, "Lassie o' Mine," by Mr. Batten; a reading, "The Victory of the Orangemen," by Mrs. Charles Tighe; "Stars of the Summer Night," by Warsaw Male Voice Quartette. Dr. Munro gave a short and pithy address on present-day conditions.

The junior orchestra gave a selection, and were heartily encored.

Mr. Wilkinson spoke of the preserving qualities of salt, and that with things in general the salt had lost its savor. We need more of the salt of right living. Hector Thompson sang the "Song of a Tramp," with guitar accompaniment. The male voice quartette gave "Juanita"; the junior orchestra gave some more selections.

A splendid supper was served by the ladies, after which the floor was cleared and the young people danced to music by the junior orchestra.

Presbyterian W.M.S.

The Presbyterian W.M.S. met at Mrs. R. W. Payne's home on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Munro read the Psalm; Mrs. Greystock led in prayer; Miss Maggie Miller and Mrs. McQuay read Scripture; Mrs. Milton Drain led in prayer for the church; Mrs. T. H. Crowe led in prayer for the W.M.S.; Mrs. Greystock also read Scripture; Mrs. R. W. Payne led in prayer for all those who suffer in any way in this present time of distress. The Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. Owing to the illness of Mr. Borland, Mrs. Borland was unable to be present to give the talk she had prepared.

Dr. Munro will give a health talk in Warsaw Town Hall on Friday evening, January 27, at eight o'clock. An interesting program is being prepared by the Women's Institute Committee, and there will be a collection to defray expenses.

Mrs. Joseph Matthews spent a few days with her sister, Mrs. W. S. Anderson, this week.

Henry Batten took his cattle to Toronto on Tuesday.

Miss Hervie, from Keene, was guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Dunford for a few days.

Those from Warsaw United Church W.M.S. who attended the Presbyterial in George Street Church, Peterborough, were Mesdames G. G. Taylor, David Taylor, J. W. Wilkinson, Charlotte Cooper, John A. Sargent, Uriah Payne, Arthur Payne and Miss Charlotte Dewart.

RADIO NOTES

By

R. H. CHILDERHOSE

A radio lightning arrester should be used on every aerial. The most common type is one in which there is a small air gap between two terminals, over which the radio signal cannot pass to ground, but over which large static electric charges of lightning will jump, and be carried to ground. It prevents a large accumulation of static electricity forming above the aerial, and striking, draining or filtering it to the ground in small discharges. An aerial properly protected is a safeguard, not a hazard.

Ed.—Mr. Childerhose will be glad to answer any questions asked by radio fans. If you have any trouble just drop a note to Mr. Childerhose in care of The Examiner.

KEENE O.Y.P.A. PRESENTS PLAY

Interesting Story Told in Delightful Program—Parts Are Well Taken.

The Keene O.Y.P.A. club presented a three act play entitled the Wild Flower of the Hills in the Keene Town Hall, January 19th.

Hearty applause throughout bore testimony that the play was well enjoyed by a large crowd present.

The scene of the play was laid in the home of the Birks, a proud Southern family.

The heroine of the play was Chloe a waif and ward of the Birks. This role was exceptionally well taken by Miss Helen Donaldson.

Miss Viola Wilson acted the part of Mrs. Birks the cantankerous female. Her two other sons Jed (Roy Richardson) the villain and Zack (Roland Rennie) of the lawyer's mind played important roles.

Humour is added by the good for nothing, no account darkie Mose who spends his time thinking of looking for a job. Douglas Brown was excellent in this role. The other darkie characters are Mammy (Bertha Elmhirst) a friend to everybody and Lillie (Marjorie Francis) her daughter and wife of Mose who is most boastful about her operations.

The play was ably directed by Mrs. Cameron and showed the results of careful drilling, as every part was acted very well. On behalf of the cast little Miss Anne Brown presented Mrs. Cameron with a bouquet of roses.

Between acts the draw for the auto rug took place, the lucky number being held by Mr. Gilbert Howson.

Other enjoyable numbers were a humorous reading entitled "How Paddy Got to Heaven" by Edith Elmhirst; a solo by Michael McCarthy and a quartet by Messrs. Douglas and Lawrence Brown, Malcolm McFarlane and Alfred Fletcher.

POLICE COLLECTIONS.

LONDON, Ont.—London's police force collected $780 in witness fees during 1932, and of this amount $527 went to four detectives. Council members believe these sums should be turned into the city treasury, but there is some difficulty in making the policemen see this, particularly since the law, as it stands, makes the policemen clearly entitled to their witness fees.

SUSPECTED KKK CHIEF IN COURT

REMANDED FOR SENTENCE.

EDMONTON, Jan. 26.—(C.P.) — Pleas of guilty were entered by J. J. Maloney, reported Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan in Alberta, in city police court to-day to charges of attempted false pretenses, causing damage to porperty of the Mayfair Golf and Country Club, and setting fire to property of the club. He was remanded until Tuesday next for sentence. And for hearing on an additional charge—of having administered an illegal oath.

The court was informed that Maloney on the night of Dec. 31 broke into the club's tool shed when his automobile was stuck in a nearby snow bank. In entering the shed he damaged the door and, once within, he attemtped to light a fire in a stove, using Golf Club blueprints and papers for the purpose. He had damaged his car in attempting to free it from the snow and later submitted a claim to an insurance company, claiming the damage had been caused by thieves.

The illegal oath charges has to do with the obligation allegedly adminstered to members of the Ku Klux Klan by Maloney.

Duff Commission Took No Heed to Human Element Men Declare.

OTTAWA, January 26 (C. P.). — The railway problem in Canada is threatening the very economic life of the country, Premier R. B. Bennett told a deputation of railwaymen here to-day. Like the fabled old man of the sea, it was clinging to the back of Canada, slowly throttling its life.

No language would be too extravagant to describe the seriousness of Canada's railway problem, the Prime Minister said. It had been submitted by the railwaymen that too much emphasis had been placed on the financial end of the problem and not enough on the human

EARLY ELECTION HINTED BY PRICE IN LONDON RALLY

No Vote in Sight, But Be Prepared is Warning to Conservatives.

CELEBRITIES ATTEND.

Campaign Plans Heard By Party Moguls Behind Closed Doors.

LONDON, Ont., January 26 — Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General, yesterday told Western Ontario Conservatives that they should get their riding organizations in shape as soon as possible. Mr. Price did not say there was going to be an election soon, but left the impression that there would be no harm in being ready for one.

Many Present.

Organization and redistribution were the things uppermost in the minds of district Conservatives as they gathered in the London Conservative Club Rooms. Members of the Commons and Legislature, as well as the presidents and secretaries of the riding organization were on hand. More than 125 attended.

In Conference.

Conservatives of Western Ontario in session here yesterday afternoon, overhauled their war muntions behind closed doors, but at the conclusion of their parley declared with qualification that no election is in sight.

The meeting brought a swarm of party celebrities, including Hon. W. H. Price, Hon. Dr. Raymond Morand, Hon. Paul Poisson, Hon. W. G. Martin, all members or candidates, Federal and Provincial, from all the Western Ontario constituencies, and presidents, secretaries, and executive officers from the same riding. With them came W. G. Clysdale, Ontario organizer, and many others.

Doors Tyled.

Behind tyled doors, Colonel Price and his political colleagues addressed the gathering, which, according to an offilal summary, dealt only with admonitions to keep the organization in first-class shape, and particularly to get efficient organizations for young people in operation in every constituency. In addition to the Cabinet members mentioned the speakers included N. L. LeSueur, K.C., of Sarnia, president and Arthur R. Ford of London past president of the Western Ontario Conservative Association The delegates are to proceed to carry out this plan as speedily as possible.

Last night Colonel Price held a conference with Mayor Kilbourne and members of the City Council at Hotel London on the various clauses of the City of London Bill. The Council had asked for an appointment in Toronto, but the Colonel replied that he could save the city the cost of the trip by arranging to hold the meeting during his visit yesterday in London.

BAIL IS REFUSED TO SCHOOL BOY

Iroquois Pupil Will Wait Hearing, For Stabbing Principal, in Jail.

VICTIM HOLDING OWN.

CORNWALL, Ont., Jan. 26 (C.P.) —Arnold Redmond, the Iroquois school boy who is alleged to have stabbed his principal, Fred C. Beaupre, must await his preliminary hearing in jail. When he appeared before Magistrate John McCormick at Iroquois, bail was refused.

Latest word from the Brockville General Hospital, where Principal Beaupre underwent an operation, is that his condition is satisfactory although still critical. The alleged stabbing took place before the second form pupils in the Iroquois High School, after Beaupre had rebuked Redmond for playing truant and ordered him to go home until he had completed some special work assigned as a punishment.

The principal slapped the youth, according to other students, and Redmond at once pulled a long hunting knife from a sheath at his belt and plunged it into the teacher's chest.

C. E. STRICKLAND TO STAND TRIAL BAIL IS GRANTED

Lakefield Man is Bailed for Trial on Charge of Theft.

MORTGAGE SOLD.

Charged with the theft of $1,300 in funds from Mrs. Marion Cameron, of Otonabee Township, arising from a mortgage sale and a stock transaction, C. E. Strickland, of Lakefield, bond salesman and manager of the Stoney Lake Hotels, Limited, was ordered bailed for trial to-day by Police Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., following preliminary hearing of the evidence in police court.

The Crown alleged that the $1,300 represents the balance funds from a mortgage on a piece of Smith Township property which C. E. Strickland sold for her so that she could purchase stock in the Stoney Lake Hotels, Limited. This sum, Mrs. Cameron stated, was to have been placed in the Dominion Bank, Peterborough, to her credit by C. E. Strickland, but that he failed to do this and thereby did commit theft.

Testimony of Crown witnesses in the hearing took up yesterday morning, and at the conclusion of the Crown's case the case was adjourned until to-day when defence evidence was submitted by J. Walton Stevenson, Strickland's counsel.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., conducted the prosecution, and in the presentation of the case called the evidence of R. R. Hall, K.C., Herbert Morphet, of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, R. T. Hicks-Lyne ,bank manager, and W. T. Morrow, county registrar of deeds, and Mrs. Cameron, the informant.

One Witness Called.

John C. Strickland, distant relative of the accused, was the only witness called by Mr. Stevenson.

At the conclusion of the hearing, Magistrate Langley ruled that the evidence was very complicated and that it was a case for a higher court to decide. He adjudged that it was a case where the accused might be bailed for trial rather than committed. Bail of $1,000 was granted.

The defence argued that the $1,300 represented a loan made by Mrs. Cameron to the accused and that failure to pay by Strickland constituted nothing but a breach between creditor and debtor.

However, Mrs. McElderry argued that the letters produced had shown clearly that the money was not given to Strickland as a loan and that this was borne out by the fact that he had repeatedly stated that the money would be placed immediately to Mrs. Cameron's credit at the Dominion Bank.

Evidence Confused

Somewhat confusing evidence was given by the main witness, Mrs. Cameron who repeatedly admitted that she could not remember important details concerning her transactions with the accused. However, she did state that she had left the business of transferring a mortgage held by her and worth $2,798 into cash and stock in the hands of the accused. She alleged that Strickland had made no accounting to her of $1,300, which, she claimed, she had instructed him to place to her credit in a Peterborough bank.

The charge against Strickland read as follows: "Having theretofore received from the informant, Marion Cameron, a valuable security, to wit, an assignment of a mortgage, date June 30, 1930, purporting to assign a mortgage from Richard Henry Bickell, Christina Jane Bickell, and John James Bickell, to her, the informant, upon terms requiring him, the said C. E. Strickland, to pay over to the informant a part of the proceeds therefrom arising, to wit, a sum of approximately $1,300 by paying the same to her credit in the Dominion Bank, Peterborough, he the said C. E. Strickland, did afterwards, to wit, at the time

Results In 54 Of 153 Seats Give Government And Labor Allies Total Of 33 Against 21 For Combined Opposition Of Nationalists, Centrists And Independents.

OUTCOME UNCERTAIN—ONLY ONE GOV'T GAIN CENTRISTS GET MANY OPPOSITION VOTES.

(By George Hambleton, C. P. Staff Writer)

DUBLIN, Jan. 26.—(C. P. Cable)—The Republican government had a lead over all of 12 seats as returns from the Irish general election early this evening mounted to 54 seats out of 153.

In all these results however only one Republican gain was reported, capture of one of the National University seats which returned a Nationalist in the last elections. The Nationalist Opposition also sustained a severe loss in the defeat of Ernest Blythe, former vice-president of the Free State, by an Independent - Farmer member in Monaghan, but capture of the seat by the Independent will not alter the party standings there.

With 99 seats still in doubt, party standings in the Irish General election tonight were:

Republican (Gov't.)	31
Labor (Gov't.)	2
Nationalist (Oppn.)	13
Independent (Oppn.)	5
Centrist (Oppn.)	3

One Seat Loss.

As results slowly came in, the Republican forces kept well in front, but the Nationalist Opposition were somewhat cheered by the fact they had lost only one seat. On the other hand the Republicans were jubilant over the election of six ministers supporting President Eamon de Valera, the fact former President Cosgrave's personal poll was cut in half, and that in addition to the defeat of Mr. Blythe, chief Cosgrave lieutenant, other Nationalist notables were having trouble.

De Valera Breaks Record

Two-thirds of those so far elected are Government supporters President Eamon De Valera himself headed the poll in Clare. His vote broke the record, with 18,565, an increase of 6,000 votes over his total in the last election.

Five other Republican Ministers headed the poll in their respective districts—Sean T. O'Kelly, Vice-President; Sean Macentee, Minister of Finance; Sean Lemass, Minister of Industry and Commerce; Frank Aiken, Minister of Defence, and Patrick Ruttledge, Minister of Lands and Fisheries.

On the Opposition side, former President William T. Cosgrave headed the poll in Cork, but his vote dropped by 3,000. There was an additional Opposition candidate running in Cork, however. And available returns indicated the Centrist Party, a combination of farmers, ratepayers and Independent Labor men under leadership of Lord Mayor Alfred Byrne of Dublin and Frank McDermott, farmer leader, were drawing support from the Cosgrave candidates. They hope to gain the balance of power.

In Longford-West Meath the Opposition vote dropped from 15,840 to 7,223, while the Centrist candidates totalled 9,362. Wicklow shows a similar result; the opposition vote dropping 1,300, while the Centrists polled 5,045. In these cases and many others the counting has progressed sufficiently to give an indication of the result, without completing definite elections on the preferential system.

Military Guards

At several centres a military guard was posted at the halls where the counting of ballots is in progress. At one Dublin polling station, the guards wore steel helmets and carried gas masks, prepared for any eventualities. Two centries with fixed bayonets stand watch at another hall.

William Norton, leader of the Labor Party whose support kept the Republican government in power for the last 11 months, was running top of the poll in Kildare, indications were, however, his party would lose a couple of the seven seats they formerly held.

James Geoghegan, Minister of Justice, seemed to be the only minister likely to lose his seat as the counting went on this afternoon. He is well behind in Longford-West Meath.

FLU VICTIM.

LONDON, Ont.—Melvin "Buck" McNeil, chauffeur for the fire department, died to-day from influenza after a week's illness. He had been a member of the department since September ,1930.

STUBBS SCORES APPEAL JUDGES IN MARTIN CASE

Protests Remitting of $30,000 Fine Because it Meant Levy on Broker's Friends.

—OR EXTRA 23 MONTHS

Court Spectators Applaud—Accused Protests Restriction of His Evidence.

WINNIPEG, January 26 (C.P.).—Again swinging into his characteristic fighting stride, Judge Lewis St. George Stubbs to-day resumed his defence against charges of judicial misconduct by lashing back with counter charges.

If restricted in the scope of his evdence the judge charged he was being handicapped, discriminated against, and he made a motion to Mr. Justice Ford suggesting if he were not allowed to continue giving examples of "discrimination of administration" of justice in Manitoba, all references in the charges to this contention be struck from the scope of the inquiry investigating his conduct.

The judge promised to study the grounds for the request and later make known his decision.

The "Martin" Case.

Just after making the submission the accused attacked Judges of the Appeal Court for remitting a $30,000 fine against "Martin" (broker) because it would "either be a levy on Martin's friends or further imprisonment of 23 months for him."

Spectators aroused the ire of the court by laughing and applauding the accused judge, and brought upon themselves a further threat of exclusion.

An attempt by Judge Stubbs to shield the crowd from the wrath of the court was halted by Mr. Justice Ford, who appeared indignant at the accused's suggestion that he had never seen a better behaved audience.

The practice of accepting fees for issuing court orders is an established procedure, he contended, and he read letters from fellow-jurists to support his stand.

KITCHENER LAD TAKES HIS LIFE

Worry Over School Work Suspected By Parents as Cause.

SUFFERED PARALYSIS.

KITCHENER, Ont., Jan. 26.—(C. P.)—Twelve-year-old Harold Kreller committed suicide, by hanging himself in a shed of the Kitchener Abbatoir today. He had not been seen by his parents since yesterday afternoon, and apparently took his own life during the night.

The body was discovered shortly before noon today by Cyril and Joseph Rellinger, Waterloo, who brought a load of calves to the Abbatoir for slaughter. As they drove into the shed, which is seldom used they found the body of the boy hanging from a beam.

The lad's parents told police they thought he had gone to the home of a married brother to spend the night. They said the boy had suffered from infantile paralysis since last summer, and while it had not crippled him it had left him in a nervous condition. He had been worried for some days over his school work, they believed.

An inquest will probably be held.

Lou Marsh Resigns As O.A.C. Referee

TORONTO, Jan. 26.—(C.P.)—Thirty years' service in the amateur and professional rings of Canada as a referee ended to-day when Lou Marsh resigned from the staff of referees of the Ontario Athletic Commission. He refereed several world's championship boxing bouts here.

"I'm getting lazy and want to loaf instead of work and besides there are some smart young referees coming along," Marsh explained to-day.

$125,000 DEFICIT ACCUMULATES SINCE 1925 IN UNITED COUNTIES

New Member of Council Urges Balanced Budget for 1933.

WOULD SET RATE EARLY.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

COBOURG, Jan. 26.—"Irrevelant and out of order," was Deputy-reeve N. A. McColl's reference yesterday to the motion by Deputy-reeve A. E. Burd of Hamilton township proposing that the counties council tentatively set the 1933 tax rate at ten mills, and adjust the estimated expenditure for the year to conform with that suggested levy.

"It's just shovelling fog," said Campbellford's Deputy-reeve. "We all want to keep down the taxes."

Maurice Booth, Deputy-reeve of Cobourg, contended that something drastic had to be done in the face of present conditions.

"We can't fool around any longer," Mr. Booth said. "I think Mr. Burd is perfectly right."

Reeve Stinson, Millbrook—"There is a great deal of merit in the principle of Mr. Burd's motion, but I think the proper way is to get the estimates first in Finance committee, go into the details and reduce the estimates as much as possible. To set the rate first is getting a little ahead of the game. Every one realizes the seriousness of the situation. I would suggest that the resolution be left on the table until the Finance committee goes into the details of the estimates.

Golf Tog Styles Favor Bare Knees

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26 (A.P.)—The International Association of Clothing Designers said to-day it expects to bring about in the United States something which all the Scotch precedent for the ancient and honorable game of golf could not do.

Next year, the association announced at the close of its annual convention, the American golfer will go with knees exposed to eyes and breezes from all directions.

The well-dressed golfer will wear—say the style-makers—shorts similar to those used by the Boy Scouts of America, and rolled-down socks. ... ...

INTOLERANCE IS CHIEF BARRIER TO PROGRESS IN PALESTINE

Even Christian Denominations Draw Color Line and Maintain Jealousies.

GREED IS INFLAMED.

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

JERUSALEM, Dec. 28.—Religion, more than the color of man's skin or the social contrasts inherent in society, is the chasm that divides the population of Palestine and the people of the Near East in general. Religion, no matter what its name, is not the tie that binds in these parts.

Pierre van Paassen

To the contrary: it is the great disrupting factor in human relations. Economic factors may in the end prove the healing balm for the perennially inflamed condition of the social body here. A community of interests in everyday life is to-day actually bringing Jewish workers on the one hand and Moslem and Christian Arab workers on the other hand together, but this is directly against the desires of the priests and Moslem mullahs who denounce this sort of fraternization as the outcome of socialistic agitation, communistic, out-of-the-devil and all that sort of thing.

"Recredivate"

(By F. A. Resch, A.P. Staff Writer.)

URBANA, Ill., Jan. 26 (A.P.)—Into the mass of arguments for healing the world's financial ills by inflation was hurled a new catch-phrase to-day—a proposal to "recredivate" currencies of all nations as a basis of prosperity.

It was made by Dr. Ivan Wright, University of Illinois Economist, who contends "recredivation" would go a long way toward restoring normal exchange and credit relations.

"When causes of the depression are summarized, and proposed remedies analyzed," he said, "the one satisfactory solution that presents itself is this:

"A revival of the exchange of goods and services for goods and services, using a dependable money as a medium of exchange—with prices rising to costs of production, plus a fair profit."

DEPUTATIONS VISIT COUNCIL GRANT IS ASKED

Michael Walsh and Fred Eason Urge Meeting to Discuss School Rate.

INSURE HIGHWAYS.

Deputations From Chidren's Shelter Ask Council for Grant.

Hearing of deputations occupied the attention of Peterborough County Council and comprised the main business at the afternoon sessions yesterday.

Michael Walsh and F. A. Eason constituted one delegation, with the suggestion that a meeting be arranged between the Council and representatives of the various school boards throughout the county, to discuss questions regarding the general school rate, with a view of arriving at some definite conclusions and the sending of a deputation to the forthcoming meeting of the Ontario School Trustees' Association.

Five members of the Children's Aid Society went to make up a second delegation, and strongly urged that the Council give careful and sympathetic consideration to the question of the annual grant, and if possible to increase it above the $1,000 that was contributed by the County last year.

Three insurance representatives were also permitted to address the Council regarding road insurance for public liability and property damage. The trio of agents represented two companies, and the clever arguments which they put up for their respective policies, and the bickering that was freely indulged in by them, created quite an amusing diversion to the proceedings.

The Council decided to renew their insurance with the Globe Indemnity Company at a cost of $480, turning down the offer of another company to issue a policy for $72 less, after due consideration of the advantages to be gained by so doing.

The suggestion that emanated from Reeve Rork Ferguson, that the County cancel insurance, received little or no support.

The School uestion

After first having congratulated Reeve McIntosh upon his elevation to the Warden's chair, Mr. Walsh remarked he had come to the Council to discuss questions regarding the general school rate. He

RT. REV. J. ROPER BISHOP'S CHOICE METROPOLITAN

Bishop of Ottawa is Appointed to Succeed Most Rev. James Sweeny.

ELECTION AT HAMILTON.

New Archbishop Has Been Prominent Figure in Anglican Councils for Years.

HAMILTON, January 26. — Rt. Rev. John Charles Roper, Anglican Bishop of Ottawa, was elected Archbishop and Metropolitan of the Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario at a meeting of the Ontario House of Bishops held here yesterday.

Archbishop Roper is the senior Bishop of the Province, and the meeting, held in the Synod Office, was under his presidency. A warm welcome was extended to Bishop Broughall, who had been consecrated Bishop of Niagara earlier in the day.

OTTAWA IS GRATIFIED.

OTTAWA, January 26. — Election of Rt. Rev. John C. Roper, B.A., M.A., D.C.L., D.D., as Archbishop and Metropolitan of Ontario has brought great satisfaction to Anglican circles in Ottawa.

Archbishop Roper is the second Bishop of Ottawa and came here in 1915. His predecessor, Most Rev. Charles Hamilton, was the first Metropolitan of Ontario, and the honor thus returns to Ottawa after an absence of 17 years.

"No man in Canada has served his church with greater zeal and efficiency," said Archbishop J. M. Snowden last night. "Anglicans throughout Canada will hear of this with real satisfaction."

"His distinction as a scholar and his standing as an administrator made him the one obvious choice," said Rural Dean Robert Turley.

The new Archbishop has been a prominent figure in the councils of the Church of England in Canada for many years, and his elevation to the episcopacy followed a distinguished academic career.

Born in England.

Born at Court Lodge, Frant, Sussex England, in 1858, Dr Roper was educated at Tonbridge School, Kent and at Keble College, Oxford. He was ordained in Chichester Cathedral in 1883, and his first appointment was as curate at Hurtsmonceux, Sussex. A year later, however, he became chapalin and lecturer at Brasenose College, Oxford.

His next move was to Canada, and in 1885 he became Keble Professor of Divinity at Trinity College, Toronto. From 1888 to 1897 he was vicar of St. Thomas Church, Toronto, and he then went to New York to become Professor of Dogmatic Theology at the General Theological Seminary.

His election as Bishop of Columbia in 1911 brought him back to Canada, and he was consecrated by Archbishop Matheson in the cathedral at Victoria in 1912. From Victoria he came to Ottawa in 1915.

BOMB IS FOUND BRITISH OFFICE

Cairo Police Claim it Similar to One Exploded at Presidency in December.

INVESTIGATION STARTS.

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 25 (C.P.).—A bomb was discovered this morning in the British general headquarters here.

Military policemen discovered the bomb on a window ledge near the main entrance. It was immediately removed for examination. The bomb was said to be similar to one which exploded at the British residency early in December.

A bomb exploded in the garden of the official British residency at Cairo on the night of December 10. It is the home of Sir Percy Loraine, British High Commissioner in Egypt and the Sudan. There were no casualties and no serious damage. Nationalists in Egypt, which became independent in 1922 on termination of the British protectorate, have blamed the British Government for the ousting of their Cabinet by King Fuad. The Said (Nationalist) Cabinet was replaced in 1930 by a Cabinet headed by Ismail Pasha.

SPECIAL FAVORS DENIED CAPONE

Atlanta Warden Reports Ex-Bootleg Czar is on $10 Monthly Allowance.

CALLERS WATCHED.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (C.P.).—Al Capone, now spending a number of years at Atlanta Penitentiary for evading income tax payments on his gangland millions, is on a $10 a month allowance these days. Instead of $25 footwear, it's the regulation prison shoes for the former Chicago bootleg czar. Tailor-made suits and silk underwear are out.

All this was told to the House of Representatives to make it clear that Al is not getting special favors. Representative Oliver, Democrat, Alabama, put into the record a letter from Warden A. C. Aderhold of Atlanta, which said:

"Capone, during his incarceration in this institution, has had no special favors not granted all other first-grade prisoners. On account of reports that his friends would probably try to smuggle money and guns to him, we have not been permitting his interviews to be held with other prisoners, but each interview is held in the presence of an officer and where his movements could be watched and his conversations clearly heard."

KING'S HIGHWAY COSTS COUNTIES $21,315 IN 1932

Bill for 20 Per Cent of Total Expenditure is Received.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

United Counties Spent $92,400 on County Roads. Last Year.

(By a Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Jan. 26.—Construction and maintenance of provincial highways in Northumberland and Durham last year cost the united counties as their 20 per cent. of the total expenditure $21,315.27, according to the account received yesterday from the Department of Highways.

For construction the counties' liability is $14,252.73 and $7,072.54 for maintenance. The account is payable within six months from the day it was rendered.

The united counties spent $92,400.15 on their own roads last year and will receive a grant from the government of half that amount.

N. A. MacColl and C. H. Davidson of Campbellford moved that the Department of Highways be notified of the amount expended and be requested to pay the counties the sum due to them.

E. S. Beer of Manvers, ex-deputy-reeve, applied for appointment to the Old Age Pensions Board of the counties.

W. H. Nelson of Warkworth applied for re-appointment as an auditor of administration of justice accounts.

A bill for $579.70 from the Peterborough Board of Education for the cost of educating students from the united counties was referred to the Schools committee.

COMMITTEE DECLINES TO SEND DELEGATE TO ROAD CONVENTION

And Withholds Fee of Membership in Good Roads Association.

GRANTS CONSIDERED.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

COBOURG, Jan. 26.—"We have been talking economy and here's a chance to act it," Reeve C. H. Curtis of Percy Township told the Finance committee of the Counties Council yesterday afternoon, in moving an amendment of no action in regard to sending delegates to the Good Roads convention next month and paying the membership fee of $15.

On a tie vote, Reeve Annis, chairman, swung the decision in favor of the Curtis' amendment which was seconded by L. Campbell, deputy-reeve of Cramahe.

Reeve Gray had moved that the fee be paid and that Warden Rickard be a delegate. In the discussion several members remarked that the Good Roads convention was "only a trip for somebody."

Cut Grant to Blind

On N. A. MacColl's motion, seconded by A. McKenzie, deputy-reeve of Haldimand, the Counties' grant to the Canadian Institute for the Blind, was reduced from $200 last year to $150 for 1933.

The Finance committee recommended no action on a resolution from Carlton County, that the 20 per cent. levy on counties by the Government on construction and maintenance of Provincial highways be discontinued.

Mr. Burd delved into a government report for 1931, showing that the government's expenditures on roads had considerably exceeded the receipts from the gasoline tax and other sources.

"Besides, we've paid a big share because these counties were away the first to adopt the system," Mr. Gray said.

Too Many Police

Brighton Township's complaint of being "over-policed" was supported by the committee, who asked for the removal of County Constable Frank Atkinson at Brighton, at Reeve Gray's motion, seconded by Reeve F. K. Denyes.

J. F. George, deputy-reeve of Brighton township, explained that a provincial constable and traffic officer are stationed in the village in addition to the village constable and night watchman. He said that Mr. Atkinson was not needed, that he had a jewelry store and taxi business, and was altogether too active as a policeman.

A Wentworth County resolution advocating a reduction in rural telephone charges because of lower wages and cost of materials was supported by Reeve Lovekin's motion, seconded by Deputy-reeve A. R. McKenzie of Haldimand.

Want School Trustee

A. L. Bailey of Blackstock school board requested the Council to appoint a fourth trustee, explaining that the duties were too heavy for three men.

Mr. Bailey intimated that Blackstock school might not need the total amount of the grant received from the counties. Action was deferred until later in the session.

The Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, applied for a grant, but the Finance committee advised that no contribution be made.

Grants of $750 which have been made annually to each of the three hospitals at Cobourg, Port Hope and Bowmanville were sought again this year. J. H. Hayden appeared before the committee emphasizing the need of assistance from the Counties. The three hospitals last year reported 1,547 patients, 227 births and 107 deaths. Maintenance last year cost them jointly $54,862, and $47,491 was received from patients. The average daily cost was $3.03.

Reeve Gray proposed that the grant this year be cut in half, $375 to each hospital.

"The three hospitals in Cobourg, Port Hope and Bowmanville are the best social assets in Northumberland and Durham, apart from the churches," Mr. Hayden declare to the committee. "I don't think the ratepayers would be in favor of cheese-paring assistance in helping them."

Mr. Hayden invited the Council as a whole, especially the new members to visit Cobourg Hospital this morning, and for that reason the question of the three grants was deferred to a later meeting of the Finance committee.

Cost of Indigent Patients

A Hastings County resolution, recommending that the cost of medical and hospital care of indigent patients be borne entirely by the government, failed to gain the approval of the United Counties' Council yesterday.

Warden Rickard remarked that under the present arrangement the Counties have to pay for indigents from their own municipalities, and in the smaller localities this item was not excessive. There was more poverty in the cities, especially in large centres like Toronto, and the urban communities must have comparatively heavy bills for indigents.

If the government assumed the entire cost of indigents this expense would have to be borne by the province as a whole, and it was probable that by such a change the townships would in the end have to pay more than they do under the present system.

think we ought to wait until the Finance committee deals with it.

Reeve Quinn (Cramahe) — Mr. Burd wants us to fix the rate in January if we can instead of waiting until June.

On Reeve Stimson's motion, seconded by Reeve J. H. R. Elliott of Port Hope, the Burd resolution was laid on the table until after the Finance committee meets.

Deficit of $125,000.

In speaking to his resolution Mr. Burd said that the united counites had not balanced their budget since 1925, when the council had a surplus of $30,000. The deficit last year had reached $125,000, an increase of $26,000 over the 1931 deficit due to road accounts.

"My resolution is merely to try to get down to basic figures, balance the budget and know where we are," Mr. Burt said. "There is nothing binding in the resolution. The situation demands that we endeavor to reduce the taxes, and at the very least we should not increase our expenditures this year.

Reeve Gray's Complaint.

Reeve F. S. Gray of Manvers stated that when the business assessment was omitted in 1931 from the equalized assessment the result was unfair to the townships. Later the equalized assessment was reduced to 72 per cent. of the amount fixed by arbitration. Thereby, Mr. Gray said, the towns gained an advantage which they did not deserve.

Mr. MacColl replied that the townships shared equally with the towns in any benefits from reducing the equalized assessment.

Reeve Stimson— When we took off the business assessment from the equalized there was a small advantage to the towns, but Mr. Gray should remember that the business tax is a penalty tax. It does not represent actual property value. There are only five counties in Ontario that include business assessment in their equalized assessment. And as for the reduction in the equalized to the 72 per cent. level that was done because the school grants by the government are paid on the basis of equalized.

Assessment in relation to the salaries paid in the schools. The higher the equalized assessment the lower the grant. Manvers township would benefit by having our equalized assessment reduced from the original figures to 72 per cent. of them.

Mr. Gray moved, seconded by Reeve F. B. Lovekin of Clarke, that the business assessment be included in the equalized assessment, but the motion was ruled out of order because this feature of the assessment had been incorporated in a by-law.

CAMPBELLFORD

NEWS ITEMS FOR THE TRENT TOWN DISTRICT

Again weather conditions are against the Campbellford Maroons, the game scheduled to be played against Trenton last evening being called off owing to lack of ice. This makes the second game this week which has not been played in the Intermediate fixture of the O.H.A., and it is doubtful if the Juniors will get a break at Madoc to-night.

Mr. E. F. Mosthoff of Saginaw, Mich., attended the funeral on Wednesday of his father-in-law, the late Mr. Charles H. Nadoo.

Mr. J. Wright of Orland was a visitor to town on Wednesday.

Campbellford High School commencement this year is scheduled for the evenings of February 9 and 10. Further particulars of this popular annual event will be given later; but preparations are under way to ensure the complete success of this event this years as in the past.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davidson have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Sparrow of Blessington.

Mrs. Alfred Chard of Edmonton, Alta., was the recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Linton.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Messenger and family spent Sunday the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Whitehouse, Brighton.

CAMPBELLFORD BAPTIST CHURCH SHOWS INCREASED ATTENDANCES

F. W. Weston Elected Life Deacon After 22 Years as Church Treasurer.

ANNUAL MEETING.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 26.—Increased attendances in nearly every department of the church was revealed at the annual meeting of the Campbellford Baptist church held last Thursday and over which the Rev. L. M. Smith presided. A delightful supper and program preceded the business session.

The business session opened with the roll call of members and thank offerings and minutes, and the report of the church clerk; the treasurer, the missions treasurer, and reports from the different departments of church activities: Sunday school, Young People's Union, Women's Mission Circle and Women's Association. These were given by Miss Myrtle Hall, Albert Gifford, Mrs. D. Mason and Mrs. R. Pettifer, respectively, and revealed an increased attendance in nearly every department.

The Sunday School and Young People's organizations showed a much larger average attendance than the previous year.

All those who served during the past year were returned to office, the election resulting as follows: Clerk, R. C. Weston; assistant clerk, Miss Helen Dunn; treasurer, F. W. Weston; mission treasurer, David Mason; choir leader, R. C. Weston; organist, Miss Jessie Weston; assistant organist, Miss Myrtle Hall.

The committees are as follows: Finance, Dr. B. F. Butler (chairman), G. Lloyd, A. Gifford, F. W. Weston, D. Manson; ushers—Irven Blair (chairman), R. Pettifer, W. Irven, A. Gifford, W. Mason, G. Lloyd, L. Marriott, Dr. Buter; Deacons (re-elected) F. Weston, G. Lloyd; deaconesses (re-elected) Mrs. D. Mason, Mrs. H. Marriott.

A happy feature of the meeting was a motion proposed by Dr. B. F. Butler that F. W. Weston, who has served the church as treasurer for 22 years, be made a life deacon of the church. The enthusiastic unanimity with which this motion was carried shows the esteem in which Mr. Weston is held by his fellow members.

D. Mason acted as chairman for the program, the following numbers being given, besides the devotion: piano solo, Quartette from Rigoletto (Verdi) Rev. L. M. Smith; violin solo, Fred McMullen; musical reading, "Keep On", Miss Myrtle Hall; violin solo, Mrs. Melvin Bertrand; vocal solo "Calvery" Albert Gifford.

At the close of the meeting the pastor, Rev. Mr. Smith, in a brief address, thanked the officers and committees of the church for their hearty co-operation in the work during the year, and solicited the interest and prayers of all the members that our efforts in the work of the Kingdom may be crowned with success.

SEYMOUR WEST THREE DAY W.I. WILL HOLD LECTURE COURSE

Department Instructor Will Lecture on Nursing—Date Not Yet Set.

RESOLUTIONS READ.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 26 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — It was decided by the Seymour West W. I. at their regular meeting held on Thursday last at the home of Mrs. James Clark, to hold a three-day lecture course on "Nursing," given by an instructor from the Department. The date for this event has not yet been set but the place will probably be the home of Mrs. Robert McCullough.

Despite bad weather conditions, the meeting was well attended. Opening in the usual manner with the Ode and prayer, two topics for debate were given: "Resolved, that it is better to keep your own natural complexion than to have an artificial make-up," and "Resolved, that a girl from the town or city makes a better farmer's wife than a girl from the country."

Letters of appreciation were read from the Red Cross Society, Regina, where a bale valued at $30 was sent, and from Echo Bay, Algoma, where two quilts were forwarded. Four quilts were also given to needy Campbellford families, and there is still one on hand which will be sent to the north, where the need is urgent.

A resolution passed at the Belleville Convention, re better motion pictures was read; and also one from the Rylstone Branch of the W.I. regarding the opening of a marketing room in Campbellford. The latter was discussed but left in the hands of a committee to obtain information on before any action was taken.

At the suggestion of the Department about fifty Food Selection Score Cards will be sent for in order that the ladies may keep tab on their diet. Health Score Cards will also be procured.

Birthday remembrances were again discussed, and it was decided that all ladies who wish their names in were to pool their fifteen cents and the gifts will be purchased in bulk, wrapped and numbered and drawn for as the birthdays come round.

Following the business session the program was presented: Community song, "The Little Brown Church"; reading, "A Grandma's Prayer," Mrs. M. Stephens; community song, "Peggy O'Neil"; historical research reading, Mrs. Howard Clark. The latter talk was very interesting; several articles, some a century old and some two hundred years old, being exhibited.

Several quilt block were exhibited and some beautiful quilt tops and explanation as to their construction. The meeting was closed with the National Anthem, following which a delightful lunch was served by the hostess.

Nick of Time

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 26. (AP)—From now on Aubrey A. Black, Ringwood, Okla, is going to read the classified ads.

Because his mother noticed a "personal" in the classified ads of an Oklahoma City daily, Black was $15,000 better off today. An heir to the estate of a great-uncle who died in Springfield, Ill., six years ago, Black was unaware of that fact. Within a few months the money would have reverted to the state.

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, Jan. 26. — Though there was no accumulation of creamery solids on the local market yesterday, trading activity was slow and brokers were inclined to lower prices on fresh-made offerings, while maintaining steady quotations on regraded Ontario and Western. Solids were offered at 20½c to 20¾c for No. 1 and 20¼c for No. 2, with regraded Ontario and Western at 21c. Prices to retailers on creamery prints were easier at 24c for No. 1 and 23c for No. 2.

Cream.

Churning cream was quoted at levels steady with those in effect at the first of the week, or 21c to 22c for special, 20c to 21 for No. 1, and 17c to 18c for No. 2 f.o.b. country points.

New cheese at 10c for large, 10¼c for twins and 10¾c for triplets was steady and trade was fair. Prices to retailers remained firm, on new makes, at 11½c for large, 11¾c for twins, 12c for triplets and 14c for stiltons.

Eggs.

The demand for eggs was not sufficient to clear supplies and prices on country shippers, oe retailers and on the brokers' market were easier. Quotations to shippers were down 1c, at 17c for extras, 15c for firsts and 12c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned. Prices to retailers were 2c per dozen lower, at 24c for extras in cartons, 22c for extras loose, 20c for firsts loose, and 17c for seconds loose. Brokers' quotations were down about 2 cents at 19c. for extras, 17c for firsts and 16c for seconds, graded and in free cases.

ocal wholesalers pointed out that trade in eggs is heaviest at weekends and that supplies arrive in largest quantities on Tuesdays, due to week-end shipping.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Jan. 26.—Despite lower receipts, egg prices dipped downward on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday.

Arrivals totalled 1,280 cases, as compared with 1,829 cases yesterday, but for the week to date amounted to 4,805 cases, against 3,944 cases in the same period of last week. Carlots or less of fresh graded eggs lost a cent a dozen, extras being quoted at 21 cents and firsts or pullets at 19 cents a dozen. Storage eggs were not being quoted, fresh eggs taking care of the entire demand. Prices to retailers held unchanged.

Butter was steady at 20¾ cents for carlots or less of No. 1 grass make. Receipts were 32 boxes.

Cheese remained firm at 9 cents for current receipts of Ontario white, 10 cents for Ontario colored, and 10½ to 11¼ cents a pound for Ontario early make. Receipts were 22 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, January 26. — Prospective broadening of Italian import requirements for wheat gave strength to grain values yesterday, especially in the late dealings.

It was estimated Italy would need to purchase from other countries this season 30,000,000 bushels of wheat. Highly bullish domestic crop reports continued to pour in both from winter wheat territory southwest and from the Pacific northwest.

Wheat closed firm at the days top, ¾c to ⅞c above Tuesday's finish; corn unchanged to a shade higher, oats unchanged, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents down.

Suggestions that Italy would soon re-enter the world market as a wheat buyer on a big scale became the focus of interest before trading was ended.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

May closed at 47c, July at 47⅞c, and October at 48⅞c.

Inter-market spreading operations were featureless and a few selling orders from houses with Chicago connections accounted for all the light offerings which came out from time to time. Canadian export was estimated at 300,000 bushels.

Trading at Liverpool was dull because of expected heavy shipments from the Southern Hemisphere, but the close was unchanged to fractionaly higher. Buenos Aires was fractionally lower.

Cash wheat and coarse grain trading was lifeless and prices held firm in sympathy with wheat.

TWO TRUSTEES RESIGN OFFICE

DISLIKE TROUBLE.

HAVELOCK, Jan. 26 (Examiner Correspondence).—Formal written resignations of Chairman Fred J. Squire and Trustee Robert Crawford were received by Edward Fennell, Secretary-Treasurer of the Board of Education on Wednesday and will be brought before the board for consideration at the next regular meeting, to be held on February 16.

The action of the two board members was the result of friction at a recent special meeting, when salary reductions came up for discussions and it had been discovered that only two of the three applications for the position of caretaker had been read.

Mr. Squire told The Examiner he was through with the school board since they couldn't run the affairs of the school without trouble. When the board has accepted the resignations the procedure is to notify the council that two vacancies exist for school trustees and they in turn pass the necessary by-law to hold a nomination and election if it is found necessary.

Mr. Can't

If brushes and soap and water could keep a man fit, Mr Can't would be the healthiest man alive—so much does he believe in cleanliness. But the truth is, Mr Can't has never known what it is to be really well. If he hasn't got one of his colds, then he's off his food. If he isn't sleeping badly at nights, you may depend upon it he's got some other trouble. Poor Mr Can't! What would he think, if you told him that nine out of ten of his ailments came from inner uncleanliness!

Mr. Can

This—we need hardly say—is Mr Can! Look at him. A perfect picture of fitness. And why? Because, unlike Mr Can't, Mr Can is clean where it's most important to be clean—inside. Every morning, as regularly as he uses toothbrush and towel—Mr Can takes his Eno's 'Fruit Salt.' Waste matter, which would otherwise remain to poison his blood and jaundice his whole system—is gone, quickly and completely. Mr Can is fit—because he's clean inside. What about you?

Eno's 'Fruit Salt' has no substitute. Its composition and purity never vary. It contains nothing harmful. You can trust Eno implicitly—as millions have done for sixty years. For Eno acts very much like fresh, ripe fruit. It simply cleanses your system of the clogging poisons which make you feel so much like Mr Can't. Wouldn't this inner cleanliness make a difference to you? Of course it would! Take Eno first thing each morning and before retiging at night.

RELIEF WORK.

A Canadian manufacturing firm, in an argument in behalf of the construction of public works to provide employment instead of the present direct relief system, says, "We believe if the previous system of co-operative help by the Dominion and Provincial Governments was properly controlled and all contracts awarded to the lowest tenderer on open bids, with the right of the contractor to hire and fire his own employees without municipal interference, that a lot more work would be done for much less money."

That may possibly be so, but the question naturally arises, would work under such conditions take care of the unemployment situation?

Most municipalities have found it necessary to interfere to some extent with public works contracts, inasmuch as there was a tendency on the part of many contractors to reject local labor in favor of other workers whenever there was an opportunity to do so.

In fact, that condition helped to lessen the beneficial results of the program of relief public works carried on in the early months of the depression, and it is not difficult to see that if municipal authorities had not made a stand on behalf of their own unemployed the advantages would have been lessened even more.

A CHANCE TO HELP.

Distribution of clothing and other articles donated to the Relief Fund has been carried on very smoothly this week, and many articles contributed recently have been used to good advantage.

It should be understood that there is practically no limit to the amount of clothing, boots, etc., that can be utilized, and all citizens who have surplus articles that can be put to use are asked to send them in or to notify headquarters so that the donations can be called for.

While many splendid donations of clothing have been received, there is still a great need, and the committee will be grateful for further gifts, inasmuch as a steady supply will be necessary to take care of the heavy demands that are being made for assistance.

Donations of food, vegetables, furniture and other articles will also help materially to meet the situation, and to bring a measure of comfort to families who are suffering from the unusual conditions of the current depression.

It is an excellent opportunity to take stock of what you have and to make a contribution that can be used to good purpose by the Relief Committee in the present emergency.

Act promptly; your donation might as well be put in use at once.

SKATING DANGERS.

The principal of the Bradford Public School, who was drowned the other night in the Holland River, was the latest in a long list of victims who have lost their lives in a similar manner during this unusual winter.

The peculiar conditions with a total absence of snow and enough frost at night to keep rivers, ponds and lakes covered with a sheet of smooth ice, have tempted skaters in all parts of the province to take chances, and the result has been an abnormally large number of drowning accidents when occasioned by skaters breaking through the surface.

Usually there is not a great deal of skating on Ontario rivers and lakes, once a heavy snowfall has covered the ice, but this winter has brought about an unusual combination of conditions, and the open-air skating season has been greatly prolonged, with tragic results in a good many cases.

It would be commendable wisdom on the part of skaters generally to make sure that the place they have selected for their favorite pastime is absolutely safe, that there is no thin or rotten ice or air-holes to prove death-traps to the unwary.

There have been so many skating fatalities in the last few weeks that it is evident that there is a very real danger in the existing conditions, and that caution on the part of those who may be tempted by the smoothness of the glare ice on rivers and lakes is justified under the circumstances.

WHO WOULD PAY?

With the air full of talk about railway amalgamation as a result of Mr. Beatty's recent speech on the subject, it is well not to lose sight of the crux of the whole matter.

Much is being heard of the economies that would result from merging the two systems, and the necessity of relief for the taxpayers is being stressed on every hand, but so far nobody has explained just how amalgamation would bring about the aforesaid relief.

In this connection the Ottawa Journal calls attention to the real question, which is simply this, who would pay under amalgamation the principal sum and the interest on the bonded indebtedness of the Canadian National Railways.

The Dominion treasury, in other words the Canadian taxpayers would still be responsible; the people who own the bonds would still want their interest, and unless it can be shown that under amalgamation the Canadian National would be able to earn net operating surpluses sufficient to meet the interest on these bonds, it is difficult to see how the situation would be adequately taken care of.

As the Journal remarks, neither Mr. Beatty nor any other champion of amalgamation has as yet shown that such results would follow bringing the two lines under one management.

The situation is admittedly too serious to take any snap judgment on the question; the railway problem is perhaps the most critical of all those now confronting the Canadian people.

To again quote the journal:

"The Dominion treasury has expended on or furnished to its publicly-owned railway properties cash amounting to $1,201,000,000. The treasury has charged, but has never received, simple interest on these loans. As there is no reason for believing that the capital sum will ever be repaid, amalgamation or no amalgamation, we may as well forget about it. Just wipe it out.

"The Dominion treasury is liable for payment of the guaranteed interest upon $970,562,290 of bonds, as well as the principal sum at maturity. In addition, by provision for deficits and refunding, it accepts liability for the interest upon and principal sum of $315,894,917 of bonds in the hands of the public, which, though not specifically guaranteed, are, in effect, a liability of the Government, the bonds being secured by mortgage upon lines of the National System.

"Now to meet the interest charges on this bonded indebtedness, the Canadian National System must produce net operating income each year of about $55,000,000 or $60,000,000. If it fails to do this, then payment must be made by the treasury. If the railway can meet only a part of the charges, the Government must take care of the balance. If the railway can't meet any part of them, the Government must pay the whole."

FEW REGARD CHAIN LETTERS.

Chain letters worry some folk—but there must be many who throw them where they belong—into the wastepaper basket or the blazing stove or furnace. The agitation is calculated by some one who dares not sign his or her name, with little sense of the way things work in this wonderful or commonplace world, whichever way one wishes to view it.

The average chain letter calls on five people to spread the tidings. If many of these did not at once fall into the fire, soon the chain would encompass the earth and it would not be long before the sender of a quintette of these was getting far more than he sent out. If there were no duplication by the time the fourteenth consignment of letters was sent out, the population of the earth would be covered. Another turn of the crank would send out billions more, many times the population of the word. What this would mean in writing paper and envelopes, in ink, in mucilage, in stamps, in work for clerks is maddening to think of. Of course, there would be duplication and duplication, for things in a few days would reach the stage when no one would think of any one else. The deluge of letters could not be handled.

This might be thought a very fruitful source of revival of the world's trade, but that chain letter does not want that. The one which reached Belleville yesterday was no gentle letter—it threatened any one who broke a link with loss of everything.

No one should, accordingly, pay any attention to such interference with one's own business whether or not one wants to write.

No one expects such a deluge.—Belleville Intelligencer.

STURGEON FALLS' SORDID TALE.

(From the Hamilton Spectator)

It is a sordid tale that is being spun at Sturgeon Falls, at the Government inquiry into the administration of relief in that community. The Spectator prefers to believe that the situation in the northern town is exceptional—that in the great majority of places elected representatives of the people and department heads are making a sincere effort to alleviate distress and at the same time to protect the interests of the tax-paying public. Some of the things revealed in that particular probe are of a kind to make decent people gag. That men who were honored with public office should have been so false to their trust as to capitalize on the sufferings of their fellows seems incredible, but the record is there to be read. Men who were not in need, it has been testified received relief vouchers. It was not stipulated what should be purchased and merchants, in some instances, accepted these vouchers as payments on old accounts. One witness has declared that the mayor and all members of the Council received free wood from the relief pile. Another interesting bit of testimony was that the town billed the Government for 50 per cent. more than it paid out in relief, thus increasing the tax burden on the people of the province. Whether or not criminal action will be instituted, following the inquiry, is not indicated as yet, but the Government will likely see to it that there can be no repetition of this reprehensible administrative conduct in Sturgeon Falls or any other community in the province. It generally was recognised quite some while back, we think, that the alleviation of unemployment distress was a problem which, unless the utmost caution was exercised, might easily get beyond solution. The task of administrators is to see that those deserving families on the relief lists get sufficient to maintain health and morale, but not more than is necessary. Relief costs are met with the ordinary garden-variety of currency and not with elastic money, as some seem to think, and it follows that, if those who are not deserving are taken care of, the portions on the plates of the needy will have to be reduced. Those who are insisting that insufficient relief is being given now and agitating for cash payments and such must know they are but hastening the day when the bottom of the well will be reached and the lowered bucket will make the return trip dry as a bone.

The municipal motto of Sturgeon Falls is, "Sans Faute"—in English, "Without Fault." With the present probe occupying the headlines, the description does not seem to be entirely accurate.

Mr. Bennett has made two speeches in Ontario this week without discussing the Russian barter deal. Can it be that the Prime Minister does not read the Toronto Star?

The keynote of every county council session throughout the province is "economy"—and the conditions certainly justify the general demand for retrenchment.

PICK MY POCKET, PICK MY HEART

There he sat, that tall, strange man who had been in prison. Right over there in that chair he sat. He'd been out of prison only a few days, but you wouldn't have known it, to look at him.

Except for one thing. At first he had the trick of keeping perfectly still, looking straight ahead as he talked. As a man might, after years in prison....And when he talked, he used words that are common in prison. Short, hard words. Tough words. Most expressive. He'd call a man with a gun a "torpedo." He'd refer to his expenses as his "nut." Once he spoke of someone being "on the whiz," and I asked him what he meant.

He told me.

It means you're a pickpocket. He was no pickpocket, this man; but in prison you learn everything about everything, so he knew just how pockets are picked. He showed me how. He explained how pickpockets worked in "mobs"....

You're in a street car, hanging to a strap. There's a man straight in front of you. He's reading a magazine. There's another man alongside of you. The car lurches. You lurch. Everybody lurches. The man pushes you in the face with his magazine and begs your pardon. Your attention is distracted. The other man takes your wallet out of your left rear pocket—that's where you usually keep it—and slips it to a third man, who gets off the car. If your money is in your vest and the vest is tight, that's no great difficulty. The man in front of you unbottons your vest first....

The man explained it all to me, just as a sleight-of-hand performer would show a simple card trick. Or as a mechanic would explain the working of an automobile's differential. In a matter of fact way, giving me to understand, without saying so, that a pickpocket is as proud of his skill as any other man is of any ability that he may possess....It was interesting.

I found it interesting. I think anybody would. It takes cool daring, self-confidence and some contempt, too, for the victim, to go into a man's pocket while he is alive and reasonably alert and take his money from him....Wouldn't say I admire that ability, but I can see its difficulties.

And surely one CAN admire that kind of pickpocket more than one can admire those other pickpockets—great thieves, more villainous by far—who rob man of his pride, his self-confidence, his self-respect, his happiness, his peace of mind in such a multitude of cantankerous conniving and debasing ways. I can, and so can you or any other man.

I'd give my hand far more willingly to the pickpockets of the streets and crowds than to any of these others. And so, I'm thinking, would you....

That first one picks only my pocket, steals only my purse—which I've heard on good authority is but trash. That other picks my heart and soul.

RT. HON. SIR GEORGE H. PERLEY, P.C.

Minister without Portfolio, Ottawa, Statesman, Philanthropist

This is the signature of a man who has trained his mind to serve his purpose until that instrument is of rapier quality. Allied with such mentality is a personality of unusual charm and suavity. He is eminently suited for a diplomatic career; in his own right. But by temperament he is reserved; by breeding, the aristocrat. He is not naturally self-seeking, not particularly career-bent. At the same time he has a subtle understanding of the human mind which makes him a most tactful adviser and manager. He prefers therefore to function indirectly, in the manner of the author who writes the play and works with the actors on its production, directing and advising. But he does so only on request or at need. He would not go out of his way to sell his services. Together with clairvoyance he possesses the capacity for mephistophelian amusement concerning things generally. At the same time he is humanitarian minded and consequently tolerant. He is observant of the conventions but manages to achieve a degree of wilful expression satisfactory to himself even within convention's bounds. He has delicacy, tact, finesse. He is highly cultured, of discriminating judgment and exquisite taste.

CHICKEN POX AMONG POULTRY

Disease is Very Contagious and Has Been Noticed in Durham.

WARNING TO POULTRYMEN.

During the past few weeks E. A. Summers, agricultural representative has discovered several cases of Avian Diphtheria (Chickenpox) in flocks in Durham County.

This is a very contagious disease, which will go through the whole flock in a few days. Quite often there is a heavy mortality, but in every case high production flocks will practically cease laying in a few days after the first cases are noticed. The disease is very contagious and is readily carried from one pen to another on the feet, clothing, or poultry shipping crates.

Symptoms.— These commence as with colds and roup. There is dullness, fever, sneezing, and coughing. The eyes are watery. Occasionally they swell and become stuck together, as in roup. The sacs under the eyes may swell. An offensive smell is seldom present. The birds become very indifferent to their surroundings. Diarrhoea is frequently present. The birds show difficulty in breathing, and bubbling noises are heard. There may or may not be a nasal discharge. Yellow, cheesy masses may be found in the mouth and in the larynx, but are not always seen in acute cases.

Precaution. — Allow no outsiders, such as other poultrymen or buyers, in your hen house, and do not inspect other flocks. New birds brought in should be isolated for three or four weeks before placing them with the rest of your birds.

Should the infection commence in your flock isolate infected birds immediately and give the flock Epsom salts at the rate of one pound to one hundred birds. Potassium permanganate at the rate of one-third teaspoonful per gallon of drinking water is recommended. Treat diseased birds by placing a few drops of 10 per cent. Argyrol solution (obtainable at drug stores) in the nostrils, eyes, and cleft palate.

MURDER IN EDEN

By Charles Winfield Smith.

CHAPTER 26

Jere Kane was out of bed long before the city was stirred into restless activity. He hopped under a cold shower and thirty minutes later was on his way down to breakfast. At the cigar stand he paused to purchase the morning papers.

After ordering a substantial meal he spread out the Blade before him. The black headlines, in gigantic type, fairly screamed at him the information that Lillian Hull had been arrested and charged with the murder of Richard Bailey and assault with intent to kill Nanette LeRoi.

Silently he read the article:

Lillian Hull, twenty years old, a motion picture actress, was arrested last night by Police Chief John Lee and members of the police homicide squad and charged with the murder of Richard Bailey, noted motion picture director.

Miss Hull was taken into custody at the home of the slain director shortly after midnight. She could give no explanation of her nocturnal visit to the scene of the murder.

At first the young actress vehemently denied slaying Bailey. However, under questioning she broke down and confessed to the murder. In her statement to the police, after being taken to headquarters, she said:

"I returned to Bailey's home after Nanette LeRoi left there Saturday night. I went to him to protest against his attentions to the foreign actress. He became furious, and told me I had no right to interfere in his personal affairs.

"Richard Bailey and I were engaged to be married before he discovered Miss LeRoi, but he himself broke the engagement. I tried to plead with him and he struck me. I slapped him and he knocked me down. We struggled.

"I knew where he kept his revolver in his desk. I obtained the revolver and shot him in the right temple when he tried to take the pistol away from me. I fled from the house and threw the gun away.

"I killed him because he threw me over for another woman."

The newspaper article continued to say that Chief Lee had charged Lillian Hull with the attack on Nanette LeRoi, although she denied she had perpetrated that attack.

When he had finished reading the account Kane disgustedly tossed the paper to one side. He was boiling with rage. Lee had told him that he was going to arrest Lillian for that crime and he kept his word.

Hastily, Kane outlined a plan of action. He knew he would have to work fast. He had no doubt—and in this he was right—that Lee had subjected the girl actress to a severe third degree and that she had confessed to prevent further torture.

He was actuated by another motive, too. The newspaper article had said that Lee attributed Chivington's death to suicide, either because of grief over his master's murder or because of love for the still unidentified girl who was found with him.

Kane was just completing his breakfast and preparing to leave when Ben MacQuarrie dropped down at his table. He greeted the inspector surlily.

"What's the matter, son?" the New Orleans officer asked good naturedly. "Sleep on the wrong side last night?"

Kane told him of his quarrel with the chief over the manner in which the case was handled, and of his summary dismissal from conduct of the investigation.

"The fool," MacQuarrie growled. "When a man does that, when a fellow acts like that, he's going to blunder sure as hell, just to keep the newspapers from barking at him."

"He's already done it," the other man growled. "He's arrested Lillian Hull—you remember her?—and forced a confession out of her."

"She's that little blonde who went out to LeRoi's with us, isn't she?"

Kane said she was.

"Well," MacQuarrie went on slowly, "she acted kind of guilty, or so it seemed to me—"

"Of course she did," Kane exclaimed. "All three of them did. That's why I think they are innocent. The murderer is going to keep such tight control on her emotions that she won't give herself away."

"Maybe," the inspector agreed, "but that isn't always the case."

Briefly, Kane related all he knew of the case, even to the attack on his own life and his discovery of Chivington and the girl in the gas-filled garage. MacQuarrie listened intently and when he had finished whistled in amazement.

"You see," Kane added, "we were dealing with a cunning criminal. These crimes are not crimes of passion. They were planned and carried out in cold blood."

"Have you told John Lee all this?" Ben MacQuarrie demanded.

Kane shook his head.

"Then I am. I'm going to show what a fool he's been——"

"You're going to do nothing of the kind," Kane asserted firmly. "I'm going to show him."

The inspector permitted a grin to spread slowly over his lips. "Go to it, son," he said. "It will teach him a lesson he needs."

With that Kane left him. His first move was to go to the motion picture studio on Sunset Boulevard where Bailey had been under contract. He looked over a list of the officials and discovered that "Bernie," who had been mentioned in the diary, was Bernard Glassman, general manager.

At the information desk he requested an audience with Glassman. The girl asked him several questions about himself and his business. It wasn't until he said that he wanted to talk to the studio official concerning the murder of Richard Bailey that she sprang into action. But after frantically telephoning to several different offices she turned to him and:

"I'm sorry, Mr. Glassman left for Europe on a business trip Friday."

Disconsolate, he turned away, but another thought flashed through his mind. He faced the girl again:

"When does he sail from New York?" he demanded.

Once more she got on the telephone and finally told him:

"Mr. Glassman sailed with a party of friends on his yacht from San Pedro. The yacht is not equipped with wireless."

Kane asked her if there was anyone else at the studio whom he could see in lieu of the general manager. She sent him in to Glassman's secretary.

The secretary, by name of Thielman, was a scrawny little individual who hid protectingly behind large nose glasses. He greeted Kane and offered him a chair. After a few brief preliminaries Kane explained:

"Richard Bailey was interested in obtaining a role in the extravaganza he planned for some girl known only as 'Buddy.' Do you know who that girl is?"

Thielman scratched his head and pondered deeply. Finally:

"I'm sorry, I do not. But I will see if I can find out."

He indicated that the interview was over, but Kane did not budge.

"I want to know now," Kane declared. "An innocent girl has been arrested and charged with Bailey's murder."

Thielman called several officials and sub-officials but they knew nothing of the girl. Bailey, they told Thielman, always worked directly with Glassman and they knew nothing of his plans until the orders came from the general manager. And so Thielman informed Kane.

Feeling beaten, but not disheartened, Kane left the studio and went to the Hollywood emergency hospital. There he learned that the girl who had been found with Chivington had been removed to the General Hospital, clear over on the east side of Los Angeles.

Without further ado, he hailed a taxi and went to ths hospital. There he made known the purpose of his visit to the girl at the information desk and presently he was ushered into the office of the superintendent.

"The girl died not fifteen minutes ago," the hospital official said quietly.

Kane felt his heart sink within him. As one last hope he asked:

"Did she regain consciousness before she died?"

"For just a moment."

Kane's hopes soared. "Did she make any statement?" he demanded excitably.

"I was with her at the time of her death," the superintendent said with laborious preciseness. "She made no statement, except——" He hesitated.

Kane was on the verge of crying to him to go on when:

"I could hardly hear her and I may be mistaken about what she said. It sounded like she said 'Buddy tricked me.' However, I suppose she really said 'Daddy tricked me.' No doubt she referred to the old man who was found with her in the garage."

TRACHOMA SPREADS

BRANTFORD.—Two more cases of trachoma, serious disease of the eye, were reported to the Health Department to-day by a local physician. Both cases are in the same household. This makes a total of four cases of this malady discovered in Brantford in the last few days.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

WHEN THE GRITS LOST ONTARIO

On this date, in 1905, the politicians of Canada, or Ontario particularly, were wondering about a political earthquake which had taken place the previous day. The Liberals had been in office in the province from 1872. So long as Oliver Mowat remained at the head of affairs the Conservatives could make no headway in provincial affairs, despite the fact that throughout the whole period from 1878 Ontario had sent substantial majorities of Tories to Ottawa. But when Sir Oliver went to Ottawa as Minister of Justice in the Laurier cabinet something happened and "Old Man Ontario" began to be not so Grittish as formerly. When A. S. Hardy succeeded Mowat he was in poor health; he just managed to win one election in 1898, but the Conservatives, who had only numbered 27 in 1894, won 43 seats in 1898, giving the Liberals a majority of only 5. In 1902 the Conservatives further improved their position (G. W. Ross having replaced Mr. Hardy as premier), the standing of parties being: Liberals 51, Conservatives 46. Then came the Gamey exposures of 1902-3 with it was seen that the Grits were doomed and that it was only a question of time before J. P. Whitney would lead the party out of the political wilderness.

The Conservative leader was absolutely sure of victory weeks before the polling; the night before he sat in a Toronto newspaper office and figured out the result exactly as it came; one or two ridings did not go as he expected, but his total was right; and he went into office with 85 followers as against only 39 Liberals. It was a political cataclysm indeed. From that day to this the Liberals have never returned to power in Ontario; the Tories were thrown out in 1919, but the Farmers took office and not the Liberals. Then came the reaction, the Conservatives went back in 1923 under Howard Ferguson, whose popularity was such as to keep the Liberals under 30. The death of Sir James P. Whitney in 1914 undoubtedly had its effect but Ferguson more than recovered the lost ground and left his successor with a big majority.

MOTHERS GUARD YOUNG CHILDREN

STRANGLED WITH WIRE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26 (A.P.) — Mothers in Brooklyn's Stuyvesant Heights kept frightened eyes on their babies to-day for fear a killer with a twisted brain might slay them as he did six-year-old Helen Sterler.

Helen's body was found in a dark coal bin last night. The clothesline that strangled her was still around her neck. A half-eastern piece of penny candy lay on the floor. Police said a degenerate coaxed her into the tenement house cellar, mistreated and killed her, and then crept away unnoticed.

When little Helen failed to return home, her father, Louis, an unemployed house painter, told police, and they started searching cellars. When they called Sterler into the dark place where the body lay, to identify it, he stood silent for several moments, then screamed:

"My baby—she was just a baby. You police—if you don't find the man, I will."

A muttering crowd gathered outside. At home the child's mother fainted when she heard the news.

WINNIPEG EXCHANGE.

WINNIPEG, January 26 (C.P.).—Despite developments which presaged a better demand, wheat moved within a narrow range to-day at virtually unchanged prices. Overnight reports indicate a fair amount of export trade was worked from both Atlantic and Pacific positions with sales estimated at more than 700,000 bushels.

Values at the mid-session period were unchanged with May at 47, July at 47¾, and October at 48¾.

At the end of the first half-hour operations turned draggy. The feeling, however, toward the market was quite friendly.

Liverpool wheat held fractional gains from the start, and quotations near the close were only ¼d higher, while Buenos Aires wheat at noon was ¼c lower.

Black Sea wheat shipments for the past week totalled only 128,000 bushels, all of which was of Russian origin.

Argentine wheat shipments for the week are estimated at slightly more than 3,750,000 bushels.

SIX MEMBERS ARE SUSPENDED BY NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

Action Calls for Suspension Periods Ranging From Six Months to Three Years.

OF PROMINENT FIRMS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(A.P.) — The New York Stock Exchange, in one of its most sweeping disciplinary actions in years, to-day suspended six of its members for periods ranging from one month to three years.

Several of those suspendyed were members of the firms of S. Clifford & Co. or Ludwig Robertson & Co., both of which withdrew as clearing members of the Stock Clearing Corporation to-day.

The suspensions were of traders primarily interested in bonds, and were for paying gratuities without the approval of the exchange to employes of the exchange or other financial institutions.

F. V. Goerz, a private trader, was suspended for one month. H. H. Wurzler, J. R. Smeltzer, and William B. Sagar, all of Smeltzer Clifford & Co., were suspended for six months each.

The most severe penalty was that meted out to Alexander J. Robertson of Ludwig Robertson & Co., who was suspended for three years. He has been a member of the exchange since April 4, 1929. Walter F. Scholzer of the same firm was suspended for six months. Neither of the two firms involved had out of town offices.

INGERSOLL MAGISTRATE AIDS STRANDED YOUTHS

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Jan. 26 (C.P.)—Three Detroit youths, who started out a few days ago to motor to Brantford have reached their destination although they set out without either enough gasoline or money. Out of both by the time they reached Ingersoll, they tried to purloin enough gasoline to finish the journey, but the attempt landed them in jail. Magistrate Paterson, believing their story, dismissed the theft charge againts them and saw that credit was extended to enabled them to purchase enough gas to get to Brantford, where one of the boys has an uncle.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

STANDARD EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, Jan. 26 (C.P.).—The Standard Mining Market moved along at a much more leisurely pace to-day, while some of the fraternity sensing a sell-off, took profits. The rest-up was a natural sequence to the activity of recent sessions.

Teck Hughes fell back from 4.34 to 4.26, but recovered a little before the close. Lake Shore was a heavy trader, but lost about 25, as did also McIntyre and Dome.

Copper shares manifested a much improved tone, with higher prices ruling for Falconbridge and Sherritt and Nickel and Noranda holding steady.

TORONTO EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, January 26 (C.P.).—Outside of a few unimportant changes the Toronto stock market finished to-day about where it started. Smelters came in for a buying flurry around mid-day, and the traded list broadened but the total volume showed little increase.

The interlisted group showed no change in Nickel and C.P.R. and a gain of ¼ in Brazilian and Ford. Smelters gained a point to 65. Bell Telephone closed with another point nicked off.

About a dozen issues in the food group appeared in the trading with irregular movemenas. Advances were registered for International Milling Preferred and B.C. Packers, while a minor recession came out for the Consolidated Bakeries.

Bank shares held fairly firm, a gain of a point for Montreal offsetting a loss for Royal.

PLANES WARNED OF U.S. DIRIGIBLE

WAITING ON FOG.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 26 (A.P.) — The Department of Commerce Wireless Station in Cleveland today broadcast a notice to transport planes to watch for the United States Navy dirigible Akron over Lake Erie. This is a routine procedure in foggy weather as a means of avoiding possibility of collision in congested air lanes.

R. A. Dittrick, chief operator at the Cleveland airport, said the Akron had communicated with the Department of Commerce station informing the station that she is now heading back to her home hangar at Lakehurst, N.J., and would pass over Bellefonte, Pa., shortly.

The communication from the Akron said the airship had been drifting over Lake Erie to stay out of the way of airplanes during a fog.

The ship gave her altitude as 3,000 feet, with visibility improving.

SCHOOL BOARDS OF COUNTY TO MEET COUNCIL

meeting of the Trustees and Ratepayers' sAsociation to be held at Toronto ccmmencing on April 18, and on motion of Reeve Ernest Leeson, seconded by Reeve Rork Ferguson, the delegates selected were: Reeve Hugh Given, chairman Schools Committee and Reeve Christie Steenburgh.

In arriving at the decisions the Council is endorsing the report of the special committee of Middlesex County Council which was adopted by that body at the December sessions, as follows:

"That Sub Section A of Section 109, Chapter 323 of the Public Schools Act, be amended by striking out the figures $600 in the 5th line thereof and substituting therefor the figures $400, and in the 7th line thereof by substituting therefor the figures $300; and that a proportionate reduction be made in remaining sub-sections, viz: b, c, d e and f, which are pertinent to this matter."

"We further recommend that a copy of these proposed amendments be sent to the various Counties in the Province requesting their endorsation, same to be forwarded by each County to the Department of Education."

Reeve Ferguson briefly outlined the situation to The Examiner. The general school rate, he said, was based on the equalized assessment of each township. In Asphodel for instance the general school rate was $600 per annum, which amount was appropriated under the Act, solely for teachers' salaries, and for no other purpose.

Situation at Present

As the situation is at present, he explained, it meant that under the requirements of the Act more money was being levied upon the taxpayer for teachers' salaries than was justified under existing circumstances. He knew of an instance in his own township where a teacher was quite willing to accept a position at an annual salary of $750, although she was engaged at a salary of $850. To have reduced the salary would not have been any advantage to the township or school section, as it would only have meant a proportionate reduction in government grants. That was the situation they sought to be remedied.

In dealing with a communication from the Teachers' Association regarding the second year Normal School Course which it is claimed is inflicting hardships on certain of the teachers, the committee referred the matter to the proposed meeting of the School Trustees and Ratepayers.

The re-appointment of each of the three retiring trustees on the Lakefield, Norwood and Peterborough Boards of Education, was recommended by the committee.

On motion of Reeve C. S. Tanner, seconded by Deputy Reeve George Mullen, the Council was recommended to grant the sum of $10 for the County pupil obtaining the highest marks at the entrance examinations for 1933.

An amendment moved by Reeve F. D. Leahy, and seconded by Reeve W. A. Anderson that the scholarship be reduced this year to $5, was defeated. Those voting for the amendment included the mover and seconder and Reeves Steenburgh and Hickson and Deputies Patton and Davidson.

Old Age Pensions

Through an inadvertency in the report contained in yesterday's issue of The Examiner, the work of the Old Age Pension Board for the past year was not presented in its proper light. The work of the Board, who are now administering 325 Old Age Pensions within the county, was considered to be eminently satisfactory and efficient. Total cost of administration amounted to $672.67.

The amount requested by the government for pensions during last year was $5,027.06, this being 10 per cent of the total amount of pensions granted in the county.

The total cost of Old Age Pensions during the year 1931 was $12,839.48, this being 20 per cent requested by the Government on the amount of pensions being paid, as compared with a total cost of $5,699.73 in the year under review. In other words the money paid out for pensions last year was $7,139.75 less than in they ear 1931.

House of Refuge Board

The House of Refuge Board this year was appointed as follows: Warden John McIntosh and Deputy Reeves George Patton and George Mullen, with Deputy Reeve Patton in the chair.

A Thousand Yous

WHEN you pick up your newspaper and glance over the advertising you quite unconsciously multiply yourself a thousand times.

In half or three-quarters of an hour you can, figuratively speaking, visit every progressive store in town. You virtually poke your head into every department of every department store. You run into the florist's, the confectioner's, the oculist's, the leading groceries, banks, theatres, all the various places that supply the things that make this the twentieth century and life worth the living. Here is a greater choice in clothing, food, furniture, books, pictures, musical instruments, travel, entertainment, opportunities for investment, the service of public utility corporations than any monarch of old could command.

It would easily take a thousand yous, travelling hard all day, to find out for yourself what the advertisements tell you in a few minutes morning or evening.

Advertisements deserve your attention. They deserve your confidence. Without advertising, the prices you would have to pay for many of the necessities you now buy for small change would make a dollar look like a snowball on the kitchen range.

divides men in the East, Arabs and Jews are of the same stock, both are Semitic, respectively the descendants of Ishmael and of Israel (Jacob). Islam moreover doesn't know the color line. All Believers are equal before Allah, no matter whether they are blackamoors or yellow men or Aryans. But the muftis of Mohammedanism nevertheless see to it that the enmity against the Jews never wanes. And this they do not for religious reasons. Religion merely serves as the pretext. The real reason is that the muftis, or religious leaders in Islam, belong to the Arabic landlord families, thirteen of whom own two-thirds of all the land in Palestine.

Raising Standards

The Jewish-Zionist influx with its accompanying process of westernization is slowly raising the standard of life among the utterly destitute Arab peasantry or fellaheen. The poor Arabic tenants also begin to realize now that they have been ruthlessly exploited by their own landlords in the past and still are. They want to break the bond which virtually enslaves them. They would revolt were it not that the effendis, or landlords, and their relatives, the muftis, had succeeded so far in raising the issue of religious differences to keep the Arab masses both from revolting and from co-operating wholeheartedly and without fear with the Jewish settlers.

In 1929 on the occasion of the Jewish massacres at Hebron and Safed and Jerusalem, when I lived in Palestine, the Arab religious leaders did not hesitate to spread the rumor that Jews were about to bomb the Mosque of Omar in Jerusalem preparatory to the rebuilding the Temple of Solomon. Only by means of such false information did they succeed in lashing the fanatic Arabic mass into fury against the Jews. British officers had to bring Arabs from Transjordan and Irak who were already on the way to Jerusalem cities to slaughter the Jews, to the Holy City in order to convince them that the Mosque was still standing and quite undamaged. Faked photographs of destroyed mosques and dead Arabs were circulating all over the Near East. Sometimes, as in Egypt, destroyed Jewish synagogues were shown in the Arabic newspapers with accompanying articles explaining that the pictures represented destroyed Arabic shrines and Arabs massacred by Jews when in reality it was the other way around.

Christians Also Intolerant

But not only to the Arab muftis does religion serve as the most effective wedge to keep men apart and from behaving in a decent, human manner, the leaders of the Christian communities—with certain notable civilized exceptions, of course—act in precisely the same manner. When I told the prior of St. Adam's cloister, the main Greek Orthodox monastery in Jerusalem, the other day that I was about to pay a visit to the monks of the Abyssinian Christian community, he spat in disgust, "Black heretics!" he exclaimed, "filthy swine!" I have told in a previous letter how the Church of the Holy Sepulchre is the scene of constant friction between members of the various Christian denominations and sects, a friction which does not exclude bodily acts of violence. Today I found that this scandalous state of affairs is even carried to the roof of that complex of sacred buildings, the roof namely which adjoins Calvary's hill, at least as such the site is indicated.

Patriarch Touched

The Abyssinians were denied a chapel inside the church, so they planted a colony on the roof, a small church, a library, and a score of small mud cells. Here they live, still near the Tomb of Christ, but outside the pale and undisturbed, because unseen. I seldom had a more gracious reception in my life than what was accorded me by these black brothers. The prior, a venerable and gentle patriarch, was overcome with emotion at the thought that a white man should want to see his church and attend the service. Such a visit they had not had in years.

"But," said I, "are we not brothers, your people and I, since that memorable day when St. Philip baptized the chamberlain on the road to Gazo?"

For answer the old man burst into tears. And then he led the way and showed me the church and the few treasures of the community, some ancient manuscripts from the Abyssinian mother-church in Addis Abeba. One manuscript, yellow and mouldering, was kept in a glass box. It is thought to be the identical portion of the Scriptures which the Moor was reading at the moment when Philip caught up with him on the road and asked the question: "Understandeth thou what thou readest?" I was permitted to inspect the old Hebrew script and with my fingers I touched the jewel-adorned letters which formed the name of God.

Sing "Te Deum"

During the service which followed I was shown the singular honor of being placed in a chair next to the prior before the altar. For an hour I listened to the melodious chants and the fervent prayers that were sent up for peace and brotherhood to come into this world of violence and hatred.

And at a certain juncture of the service a young priest approached me and laid a vestment of green silk and gold over my shoulders and I stood up and was permitted, as a visiting Christian, to hold in my hands a precious sacred object. And then the celebrant came from the altar and embraced the prior and the prior in turn embraced me. And in honor of my visit the choir of monks sang a "Te Deum" in the Abyssinian language, a magnificent Hymn, which was sung with passion and with deep reverence.

And before I left a learned monk took the trouble to teach me to say in the Abyssinian tongue these words: "Behold, how good and lovely it is for sons of the same house to dwell together in unity!"

DEPUTATIONS VISIT COUNCIL GRANT IS ASKED

suggested the possibility of arranging a meeting between the Council and the various school boards throughout the county, in order that some definite conclusions might be arrived at, with a view of sending a deputation to the coming School Trustees' Convention.

Mr. Eason also touched upon the question of school rates. He criticized the recent action of the government in making a ten per cent. cut in grants without giving the school boards due notice.

Replying to Reeve Tanner, Mr. Walsh said the question originated in S.S. No. 3 Otonabee. All he desired was to see some co-operation between the various school boards and the Council in order that concerted action might be taken on several pressing problems regarding the school rates.

W. A. Anderson, reeve of Otonabee, said he believed a petition received by Peterborough County Council from Middlesex County Council was in line with the suggestion made by Mr. Walsh and Mr. Eason. He believed it to be a matter the Council should take into serious consideration, and expressed the opinion the Council might well endorse the Middlesex petition.

Reeve Mann said he was pleased to say Smith Township had 80 per cent. of the school taxes in, yet he was heartily in agreement with the proposals that had been brought forward.

On motion of Reeve Montgomery and seconded by Reeve Ferguson, the school question was left to the Schools committee.

Children's Shelter Deputation

A deputation was present from the Children's Aid Society comprising John Edgar, superintendent; V. J. Eastwood, Sr., chairman of the Finance Committee; Hon. President, Archdeacon R. C. Blagrave, D.D.; President, the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe; Alderman Walter Stocker, Supervisor.

The request was for the annual grant. Last year the County contributed a sum of $1,000 as compared with the $1,500 grant from the City of Peterborough.

Mr. Eastwood spoke of the work of the Children's Aid Society and stressed the growing need and the scope of such a humanitarian organization. "We come back with the same request this year," he said, "and I feel sure the ratepayers will back you up to the extent to which you went last year."

Archdeacon R. C. Blagrave, D.D., supported the appeal made by Mr. Eastwood on behalf of the Society. He felt quite sure the County would desire to support this work in an honorable way. "I beg of you, Mr. Warden and gentlemen, not to put this work second to anything else," he urged.

Alderman Stocker remarked, "I can tell you without fear of contradiction that the Children's Shelter at Peterborough is the most economically operated in the entire Province."

Reeve Mann asked Mr. Edgar if it was customary for the Board of Education to bill the County for the cost of education of children from the County.

Mr. Edgar replied that it was not, but that such a course had been adopted by the Board this year. He referred to the bill of $268 to the Council from the Board of Education relative to the fees of thirteen Shelter children attending King Edward School.

Mr. Edgar knew nothing about the bill from the Board of Education. It was a matter the County would probably find they would have to take up with the Board.

Reeve W. A. Anderson moved, and Deputy Reeve Mullen seconded, that the question of the fees of the County children be referred to the County Solicitor for a report to the Finance committee.

The Warden assured the deputation that the request for the grants would receive sympathetic and careful consideration from the committee on finance.

County Insurance

Representatives of the Globe Indemnity Company, and also a representative of the Consolidated Fire and Casualty Insurance Company addressed the Council regarding renewal of the road insurance policies.

After considerable discussion Reeve Tanner moved, "that in the interests of economy and efficiency we continue our insurance business with the Globe Indemnity Company." The motion was seconded by Reeve Hickson.

Other discussions arose before the motion was carried, and out of the discussion came an amendment moved by Reeve Ferguson, that the County cease to carry insurance; and an amendment to the amendment in favor of the business being given to the Consolidated Casualty Company, who offered to issue the policy for $408 as compared with the successful company's $480 premium.

Reeve Rork Ferguson said the experience of his township was that the insurance companies were out to beat a man out of what was rightfully his. "I move that we drop insurance. We are paying commission houses to carry our insurance at a big profit," he said. The motion was seconded by Reeve Allen B. Mann.

"This county is spending $400 a year on an organization that is out to beat a man out of his just rights," said Reeve Ferguson. "I would like to know what the County has ever got out of insurance," he asked.

A representative of the Globe company said that in a four-year period during which his company had written insurance for Peterborough County, they had paid claims of $1,416.58 as compared with premiums paid by the County amounting to $1,700 or thereabouts.

Reeve Jackson said he failed to understand the matter of insurance as it applied to the township roads and county roads. It appeared to him they were paying for insurance twice. His remarks followed upon a suggestion from Reeve Montgomery, that the question should be deferred in order to give the members of the Council time to give the matter of dropping insurance due and careful consideration.

Reeve Tanner reiterated it was good business to carry insurance. There were many hazards to be faced and he hoped his motion would receive support.

Reeve Steenburgh, speaking of an experience which cost his township $2,000, said their insurance was dropped. Some time afterwards, as a result of an accident, a claim was made against the township. "I was one of the first to admit we had made a mistake, and we are again carrying road insurance," he said.

Reeve Tanner's motion in favor of the County's road insurance being given to the Globe Indemnity Company at a premium of $480.00 carried. Those voting against the motion were Reeves Ferguson and Mann, who had favored the cancelling of road insurance, and Reeves Leeson and Steenburgh, who favored the insurance being taken out with the Consolidated Fire and Casualty Company, at a cost of $408.00—or $72.00 less than the policy that was decided upon.

Lakefield

Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kendall entertained seven tables of progressive euchre on Friday evening, the proceeds going to St. John's church. The evening was very pleasant, indeed, and is liable to be followed by several other such gatherings in the parish. The prizes were won by Mrs. W. J. Creighton and Mr. Parkinson, and the Consolation prizes by Mrs. Parkinson and Rev. W. J. Creighton.

The evening was delightful and very much enjoyed by all present. Mrs. Kendall was given a vote of thanks for her original idea.

RADIO NOTES

By R. H. CHILDERHOSE

Many people conclude that their radio tubes are all right simply because they show a light within. The element that lights, a filament, or a heater, is only one of sometimes as many as seven different elements in a modern tube, any one of which may be defective or touching an adjoining one. Also the filament or heater itself may light and yet not deliver its correct "emission." Of course, if a tube does not light, it is nearly certain to be useless (Raytheon tubes excepted) due to the filament or heater being burned out.

Ed.—Mr. Childerhose will be glad to answer any questions asked by radio fans. If you have any trouble just drop a note to Mr. Childerhose in care of The Examiner.

WHY SALMON LEAVE HOME

Every year the young salmon leave the upper reaches of the river in which they were born and bred and swim down to the sea. They disappear into the vasty deeps for three years and then return, each to his native river for the breeding season.

When the salmon returns to its rivers it returns in "ruddy health." Its tissues are charged with great stores of nutriment which provide sufficient energy for its long journey up-stream to the salmon nurseries. In such large rivers as the Yukon, salmon will travel 1,500 miles without further nourishment. It will pay you (at these prices) to stock-up with this rich, red Sovereign Sockeye Salmon.

MADOC, January 26 (Examiner Correspondence). — The annual meeting of Madoc Agricultural Society was held in the Community Hall on Thursday, January 19. In the chairman's opening address, he spoke of the work that had been done in the past year, also the wet weather on the Fair date, and especially he wanted to thank all the officers who had assisted in making the year's work agreeable to him by working at all times for the good and welfare of the Fair. Mr. McMechan spoke in kindly terms of Mrs. W. J. Hill, who for so many years had worked unceasingly for the welfare of Madoc Fair.

Department Judges.

Madoc Fair will employ Department judges for the year 1933, and the Fair dates will be October 3 and 4. Delegates to Central Ontario Fairs Association and the Ontario Fairs and Exhibitions Association at Belleville and Toronto are Fred Curry and Samuel Rollins.

William McMechan, president, was pressed to continue in the office of president for another year, but thanked the officers and members, saying it was impossible to continue. The Association very reluctantly accepted Mr. McMechan's resignation, as he was a most outstanding and efficient officer.

The officers elected for 1933 are as follows:

President, Fred Curry; 1st Vice-president, James Kincaid; 2nd Vice-president, W. H. Bailey; auditors, James A. Caskey and Robert A. Woods. Midway, Richard Wellman and William Miller; collector, Samuel Rollins; Printing Committee, W. J. Hill and Samuel Rollins; Entertainment Committee, Fred Curry George West, and W. J. Hill; Track Committee, Walter Whytock, F. E Brown, and Charles Whytock; Grounds Committee, William McMechan, George West, William Miller, Robert A. Woods, William Stewart, C. J. Smith, and James Caskey; Prize List Committee, William J. Hill, J. A. Caskey, Benjamin Miller.

It was moved by W. J. Hill and Robert A. Woods that a vote of thanks be tendered to J. A. Watson for the publicity given gratis in the North Hastings Review for the Fair for 1932.

A vote of thanks and confidence was then tendered to William McMechan, Samuel Rollins, and William J. Hill for their untiring and beneficial service rendered the Madoc Agricutural Association and of confidence reposed in all past presidents and officers in the association. This was carried unanimously, and short speeches were made by these men.

A committee of James Caskey, William Miller, Robert A. Woods, Fred, Curry, and W. H. Bailey was appointed to work with a committee of the Community Club re the holding of a poultry sale in the fall.

At a meeting of the directors later S. Rollins was elected treasurer and William J. Hill secretary.

STAMP CORNER

By M. A. Bessey

The illustration depicts the half cent value of the 1897 Jubilee issue of Canada, which unfortunately was overlooked in our previous article on the half cent stamps of Canada. Thanks are due to Mr. J. D. Cox, Upper Stewiacke, Nova Scotia, for calling my attention to this omission.

The half cent Jubilee stamp is by no means to be overlooked; it is one of the most beautiful of our issues of this denomination, being finely engraved and of a deep jet black. It has a catalog value of $1 for either used or unused copies. Unused stamps are probably a little more plentiful than used ones; but either may be considered a good investment and a worthy addition to any collection.

A clipping of the previous article dealing with our half cent stamps has shown that some of the illustrations were accidentally misplaced. The copy itself, however, is self-explanatory. I hope no misunderstanding has been caused by the error.

Questions and Answers

Mr. S. Shnitka, Calgary, Alberta. Ques.—What is the best type of album to use?

Ans.—This is rather a difficult question to answer in a general way. There are dozens of different kinds of albums to choose from, and at all prices from a few cents each to several dollars each.

For the beginner, I believe a small illustrated album to be the most suitable. I say this because it is seldom a new recruit to this hobby understands sufficient about stamps to be able to give them the proper care they demand. Further the illustrations will serve to help identify many foreign stamps until the collector becomes sufficiently far advanced to secure a catalog of the stamps of the world, which in addition to illustrating practically every type of postage stamp ever issued, also gives their date of issue and their value both unused and used.

A host of other valuable information is included in the yearly catalogs which should be in the possession of every collector, just as soon as he is able to afford one. In addition to the above reasons, the beginner who starts out with a small album will not have so much to lose, when he finds out his many mistakes and wishes to secure a larger album to properly remount his fast growing collection, with which one soon becomes quite familiar.

There are two types of the more expensive albums from which to choose, and there are many things to be considered before deciding upon which to use, far too many, for me to discuss them all at this time.

If the collection is to be a general collection, large albums, illustrated and sometimes contained in two or more volumes may be purchased. It is very seldom this type of album comes in loose-leaf binders and so your albums will very soon become out of date. Additions are usually made every two or three years, which means you must purchase one or more new volumes every so often to hold all of your new issues. Thus it is impossible to keep all of the stamps of one country together.

Loose-Leaf is Best

Personally I like the blank loose-leaf albums, these never become out of date, it being only necessary to buy extra pages from time to time, to hold the new issues, and when you find your alubums becoming too bulky an extra new cover may be purchased to hold your treasures. In this way your are always able to keep all of the stamps of one country together. If you specialize in the stamps of only a few countries you need not have a lot of blank pages filling up your albums. Anyone with a little patience, and with a small amount of artistic taste, can make a really beautiful display by the used of blank loose-leaf albums.

One thing to remember, never crowd your stamps together in straight rows from one side of the page to the other. Only one or two issues should be displayed on one page, and these should be symmetrically and artistically arranged. Notes concerning the date of issue, and the reason for the issue being made as well as other important information may also be included right in your album. Such notes should be very carefully and neatly written or printed, and for which black India ink is most generally used.

If you have never tried to mount your stamps in a blank album, take a blank sheet of paper, ordinary letter size, and a complete set of stamps of seven or eight varieties and try different combinations of arranging them on the sheet. You will be surprised at just how nice you can make them look.

The author will be pleased to answer all questions regarding stamps or stamp collecting. If your question is of general interest it will be answered in this column. If a written reply is required please enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope. Address your letter in care of this paper.

HOW A FAMILY PHYSICIAN TREATED BRONCHITIS

Read this interesting story related in a letter from a man who suffered two consecutive winters from bronchial condition:

"I was taken down with bronchitis and the family physician had to be called. On his arrival the first thing he prescribed was 'Thermogene.' This comforting, soothing medicated wadding was the first check to aid in the abating of bronchial pneumonia.

"The second year, when I was taken down with this condition, having remembered the prescription and treatment of my doctor the former year, my wife applied 'Thermogene' before calling the doctor, and he said she had helped him considerably by the application of 'Thermogene' immediately, for this time I was in line for bronchial pneumonia.

"I was soon up and around again and back to work, and now we are never without a package of 'Thermogene' in the house, as it has done so much good for me."

This man wrote to us in sheer gratitude. But his is only one of thousands of cases we could cite where the soothing warmth of "Thermogene" Medicated Wadding has brought relief where all other remedies have failed. For, unlike drugs, which tend merely to deaden pain, this scientifically prepared wadding removes pain—because it removes the cause.

Just you try it. "Thermogene" Medicated Wadding is a scientifically prepared cotton wool impregnated with pain-relieving essences. Unlike poultices, ointments and embrocations, there is no mess or trouble involved, and no rubbing is necessary. "Thermogene" is so clean, pleasant and handy that you can easily wear it beneath your clothes without showing. Invaluable, too, in cases of rheumatism, lumbago, influenza and all the minor aches and pains of winter. Keep a box of "Thermogene" in the house and you'll bless your foresight before the winter's out!

EAST PETERBORO AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY HOLDS ANNUAL SESSION

Despite Worst Fair Day in 64 Years, Treasurer Shows Only $50 Deficit.

SWINE CLUB PLANNED

NORWOOD, Jan. 26. (Examiner Correspondence).—The East Peterborough Agricultural Society held its annual meeting in Norwood, Friday with the 1932 President G. J. Elmhirst in the chair.

Despite the financial stress of the year and the fact that weather conditions of the 1932 fair day was the worst that the society had experienced in its 64 years of existence the treasurer's report was very satisfactory. The gate receipts of approximately $2,000 in Normal years dropped back this year to $697.25.

The total receipts for the year 1923, including a loan of $600.00 was $3,756.10. Total payments in prizes and all other expenses were $3,524.75, leaving a balance on hand of $220.75. This balance plus $300 of grants now due the society, when applied on loan and a minor item of expense will leave the society with a deficit of approximately $50.

Boy's Swine Club

The question of continuing the champion school fair was discussed. And the Ontario Agricultural Department's suggestion of forming a boy's swine club was accepted. A motion was made by Col. R. E. Birdsall and G. A. Brethen instructing the secretary to forward a letter of condolence to Mr. Lancaster, M.P.P., voicing the Board's sympathy in his recent bereavement.

On motion of Hawthorne and Robb, the Board of 1932 were reappointed for the year of 1933. Mr. Wm. Knox of Peterborough, a veteran director of the society, asked to be relieved of his office, and was appointed as an honorary director.

Mr. Harry Pearce addressed the meeting recommending three sections in the rabbit classes, Angoras, Chinchillas and any other variety, with prizes $1.00, 75c, 50c. Mr. Pearce offered a special prize of $1.00 each for best Chinchilla and Angora robbit, and also his free services as judge. The board expressed their desire to follow his suggestions and accept his office.

The question of charging a fee on entries, was discussed and the president, F. C. Birdsall and G. A. Brethen were appointed a committee to get information on this matter and report at next meeting.

The president, Mr. G. J. Elmhirst was appointed a delegate to the Ontario Fairs and Exhibition Association convention held in Toronto, February 2nd and 3rd.

Officers for 1933

Hon. Presidents—E. Hawthorne, G. J. Elmhurst; 1st Vice President T. E. Birdsall; 2nd Vice President W. G. Barrie; Miss Jean Roxburg, Norwood, Secretary-treasurer; Hon. VIACHESLAV MOLOTOFF

In his address at the opening of the Soviet parliament, January 23, Premier Viacheslav Molotoff scathingly attacked the League of Nations for its Sino-Japanese stand and stated that while Russia stood prepared for war by an aggressor, she fervently desired peace.

PARLEY LIMITED TO WAR DEBTS

PREPARING STRONG CASE.

LONDON, Jan. 26 (A.P.)—Great Britain's action in limiting the forthcoming Anglo-American Conference to decision on war debts only to-day apparently eliminated any chance of that Washington parley interfering with the proposed World Economic Conference in London.

In official circles it was conceded that Great Britain did not want the scope and purposes of the projected London Conference limited, despite President-elect Roosevelt's offer to discuss the general world situation.

Premier Ramsay MacDonald was elected chairman of the forthcoming Economic Conference, which cannot be held before this Summer. This was decided yesterday by a preparatory commission which also listed currency, tariffs, prices and movements of capital as among the world problems to be considered at that time.

Press Approves

Newspapers here viewed the British restrictions, presented to Secretary Henry Stimson, American Secretary of State, with general approval. They expressed fears the Debts Conference may be clouded by discussions of other world economic problems such as tariffs, the gold standard and stabilization of foreign exchanges before the war debts question could be arranged.

The London Times said the British reservation was necessary. It also stressed "the necessity" of British representatives going to Washington prepared, not only to state "an overwhelming case" against continuance of the debts payments but also "to suggest some alternate plan on the lines of the Lausanne agreement (practically wiping out German reparations), which might be more acceptable to the United States and in conformity with the two essential conditions defined by Chamberlain at Leeds."

LAW LITTLE FAVORED

WALKERVILLE.—Town Council here appears not in sympathy with the proposal to keep tenants from holding public office. A resolution asking amendment of the act to bar from office any persons not assessed at $1,000 was passed last year. Another resolution now presented rescinds that action and will be considered at next Council meeting. Reports show the original resolution met with little approval in other municipalities.

The Sunday School report presented by W. G. Shiner showed a deficit last year, but this year the deficit was wiped out and a small balance was left. $389 was used for various Sunday School supplies and a portion was sent to Missions.

The Library Fund balance of $372, had $17 added as interest, nothing having been expended during the year.

The various classes reported as follows: Others Class, $66, of which $25 was forwarded to the Obligation Fund of the Church; Eveready, $10, $5 of which was donated to the Fellowship Fund; Men's Bible Class, $17; choir, $43; and the Men's Association, $10.50.

The Fellowship Fund reported $184, of which $158 had been used at the discretion of the members of this committee. McMaster Fund reported $553; the Foreign Mission Forward Movement, $163.50 and the Obligation Fund, $1,555. The General Fund of the church showed receipts of $7,787.

Receipts of various organizations of the church, as reported, totalled $10,856.68.

Membership of the church at the closing of Dec., 1932, was 476, an increase of 24 during the year. Mention was made at the meeting of those who had departed this life during 1932, and regret expressed at the loss sustained by their death.

RAILWAY ISSUE IS THREATENING LIFE OF CANADA

ring fresh responsibilities or we cannot pay on the past (responsibilities). And if we cannot pay on our past responsibilities, we cannot borrow more."

Canadas' economic life was at stake, proceeded the Prime Minister, "and if we lose our credit, we lose everything." The Duff Royal Commission advised paying the Canadian National deficit each year, but the deficit in 1932 was $70,000,000 "and this year it looks as if it I might be well within it if I said $1,000,000 a week.

Common Sacrifice.

"This country," continued Mr. Bennett, "has only 10,000,000 people and they find it exceedingly difficult to pay present taxes. We know there is a breaking point and every day gets us closer to it in this time of depression."

It would be the responsibility of the government and the Canadian National Board of Trustees—recommended by the Duff Commission—to maintain the railways as going concerns, giving employment, said Mr. Bennett. "Sacrifices will have to be made. We may as well face that. But it will be a common sacrifice everyone will have to suffer."

The Railwaymen's Deputation headed by J. B. Ward, General Chairman of the Locomotive Engineers of the Canadian Pacific; W. J. Best, Dominion Legislative Representative of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Engineers, and Frank McKenna, Chairman of the Canadian Pacific System of Federated Shopmen, reiterated the stand taken last November before the Senate Railway Committee. They stressed the necessity of giving consideration not only to the financial phases of the railway situation but the human aspects as well.

Give Every Consideration

Every consideration would be given to the representations, said Mr. Bennett. Seated with the Prime Minister were Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice; Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways; Hon. Alfred Duranleau, Minister of Fisheries, and Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance.

When it was suggested the bonded indebtedness of the Canadian National should be reduced, the Prime Minister said the bonds had been guaranteed by the Government "and cannot be written down. The interest must be paid if the credit of this country is to be upheld."

Under normal conditions the Canadian National at the present time would be considered as in receivership, said the Prime Minister. But receivership was impossible because the railway bonds were guaranteed by the Government. The Board of Trustees for the railway would be considered as receivers, to maintain the property and provide work for railwaymen.

The memorandum was handed to the Premier by J. B. Ward, general chairman of the locomotive engineers of the Canadian Pacific system. He was accompanied by W. J. Best, Dominion Legislative representative of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Engineers, and Frank McKenna, chairman of the C.P.R. System of Federated Shopmen.

The Duff Commission on Railway Problems had emphasized that it was imperative to effect economies in railway operation, said the supplementary brief, but that commission had taken no heed of the human element.

"The fate of these workers was not included in the commission's findings; nor apparently was it considered there was an unemployment problem in Canada."

The deputation "earnestly appealed to the Government, in the railway crisis, to temper the wind of economy to the workers without bread."

Note of Warning.

A note of warning was sounded in the memorandum: "We must not further aggravate our social conditions. Doctrines, old and new, of a character foreign to our desires, are heard everywhere, all of which are eagerly listened to and sometimes accepted by the man with a family in difficulty."

With regard to retention of identity by the two great railway systems in Canada, the delegation pronounced themselves favorable to this, adding that "recent developments only serve to confirm that opinion."

"The recommendations of the Royal Commission appointed to consider our railway and transportation problem seem so drastic in their character, looking at them from the railway workers' point of view that we felt impelled to also bring our views to your attention as well as to the attention of the Senate Committee, already referred to.

"The Royal Commission has felt compelled to sound a note of serious warning to the people of Canada. 'It is imperative,' the commission states, 'that such railway economies be effected forthwith as will ease the burden upon the Federal Treasury and improve the financial position of the Canadian Pacific.' Of the human element to the Canadian railways it took no heed. The fate of these workers was not included in its findings. Nor apparently was it considered there was an unemployment problem in Canada."

and place aforesaid and still does unlawfully and fraudulently omit to account for or pay over the said sum of approximately $1,300 to the said informant and thereby did commit theft of the said sum of money, contrary to the provisions of the Criminal Code, Section 355."

R. R. Hall, K.C., first witness, told the court that he had had in his hands a mortgage from Bruce Bickell to Thomas Shearer, which was later transferred to Mrs. Marion Cameron. In December, 1930, he said, Mr. Bickell had applied to the Agricultural Development Board to pay off the principal and interest due on the mortgage, and a cheque had been paid through him to Hall, Hall and Stevenson. This represented all the proceeds of the mortgage.

Mrs. Marion Cameron, the next witness, said she was the daughter of Thomas Shearer and her father had given her the $2,000 Bickell mortgage. The mortgage had been kept in Mr. Hall's office and interest on it was paid to her from time to time by Mr. Hall.

She said she knew C. E. Strickland and that he had interviewed her at her home on the second concession of Otonabee Township in May, 1930. He come to her home accompanied by his brother, John Strickland, she said, and endeavoured to interest her in Canadian Terminal bonds.

Sell Mortgage

She had mentioned her ownership of the Bickell mortgage and it was arranged that C. E. Strickland should sell the mortgage for her, after interviewing the Bickells.

"I thought when the transaction started that I would take Canadian Terminal bonds after the mortgage had been cashed" she said. "I never made any bargain with Mr. Strickland he was just to see after getting my mortgage cashed. He was to sell the mortgage to someone. He mentioned the company's name but I can't remember what it was.

"I think he sold the mortgage because he gave us some of the money from it, but I never got it all" she stated.

Replying to a question of Mr. McElderry's she said, "I authorized Mr. Strickland to sell the mortgage and get the money for me."

In May, 1931, a year after the first interview, she said Strickland had come to her home and gave her $500 cash and $500 in Stoney Lake Hotels Limited stock. At one stage, she said, the arrangement was that she purchased all Stoney Lake Hotels' stock with the money from the mortgage but later she had told Mr. Strickland that she would only buy $500 worth. She purchased this stock from Mr. Strickland who was an executive of the company.

She said that Mr. Strickland had told her that he did not want to pay over the balance from the sale of the mortgage to her at that time because he had purchased a $2,000 bond in the Toronto Savings and Loan Company and wanted to hold it for a little while longer. "I understood the Toronto Savings and Loan debentre was in my name" she stated.

In August 1931 she received a cheque for $250 and another cheque for $25, interest on her Stoney Lake Hotels stock, from Mr. Strickland. She heard nothing more from the accused concerning the balance of the mortgage funds, although she wrote several letters to him inquiring about it.

She said that soon after the sale of the mortgage she had instructed Mr. Strickland to deposit the balance from the stock purchase to her account in the Dominion Bank.

Made to Stoney Lake Hotels

Cross-examined by Mr. Stevenson she said that she had made the assignment of the mortgage to Mr. Strickland in June, 1930. Asked if she made the assignment of the mortgage to Mr. Strickland or the Stoney Lake Hotels Limited, she replied "To Mr. Strickland." However, Mr. Stevenson produced the assignment of the mortgage which showed it was made to the Stoney Lake Hotels.

Later, she admitted that she had received dividend payments on her Stoney Lake Hotels stock before the actual sale of the mortgage had been made by Mr. Strickland.

Her other evidence under cross-examination was very confusing.

Herbert Morphet, secretary of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, said that the records of his company showed that on March, 1931, a $2,000 debenture of the Company had been transferred by Fred L. Galloway to the Stoney Lake Hotels Limited, and a year later this same bond was transferred to Bruce T. Ryerton, of Toronto, and the bond is now held by the Premier Trust Company.

R. T. Hicks-Lyne said there was nothing on the ledger books of the Dominion Bank to show that C. E. Strickland had deposited $1,300 to Mrs. Marion Cameron's account at any time.

W. F. Morrow produced evidence concerning the transfer of the mortgage on the Bickell property in Smith Township. It was first registered in 1916 in the name of Thomas Shearer and 1923 transferred to Mrs. Cameron. In March, 1931, it was assigned by Mrs. Cameron to the Stoney Lake Hotels Limited.

Case of Defence.

John C. Strickland, only witness for the defence, said that in 1930 he was the local agent for Willis and Neely, bond house, and C. E. Strickland, the accused, was a Toronto representative of the same firm. In May, 1930, the witness, accompanied by C. E. Strickland, visited the home of Mrs Marion Cameron in Otonabee Township. "Mrs. Cameron was considering taking $4,000 worth of Canadian Terminal bonds," he said. "She did take $2,000 worth. In June we took the bonds out to deliver them to her.

"I asked her to take $2,000 more, but she said she was not considering any more investments," witness continued. "However, she did say she had a mortgage, and if we could sell it for her, she would take some more Canadian Terminal bonds. C. E. Strickland spoke up and said he was manager of the Stoney Lake Hotels Limited, and that he thought his company could manage the mortgage, either disposing of it or taking it over."

Witness said that that same evening he and the accused went to Bruce Bickell's home and secured all possible information concerning the mortgage. The next day they returned to Mrs. Cameron's home and figured out the value of the mortgage, which they estimated would be $2,700.

"At that time Mrs. Cameron said that if the mortgage was sold she would take $1,000 in Stoney Lake Hotels Limited stock," he testified. "The sale of the mortgage was left entirely in C. E. Strickland's hands. We got a blank mortgage transfer and Mrs. Cameron signed it, assigning the mortgage to the Stoney Lake Hotels Limited. Mr. Strickland was to take over the mortgage for the Stoney Lake Hotels."

In the spring of 1931, witness said he accompanied C. E. Strickland again to Mrs. Cameron's home. The accused had told him on the way that Mrs. Cameron had decided to take only $500 in Stoney Lake Hotels stock. During the interview, he said, C. E. Strickland asked Mrs. Cameron if she were in a hurry for the money from the mortgage. "He told her that he could pay it right then, but it would mean that the Stoney Lake Hotels Company would have to sacrifice some securities," stated the witness. "Mrs. Cameron said she thought it would be all right since she was not considering any investments and did not need the money just at that time. I felt I was crossed by C. E. Strickland in this transaction, because I was interested in selling Mrs. Cameron some more Canadian Terminal bonds. I became disinterested and fell out of the conversation."

Witness would not swear that there was any mention of interest by Mrs. Cameron for the amount left in C. E. Strickland's hands, however, and he swore that he did hear the accused tell Mrs. Cameron that there would be no charge for handling the mortgage.

"I was quite surprised that Mrs. Cameron was so lenient with C. E. Strickland," he said. "She seemed to have perfect trust in him and left everything in his hands."

Cross-examined, J. C. Strickland said he was a second or third cousin of C. E. Strickland. He admitted that as an agent for Willis and Neely he and C. E. Strickland had sold a large number of bonds to farmers in this district, and it was to sell such bonds that they had first visited the home of Mrs. Cameron. He could not swear whether the $2,000 purchase of bonds made by Mrs. Cameron had been in cash, part cash or in Government bonds.

"So you got her to sell a Government bond by telling her these Canadian Terminal bonds were a better investment?" questioned Mr. McElderry.

"I think so," witness answered.

He admitted that in making delivery of the bonds Mrs. Cameron had mentioned her possession of a mortgage and, in the words of Mr. McElderry, "that had put them on the scent of more money."

"And you went the same evening to Bickell's to get more information about the mortgage?"

"Yes."

Witness denied that he knew at that time that the Agricultural Development Board was prepared to take over the Bickell mortgage. He admitted that the money for the Bickell mortgage had got into the hands of C. E. Strickland. The accused had given Mrs. Cameron a cheque as part payment on the sum realized on the mortgage, but he could not say how much the cheque was for.

"Whose money did he have in his hands when C. E. Strickland went out that day to settle up with Mrs. Cameron?"

"The Stoney Lake Hotels until it was handed over to Mrs. Cameron," was the reply.

"Who has full control of the Stoney Lake Hotels Limited?"

"C. E. Strickland."

"And you say on oath, you don't know who got the money from this mortgage sale?"

"Yes."

Asked who were the directors of the Stoney Lake Hotels Limited, witness said C. E. Strickland, Mrs. C. E. Strickland, and a man named Hamilton. He said he could not say who had the controlling interest.

Mr. McElderry produced a letter written by C. E. Strickland on July 12, 1930, to Mrs. Cameron, in which it was said that she had been alotted $500 of Stoney Lake Hotels stock by the board of directors, and the balance from the mortgage sale would be placed to her account in the Dominion Bank. Also a letter to Mrs. Cameron written by J. C. Strickland on July 7, 1930, stating that the balance of the funds from the mortgage would be deposited to her credit in the Dominion Bank.

"I suppose you know the money was never paid over into the bank?" questioned Mr. McElderry.

"Yes," answered the witness.

"And the balance is being retained by Mr. Strickland or by someone known to him?"

"Yes."

"So Mr. C. E. Strickland got the inside track and double-crossed or crossed you in dealing with Mrs. Cameron?"

"Yes, and I'm glad he did the way things turned out and the way securities have dropped."

This concluded the evidence.

VON SCHLEICHER ONCE ACCUSED OF POLITICAL INTRIGUE IN ARMY

Many Legends Persist About The Present Dictator of Germany.

KEEN SENSE OF HUMOR.

By EDWARD L. DEUSS
(Central Press Canadian Correspondent.

BERLIN, Jan. 26. — "I know I ought to chase you out of the army, but I see no other man for your job."

That is what General Hans von Seeckt said about General (then Major) Kurt von Schleicher in 1923. Now the major whom General von Seeckt accused of political intrigues unbecoming an army officer, is Chancellor, minister of war, and dictator of the state of Prussia, the most that any one statesman in German history has ever been.

Rarely in the limelight and rarely talking for pubic consumption, Genera von Scheicher has been "whooped up" like the mythological Samson, so that the foreign office immediately after his appointment as chancellor put out the slogan translated literally:

"He bringeth not the sword but peace."

* * 1 *

Many legends persist. Among them are:

1. That though only 50 years old he is suffering from an incurable illness, and has but a few years to live.

2. That he is Germany's 20th century General Scharnhorst—a reincarnation of the man who secretly reorganized the Prussian army in 1807 after the defeat at the hands of Napoleon, despite all the restrictions forced on the Germans by the French, so that the Germans in 1813 came back to defeat Napoleon. Scharnhorst, however, was killed in the battle of Dresden before his dreams of revenge materialized.

3. That he is an opportunist who turned republican to further his career after the revolution and who would turn monarchist again if he saw the possibility of a successful Hohenzollern restoration.

4. That his only aim is to restore the old military spirit in the German people and raise the technical preparedness of the country to a level undreamed of in history.

* * * *

He is anything but stiff and formal at social affairs; has a keen sense of humor and is an excellent dancer.

He is once said to have ascribed his understanding for the ills of the poor to the training he received from his father, who taught him to treat every servant and every hired hand with respect.

* * * *

One of the first things he did after his apointment as chancellor was to confer with much-maligned trade union leaders and members of the Socialist executive committee, who had been stricken off the list of "presentable" personalities during the reign of Franz von Papen.

The conferences were designed to enlist the proletariat in his plan for the unification of the Fatherland on a national platform:

Unification from a military standpoint is said to be the chancellor's great aim, though he knows he will have to make concessions to the laboring classes who distrust him. Not the least concession was his decision to postpone attempts at the reform of the constitution.

* * * *

In foreign relations, especially in regard to the all-important question of conciliation with France, Gen. von Schleicher is said to be open minded on the condition that in political questions as well as military, Germany be treated as an equal, and not as a vanquished state. Discussing the possibility of peace with France, he is cited as having said: "I can't stand those who say it is impossible."

As an advocate of the so-called militia system of military training as against the large standing army, he finds many points of agreement in the Herriot disarmament plan.

Not Long To Live

'Tis said in Germany that Chancelor General Kurt con Schleicher is suffering from a serious malady and that he is destined not to live very long. It was only last year that he was severely reprimanded for political intrigue in the army. To-day he is Germany's most powerful man. He is shown here as a general.

NATIVES AMBUSH 2 PROSPECTORS

GOV'T TO SEND POLICE.

CANBERRA, Australia, Jan. 26.—(C.P.).—The Federal Government is taking steps to-day to police the New Guinea goldfields area, where, it is reported, two white prospectors, named Naylor and Clarius, were clubbed to death following a resumption of hostilities among the natives.

First news of the tragedy was received when a native carrier arrived exhausted at the Government post at Surprise Creek. He reported the two prospectors had been ambushed by nine carriers in the Horobe district and clubbed to death.

The authorities immediately sent a party to investigate the story and they found bodies of prospectors and those of three carriers. On their return journey the investigating party were attacked but the members escaped unhurt, after killing three of the attackers and wounding two others.

CAVAN

Just at this season of the year, Institutes in every district, are gathering in worn clothing, remodelling and mending it for distribution, wherever there is need, either in Northern Ontario or locally.

In Cavan Women's Institute the regular monthly meeting was withdrawn for January, and each group is holding a sewing bee. Already several groups have gathered at the call of their convenors, and much work has been accomplished with other busy afternoons to follow. Some groups have quilted quilts while others have made warm garments. Trunks and closets have been ransacked for garments laid aside in more prosperous days, or perhaps which have been outgrown. It is surprising what can be accomplished by remodelling.

The better parts of two dresses, undergarments and sweaters, can sometimes be happily combined to make one serviceable piece. Removing the badly worn sleeves of a sweater and using the better parts to mend the body, will supply a comfortable house wrap or serve under an outdoor chore jacket. Both silk and woollen hose can be ravelled and the ravellings wet and tightly wound around a sealer to dry the kinks out, and then used for mending.

A careful darn with threads drawn from same material as garment and well pressed, is scarcely noticeable in comparison with the neatest patch.

Comfortable caps, mitts and over socks can be made for children from old woollen hose by patterning, combining and sewing on the machine.

Not only is clothing acceptable to relief boards, but surplus fruit and vegetables are gratefully received.

Everybody has something which can be shared, and nothing should be withheld, which can be spared.

Takes To The Air

The Canadian Radio Commission has at last started to function. The honor of being the first to broadcast under the new system will go to the Royal Canadian Regiment band of London, Ontario, which will commence a series of band concerts starting Friday, Jan. 27, at 9 p.m., E.S.T. On Tuesday, Jan. 31, the great Toronto symphony orchestra, under the baton of Dr. Ernest MacMillan, (above). The Toronto Symphony, the largest and perhaps most renowned in Canada is seldom heard on the air, and this concert will be a real treat to Canadian radio listeners.

CHAS. H. NADOO LAID TO REST

Large and Impressive Service Held for Prominent Campbellford Citizen.

MASONIC AUSPICES.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 26 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Prominent in Masonic circles, an amateur baseball and lacrosse player, well-known wholesale and retail tobacco merchant and a staunch Anglican, Charles Henry Nadoo was laid to rest yesterday in Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Campbellford, following a funeral service conducted in Christ Church by the Rev. N. Clark Wallace of Birchcliff and former rector of the church, assisted by the Rev. H. T. Floyd. The funeral was held under the auspices of Golden Rule Lodge A.F. and A.M. of Campbellford.

The late Mr. Nadoo, who died on Monday in his 61st year after an illness of some months, was well known and beloved throughout the whole county. A member of Golden Rule Lodge A.F. and A.M., he was also a Knight Templar and a Shriner.

He was a member of the Campbellford Rotary Club, in politics a keen Conservative, although never taking office, and always an active Anglican. Born in Campbellford on March 20, 1872, some early years of his life were spent in Western Ontario. For the past twenty-eight years, however, he carried on a wholesale and retail tobacco business in Campbellford, where he was always known by all classes by the affectionate name of "Charlie."

A patron of all sports, he played on the champion Stouffville and Hespeler lacrosse teams in 1900, and was also known as a first-class amateur baseball player. For many years he was a backer of the champion Campbellford Maroon hockey team. In later life he turned more to trout fishing, of which sport he was one of the keenest adherents in the district.

The many beautiful floral tributes testified to the esteem in which the deceased was held. Surviving are his wife, Bessie Nadoo; two daughters, Mrs. Robert Ingram of Campbellford and Mrs. E. F. Mosthoff of Saginaw, Mich., and two sisters, Mrs. Mortimer Reynolds of Campbellford and Mrs. Katherine Bennett of Windsor.

The funeral was one of the largest in some years, and testified to the esteem in which the deceased was held by all classes of society. Christ Church was filled to capacity for the service, friends being present from Belleville, Peterborough, Toronto and many intermediate points. A very thoughtful and helpful address was given at the church by the Rev. Mr. Wallace, the service being choral and conducted by the rector.

The pall-bearers were: George Attwell, Harvey Donald, Major J. M. Bygott, W. J. Abernethy, J. C. Birmingham and A. G. Thompson; honorary pall-bearers were: F. F. Long, L. Burbank, Wesley Stephens, P. C. Denyes, O. R. Thompson and A. J. Meyers; the flower bearers being: S. Clegg, Nelson Lloyd, James Heptonstall, Percy Bland, Lester Henson and Don Keir.

Science says coffee sweeps the cobwebs from your brain, removes fatigue and actually makes your muscles respond more quickly. But, look out for stale coffee!

FOR FOUR CENTURIES men of letters and men of action have used coffee as a stimulant. As they sipped the tempting, aromatic beverage, it gave them sure, quick exhilaration.

But there were unpleasant whispers, too. To some people coffee brought depression, nerves, indigestion.

Now science has stepped in and cleared it all up. Science has found that the people who were having trouble were probably drinking stale coffee!

Stale coffee develops a rancid oil. About half a cup of it to a pound. Stale coffee often does cause indigestion, nerves, sleeplessness.

But fresh coffee can be drunk and enjoyed by normal, healthy grown-ups without the slightest bad effect—up to 5 cups a day!

That is why Chase & Sanborn instituted Dated Coffee. Insured for everyone the wonderful, healthful exhilaration that only fresh coffee can give.

You know Chase & Sanborn's Dated Coffee is fresh because the date of delivery to your grocer is clearly printed on every tin. No tin is allowed to stay on your grocer's shelf more than 10 days!

In half-pound and one-pound tins. Ask for Chase & Sanborn's Dated Coffee tomorrow. Science says, whether you're cleaning house or climbing snow-clad mountains, you'll do it better on Dated Coffee!

WORK OF DOMINION SERVICE BUREAU TOLD BY J. R. BOWLER

Statement by Dominion Secretary to Special Pensions Committee.

MUCH WORK INVOLVED

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 26 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — An excellent opportunity of demonstrating in a striking manner the excellent work performed by the Dominion Headquarters Service Bureau of the Canadian Legion and the amount of money expended by the Legion on this work has been afforded by the recent sittings of the special committee to investigate the administration of the Pensions Act, and a splendid statement has been issued by J. R. Bowler, Dominion General Secretary of the Legion giving in full the work along this line, at the request of members of this committee.

The work of Dominion Headquarters Service Bureau has always been one of the most important phases of Legion work, and as well as adjustment officers, credit for the success of this work must also go to all branches of the Legion and also members who by the consistent payment of per capita tax, have made it possible to meet the heavy expenditure involved.

The report given covers a period from July 1, 1930 to December 31, 1932, representing a fair length of time over which to demonstrate the work of the bureau. The number of cases in all classes dealt with during this period total 16,154, of which 7,765 files remain active. It should be explained however, that the work of the bureau is not confined to claims arising under the Pensions Act but include all classes of soldiers' questions such as claims in repect to treatment, hospitalization, pay and allowances and such like. It may be assumed however that eighty per cent of all claims dealt with by the Service Bureau have to do with pensions. On this basis the number of pension cases dealt with during this period is 12,763. Of this number 6,700 cases are not presently active, leaving 6,063 on the active list.

Of this number it is estimated by the Dominion Adjustment officer that approximately 4,042, if proceeded with, involve the question of entitlement, that is, the relationship of death to service.

During the period referred to there have been 14,744 personal interviews, 222,161 letters have been received and dispatched by the Dominion Headquarters of the Legion, all of which are exclusive of any Provincial Command office.

A yearly grant has been provided by the Dominion Government for this work, not to exceed $10,000 and put on a dollar for dollar basis. During each of the five years that this grant has been in effect the expenditure of the Canadian Legion for the upkeep of the service Bureau has been considerably in excess of the sum of $20,000 so that in each year the maximum amount has been requisitioned and been paid. The following figures show the total cost of operation of Dominion Headquarters Service Bureau during the given period.

Total cost of operation—January 1, 1930 to December 31, 1932, $87,239.62; Government grant received, $30,000, cost to Canadian Legion, $57,239.62; total, $87,239.62.

A summary of the 2474 cases handled during this period of pension cases is as follows: entitlement, 1238; dependency pensions, 282; retroactive pensions, 522; increased assessment, 322; increased reinstatement, 96; miscellaneous, 14; total 2474.

COUNCIL REVERTS TO OLD SYSTEM

Statute Labor Will Decrease Taxation for Upkeep of Percy Township Roads.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, January 26. — The municipal council of the Township of Percy met in the town hall here on January 21st, in a special session, at the call of the reeve, to consider the matter of returning to the old system of Pathmasters and road work instead of the present system, and receive tenders for wood and lumber, also cedar, and to care for any left over business from the last regular session.

All the members of the council were present.

Moved by C. H. Curtis, seconded by C. J. Boyce, that whereas the present system of road construction was thrust upon us against the will of a large majority of the ratepayers, and after giving the new system a fair trial for five years, and realizing the unusual economic conditions that exist at the present time, and believing that the old system of statute labor is preferable, and will relieve the burden of taxation to a considerable extent; be it therefore resolved that we rescind Bylaw No. 834 and revert back to the old system of statute labor.—Carried.

As the vote was asked to be recorded, votes were as follows:

Yeas: Curtis, Boyce, Wartman and Mallory.

Nay: Nelson.

Tenders of R. Potter, William Greenly, Levi Jewel, for lumber, was accepted at $24.00 per M., and Levi Jewel's tender for cedar at $2.25 per stick; also P. O'Reilly's tender for wood at $5.90 per cord.

W. H. Henry was given the contract for printing for 1933 for the sum of $185.

On motion of Nelson and Mallory, the reeve, C. H. Curtis, and deputy reeve, C. J. Boyce, were appointed to represent the municipal council on the Community Hall Board, and the present members from the different societies be re-elected, namely, Mrs. Thomas Smith, Mrs. George Walker, Miss Minnie Gallagher, and W. A. Kelly. Following this the Counil adjourned.

CAVAN PLAY IS WELL RECEIVED

"Her Step Husband" Staged by Dramatic Club of Trinity Church, Omemee.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAVAN, Jan. 26. — An excellent play, "Her Step Husband," was well presented in Cavan Community Hall, by the Dramatic Club of Trinity Church, Omemee.

The parts were particularly well taken and the beautiful costumes were an attractive feature of the play.

A splendid quartette contributed pleasing numbers between acts. Owing to a number of social events in the locality the crowd was not as large as was expected.

Miss L. Syer spent a few days of last week with her cousin, Miss Jean Syer, Millbrook.

Mrs. Creighton Carr's Group of Cavan, Women's Institute, held a sewing bee on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Swain, and son, David of Valentia, spent the past week visiting friends in Cavan.

Mrs. E. Syer and Mr. Kenneth Syer, motored to South Monaghan on Sunday, and visited Mr. and Mrs Herb Syer.

Cavan United Church annual meeting, is being held in the church on Wednesday evening.

JOHN A. SCHAULIS.

Many in Peterborough will regret to learn of the tragic death of John A. Schaulis, aged 51, well-known business man of Washington, Penn. Mr. Schaulis met instant death when a rifle which he was cleaning accidentally discharged, and the bullet plowed through his left side, reaching his heart. He spent the summer here and at Stoney Lake in 1929, cruising up the Trent in his fine cruiser Bec the Second. He also visited among friends here in the fall of 1931.

The death occurred this morning at her residence, 590 Chamberlain Street, of Mary Jane Howden, widow of Jasper Wright, in her 64th year.

A native of Cavan Township, the deceased was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Howden. Before coming into the city to live some ten years ago, Mrs. Wright had resided in North Monaghan Township.

TOWN'S RELIEF IN "STALEMATE"

Sturgeon Falls Unable to Pay Month's Bill Totalling $22,135.

PROVINCE REFUSES.

STURGEON FALLS, Ont., Jan. 26—(CP)—A "stalemate" was reached in relief payments this month with the town unable and the province unwilling to act, W. L. Fortier, clerk treasurer of Sturgeon Falls, told the Royal Commission enquiry into relief disbursements of the town.

Minutesof a meeting on Jan. 10 showed council passed relief accounts totalling $22,135 with the clause added: "Said accounts be accepted and authorized to be paid when the money has been received from the government."

"Have these accounts not been paid?" asked Judge J. M. Hall, commissioner.

"Not yet," replied Fortier.

"Are you going to represent them to Toronto as having been paid?"

"No, but we have no money and have to wait until we get money from the government to pay this," said the treasurer.

"It's a sort of stalemate then. The government won't give you the money and you can't pay the accounts until you get it?" the judge asked.

"That is right," retored Fortier.

The meeting of Jan. 10 was a statutory meeting, he said, but no committees had been struck as required by the municipal act. "The mayor said he would wait until after this enquiry to appoint the committees," the treasurer explained.

Meetings In City Are Starting Late

Just as a matter of curiosity, could some obliging citizen explain why so many public meetings this season are late in starting?

There is no especial offender in this regard. The late starters range all the way from church organizations, school gatherings and social welfare meetings, to affairs like bridge parties and concerts. Keeping tab on them lately, a reporter has discovered that the difference in advertised time for starting and the actual time for commencing fluctuates anywhere from fifteen to forty-five minutes in length. There doesn't seem to be any particular reason for the late start. It is just getting to be a habit.

Police Are Probing Death Of Infant

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Jan. 26 (C.P.)—Provincial Police to-day are investigating the death of an infant said to have been born yesterday to Miss Gladys Kingswell, 21, of St. Vincent Township. An inquest will be held under Dr. F. L. Eberheart, Meaford.

The body of the infant is now in an undertaking parlors at Meaford, where a post-mortem examination was held to-day, revealing the child had breathed following birth.

Miss Kingswell is in a serious condition at the home of her parents.

The Chinese claim that glass and even lenses were known and manufactured by them as far back as 2,000 B.C.

DIED

WRIGHT.—On January 26, 1933, Mary Jane Howden, widow of the late Jasper Wright, at her residence, 590 Chamberlain street, in her 64th year. The funeral is to be held from the above address on Saturday, at 2 p.m. Interment at St. John's Cemetery, Ida.

ST. THOMAS' CHURCH, MILLBROOK HAS SUCCESSFUL YEAR'S WORK

Encouraging Reports Read at Annual Vestry Meeting Held on Monday.

APPOINT OFFICERS

MILLBROOK, Jan. 26 (Examiner Correspondence) — A successful year's work in the parish of Cavan, so far as St. Thomas' Church, Millbrook, was concerned was evidenced by the reports presented at the annual vestry meeting held in the Parish Hall on Monday evening, with the rector, Rev. William Simpson, B.A., presiding and the attendance representative of the congregation and the various organizations.

The devotions and reading of the minutes of last year's gathering were followed by the incumbent's report, Rev. Mr. Simpson mentioning that the second year of incumbency in a parish is usually considered a difficult one since the sense of newness has worn off, but speaking personally he had been very happy in the work of the parish, harmonious relationships had reigned, organizations had co-operated with the rector readily, and good work had been accomplished.

A desire to see a larger attendance at public worship was voiced by the rector, and appreciation was warmly expressed for the kindness extended in many ways. The separation of Holy Trinity Church (the Marsh) from the parish of Cavan to the parish of Manvers was referred to, and while the breaking of ties of long years' standing with the parish of Cavan had not been easy the change had evidently worked out beneficially during the twelve months. Two geat changes in the Anglican Church in Canada were mentioned, namely the fact that nine bishops had been given new dioceses during the year, including that of the diocese of Toronto with which Cavan is affiliated, and the calamity in the parish of Rupert's Land through the Machray disaster which means that the large amount involved is to be made up, if possible, by asking every parish in the Dominion to assist.

Apparently a house to house canvass will be made near Easter to secure funds for this purpose to make up the deficit.

Financial Report

The people's warden, J. E. Allen, presented the financial report, the total amount raised being $1554.63, expenditures $1463.90, balance on hand $90.73. Considering that part of the principal, as well as the interest on the money, for the rectory fund had been wiped off, and that all apportionments are practically met, the report was voted satisfactory, especially in view of present economic conditions and in a parish that is largely rural.

The rector's warden, R. I. Fallis, also had an encouraging report, and he and Mr. Allen were re-appointed for 1933, the rector expressing his personal gratitude for the services of these two officers who relieve him of all responsibility regarding the finances of the church.

Sidesmen for 1933 are: J. J. Clarke, Dr. H. A. Turner, E. W. Bonneville, George Howson, A. A. Needler, H. B. Allen, D. R. Fowler, G. F. Harrington, Alex Harkness and Fred Burton. The vestry clerk, E. W. Bonneville was also appointed again and thanked for the faithful and efficient manner in which his duties are performed. The advisory board includes: Wilbert John Dawson, J. J. Clarke, E. H. Barnes, and the lay delegates and heads of organizations in the church. Auditors are T. H. Collins and G. F. Burton.

The cemetery committee was elected as follows: H. B. Allen, A. A. Needler, J. J. Clarke, T. J. Lang, D. Dunlop, T. H. Collins and James Mitchell.

Reports from the various organizations were satisfactory in detail, R. Stone presenting that of the Sunday School of which he is the superintendent; E. W. Bonneville the A.Y.P.A., and Mrs. Westmacott the W.A., the Junior W.A., the Little Helpers and the Women's Guild, all have a balance on hand and all obligations fully met.

Adjournment of the congregational meeting in order to elect the lay delegates found Dr. H. A. Turner, E. W. Bonneville and H. B. Allen appointed to represent the congregation at the Synod, with the two wardens as substitutes. The rector closed the meeting with prayer.

CHURCHES HOLD ANNUAL MEETS

St. Andrew's of Norwood Shows Balance to Begin Year With.

ANGLICAN OFFICERS

NORWOOD, Jan. 26 (Examiner Correspondence) — The annual meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Norwood, was held on Monday night with a good attendance. After devotional exercises by the Rev. A. C. Reeves, Mr. H. Godin, chairman of the managers' board took charge. The treasurers of the different organizations gave their reports, which were exceptionally satisfactory, showing in most cases an increase in finances over former years.

A pleasing feature of the meeting was the report of Mr. Thomas Lumsden, treasurer of the congregation, showing that all obligations of the past year had been met, and that the congregation were starting the year 1933 free of debt, with a small balance on the right side of the ledger.

Votes of thanks were tendered the auditors, Messrs. Waddel and Thompson and all other officers of the different organizations for their untiring efforts in carrying on the work.

The three retiring managers Messrs. Godin, Gordon and Edwards were reappointed, also the new managers Messrs. Lumsden, Campbell and Burgess. At the close of the business period refreshments were served by the ladies and a social hour followed.

Christ's Church

The annual vestry meeting of Christ's Church was held last Monday evening. Reports from the A.Y.P.A. and Sunday School were given. The following officers were elected for 1933; Wardens, P. M. Obituary

ORAN W. HUBEL

HAVELOCK, Jan. 26 (Examiner Correspondence).—Havelock lost a pioneer citizen in the death of Oran W. Hubel at his home here on Monday morning, following an illness of long duration. Mr. Hubel was in his 82nd year and was one of the village earliest citizens, coming here in 1865. Since that time he was employed in the Bridge and Building Department of the C.P.R. until forced to retire a few years ago.

The deceased was twice married. His first wife, Nancy Elizabeth Greau passed away in 1900. From that marriage he leaves two children, Lemuel W. Hubel of Toronto and Miss Ethel of town. Later he married Elizabeth Keller, widow of the late Willis Hubel, and she survives him. He was most highly respected by a large circle of friends and relatives, and his passing is universally regretted. The funeral took place with services at the house at 1.30 p.m. Interment took place in Maple Grove cemetery.

WILLIAM JAMES BUDD

MILLBROOK, Jan. 26 (Examiner Correspondence)—The death of William James Budd, whose whole life had been spent in Millbrook and vicinity, came as a distinct shock to the entire community, the sad event taking place on the evening of Saturday, January 21, after a brief illness with pleuro-pneumonia, complicated by heart trouble of longer standing. He was in his sixty-fourth year.

Deceased was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bud, and was born in Cavan Township the family home being east of the village on the road leading to the Lower Mill, and in his earlier young manhood he was employed in the brickyard owned by the late Harry Hall and located on what is now the Muspratt farm. Over forty years ago Mr. Budd came to Millbrook to reside, and in all his relationships whether with the municipal council, or with the several householders in whose employ he had been for periods varying from twenty to more than thirty years, he was known as a man of absolute fidelity of character, respected and trusted by all who knew him.

Mr. Budd was for many years a member of the local volunteer fire company, rendering efficient service, a life-long Anglican in religion, and a Conservative in politics. For eighteen years deceased filled the position of caretaker of St. Thomas' Anglican Church.

Forty years ago Mr. Budd was married to Isabel McCorry, who survives him as do also two sons, William, of Port Hope, and Edward (Ted) of the Bank of Toronto staff, Millbrook; their eldest son, Frederick, served overseas in the World War, suffering shell shock and gas, to the efects of which his death, a comparatively short time after returning home, was directly due. Other surviving relatives are two sisters, Mrs. Grant Watkins, of Himrod, N.Y., and Mrs. Charles Mitchell, of Elmira, N.Y., another sister, Mrs. P. Bailey, of Rochester, N.Y. and a brother, Isaac, of Shortsville, N.Y., being previously deceased. There are four grandchildren.

The funeral took place on Tuesday, a private service at the home, King street, preceding the public service in St. Thomas' Church, the large gathering of citizens representative of the village and countryside being but another testimony to the high esteem in which the deceased was held. The Reverend William Simpson, B.A., rector of the parish of Cavan, had charge of the service.

Two favorite hymns of the deceased, "Sun of My Soul," and "Abide with Me," were sung at the service, and the pall-bearers were six members of the fire company: J. J. Clarke, W. Tremaine, G. W. Sayles, D. Sheppard, Harold Nattress and A. Jeffrey, the flower bearers being other members of the local brigade.

Among the many beautiful floral tributes which were laid in loving memory on the casket were wreaths, or sprays, from the congregation of St. Thomas' Church; the Sunday School, and the A.Y.P.A., of the Anglican communion; the Millbrook Volunteer Fire Company, the Millbrook Municipal Council, the staff of the Bank of Toronto, the bank itself closing during the time of the funeral as a mark of respect, the family, Dr. and Mrs. H. A. Turner, Mrs. J. C. and Miss Anna Kells, ex-Warden W. T. and Miss Margaret Wood, Mrs. C. M. Westmacott, and Miss Margaret Christie. Interment was in St. Paul's cemetery, Fourth Line, Cavan.

Among those from outside points who attended the funeral were: Mr. Wesley and Mrs. Charles Mitchell, of Palmyra, N.Y.; Mrs. W. G. Watkins, of Himrod, N.Y.; Mrs. William Madill, of Rochester, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fisher, and Miss Eleanor Fisher, and Mr. Fred McCorry, of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hall of Toronto are in the city and attended the funeral this morning of the latter's mother, the late Mrs. F. Carveth of Charlotte street.

It is interesting to note that Monsignor C. J. Crowley of Sault Ste. Marie, whose investiture with the title of Monsignor took place yesterday, when Bishop Scollard of North Bay officiated at the ceremony in Sault Ste. Marie, is a native of this district. He was born in the township of Otonabee and was ordained for this diocese on December 17th, 1903. He spent a short time as curate at St. Peter's Cathedral and was then transferred by the late Bishop O'Connor to New Ontario. When the diocese was divided and Sault Ste. Marie diocese was given its own bishop, Father Crowley automatically stayed with the new section. He was curate at the cathedral in North Bay under Bishop Scollard and later went as curate to Sturgeon Falls. In succession, he became parish priest at Cache Bay, then at Warren, then at Copper Cliff and still later at Sudbury, where he built the present rectory. As parish priest of Sault Ste. Marie he has charge of a very old historic stone church, built about seventy-five years ago, he was created Dean and on December 17th of last year, just thirty years from the date of his ordination, he received the title of Monsignor which was confirmed at the ceremony yesterday. The Rev. J. J. O'Brien of this city, who was to be a guest at the ceremony, was prevented by a cold from attending. A sister of Monsignor Crowley, Mrs. William Lynch, resides on McDonell street.

Tea was served by the ladies of the social committee under the convenorship of Mrs. Frank Pratt. Just Between Us Women

EMERY BOARDS can be put to various other uses besides shaping the finger nails and smoothing rough edges of nails.

* * * * * *

These little boards, I am told, are made by mixing cardboard pulp with pulverized emery and then molding them, or by coating cardboard with emery powder.

* * * * * * *

The advantage of the latter method is that the powder on one side is finer than on the other. This is a decided advantage, as the finer side permits smoother finishing of surfaces.

* * * * * * *

It is said that if one files the fingernails and shapes them on the emery boards, that they will not get so thick or coarse as when cut with scissors.

* * * * * * *

But whether one prefers to cut the nails or file them, emery boards are practically indispensable for the shaping and smoothing of edges.

* * * * * * *

It is of the other uses of these handy boards that chief mention is to be made to-day, however. I wonder how many of you have used emery boards to straighten turned points of needles, or to make points on blunted needles?

* * * * * * *

It certainly is a convenient method, especially if the needle is one for a sewing machine, and no other needle of the same size is available at the time.

* * * * * * *

The way to sharpen points is to rub them with a circular motion on the rougher side of the emery board. When the needle is bent at the tip, the tiny bent part is first ground off by rubbing.

* * * * * * *

It is surprising how quickly this can be done. Then when no slighter turned-up nib is perceptible, use the circular motion to grind the tip to an even point, and the steel about it to a smooth roundness.

* * * * * * *

Use the finer side of the emery board to polish off the needle and smooth the steel to a shiny surface.

* * * * * * *

This same general method is used to put a needle point to a pencil. The lead is conserved by this type of sharpening. By shaving off the wood with the pencil sharpener until the lead is sufficiently exposed and then pointing the lead on the emery board, a wonderfully good tip can be made without breaking the lead.

* * * * * * *

When china, semi-porcelain, or crockery gets nicked or parts broken off, smooth the roughened surfaces by means of the emery board, and the utensils are better looking and easier to handle.

AN INQUIRY FROM CALGARY

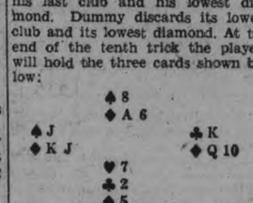
The hand below comes from Calgary, Alberta, Canada, with this inquiry: "Hearts are trumps. The opening lead is the Q of spades. Y-Z are to make a grand slam. Can the problem be worked, and how?"

I have not verified my idea that the hand is one given by Mr. S. S. Lenz, in his last prize contest. If not the same, at least it must be played in the same way. Instructions follow for making the grand slam. It is a double squeeze.

Win the first trick with dummy's K. Discard declarer's lowest diamond. Lead dummy's lowest spade and trump, as soon as dummy has played off its two high trumps. Upon the second trump lead A may discard his lowest spade. After which A never must let go a spade until after dummy has discarded or played from that suit, or dummy will hold long spade.

Lead the J of hearts. This is the point where nearly every player falls down. A must let go either a club or a diamond. Dummy must discard from that same suit. Suppose that A lets go a club; so must dummy. B may as well do the same. Immediately the declarer must stop leading trumps, and he must lead the suit from which A and dummy have discarded. In this case he must lead a club and win with dummy's Ace. Upon the lead of dummy's Ace of spades the declarer must discard a card of the suit from which A has not discarded. In this case Z must discard a diamond.

Y-Z have won seven straight tricks. Lead dummy's lowest spade. Declarer must trump The ninth and tenth tricks must be won by leading hearts by Z. A must let go his last club and his lowest diamond. Dummy discards its lowest club and its lowest diamond. At the end of the tenth trick the players will hold the three cards shown below:



Put on the final squeeze. Lead declarer's last heart. Each player must discard. If A lets go his spade, the spade and the Ace of diamonds in dummy win the last two tricks. If A keeps his spade, dummy keeps his two diamonds, and discards his spade. If B lets go his club, declarer's club and the Ace of diamonds win the last two tricks. If B lets go a diamond, both diamonds in dummy become good. No play can prevent a grand slam.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

It looks as if the old question of predicting before it is born whether the baby is going to be a boy or a girl, can be settled by strictly scientific tests.

There have been thousands of ways suggested by old wives and wise women, such as whether a coin tossed over the shoulder lights head or tails and by charms and incantations. But none of them, of course, has had any rational basis.

The best system I ever heard was that of my old friend, Dr. Adrian Gibbs. When Dr. Gibbs was asked by the mother whether the baby was going to be a boy or girl he would answer with great confidence, "A boy." Then he would write down in his notebook the mother's name, and "girl" after it. When the baby came, if it was a boy, everybody praised the doctor for making the proper prophecy. If it was a girl, he disputed their words and showed them his notebook in which he had written down on the very day the prophecy was made, the sex of the child.

There come now two doctors from San Francisco who have discovered a more scientific method. It appears that there are certain chemical substances which appear early in the blood of an expectant mother. When obtained from her—an easy process—and injected into a young female white mouse, they will cause certain changes in the mouse within a short time. This test, known as the Aschheim-Zondek test, now is used quite universally when early diagnosis of expectant mothers is important.

The San Francisco physicians became curious and injected into male instead of female animals. To their surprise in about half of them definite changes were found to occur in the male. The women who were use for these tests bore male children. The physicians have found that the test is accurate in about 85 per cent of the cases.

I hear that there was one rather curious result, a woman who gave a neutral test in one laboratory, a test showing she was going to have a girl in another laboratory, and a test showing she was going to have a boy in another laboratory. The explanation was quite clear when she was delivered of twins—a boy and a girl.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

E. T. K.: "Please give details of paroxysmal tachycardia of the heart, and its cause and outcome?"

Answer: Paroxysmal tachycardia means attack of extremely rapid heart action, coming on suddenly and leaving suddenly. Its exact cause is not known, but appears to be nervous. Some people are subject to these paroxysms. Sometimes it occurs in the course of thyroid disease. As to outcome, it is, in my experience, never fatal, and seldom serious.

Apples trees that were artificially lighted yielded fewer wormy apples, from which experimenters concluded that light tends to deter codling moths from egg-laying.

SCARLET THREAD

By GLADYS ST. JOHN LOE

Lissa Dighton came out of the bathroom humming a tune she had heard on the wireless the night before.

It was a glorious morning. The scent of syringa and June roses floated in at the open windows. A bird was singing somewhere in the garden outside. And she was to meet Roger Winn at the Savoy for lunch.

She was very happy.

She seated herself upon a pouf, before a low wide-winged dressing table, and was just beginning to spread the sweet-scented foam of an expensive vanishing cream over her face, when the door behind her opened violently and Richard burst—"urst" is precisely the right word—into the room.

She caught sight of him in the mirror and his expression startled her. Only very rarely had she seen him look like that, and then only under extreme provocation.

She swung round and faced him, the cream still smeared in grotesque dabs upon her cheeks and the end of her chin.

"Good gracious, Dick!" she exclaimed. "How you made me jump!"

He strode forward—"strode" is again the word—and held a sheet of note-paper brusquely towards her.

"Perhaps," he invited grimly, "youd have the goodness to explain how this letter came to be in the pocket of my tennis blazer?"

She gave one look at it and felt exactly as she had once felt on a scenic railway. Her heart seemed to turn a complete somersault and then drop like a stone through limitless space.

It was the note she had slipped into Roger Winn's coat at the tennis club the previous evening.

For a moment she was too astonished, as well as too frightened, to speak. She just sat quite still staring blankly up into Richard's eyes.

"Bit of bad luck for you, eh? Picking the wrong pocket—and your own husband's into the bargain?" He waved the note violently before her. "If you've no objection, I should like to know which of the other nine men playing at the club last night it was intended for?"

"But, Dick——!"

"Also—exactly how far the affair has gone?"

"But, really——!"

"And whether you're contemplating a divorce—or anything of that sort?"

"Divorce?" She sprang to her feet, wiping the cream hurriedly off with a handkerchief, and faced him defiantly. She was frightened—more frightened than she ever remembered having been before—but she wasn't going to show it, she wasn't going to "give herself away" if she could possibly help it. "I don't know what you're talking about."

"No?" His upper lip curled cynically. "P'raps you'd like to have a good look at it—to refresh your memory?"

He thrust the note into her hands and for a moment she stared blindly down at it, aware of nothing but a confused jumble of sprawling pen-strokes. Then, abruptly, the words stood out with a horrible clearness.

Darling Bubbles,

It's all right about to-morrow. The old bear will be safely on his chain. Lunch at the Savoy—and then a matinee. I'll leveave the choice of the show to you. What does it matter what we see—so long as we're together?

If only you knew how impatient I am——

She turned the letter over in her hands, desperately seeking some means of escape, some strategic lifeline by which she might haul herself back into safety.

And suddenly she found it.

With a flash of inspiration she realized that the letter bore no date or address, nor any name but her own.

She began to laugh—softly at first, then a little wildly.

"Oh, Dick!" she gasped. "Dick! How could you be such a fool?"

He stared at her in astonishment. Her assurance was so convincing that, for a moment, his own confidence wavered. Then:

"It may seem very funny to you," he replied. "But I'm afraid I can't share your amusement. When a man finds his wife writing love letters to another man——"

"But are you sure that it was written to another man?"

"Wel—hang it all——!" He paused. The expression in her eyes puzzled him. "You're surely not going to suggest that it was meant for me?"

"Of course."

She pursed her lips exasperatingly.

"Well, it was written two years ago—before I married you——"

"Lissa!"

"That time I was staying at Maidenhead with Aunt Julie, to be exact. Don't you remember how you used to come over and play tennis in the evenings?—And how I used to put notes into your pocket?"

"Yes, but——?"

"You're not going to tell me you never even read it?"

He shook his head. The fierceness was draining out of him like wind out of a pricked balloon. He was beginning to feel rather foolish.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "the envelope was sealed."

"Then you couldn't have read it?"

"Apparently not." He raked a hand vaguely through his hair. "Though I don't see how it could have stopped in that pocket all this time without my finding it."

"Oh, that's easily explained." She curled up on the pouf, tucking her feet, tailor-wise, under her. "Yesterday was the first time you'd worn that coat since we've been married. I only came across it a few days ago—at the bottom of that old brown trunk in the attic."

He wanted to believe her—wanted it with a quite surprising urgency. He screwed his brows into a puzzled frown. "And—and 'the old bear'? Who on earth's that? If it isn't me?"

"Why, Uncle James, of course. Don't you remember what a bore he was? And the trouble we always had getting rid of him?"

"By Jove, yes! Yes, I remember that."

A smile broke suddenly through the scowl on Richard's face. The last shred of doubt was banished.

He stuffed the note hurriedly into a pocket.

"I'm a fool all right," he admitted. "Every sort of a prize idiot, in fact." He took a quick step towards Lissa and hesitated. "Can you—will you—forgive me?"

She was in his arms, her head tucked into the hollow under his chin, his face buried in the soft cloud of her hair. The thrill of her went through him like the touch of a live wire. He kissed a little damp patch behind one of her ears, and said impulsively:

"I say, Kid—I needn't go to the office to-day. Why not let's do what the letter says? Lunch at the Savoy—and then a matinee or something?"

Over his shoulder she made a little grimace into the mirror.

"I'd love to. But I've promised to have lunch with Mrs. Clifton-Joyce—and then go shopping with her afterwards. Isn't it a fag?"

"To-morrow, then?"

"Perhaps."

He whistled—the same gay little snatch of dance tune that Lissa had sung in her bath—as he ran lightly up the steps of the Silverdale Tennis Club pavilion.

The incident of Lissa and the note still lingered teasingly at the back of his mind. He was still wondering how he could "make up" to her for his ridiculous behavior, when he caught sight of Mrs. Winn at the other end of the veranda.

She smiled and strolled forward to greet him, a tennis racket swinging carelessly in one hand.

"Hardly anybody here yet," she remarked pleasantly.

"Oh, by the way, d'you know you went off with Roger's blazer last night?"

He started. A horrible feeling, like the pressure of a cold hand, seemed to close about his heart.

"Roger's? Are you sure?"

Richard Dighton's voice had dropped to a leaden flatness. He stared hard at Mrs. Winn and then down at the coat he was wearing.

"It's the dead image of my own," he said. "What makes you so certain it's Rogers?"

She prodded at him with her finger. "See that button? I sewed it on just before he came out last evening. I hadn't any dark cotton—so I used a bit of scarlet thread I'd been making some blinds with. I didn't think it would notice—for one evening."

HEADACHE AFTER HEADACHE

Now She's Free From Them

A woman writes: "I would like everyone who suffers from headaches to try Kruschen Salts. Before taking Kruschen I was hardly ever free from a headache. But since I have been taking it regularly I have hardly had a headache, for which I am very thankful, for headaches can make one feel quite ill. I have been taking that small dose of Kruschen every morning in a glass of warm water, before my breakfast, and I feel so well."—(Mrs.) A.E.D.

Headaches can generally be traced to a disordered stomach and to the unsuspected retention in the system of stagnating waste material which poisons the blood. Remove these poisons—prevent them forming again—and you'll never have to worry any more. And that is just how Kruschen Salts bring swift and lasting relief from headaches. Kruschen Salts aid Nature to cleanse your body completely of all clogging waste matter. Start on "the little daily dose" of Kruschen to-morrow. Then you will very soon have done with headaches.

Centre Of South American War

As though taking their cue from Japan and China, Bolivia and Paraguay in South America are staging their own little dispute over the question of boundaries—a question that has never been properly settled between the two countries. The dispute has developed into a real war and under the guidance of General Hans Kundt, German army officer, the Bolivians at the moment are having the best of the battle. It was reported that more than 5,000 men were killed in a recent struggle in the Gran Chaco district about which the war rages. The outstanding battle of the fray to date was the clash at Fort Nanawa, a stronghold of the Paraguayans. It was here that each side lost 2,500 men, it was reported. Generl Kundt, genuius of the Bolivian army, is shown. The map shows the situation of the two countries and of the area in dispute. Efforts at peace have been made by the League of Nations and by a committee of countries surrounding, including the United States.

Upwards of 8,000 uses are recorded for the various parts of the palmyra palm, which is considered the most useful plant in the world.

TERM IN JAIL FOR SELLING

Two Youth Fined $10.00 for Trespassing in Chemong Cottage.

TWO DRUNKS FINED.

Police raided the home of Stephen O. Dunk at 125 Lock street early last evening, located three and a half cases of beer, and arrested Dunk and a customer, Bert Howden.

In police court this morning, Dunk pleaded guilty to a charge of keeping liquor for sale. He was sentenced immediately to two months in the county goal. Howden pleaded guilty to a charge of having liquor in his possession while not being a holder of a permit. He was given the option of a $100 fine or three months in gaol.

Two local men, whom Chief Newhall said were holding a circus on Simcoe street last night, were charged with being drunk in a public place. They paid a fine of $10 each.

Arrested several Sunday evenings ago in Sheriff Hall's cottage at Chemong Park by Provincial Constables Silvester and Warren, two local youths pleaded guilty to charges of trespassing and were fined the maximum under that section, $10 and $4 costs.

Police alleged that the youths had two girls with them and had lighted a fire in the stove and were prepared to spend a comfortable evening in the cottage. Emmett Sheehy, their counsel, stated that the youths had found the lock on the door undone and the door open and had merely walked in. They had done no damage, he said.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., agreed with Magistrate Langley that the youths had narrowly escaped being charged with the serious offenec of breaking and entering. Mr. McElderry pointed out that other cottages had been used in the same manner and that the danger from fires was great. Magistrate Langley issued a strict warning that the court was not disposed to look with leniency upon such offences, and levied the maximum fine.

Eastern Ontario Threshermen Meet in Peterboro'

THRESHERMEN SEEK TO HAVE ACT MADE LAW

Eastern Ontario Threshermen Hold Convention in Peterborough.

WELCOMED BY MAYOR.

Lien Act is Discussed By Several Convention Speakers.

A renewed effort to have enacted by the Ontario Government a Lien Law as a protection to the threshers of the province in their dealings with the grain growers, will be made as the result of a decision reached at the seventh annual convention of the Eastern Ontario Brotherhood of Threshermen in this city yesterday. Petition will be circulated, members of the Government canvassed and a deputation to Government organized in an endeavor to further the passage of the proposed measure.

The discussion of the Lien Law and of ways and means of securing its passage were the principal topics of the convention. Forty threshermen representative of five counties in Central and Eastern Ontario were present. Principal speakers of the afternoon were E. A. Gee of Lindsay, A. H. Martin of Toronto, a representative of the Department of Agriculture, and Mayor Roland Denne of Peterborough. President W. H. McMillan held the chair.

Mayor Roland Denne opened the convention with an address of welcome to the city to the delegates at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. "It is an honor and privilege to have you meet in Peterborough and I wish to welcome you all," he declared. "You have had a difficult year as we all have had. We are all with you in the hope that the clouds will lift soon. If conditions on the farm do not improve we can not hope for conditions elsewhere to become any brighter. We are glad to have you in the city and if there is anything the city can do to help you, we shall be glad to do it."

Joseph Cushman

Joseph Cushman, of London secretary of the Western Ontario Brotherhood of Threshermen, replied to the welcome of the Mayor expressing the hope that the annual convention could be held in this city another year. Following the reading of the minutes of the last annual meeting by H. E. Dunn, the secretary-treasurer, Mr. Cushman delivered an address which was one of the features of the afternoon.

The Western division of the Brotherhood is strongly behind the movement for the Lien Law, Mr. Cushman reported. At their recent annual convention, he said, the proposed Lien Law was the principal topic and its promotion was enthusiastically supported. Petitions being circulated in Western Ontario in favor of the law now have a total of six hundred signatures and it is hoped that by February the total will reach one thousand, he reported.

Explaining the proposed law, Mr. Cushman said that several objections have been raised by the farmers of the province as the result of misconceptions of the measure. The measure would give the thresher a lien on enough of the farmer's grain which he threshed to ensure payment of his charges, he explained. Many farmers have interpreted the proposed act as giving lien on all the grain threshed, which is far from the case, Mr. Cushman pointed out. The proposed act provides that if a farmer does not settle the threshing bill within thirty days the thresher may sell enough of the grain to secure the amount of his bill. One clause provides that if grain prices at the time are at an impractical level, an extension of time may be arranged on agreement between the thresher and the farmer.

Further Objection

A further objection which is current, Mr. Cushman stated, is that the measure would give the thresherman's bill priority over a farmer's other debts. This is not a valid objection, he declared, for it is the thresher who takes the farmer's raw product and puts it into saleable condition.

"There is something else we must face," Mr. Cushman continued. "It is the competition of the second-hand threshing machine. We threshers are blaming the manufacturers for the competition we are suffering from the second-hand machine but we ourselves are as much to blame. We trade in our old machines when we buy new ones so it is natural for the manufacturers to re-sell them. We would be much better off to scrap our old machines than have to compete against them. Representatives of two threshing machine companys attended our western convention and promised to co-operate with us in the matter.

E. A. Gee of Lindsay addressed the convention on the subject of the benefit the threshermen in Western Canada have received from the Lien Laws in force there. He described briefly the three acts in force in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. In Saskatchewan the thresher has a lien on enough of the farmer's grain to pay his bill for a period of sixty days from threshing. The lien has priority over other obligations of the farmer except for the wages of the workmen and except in cases where seed grain is involved. The Manitoba act, he said, gives the thresher the right to retain a certain amount of grain to cover the threshing bill during a period of thirty days. The thresher must give proper notice that he is retaining the grain. The Alberta act gives a protection similar to that in the other two acts but the machine and separator of the thresher must be registered first with the Department of Agriculture.

Benefit a Few

"You in Ontario must realize what you are up against in trying to have a Lien Law enacted. The act will benefit only a few and it will be difficult to have the Government take it seriously. However, the thresherman deserves protection and success may come if you try hard to get the bill before the Government."

A. H. Martin of the Department of Agriculture addressed the convention, making some observations on the type of work being done by threshing machines, hullers and combination outfits in Peterborough district. He stated that some complaints had come from Britain as the result of some shipments during the past year of clover seed which had been injured in culling. The Department traced most of this clover seed to the Peterborough region of Ontario, he said.

"We do not want anything like that to injure our trade," Mr. Martin declared. "In nearly every case, the splitting and chipping of the clover seeds can be avoided when care is exercised. I believe that most of the mills on the market today will do good work if they are operated carefully and efficiently. The investigation which the Department conducted in this region showed that much good work is being done but that there is room for improvement in other cases. In regard to clover I think that the most important thing to be remembered is that the best time to thresh it is in October after the frost has come."

At the close of the convention, John Payne of Warsaw was elected president of the Brotherhood for the coming year. J. I. Adams of Campbellford was elected vice-president and H. E. Dunn was returned to his post of secretary-treasurer. Three members appointed to the executive committee were Herbert Jones, Omemee; Joseph Slattery, Peterborough, and Harry Elliott, Lang. The legislative committee will consist of Charles Mills, Omemee; Percy Wilson, Norwood, and R. W. Henderson, Ida.

NR TO-NIGHT TOMORROW ALRIGHT

SEWING MACHINE IS BADLY NEEDED

Coal Oil Lamps Are Also Requested for Unemployed Homes.

A special appeal is being made for a sewing machine, for a woman who can earn a little money by sewing.

Coal-oil lamps for homes where the electric current has been turned off on account of non-payment of light bills, are another prime necessity, also cook stoves and bedsprings.

If anyone has any of these articles, they would be much appreciated at the Relief Bureau in the former C.D.S. Groceteria on George Street. Please telephone 3315 and they will be called for.

Business is brisk at this depot, where supplies are given out to those who apply by ticket, received from Relief Inspector Metheral. But many more things are needed.

An idea of conditions in some homes may be gleaned from extracts from the following letter from a man who is out of work and who needs every cent of the weekly allowance to feed his family and provide milk for two very young children. There are two more children and himself and his wife. His need is clothing. He says:

"I haven't a thing to wear outside only the suit I got two years ago last Christmas, and we had to cut the vest up to patch the pants, for I have had to wear them to work now for some weeks. When I go up for my city order, I have to borrow a pair of trousers. We are all down with the 'flu now, and I have to look after two babies, and I had to get lemons on our grocery order which brought it up to 40 cents more, as it was the doctor's orders."

Then there are cases like that of the woman who comes up town to apply for help, and wears her daughter's shoes. They use the one pair turn about, just like the old lady who borrows her grandchild's coat when she wants to take a little walk.

TOASTED QUAIL

ROCHESTER, Ind. — Telephone users wondered what was the matter with their service until a "trouble shooter" for the company found it was all due to toasted quail. The bird became fastened between two wires, causing a short circuit.

Here's the secret of

A sunny disposition

LOOK around at your friends. Isn't it a fact that those who are happy and cheerful are folks who enjoy good health? The two go together.

Poor health reflects itself in your manner to other people. Too often, lack of personality can be traced to constipation. It may cause loss of appetite and energy. Yet it can be overcome by eating a delicious cereal.

Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regularity. The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. ALL-BRAN also contains twice as much blood-building iron as an equal weight of beef liver.

Special cooking, flavoring and krumbling processes make Kellogg's ALL-BRAN finer, softer, more palatable. You will find it far more pleasant to enjoy a cereal in place of taking patent medicines. So much wiser too.

Two tablespoonfuls daily of ALL-BRAN will overcome most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor. At all grocers, in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

"When you're healthy, you're happy"

"How you feel — and how well you look — depends largely upon the food you eat. Be sure your diet is balanced — with sufficient 'bulk' to promote regularity."

W. K. Kellogg

REV. DR. BARR GUEST SPEAKER BURNS' NIGHT

Delightful Program Is Held By Members of Caledonian Club.

TOOK FORM OF CONCERT.

Burns Excelled Even Shakespeare in Possession of Vivid Imagination.

"Three characteristics of a genius are imagination, sensibility and ratiocination, the third being the ability to reason and argue things through from a given premise to a conclusion.

"Shakespeare had a great deal of the third. But Rober Burns excelled even Shakespeare in the possession of a most vivid and powerful imagination which he used to heighten the effect of his poetry and to portray a situation. He has made the glens, the streams and the mountains of Scotland live for his countrymen even more vividly than the portrayals by the Romans of the glories of their ancient land."

The Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, speaking last night at the Burns' anniversary held in the form of a concert by members of the local Caledonian Club, gave his listeners a vital portrait of the man whose "Immortal Memory" lives to-day in the hearts of his countrymen, even though for the space of one hundred and seventy-four years grass has grown green over his last resting place.

There were over a hundred of the local Scots and their friends in attendance at a very pleasurable evening, with a program that included the singing by local musicians of many of Robert Burns' fragrant songs and the recitation of some of his works.

Program Well Received

David Anderson, president of the club, was in the chair for the gathering, held in the hall of the Woodmen of the World, and introduced the various numbers on the program, which were beautifully rendered in each instance and called forth enthusiastic applause from the audience.

Miss Maisie Ralston sang "Bonny Mary of Argyle", with an encore in "Ye Banks and Braes"; John Beggs gave two readings, the second a lengthy feat of memory in the recitation of the adventures of that doughty knight of the flowing bowl "Tam o'Shanter"; John Smith sang "Scots Wha Hae" and a "Hebridean air, "Turn Ye to Me"; Miss Jessie Pattison sang "My Ain Kind Dearie" (The Lea Rig) and "John Anderson, My Jo"; Alex Milne piped valiantly in two selections, the encore being the stirring "Road to the Isles"; Miss Margaret Wyllie gave two readings, "Epistle to a Brother Poet", and "To a Mouse", and John Anderson sang "Rantin, Rovin Robin" and "Ae Fond Kiss."

Mrs. J. Foster and Miss Pearl Smith played the accompaniments.

Rev. Dr. Barr on Burns

The Rev. Dr. Barr, whose eloquent and thoughtful address manifestly founded on a great love and admiration for Scotia's national bard, was listened to with profound attention by his audience, including a dozen or so small editions of humanity who occupied front seats and drank in with much interest the recital of the work and character of their parents' idol, spoke about the poems and their characteristics and also devoted a brief period to a sketch of the character of the poet.

"Robert Burns" he said, "had an animated personality. That was one of his outstanding characteristics. He felt so deeply about certain things that his eyes would flash with animation and with such a flash of the eye came also the flash of genius. He had that vivid, animated personal force that makes him totally different to many other poets.

"Burns said of himself that he had a very retentive memory, a stubborn something in his disposition that was quite clear to himself and a great deal of native piety. He had the misfortune to lack an aim in life.

"He knew his own nature quite well and he knew also human nature in many of its phases. He did not go far afield for settings for his poetry. It was written in the Scotch Doric and he took for a background the scenery of his native land, describing it in detail with a vividness and intensity that makes it live forever in the minds of those who read his works. He drew characters that he knew; his friends and those he loved, with a certain humor that was coupled with tenderness and sympathy."

The speaker cited many examples of Burns' work which showed his lighter side, his humor and his unexcelled descriptive powers. There was the poem about the "Twa Dawgs," "The Death of Poor Maggie" and the "Salutation to his mare, Maggie", showing his tender sensibility; the humorous "Scotch Drink" in which the smith, incited by his spirits that dwelt in a glass, prepared to achieve mighty things in his toil; "The Two Brigs of Ayr" where a midnight ramble by the poet resulted in a curious vision of the wraiths of the two bridges and the manner in which the old and the new brig competed for popular esteem.

Satire of a personal type came into being in some of his criticisms of the church of his day. "The Address to the Unca Guid" and "Holy Willie's Prayer" demonstrated this ridicule of those "unca guid" people who, said the reverend speaker, saw that Burns did not get a square deal from the orthodox church factions of his time.

Quoting from some of the shorter poems, Rev. Dr. Barr illustrated his remarks with regard to the powers of imagination and description possessed by Robert Burns.

Pastoral Poems

"In the more serious side of his poetry, he was an adept in the pastoral type and excelled in describing rural scenes. In the two poems, "To a Mouse" and "To a Mountain Daisy" there is a great sensibility. But that very sensibility often led Burns to the verge of despair and regret and sorrow. I thought at one time that I could read nothing more sad than Byron's poem called "Darkness" but there is a greater measure of despair in Burns' "Despondency", in his "Winter" in his "Ode to Ruin" or "Man was Made to Mourn." These were written by a man contemplating with despair the darker side of life and seeing at its end very little hope.

"His most serious outstanding poem is "The Cottar's Saturday Night" in which there is much tender sentiment. It reveals a wealth of devotional feeling and of deep religious fervor and is an idyll of Scottish life, running the gamut of all the strings that entwine in human nature.

"In his lyric poems he gives us comedy and also talks much of the passion of love, always described from the viewpoint of self, not as an observer only, but as a participant in the ecstasies of emotion.

"He was a lover of the common clay and essentially the poet of the common man. He wrote "the short but simple annals of the poor" and he wrote of a man as a creature who, although bad at times, was still essentially good and a creature to be loved.

"Although a critic of the church of his time, he was a deeply religious man and he was a poet filled with patriotic fervor for his native land.

"He said his own life was spoiled by two things: lack of aim and lack of self control, but in those things he was only one of many. And his reaction to times of pleasure, later regretted, was the reaction of the Prodigal Son, who said "I will arise and go to my Father." He was essentially sincere and had no use for cant or deception or hypocrisy. He makes a perennial appeal to the Scottish people and recalls of them at all times memories of an older and a sweeter life."

At the conclusion of the address, a hearty tribute of thanks to Rev. Dr. Barr, also to the musicians of the evening, was voiced by R. Hendry. Refreshments were served and the balance of the evening spent in dancing to music played on the melodeon by R. Gilmour and the bagpipes by A. Milne.

East York Workers Hold Off Sheriff

TORONTO, Jan. 26 (C.P.) — Members of East York Workers' Association are picketing the home of W. Whittaker, ready to repulse all attempts to take possession of the house. The pickets question all who approach the place.

Under a writ of possession, a sheriff's officer and five helpers put Whittaker's furniture on the lawn Tuesday and took possession of the house for a second mortgagee who had paid the 1932 taxes.

When the Workers' met last night they were informed of the occurrence. They put the furniture back in the house.

LEAGUE SENDS PERU WARNING

Ask Lima Officials to Take No Action Beyond Defending Own Territory.

DISPUTE OVER PORT.

GENEVA, Jan. 26.—(A.P.) —The League of Nations Council authorized a message to the Peruvian Government to-day declaring it was Peru's duty not to hinder Colombian authorities in the exercise of "full sovereignty and jurisdiction in the territory recognized by treaty to belong to Colombia."

The message asked Lima authorities to direct Peruvian military commanders to this effect and to take no action beyond the defence of Peruvian territory. The Council sent another message to Colombia informing that government of the above action.

A Rio De Janeiro report said a Colombian fleet on the Upver Amazon was believed to have arrived last night at Leticia, the disputed port city 2,000 miles up the river from the Atlantitc ocean, which Peruvian citizens seized last September. A Peruvian commander previously said hostilities would be inevitable if the fleet arrived.

The telegram to Peru said, in part:

"The Council draws attention of the Peruvian Government to the fact that it is the duty of Peru, as a member of the League, to refrain from any intervention by force on Colombia territory and to insure that instructions are given Peruvian commanders that military forces of Peru will take no action beyond defence of Peruvian territory and not to hinder Colombian authorities from the exercise of full sovereignty and jurisdiction in the teritory recognized by treaty to belong to Colombia."

The Bogota message asked Colombia to take the strictest precautions to avoid a "violation" of Peruvian territory and to make this pacific intention clear to Peruvian authorities.

BONCOUR WINS FIRST SKIRMISH

Chamber Rejects Proposal to Return Finance Commission's Report.

PREMIER TO COMPROMISE.

PARIS, Jan. 26.—(A.P.) — The Paul Boncour government won its first skirmish in the budgetary battle to-day, the Chamber voting 368 against 306 in rejecting a proposal to return the Finance Commission's report. Premier Paul-Boncour, offered to compromise if new taxes were kept in proportion to economies.

Finance Minister Cheron explained a cost of 52,000 francs an hour represented the loss in taxes and economies which would be come effective the moment the bill was voted.

Thirty-two debaters were listed, making a decision on the budget report unlikely until Tuesday unless the government falls because of some special point.

Howls and shouted arguments punctuated the seething opening of debate with the government's life in the balance. The hubbub necessitated a suspension of the session until it was quiet enough for the vote.

The Finance Commission cut the government's budget project calling for 10,000,000 francs in new taxes and economies down to 2,530,000 francs in new taxes and only 915,000,000 in economies on Tuesday after a week's solid work. M. Cheron was dissatisfied and sought restoration of his project. He staked confidence against delay in opposing returning to the Finance Commission its report emasculating the government economies.

R. DIXON CHOSEN PEOPLE'S WARDEN

St. Mark's Church, Otonabee, Holds Annual Vestry Meeting on Tuesday.

The annual vestry meeting of St. Mark's Church, Otonabee, was held in the church on Tuesday afternoon, the Rev J. L. Hughes presiding. T. Graystock, people's warden, presented the finanical statement. This showed a slight deficit on the year's working, but this will be taken care of from the reserve fund. Following the custom of the past few years the offerings at the Holy Communion service on each fourth Sunday in the month have again been devoted to Diocesan allotments, and proved satisfactory. The report of the W.A. was read by Mrs. J. Collins, treasurer. Pledges were paid in full, and donations sent to the Cummings-Reeve Memorial Fund, the united thankoffering, and the Memorial Flower Fund. A donation was also given to the church warden's fund for current expenses, and a substantial balance remains on hand.

After seven consecutive years of faithful service as people's warden, T. Graystock stated that he wished to retire from office, and R. Dixon who has filled the office of incumbent's warden for the past eight years, was elected people's warden. Frank Graystock was appointed incumbent's warden. John Collins, Fred Dixon, Harold Collins, and T. E. Graystock were appointed sidesmen. T. E. Graystock was elected lay representative to the Synod.

Votes of thanks were extended to the retiring wardens, Mrs. J. Collins, organist, and Mr. W. Pickel, sexton. The cemetery report was given by R. Dixon, and showed a balance on hand. The rector spoke in appreciation of the neat appearance of the cemetery, and the care and attention that had been given to it.

This marked the seventy-first annual vestry meeting of this little church on the hill which has always been a home where friendliness and fellowship have existed among the worshippers. This spirit still pervades, and the happiest relationship exists between pastor and people.

Explosion Shatters Fur Company Window

TORONTO, Jan. 26 (C.P.). — Mystery shrouds a severe explosion which early to-day blew out the windows and fur displays of the Beder Fur Company in downtown Toronto. Several wax models displayed expensive fur coats and wraps were thrown with the flying glass into the street. Two policemen who were nearby picked up the coats and wraps.

One fireman suffered a badly lacerated hand when a second sheet of glass fell from a second storey window in fighting a blaze which followed the blast.

It was the second early-morning blast in 48 hours. Early yesterday, an explosion occurred in the garage of the Lioni Construction Company here, but this apparently was caused through gasoline fumes which leaked from a truck tank.

Smeaton Suffering From Cracked Ribs

MONTREAL, Jan. 26 (C.P.). — Cooper Smeaton, senior referee of the National Hockey League, injured during a scuffle at Tuesday night's game between Boston and Montreal Canadiens, at Boston, probably is suffering from two cracked ribs, it was learned to-day. Smeaton had an X-ray taken here to-day, but the results are not yet known.

Smeaton also suffered minor injuries about the mouth that required attention. The referee-in-chief has made a report to President Frank Calder of the League on the incident between Eddie Shore, Boston defenceman, and Sylvio Mantha, rearguard of Canadiens. Calder, however, has reached no decision as to what penalty, if any, should be imposed on the battling players, and had no statement to make to-day.

Smeaton was scheduled to remain in Boston to referee the Bruins-Toronto game to-night. His place will be taken by Referee George Mallinson of Montreal.

Soldiers were first placed on a professional basis by the Romans, who instituted the practice of paying for their services.

TRINITY CHURCH HAS GOOD YEAR

Reports Read at Meeting Show All Organizations in Healthy Condition.

LARGE MEMBERSHIP.

The annual congregational meeting of Trinity United Church was held in Reid Street Hall on Monday evening of this week. An interested and representative group of workers and members were present to hear the reports. The church reports another year of progress. All organizations are in a healthy state, as was evidenced by the reports presented. A total of nearly $20,000 was raised by the congregation during the year, including $15,000 for current and $5,000 for missionary and benevolent enterprises. The church membership now stands at 868, an increase of 18 over last year. There are 300 families under pastoral supervision. Complimentary references were made to the fine showing for the year. Refreshments and a social hour brought to a close another annual meeting, and the church looks forward to another year of progress, under the efficient leadership of the various organizations of the church.

REV. DAVID WREN SPEAKS AT MEETING

W. C. T. U. Holds Regular Monthly Gathering at Y.W. C.A. on Wednesday.

The Green Room of the Y.W. C.A. had every seat taken yesterday afternoon when the W.C.T.U. held its annual meeting. The president, Mrs. J. H. Rowe, occupied the chair, and was supported by the secretary, Miss Might, and the treasurer, Mrs. Morrison, at the table, while their splendid program for the day was carried out. The usual devotional period was observed with praise and prayer, and the Scripture lesson, with 'Opportunity' as its theme, was read from the 16th chapted of St. Matthew's Gospel, by Mrs. Kerr. The service was concluded with prayer by Mrs. R. Bamforth. Plans for work and finances were discussed, among these was a "holiday bag" for gathering in a dime for every holiday. A crusade for membership was also decided upon, and the visiting committee urged to report to the convenor, Mrs. Spencer. Four new members were reported present at this meeting, Mrs. G. K. Tyler, Mrs. William Fairbrother, Miss Bell, and Miss Ruffman, who were welcomed by the president. In a forceful and informative reading, Mrs. J. H. Spencer told of the supreme crisis confronting temperance workers in the United States to-day. The question, she said, is simple and far-reaching. "Is the Eighteenth Amendment to be enforced or repealed?" Speaking for the Salvation Army, Evangeline Booth says: "No surrender." It is the law-abiding majority, not the law-breaking minority, that makes a nation. While some people drink, drinking has not increased under prohibition, and nine days out of ten, nine people out of ten are dry as tinder.

As guest speaker, Rev. David Wren of Trinity United Church brought a message of optimism in his address on Citizenship. In opening, Mr. Wren stressed the fact that conditions to-day were not unusual, for we move in cycles and in circles. Each has the same problems of depression, war, despondency, despair, and unemployment. Perhaps it has never before been so widespread as it is to-day, when it is so easy to know what our neighbors throughout the world are doing. But every problem has its solution, and to-day we have a bright and hopeful sign. The foundation upon which we have built has not been stirred. Much has been destroyed; but much remains. The elements of permanency upon which our civilization is built, still remain. First, the infallibility of the Word of God; second, Christ's conception of God; third, God's conception of man; fourth, humanity's sense of sin and need of a Saviour; and last, the glorious hope of immortality. In enlarging upon these points the speaker demonstrated that each was still basic to the life of to-day and the new super-structure must be built upon these foundations. Out of this depression world leadership must come. Our greatest contribution to this will be "what we are." We must not be afraid to assume the responsibility of citizenship. Ours is a problem of national and international brotherhood. We should try to understand the viewpoint of other nations and study the problem of employer and employee. Upon the temperance question we must be alert and up and doing, as the Moderation League is in its line. Most of all, we should work for the establishment of the kingdom of God on earth until it stretches from shore to shore and His abiding peace is inculcated in every heart.

Miss Alma Blanchard sang the solo, "This Stranger of Galilee," by request, with Mrs. H. V. Dobson accompanying at the piano. A vote of appreiation to Rev. Mr. Wren, Miss Blanchard, and Mrs. Dobson was moved by Mrs. A. H. Allen and Mrs. R. Bamforth. A hymn, and prayer offered by Mrs. A. I. Brown, brought the meeting to a conclusion.

"Gossip and Such"

THE GREAT IMPULSE TO tamper with the rules and regulations of a sport has, at last, infected golf. To be sure, the august fathers of the sport have in recent years increased the size of the golf ball, also changing its weight but now "reform" threatens the playing course itself.

• • •

THERE IS A MOVE GAINing ground to increase the diameter of the cup to eight inches or nearly double. This is supposed to make the art of sinking a putt an easier one. It would, of course.

• • •

HOWEVER, PUTTING IS only the last act in golf. You've got to get onto the green first. To make any improvement of the score of most golfers, it would be necessary to abolish bunkers, traps, rough and water hazard, drastically shorten the course, and permit all such players to have their strokes performed by substitutes, preferably somebody by the name of R. T. Jones, W. Hagen, G. Sarazen or A. J. Morrison.

• • •

THE SUGGESTED INcrease in the size of the cup, however, is only giving the poor duffer his due. They have made him play his favorite game with a larger ball, so why not make the cup into which he must stroke the fattened missile also larger.

PROPONENTS OF THE eight-inch cup idea point out that it gives the fellow who consistently gets on the green close to the hole more one-putt greens. That is, it indirectly rewards against the players who usually land near the edge, take two putts, but have the satisfaction of watching an opponent who landed near the cup miss his first putt by inches.

• • •

THEREFORE, THERE REALly is good logic in the suggested change, if chief weakness being that it may create a tendency to tamper with the other phases of the game which is as close to perfection in its present form as any other sport.

Bruins Entertain Leafs This Evening

TORONTO, Jan. 26. (CP)—While President Frank Calder considers the latest Shorian outburst after hearing about it first-hand from referee Cooper Smeaton, Boston's big bad boy and the rest of the Bruins take on Toronto Maple Leafs at the Hub to-night.

Smeatin, it is said, has whispered the details of Shore's activities in the Canadien game Tuesday night in the Calder ear and the National League head has been called on to pass stern judgment on Eddie, variously reported as having struck in turn Sylvio Mantha, Canadien defenceman, Smeaton and judge of play Smith.

In case Shore is allowed to play, they will probably have a bumper house at Boston to see the high-flying Saskatchewan wheatgrower in action against the champions of the world. The Leafs, incidentally, have with them one Red Horner whose misdemeanors have made him the heaviest penalized player in the circuit.

Most important battles of the night are slated for Detroit and New York as the Red Wings and Rangers continue a stirring struggle for first place in the American section. The Wings wind up a long home stay against Ottawa Senators while Rangers play Chicago Black Hawks at New York in an effort to keep intact their one-point margin over the border challengers. Montreal Canadiens entertain Americans in the fourth scheduled game.

GROUP LEADERS GARNER EARLY LEAD FOR 9 TO 2 VICTORY AT PORT HOPE

Faster Skating, Better Shooting, as Well as Superior Defensive Hockey, Gives Petes Edge Over the Homesters.

HATTON, LEBARR AND DUNDAS ARE MARKSMEN; MICKS AND DAWLEY OUTSTANDING FOR HOPERS

The Petes' intermediates added another scalp to their belt in Port Hope last night, slapping the homesters down with a 9-2 pasting. It was their fourth win in five starts, the other being a tie, and promises to be a clean sweep on the whole schedule. Sixty minutes of glorified shinny on soft ice with half an inch of water on it — that's about what the game last night turned out to be. A fair crowd did its best to cheer the Ontarios along, but they proved poor truck-horses in the heavy going.

The loop-leaders piled up a lead of 4-1 in the first period and then went out to play defensive hockey. They added one more in the second, and opened up for awhile again in the third to shove in four more while the Hopers were getting one. Faster skating and better shooting, as well as superior defensive hockey gave the Petes the big nod.

Under such conditions, there was no outstanding player. All the Blue and Whites worked hard when they had to, but otherwise they stuck strictly to a checking style. Hatton and Lebarr had two goals, Dundas a couple and an assist, Jarvis one and two assists and the others also were strong on the attack. But the Petes all showed up well on bodying and backchecking. Gillespie was fooled on one bad roller from away out, and the other one called against was not in, but allowed. He stopped some hard ones, but had an easier night than his opponent.

Outstanding For Hopers.

Micks muffed several soft ones, but stopped his share of hot ones close in, too. The 240-pound Harwood played a whale of a game on defense, bouncing the attackers around hard. He also did some nice rushing. Dawley at centre and his wingmen worked hard. Little teamplay for either side could be shown, and a rolling, sticking puck made for ragged hockey most of the way. Port Hope had three penalties, and the Petes two.

Dawley's long shot from defence trickled through early for the first score, and Dallin took Dundas' pass right away to even it. Hatton blazed in the next one alone, and Harwood went off for charging. Lebarr followed shortly for cross-checking. Ellis and Dundas nearly put another in, and then Creighton and Hagerman were chased for roughing it. Hatton and Jarvis combined neatly, the former scoring at close range, and just before the end, Dundas went up the boards fast alone, and backhanded the disc into the twine.

Opens Slow In Second.

Play was slow in the second, the Petes checking hard and holding Port Hope outside defence mostly. The locals were being bumped hard when they did try to pierce the enemy wall and shinny was the order of the frame. Halfway through, Lebarr snaked his way right through alone to shoot and then rap in his own rebound. The crowd cheered as Referee Armstrong slipped and landed flat in a small pond. Port Hope put on a spurt that threatened as the chapter ended.

Free Goal For Homesters.

In a scramble early in the third near the Petes' net, the puck hit Gillespie's skate and the goal-umpire hoisted his hand. After some argument it was ruled a goal. Harwood dragged his bulk over the fence again for boarding and Creighton took a quick pass from Jarvis to add another for the victors. A bit later, Ellis slipped one across to Dundas, and Ira banged it in, and the Petes looked much better as the Hopers panted around heavily in the slush. Jarvis got the next one in close after a spurt up the left boards alone. Port Hope sent four men up and they hammered the rubber at Gillespie but he turned them all aside. The locals began shooting the disc down the ice and then with but two minutes to go, Lebarr coasted clean through to bounce another off the hemp. Play was more ragged than ever at the final bell.

The teams:

Petes—Goal, Gillespie; defence, Howe and Lebarr; centre, Ellis; wings, Dallin and Dundas; alternates, Weir, Jarvis, Hatton and Creighton.

SANDY FACES TOUGH YEAR

Intends to Compete in Canadian, British and United States Amateur Championships.

LIKE TO GO TO ENGLAND.

NEW YORK, January 26 (C.P.).—A very busy season lies ahead of C. R. "Sandy" Somerville, the all-round sportsman of London, Ont. In New York to-day to attend to some personal business, Canada's leading athlete announced his desire to compete in the Canadian, British, and United States amateur golf championships this spring and summer.

Sandy, the first Canadian ever to win the United States title, a feat he accomplished in a spectacular uphill final round battle at Five Farms last fall, was loathe to discuss the game. He had no panaceas for golf, he was not advocating any cup changes, nor selecting any all-star teams.

He did admit after close questioning he wanted to go over to England and play in the amateur "just to see what it is like." He didn't think he would last more than a round or two, "but it would be good fun anyhow," and even if he were eliminated early in the event, he would "appreciate the opportunity of watching the 'good' players."

Asked if he had heard Johnny Goodman, the youth he defeated in the United States final last season, was "gunning" for him this year, Sandy replied:

"Nice boy, Johnny. I was a bit lucky to beat him at Baltimore, especially on that No. 11 hole where my No. 4 iron shot out from the rough landed on the brow of the hill and happened to have overspin enough on it to carry it up on the green, near the pin. Seldom get overspin from that kind of a lie, and I'd three-putted that green almost every other time I played the hole."

Sandy said he was finding time for a little practice at London, where the weather had been mild so far.

WEAKENED LAKEFIELD OUTFIT FALLS BEFORE WESTCLOX 7-2

Loss Drops Cementville Team Into Cellar Position of E. P. L.

ICE HANDCAPS PLAY.

To ring up their first victory of the current E.P.L. hockey season Westclox turned in their best effort to defeat a weakened Lakefield sextet by 7 goals to 2 on mushy ice at the Brock street arena last night. The win lifts the clock crew from the cellar and eases the Lakefield youngsters into that lowly berth in their stead.

Carrying but two alternates into the fray the light Lakefield team were at a big disadvantage in trying to plow their way along on the poor ice. Along with this the Westclox huskies gave them a rough passage, using their extra weight with telling effect.

The losers were never in the hunt as far as securing results on their score column, but they never stopped trying. They had few telling shots on Delahaye's citadel, while at the other G. Wannamaker had a busy evening between the Lakefield posts. The last Lakefield goal was in the nature of a gift, a lobing shot from Jewell's stick being deflected into the twine off Whatley's arm.

Milliken and Epps were the big scorers for the winners, each netting three, but Dinesen was a big help giving passes for three assists. Tuck and Thirnbeck hooked up for the other counter.

Star For Lakefield.

Wingett, Stenner and Northey were best for Lakefield with Wannamaker giving a smart display of netminding.

"Abbie" Rose had just dropped the teams the rubber for the start-off when Milliken snapped a bouncing shot from near mid-ice. Wannamaker went to his knees, but the disc bounced over his pads for the first goal. A few minutes later Milliken winged a drive from the right boards that caught the upper corner of the twine. Walker broke through the Westclox defense and fooled Delahaye from close in.

Scores In Scramble.

Opening the second stanza, Milliken slipped the puck to Epps who scored in a scramble in front of the nets. Goalie Wannamaker and Allin dropped their sticks and exchanged fisticuffs at this stage, and both were banished to the penalty box. Dinesen combined with Milliken for the next score, and later repeated by slipping Epps the rubber for another counter.

Both teams were weary when the third period swung around. Jewell's long shot was deflected off Whatley's arm into the Westclox goal. Epps returned from a face-off to burn a high shot past Wannamaker. In a scramble Thirnbeck slipped the disc to Tuck who plugged in the final goal.

The Teams

Lakefield—Goal G. Wannamaker; defense, Wingett and Stenner; centre, Kennedy; wings, Jewell and Northey; subs, Walker, R. Wannamaker.

50 PER CENT. CUT PREAKNESS STAKE

Kentucky Derby Will Retain Usual Stake of $50,000—Preaknes son May 13.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 26.—(A. P.)— A 50 per cent slash in the stake for the 1933 Preakness, one of the biggest horse races of the United States, has been approved by the Maryland Racing Association.

The announcement by M. . Daiger,, secretary of the Maryland Jockey Club, said the stake for the Pimlico classic this spring will be $25,000 adde dand included scaling down of other stakes for the spring meet.

The Preakness, rated with the Kentucky Derby for three year olds, will be held May 13, a week after the Churchill Downs premier. The Kentucky Derby will retain its usual stake of $50,000.

"We would liked to have kept the Preakness at $50,000," said Daiger, "but after a careful survey of all conditions we felt that the times did not warrant adding that amount to the historic feature this year."

Other reductions of the Maryland Jockey Club included slicing of the $15,000 Dixie Handicap to $5,000, a mile and three-sixteenths for three year olds and up on May 6.

SYRACUSE STARS GAIN ON LONDON

Play Tie Game With Buffalo at Home in Second-place Struggle.

TORONTO, Jan. 25. — (CP) — Teams in the International hockey circuit are becoming imbued with that sterling old axiom of "the game is not over until the final whistle blows." For the second time on successive nights, the proverbial "last second" goal has prevented a loss being chalked up against a team. First it was Windsor who banged in a goal with only 32 seconds left to earn a tie with London. Last night it was Syracuse, who battling Buffalo for second place, scored with only 20 seconds remaining to earn a 3-3 tie, and retain their one-point grasp on the second rung.

As befitting his rank, it was Capt. Tony Savage who led the charge for the tying counter. Carr, Buffalo winger was doing time, when Savage notched the counter, which frustrated Bisons' determined attempt to wrest the second position from their "starry" foemen.

Savage also had scored another one earlier in the period which entitled him to share scoring honors for the night with Young Bud Jarvis, who netted two for the Bisons.

Dave Downie counted first for the Stars, while Roter Roth, notched Bisons' initial tally. Hal Darragh, former Toronto Maple Leaf player, assisted in two Syracuse counters.

Nationals Win Out In Play-Off Game

TORONTO, Jan. 26. — National Sea Flea juniors will carry a 1-goal lead into their second play-off game with St. Michael's College by virtue of their 3-to-2 victory over the Irish at Maple Leaf Gardens last night. The winners managed to hold off the Irish in a hectic last period to win by their slim margin. However, they may need that one goal if they hope to defeat the Collegians for the right to meet Marlboros for the Big Six group championship. The second game will take place at the Gardens on Saturday afternoon, total goals on the round being the basis on which the winners will be declared.

PAYNE'S BEAT NORWOOD 3-2

Williams and Meagher Score Winning Counters for Local Team.

POOR ICE CONDITIONS.

Payne's Carters added a big dash of interest to the E.P.L. hockey race by defeating the league-leading Norwood Combines in a gruelling battle at the Brock street arena last night by 3 goals to 2. The defeat reduced the Combines lead to one slim point.

Terrible ice conditions prevailed for the game and neither squad could show their true wares. It was a slam-bang, helter-skelter type of hockey and at stages it developed into a scramble. The puck would not slide over the heavy surface and there was no opportunity for stick-handling or team play.

However, both outfits showed that on good ice they would present a fast brand of hockey.

Freddy Cripps put Norwood in the lead when he spun one into the nets from close in, but it was only a few minutes until Williams evened the count when he sneaked a low shot past Beavis. Few other scoring opportunities presented themselves in the first period.

Four minutes after the start of the second period, Williams repeated by banging through the defense and then shoving the disc around Beavis. Jones and Meagher teamed up for the third Carters' goal.

The Combines came to life in the third canter and threw everything into the attack in their effort to regain the lost goals. Calladine, who had been staging mapy forays was finally successful in giving McConnell a pass to score.

The Teams

Norwood—Goal, Beavis; defense, Scriver and Webb; centre, Stephenson; wings, Calladine and F. Cripps; subs, McConnell, Rogers and Fenton.

Payne's Carters—Goal, Foley, defense, Lackey and Swanger; centre, Maudsley; wings, Magee and Williams; subs, H. Jones, Meagher and Stante.

Referee—A. Rose.

FORT ERIE, Ont., Jan. 26 (CP) —Plans have been prepared here for a million dollar race track to be built just outside Fort Erie this Summer in the event that the New York State Legislature now in session fails to approve a bill to legalize betting at tracks in that state.

The project is sponsored by a group headed by Matthew Widener of New York. It will be located on the Garrison Road slightly more than a mile from the Peace Bridge and the plans call for a mile track, a steeplechase course and polo field. Expectations are that the plant, which will be one of the most modern in America, will be completed in time to stage one track meet next Fall.

So sure are the promoters that New York State will frown upon legalized pari-mutual betting that several contractors have been asked to submit bids on construction of the course.

Meanwhile, plans are in the embryonic stage for the construction of a third race track in the Fort Erie vicinity, a group of Buffalo men having purchased the property of the Canada Biltmore Club on the Niagara Boulevard for this purpose.

DECREASE IN CRIME

WALKERVILLE.—A decided decrease in crime here is shown in the annual report of James Smith, Police Chief. Only 456 cases were brought into court in 1933 and convictions were recorded in all but 13. "The crime record throughout the border was the lowest in many years," the chief stated in his report, "and great credit should be given the unemployed who are facing an unhappy situation of unemployment by being law-abiding citizens."

CANUCK GAINS DURING NIGHT

Reggie McNamara and Norman Hill Continue to Set Pace in 6-day Bike Grind.

IN FINAL 18 HOURS.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 26 (A.P.) — The big push that means money was on to-day as the nine two-man teams still in Cleveland's first six-day bicycle race went into their final 18 hours.

The youthful Jules Audy, blonde Montrealer, who formed a new partnership with Jack Sheehan of Ireland when his partner, William (Torchy) Peden of Victoria, B.C., was forced out with injuries, came back into the running in one of the most spectacular series of jams of the meet.

With Sheehan's sensational riding to aid him, Audy picked up four laps to move into third place during the night, a single lap behind the leading team of Reggie McNamara and Norman Hill.

Bill Terry Signs Joe Moore, Left Fielder from the Texas League.

Has Team Under Contract.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26 (A.P.) — While activity in the baseball contract market remains slow as the clubs and the holdout brigade remain firm on their bid and asked prices, the New York Giants continue to provide a bit of news for the fans each day.

The signing of Joe Moore, left fielder from Texas, was announced by the Giant management and with it went the news that Bill Terry now has enough players under contract to put a full team on the field.

Another bit of news from the Giant offices and a welcome one to the boys who occupy the bleachers at the Polo Grounds, was that Travis Jackson has been formally reinstated by Commissioner Landis and is ready to make a bid for his old place at shortstop. Jackson, who suffered from bad knees, is exercising regularly at his Arkansas home to strengthen the joints.

Maple Leafs Best In Loop At Home

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—With the half-way mark of the National Hockey League schedule only recently passed, statistics compiled by a Gotham hockey expert and published in The World-Telegram, show that New York Rangers are the most dangerous team in the Calder loop when playing on the road. By figuring actual points gained against total points possible this expert has proven Rangers hit .500 per cent., while meeting the enemy in his own backyard.

Toronto Maple Leafs are the "homers" of the league, travelling at a .786 clip in the Leaf ice plant. Here are the complete statistics:

(By C. J. P.)

A couple of City Hockey League games are listed for the Brock tonight, from eight till ten. It's Rangers against P.C.I. in the first one, and Rotary versus St. Peter's going on at nine. Because of the way our two O.H.A. teams are going this year, we may have been lax about pointing out what a fine race the City League is developing. If so, this is the time to correct it. Every team is very much in the running, all play fine hockey and those who haven't taken in any of these games yet should do so and come away convinced that the kids' league isn't far behind junior O.H.A. calibre.

* * * * * *

We understand that the Campbellford intermediates are getting fed up on waiting for decent ice these days and thinking of transferring the rest of their games to Belleville. As Secretary Beatty stated recently, "If the Maroons don't get a little practise in the near future they might as well give up the ghost." The Campbellford Juniors are in a hot fight for second place against Madoc and Trenton—Belleville being conceded first place.

* * * * * *

Our junior O.H.A. game last night in Cobourg had to be called off owing to soft ice. It's too bad as for one thing the local group should be wound up as soon as possible in readiness for the p'layoffs; and besides, these layoffs of a week at a time don't do a team a bit of good. They'll likely be going to Port Hope Friday night. As there isn't enough time, the Petes will not play off with the second-place team in this section of their group. They do not have to, as it wasn't stipulated at the schedule drawing, and besides the Petes, Cobourg, Port Hope and Bowmanville, only comprise part of a group. Fenelon Falls, Lindsay and Bobcaygeon make up the other section. The Petes will probably tangle with the Fenelon gang in the playoffs.

* * * * * *

The Hollywood Inn hockey conglomeration seems so sure that that 7-5 score against them the other night was just bad arithmetic that they've issued a challenge to a return match with Sugar Bowl, a side bet of an oyster supper being put up. Such bets were common once, but they're "news" nowadays. The Bowlmen have a Chinese goalie and a nine-pound hockey stick, as well as a few players.

* * * * * *

The ice was bad at the Brock last night, and only a corporal's guard attended the E.P.L. games. The first didn't turn out to be much of a battle, Westclox being too much for Lakefield to the tune of 7-2. Lakefield players were too light, and then they were shy a couple of subs. The Westclox boys are coming along nicely. Carters revenged themselves by trouncing Norwood, 3-2, in a good game, marked with close-checking. Williams and Meagher, who counted the Truckmen's tallies, both were good, but it was hard to pick any one who starred in particular for either team. Norwood is due in Lakefield on Friday.

* * * * * *

This is the E.P.L. All-Star team selected to play against the Intermediate Petes next Wednesday at the Merrett Benefit Night in the Brock: Goal, Foley of the Carters; defence, Scriver and Webb of Norwood, Lackey of Carters, and Whatley of Westclox; centre, Maudsley of Carters, Northey of Lakefield, and Epps of Westclox; wings, Fred Cripps and Pat Caradine or Norwood, Milliken of Westclox, and Williams of Carters. And by the way, the reserved seat plan is open now at the Brock for anyone who wants an early choice. General admission tickets are being sold around town.

* * * * * *

There were a couple of Church Hockey League games and two West-end League fixtures run off at All Saints' Rink last night. Mark Street Midgets took a 6-1 verdict over Trinity; the Mark Street Juniors also walloped Murray Street by a 3-1 count; Keene pulled out a dandy 1-0 win over George Street; and Maroons got the nod, 3 to 1, against All Saints. Ice not so good, but play plenty interesting in every game.

* * * * * *

Looks like the Petes are going to make a clean sweep of the Intermediate grouping along the Lake Shore. Their 9-2 win over Port Hope last night made it four wins and a tie in five starts as the schedule draws to a close. They play Port Hope back here to-morrow, and may have to replay that 3-3 tie game in Bowmanville—and then it's the play-offs. The classy Petes proved better in the sloppy going last night and got through the husky Hopers' defence, which was anchored in the slush, regularly. No outstanding stars in this shinny game, but all the Petes looked good, particularly when they played defensive hockey.

* * * * * *

This big guy, Harwood, on defence for Port Hope, was good. He scales around 240, and uses every ounce of it in body checks. Pays little attention to the puck, but tries, and pretty successfully, too, to pancake every player that comes into his territory. And he isn't bad at rushing, either. They've got a heavy defence, hard-working forwards, and Micks in goal has played lots better games than he did last night. At that, we think the Petes should beat 'em here to-morrow evening..

Up and down Sports Rialto: Lakefield Badminton Club took a 3-2 win from Knox Club the other night here; they'll play a return tourney in Lakefield, February 8.....The sport would be aided greatly if more of these small clubs held tournaments; a trophy to play for and a league formed might be a good idea.....The secret is now out that Alexandrine Gibb is named assistant sports editor of The Star; maybe we shouldn't have spilled the beans last week .....She managed Canada's two women's track teams in the '28 and '32 Olympics.....George Dormer of the Sugar Bowl hockey team says they'll accept the Hollywood Inn oyster supper bet as challenge to a game, any time, any place, but prefer fast ice so as to uncork their burning speed—or something.

City Hockey League Twin Bill To-Night

A lively City Hockey League double-header is billed for the Brock to-night and the four teams which will be seen in action are all ready to go out and battle hard. They are in the thick of the fight and unusually well matched, so both affairs this evening should be worth seeing. Rangers play P.C.I. at eight o'clock, while Rotary and St. Peter's are scheduled to tangle at nine bells.

With the ice a little heavy and the players ready to scrap from bell to bell, there is almost sure to be some lively and exciting hockey. Each crew has its followers and they will doubtless be out in force. Fans should be advised that quite a bit of smart junior hockey is seen in City League contests.

A Japanese geographer states that Japan may have reached the peak of her population increase, as the rate of increase has declined somewhat since 1927.

SELECT GROUP FOR BYNG CUP

Joe Primeau is Only Toronto Leaf Player Among the Favored Few.

WEILAND OF OTTAWA.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26 (C.P.) —At the end of every National Hockey League season the Lady Byng Trophy is awarded to the player who best combines sportsmanship and clean play with value to his team. In times like these, when every night of play seems to tighten up the races in the league's two divisions, those qualities often are the same—the most valuable player is the one who can be depended upon to do his job on the ice without getting any penalties.

The latest scoring and penalty records of the league, covering Sunday's games, reveal a select group of such players, all of whom will see action in to-night's games. Chicago's aces, Doc Romnes and Johnny Gottselig, and young Gus Forslund of Ottawa, have scored more than 10 points each this season without having been penalized at all. Among their rivals for clean-play honors are Frank Boucher and Cecil Dillon of the New York Rangers, even higher scorers, who are listed as having served four minutes each. Carl Voss of Detroit, Joe Primeau of Toronto and Cooney Weiland of Ottawa are in the same group with such stars as Howie Morenz of the Montreal Canadiens, Rabbitt McVeigh of the New York Americans, Harry Oliver and Red Beattie of Boston and Walter Buswell of Detroit coming in close behind.

LAKEFIELD CLUB WINS FROM KNOX

Homesters Take Two Men's Events in Badminton Exhibition Series.

The Lakefield Badminton Club took three matches out of five from the Knox Club yesterday evening. Lakefield won the ladies' singles, doubles and mixed doubles; while Knox took the two men's events. The matches were all hard fought, two going an extra game to decide a winner, and three of the games going overtime. There was a large gallery of spectators at the Knox S. S. Hall and they showed approval at the action.

One of the visitors from Lakefield was Reeve Chas. Tanner, and he umpired the singles match between his son and Alex Wedlock of Knox, the latter winning in close games. John Donaldson, president of the Knox Badminton Club and Chas. Tanner Junior umpired the other games. Mrs. E. Grier and Miss Mary Mackenzie of Lakefield won the first match from Verna Huffman and Kay Benson of Knox, 15-11, 9-15 and 18-13, play being as close as the scores indicate. Play was featured by the hard smashing of the Knox pair and fine placement shots by Mrs. Grier.

Miss T. Elmsley won the second match from A. Davis of Knox, 11-7 and 11-8. The former showed fine generalship and probably the best backhand stroke of the evening, men included, to win from her aggressive opponent. She won most of the points by drawing Miss Davis forward and playing deep.

In the third match, Orm Benson and Norm Hughes of Knox won from Harding Stewart and Eric Stewart, captain of the Lakefield team, 15-7, 14-8 and 15-6. The Lakefield pair played the net well, but found the smashing of Benson and Hughes too much for them.

Charles Tanner Junior lost the men's singles to Alex Wedlock, 16-18 and 12-15. As the score shows these games were close, both men smashing hard and playing a fine net game. Both are young and show up well in tournament play.

Lakefield won the last match to break the tie, Angela Osborne and John Sherin won from Kay McDonald and Bill Wedlock, 15-11 and 15-6, the Lakefield pair combining well and clearly earning the victory. A return tournament will be held February 8th in Lakefield.

GOODNIGHT STORIES

By Max Trell

This is Mr. Snowman;
He stands in every storm,
But never fails to run away
When weather's nice and warm.
—Shadow Song.

Out in the garden the other morning the shadows found a snowman. The snowman had pieces of back glass for eyes, a wooden clothespin for a nose. He had a cornecb pipe in his mouth, and a high silk hat, made out of a stovepipe, on his head. The snowman greeted the shadows.

"Do you mind telling me where I am?" the snowman asked.

"You're in the garden," they told him.

"That's what I thought. Where are all the flowers?"

"Under the snow," Knarf answered.

"That's what I thought. And does that road lead to town?" the snowman asked looking towards the path just outside the garden gate. The shadows nodded.

The Road to Town

"That's just what I—"

"That's just what you thought," Mij broke in.

The snowman smile. "How did you guess it? Well, if that road

"How can you get to town? You can't walk," said the shadows leads to town, I'm going to take it I've been in this garden long enough."

"You can't walk," the shadows exclaimed.

Once more the snowman smiled. "No—I can't walk. You're right about that."

"Then how are you going to get down the road?"

"You'll see, just as soon as the sun comes out," said the snowman. It was still early in the morning, and the sun was hidden behind thick banks of clouds. But little by little the clouds were clearing away and all at once the sun came out bright and warm. "You'll see how I'll get out on that road, you'll see....you'll see."

The shadows wondered more and more how the snowman was going to get out on the road. It didn't have legs that coud move. What good was it for it to get out on the road?

Then, even as the shadows were thinking about it, the sun began melting the snowman and—would you believe it? The snowman ran right down to the road. Yes, my dears, it ran. It ran all the way down the road, and into a brook. After that the shadows couldn't follow it. But they could still hear its voice babbling: "I can't walk, but I can run..run..run."

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, January 27

The luar and mutual transits for this day indicate a rather routine state of affairs, with much difficulty in engineering current situations out of regular grooves. There may be difficult or frustrating circumstances to be disposed of before anything important in the way of progress may be expected. However all pertaining to letters, writings or publishings may move, and elders may assist.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a fairly mediocre year, with little stirring, but by main force in overcoming obstacles, delays and disappointments by diligence, hard work and perseverance. There may be some movement with writings or in dealings with elderly persons or institutions. A child born on this day should be serious, studious, of fair talents and should be practical and steady.

WRONG CUSTOMER

WINDSOR—Yin Ping Lung may be a good salesman but he picks the wrong customers. He offered to sell opium to a Royal Canadian Mounted policeman and was haled to court. Woo Lip was also caught, and both were remanded for a week.

Two women claimed the same chicken in Birmingham, Ala. Mrs. Mary L. Jones said she bought the chicken, and Mrs. Daisy Morris claimed she raised it from a chick. The women fought. The chicken's neck was broken.

Princess And Baby

Rush Point

Mr. Fred Marshall of Lakefield was at Rush Point recently, the guest of his uncle, Mr. John Seeney.

The ice on the lake has been exceptionally good for skating for some time past, and the young people have had several skating parties, always finishing the evening with games, music and luncheon at some of the neighboring homes.

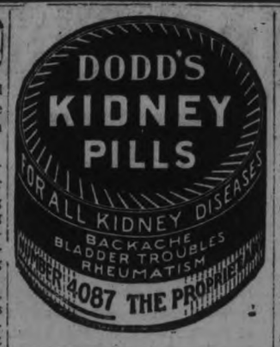
The friends of Mr. Frank Plue, who has spent several seasons as cheesemaker at Rush Point factory, will be pleased to know that he has been appointed as milk and cream tester in the vicinity of Kingston.

The semi-monthly Ladies' Aid of the Rush Point Church held a meeting recently at the home of Mrs. John Seeney. A goodly number of ladies were present during the afternoon and a quilt which was set up for the occasion was completed. Mrs. Seeney made a most delightful hostess for the meeting. The next meeting, at which the new officers will be appointed for this year, will be held at the home of Mrs. John Pollock on Wednesday, February 1.

The Rush Point League meeting on Thursday last was not very well attended because of the inclemency of the weather. As the leader for the evening was not able to be present, the members could not proceed with the regular numbers and a short impromptu program was put on instead.

A wood-cutting bee for the purpose of supplying the Rush Point Church with part of the year's supply of fuel was held last Friday. The wood was cut in polelengths on a wood-lot belonging to Mrs. Cora McArthur.

The Rush Point Public School Literary Society held a very enthusiastic meeting on Friday afternoon from three to four o'clock.



The George Washington bridge over the Hudson river between Manhattan Island and New Jersey, opened to traffic Oct. 25, 1931, has the longest single span, 3,500 feet of any suspension bridge in the world.

East Emily

The Ladies' Guild of St. John's Church held a socoal evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Blackwell's, on Thursday evening. The evening was spent at euchre, after which refreshments were served. There was a good crowd, and every person went home pleased with the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Fee, and daughter, Frances, were visitors to Peterborough on Saturday.

Mr. Lawrence McGahey of Lindsay, made a business trip through here on Thursday.

Mrs. Shaw, and son Hiram, of Lindsay, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Shaw of Omemee, were visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sayward Switzer's, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Spencer visited friends in Lindsay last week.

Mr. Ike Moore has gone to Vancouver to visit his brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Webster were visitors at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Wilbert Clarke's, on Sunday.

Mr. William Robison and daughter, Lillie, and Mrs. Robert Colin and daughter, Murton, spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McCarrell.

Mrs. Annie Fee visited her sister, Mrs. J. McBain, on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McCarrell, and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Finlay, were visitors to Lindsay on Tuesday.

Board Of Education Waits On Council

LINDSAY, January 26 (Special to The Examiner). — Deputations representing the local Board of Education and the Horticultural Society waited on the County Council on Wednesday and urged them not to cut off or reduce the grants to these organizations. The Council intends to slash salaries, grants, etc., at this session—in fact, some of the annual grants will be cut off altogether. A deputation from School Section No. 7, Ops., asked that a farmer be appointed the county's representative on the local Board of Education.

Messrs. H. Norton and R. Williams have been appointed assessors by the Town Council, but their salaries have been reduced.

The proposed merging by the Provincial Government of the Ridings of North and South Victoria into one riding has created a peculiar situation locally. The Liberals of both ridings have already nominated their candidates for the forthcoming Provincial election.

The funeral took place at Los Angeles, California, on Tuesday, of a former resident of Emily, in the person of Austin O'Leary. The deceased, who is an uncle of Mrs. W. Perdue of Peterborough, is survived by a brother, John O'Leary, aged ninety-three years, of Downeyville. Another brother, James C. O'Leary, died at King's Wharf, Emily, on January 7.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

The Hollywood film magnates have discovered another new little actress that they are grooming for stardom. It's a queer thing about this youngster. She's been in pictures quite a while now, yet the upper part of her body has never appeared in any film. And if you'd ever seen her legs, you'd quite understand why. For this lass has so lovely and so perfect a pair of under-pinnings that she has been doubling all this while for stars with less shapely legs. And as a consequence, her pretty stems are all that have ever appeared in pictures.

What a Utopia this world would be if all women possessed legs as flawless and lovely as those of this new little film actress. But, unfortunately, all women do not possess perfect legs. And I've found that, most often, it is the ankles that ruin the shapeliness of legs. For thick ankles are most detrimental to leg shapeliness.

Of course, reducing and slenderizing thick ankles is not a simple task. But any girl whose ankles are padded with adipose tissue can reduce them, if she really makes up her mind to. Exercise is the first thing essential for slenderizing and shaping thick ankles. The exercises in my article on "Care of the Feet and Legs" are splendid for this purpose. And the following ones are also most effective, if practised vigorously and faithfully every day.

Sit well back in a chair and hold the muscles of the knees taut. Cross the left knee over the right, with the right foot in tiptoe position and the toes of the left foot pointed downward. Then describe imaginary circles with the left foot, twisting the foot at the ankle. Repeat, pointing the left foot, and circling with the right one.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Bran Bath

Patty: A small cheesecloth bag filled with bran and tossed into your tub of water will soften the water and help to keep your skin smooth.

Dandruff

Mrs. C.: You will, indeed, find a good remedy for dandruff in my "Beauty Culture" booklet. The castor oil shampoos for correcting dryness and promoting hair growth are also described in this booklet.

Eyelashes

May: Apply a bit of plain vaseline or odorless castor oil to your eyelashes nightly before retiring. This will help to make them longer and thicker.

Brown Spots

Babe: To eradicate brown spots, so-called "liver spots," try applying a solution of hyposulphite of soda and water, using one part of the chemical to eight parts of water.

Cosmetics

Bertha: I think that a soft ochre shade of powder, soft orange rouge and light, vivid linstick would blend well with your coloring.

Free Methodist Camp To Be Held At Huntsville

BRACEBRIDGE, Ont., Jan. 26 (C.P.)—By decision of the quarterly conference here, the annual camp meeting of the Muskoka district of the Free Methodist Church in East Ontario will be held at Huntsville next July.

The conference also discussed the question of establishing a permanent camp ground at Housey's Rapids, but action was deferred until the Spring quarterly conference.

A Christian Workers' Convention was held in conjunction with the Peterborough district meeting at Campbellford, which is now finished. Sermons by pastors of the districts featured both gatherings.

RESIGNATIONS ASKED

BROCKVILLE.—The resignations of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Pierce, superintendent and matron respectively of the Old People's Home at Athens, have been requested by the County Council of Leeds and Grenville. A special committee which investigated the home, recommended the dismissal of the two.

Charles Chant, Plum Hollow, has been appointed superintendent.

COUNTY COUNCIL REFUSES TO CUT CLERK'S SALARY

W. A. Anderson's Motion is Defeated Seven Votes to Ten.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

Motion Would Have Reduced Salary of E. M. Elliott to $2,400.

Reeve W. A. Anderson's motion that the salary of the County Clerk and Treasurer be reduced to $2,400 per annum, was this morning defeated when put to the vote, when Peterborough County Council was in Committee on Finance.

An amendment sponsored by Reeve C. S. Tanner carried ten against seven in favour of the salary remaining the same as it was in the year 1932.

In making the proposal, Reeve Anderson made it quite clear that the stand he took was for no other reason than that the cost of living had been considerably reduced, and that there was a growing demand on the part of hard pressed taxpayers for economy. He was of the firm opinion that a reduction of salary would not impose any hardship on the County Clerk.

Those voting on the amendment were: Reeves Tanner, Hickson, Montgomery, Jackson, Given, Brown, Hales, McIntosh, Steenburgh and Deputy Reeve Patton.

The following voted in favor of the reduction: Reeves Anderson, Mann, Leahy, Tedford and Ferguson and Deputy Reeves Mullen and Davidson.

After the matter had been disposed of Ed. M. Elliott, veteran clerk and treasurer, thanked the members of the Council for the confidence they had placed in him and also the consideration they had extended. He said it would be an incentive to him to give renewed energy and respect to the Council.

Committee on Finance.

Reeve W. A. Anderson moved and Reeve Alan B. Mann seconded, that the Clerk and Treasurer be engaged at a salary of $2,400 per annum.

"What does the reduction amount to?" asked Mr. Tanner.

"I don't know exactly. It is considerable," Reeve Anderson said.

STUBBS' FIGHT EVERY JUDGE'S

Claims There is No Bigger Issue in Canada Than Independence of Judiciary.

GOES TO SOCIETY'S ROOTS.

(By J. Burritt—C.P. Staff Writer).

WINNIPEG, Jan. 27 (C.P.)—Lewis St. George Stubbs, Judge of the County Court, is fighting not only to retain his seat on the bench, but he is fighting on behalf of every judge in Canada, he declared to a commission investigating his alleged judicial misconduct to-day.

"There can be no bigger issue in Canada than independence of the judiciary," the Judge said.

"It goes to the roots of society."

Denouncing Hon. W. J. Major, Attorney-General, for reducing his stipend as Surrogate Court Judge, accused declared he was fighting a battle for every judge in Canada. "I am fighting your battle, my Lord," he said to Commissioner Mr. Justice Frank Ford, "and for the whole judicial system and for every country which is based on the British system."

The accused apologized to the court for re-reading certain documents, but, he said, he wished to make this case as complete as possible, referring to the charge against him for illegal acceptance of fees.

CANTON, Wis., Jan. 27 (A.P.)—Farmers' State Bank officials thought a rodeo had come to town.

The farmer who had all the livestock out in front of the bank explained that he couldn't pay a chattel mortgage and had decided to turn the animals over to the bank.

The bankers offered to renew the mortgage, but the farmer wanted to erase the debt, so the bank officials were obliged to find a place to feed and house the stock.

KIWANIS CLUB HAS EXPENDED $6,000 ON CAMP

On Account of Finances Grant to City Relief is Hardly Possible.

CONTINUE CAMP WORK.

O. B. Crowell Addresses Weekly Luncheon of the Club in Empress.

During the past four years the local Kiwanis Club has expended more than $6,000 in maintaining the Fresh Air Camp for underprivileged children at Jackson Park, Harry Huffman, club treasurer, told the Kiwanians at their noon luncheon today in outlining the club's financial position.

Last year the club's disbursements for relief totalled $803.04, of which amount $200 was a cheque to the relief fund of the city. Other humanitarian activities of the club created an expenditure of $1,737.97, of which much the larger part went for the extensive work for under-nourished children attending the Fresh Air camp.

Because of the large outlays made last year in assisting children and other casualties of the depression Mr. Huffman stated that it was improbable that the club would be able to make a direct contribution to the civic relief fund at this time. However, he announced, amid the applause of the club members, that the Kiwanis Club would continue its work for children at the Fresh Air Camp this summer, and in doing so a system of closer co-operation with the civic relief administration may be put into force.

Extensive Work

He stressed the fact that the Kiwanis Club's relief work is not only extensive in the city but also extends into the county, and in this he referred to one recent severe case that the club had taken over.

O. B. Crowell, chief chemist of the Viceroy Manufacturing Company of West Toronto, briefly traced the history of rubber. Europeans first contact with rubber occurred with the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus, he said. At that time the discoverer saw natives playing a game with rubber balls. In the 18th century a chemist who had studied the French possession of South America returned to Europe with some samples of the rubber plant.

However, it was not until 1806 that much attention was paid to

TWO-GUN KILLER TAKES 3 LIVES

Shoots 2 Women, Wounds Third, Kills Officer in Fleeing From House.

STILL AT LARGE.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27 (AP)—Blazing pistols in the hand of a marksman-killer claimed the lives of two women and a policeman last night in what authorities said may have been the outbreak of a vice war.

In a darkened house near the centre of the city, Mrs. Yetta Cooper, alias Cohen, alleged proprietress of a disorderly establishment, was shot through the head and a young woman tentatively identified as Patsy Miller was shot between the eyes. A third woman in the house was slightly wounded.

In an exchange of shots as the slayer fled, patrolman Frederick J. Dolan was killed.

The slayer escaped amid a fusillade of shots from police who went to the scene.

More than a score of persons were rounded up for questioning soon after the slayings but no arrests were made.

FIT OF DESPONDENCY.

Wife Returns Home to Find Children Dead—Inquest To-day.

STE. PERPETUE, Que., Jan. 27 (C.P.)—Inquest was expected to be held to-day into the slaying by hammer blows of four little children, farmers, of this village in Nicolet County. The father is held at Nicolet County. The father is held at Nicoet jail and is declared by the authorities to have admitted that, in a fit of despondency, he killed his children.

Only one of the young couple's five children escaped death. She was Jacqueline, 16 months old, who sustained a fractured skull and was not expected to live long.

The children were instantly killed when the hammer blows broke their baby skulls, were Roger, 4; Marcel, 3; and Jean-Real and Celine, four-month-old twins.

Mrs. Girard was away from home, visiting her father, when the children were slain. When she arrived home her husband "looked strange." Frightened, she appealed to the Mayor of the village, a neighbor, for aid. The Mayor, Herman Lambert, and Dr. E. A. Dusseault who was quickly summoned when the bodies were found, told Provincial Police the father had told them he had been despondent and discouraged and had killed his children.

Flees to Barn

Girard, while the neighbor and doctor were bending over the beds on which the children were lying, fled to his barn. Four men were posted at the entrance to see that he did not escape and police from nearby points were summoned. Chief James McMahon of Nicolet and Chief Moquin of Drummondville arrived, placed Girard in custody, and took him to the county jail at Nicolet, where he is held pending inquest. He offered no resistance.

The young couple—Girard is 27 years of age—have been life-long residents of the village on the outskirts of which Girard's farm is situated.

Governor General's Foot Guards Head List for "Efficiency of Personnel."

HIGHLANDERS SECOND.

OTTAWA, Jan. 27 (C.P.)—The Governor General's Foot Guards Regiment, Ottawa, were awarded first place in the "Efficiency of Personnel," competition for city corps held by the Canadian Infantry Association of Canada in each military district. This announcement was made by Col. J. A. Gillies, President of the Association to-day.

The Ottawa Cameron Highlanders Regiment, which has held the coveted first position for the past two years, finished second, and third place was awarded to the Peterborough Rangers, The Brockville Rifles, The Prince of Wales Own Rifles, The Argyle Light Infantry, The Victoria and Haliburton Regiment and Le Regiment de Hull following in order.

The "Efficiency of Personnel," competition in the rural regiments was won by the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, with headquarters at Trenton. The Durham Regiment, Bowmanville, took second place, and Lanark and Renfrew Scottish of Perth were third. The Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, The Frontenac Regiment, and The Grenville Regiment finished in order.

Finance Committee Called For To-Night

J. L. Malcolm, Government relief investigator, is in the city and will discuss details of Peterborough relief administration with the Finance Committee of the City Council this evening. Mayor Denne called the special meeting of the committee to hear Mr. Malcolm's report on what steps the city must take as a result of his investigations here last December.

A Killer

METAGAMA, Ont., Jan. 27 (C.P.) — Fur-bearing animals take a heavy toll of smaller animal life, according to the McKee brothers, trappers and guides in the Metagama district.

Recently, while going over their trapline, they came upon the fresh trail of a fisher. After tracking the animal steadily for six hours they found it holed up in a hollow cedar tree.

While trailing, or, in trapper's terms, "walking," the animal, the trappers saw signs in the snow where the fisher had killed and partly eaten five grouse, and killed and cached two rabbits.

BITTER LESSONS IRISH ELECTON

Guardian Sees Cosgrave Fail Because Being Depicted as on Enemy's Side.

THOMAS POLICY FAILS.

MANCHESTER, England, January 27 (C.P. Cable).— Commenting on the results available so far in the Irish general election the Manchester Guardian to-day states in a leader editorial: "If the final results confirm the first impressions there will be some bitter lessons to be drawn on both sides of the Channel.

"The first is that J. H. Thomas (Secretary for the Dominions) polity of bluff and the big stick has not brought the promised result, but has confirmed the people of the Free State in their obstinate refusal to see the simple justice of the British viewpoint.

"William Cosgrave has suffered not because he advocated the end of the ruinous economic war, but because the spirited opposition voiced by De Valera's party put him (Cosgrave) in the inflamed Nationalist minds on the side of the traditional enemy."

The Manchester Guardian thinks the lessons drawn in the Free State will be of mixed complexion. "De Valera, through a muddled jet of social reform claims, has supplied the Irish proetaria; with a new philosophy by promising to create a state in which no man will hunger because everybody will be content to work for everybody else. It may therefore be hazarded the principal interest of the Free State will lie less in the course of its external relations than in the fate of De Valera's attempt to reverse his country's modern economic role."

RISCHON-LE ZION, Jan. 8. — Rischon-le Zion is one of the Jewish colonies immediately south of Jaffa. It was settled while the Turk was still in control in the Holy Land. Founded chiefly through the generosity of Baron Hirsch and Baron Rothschild, it has in the course of time become quite prosperous. I am told that the wine cellars of Rischon-le Zion are the second largest wine caves in the world. As to the wine's quality I can say that I am not dependent on hearsay.

As a modest connoisseur of the vintages of France, Spain, Italy and Roumania, I stood literally perplexed when, as an accomplished "taster," I imparted the necessary rotating motion to the extremely thin glass of red wine that a kind Jewish "tonnelier" offered me with all the grace that the ancient rite requires. The slight rolling motion caused, as it should out fan-wise, like the Gascons, those "veritable appreciators" of good wine, I did

Soo's Mystery Man Is Adjudged Insane

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Jan. 27.—(CP)—Ralph Hofman Delmar, the Soo's "Mystery Man," has been adjudged insane and will be committed to the Ontario Hospital at Mimico. Every effort to establish Delmar's real identity has failed since he was arrested last March.

Immigration authorities, after a lengthy investigation, were unable to substantiate report Delmar was a Norwegian and had entered Canada illegally, and finally withdrew from the case which was then taken up with the provincial secretary's department. Delmar is believed to have come to the Soo from Chatham, N. B.

124 Seats of 153 Give Government 6 Margin Over All

Official Observers Hold Only Miracle Can Place Cosgrave In Office—Republicans Sure Of Edge With Labor Link Up In New Dail.

(By George Hambleton, C.P. Staff Writer.)

DUBLIN, January 27 (C.P. Cable). — Third day's count of votes cast in the Irish Free State general elections continued tonight with the Republican Government once more in the lead over all, heading for President Eamon de Valera's long-cherished goal of an independent majority in the Dail Eireann.

De Valera, who went to the country to gain a vote which wodld for the first time since he reached office make him independent of the Labor Party, saw the balance ebb and flow, but once more swing to the Republicans as the results mounted over three-quarters of the total.

Results in 124 out of 153 seats in the Irish Free State general election this evening gave the Republican Government a majority of two over all other parties combined.

The party standing:

Republican	65
Labor (Govt.)	7
Nationalist (Oppn)	36
Independent (Oppn.)	7
Centrists (Oppn.)	3
Ind.-Labor (Oppn.)	1
Doubtful	29

Claim Clear Majority

Government supporters on the basis of to-day's returns claimed an independent majority for them was a certainty. The Irish Times, organ of former President William T. Cosgrave's Nationalist Opposition, admitted, "There is hardly any doubt that De Valera will have a majority in the new Dail. He may even have a majority over all, in which case he will no longer be obliged to rely on the asisstance of Labor."

At any rate, it was quite safe to assume that only by a miracle could Cosgrave go into office. Labor may prove vexatious in its demands on De Valera if he is forced to seek its aid, but Labor and the Republicans worked fairly well together for the past 11 months. De Valera would like to be independent of Labor, but at the same time there is little chance Labor would turn against him. And even if it did, it looks as though the Republicans would be secure in their own right.

All Ministers Returned

All ministers in De Valera's cabinet have been re-elected, and all party leaders have also been returned to the Dail. The Republican ministers indeed all headed the polls in their respective districts with the exception of James Geoghegan, Minister of Justice, whose first preference votes in Longford West Meath fell from 7,202 to 4,649.

Some sample of the trouble there is in counting the votes in an Irish election, with various transfers of preferential votes to fill up the quota, is the experience in Louth. There the clerks worked for 26 hours and the only halt was just before the final count began. The staff protested they had had nothing to eat for 15 hours. And impatient candidates had to wait while the counting was adjourned for a meal.

LABOR TROUBLES TIE FORD PLANT

NEW MODELS HALTED.

DETROIT, January 27 (C.P.). — Ford Motor Company manufacturing and assembly plants all over the United States were idle to-day because of labor troubles in Detroit plants supplying the Ford Company with automobile bodies, and estimates of the number of men affected ran as high as 150,000.

Ford Company officials, in announcing the shut-down, said it was due to the closing of two plants of the Briggs Manufacturing Company here where a number of employees walked out early this week.

They said they could not continue work on new models not yet announced without bodies furnished by the Briggs Company.

Employees of the Briggs Company said their protest was over deductions in their pay made for "dead time" caused by machinery breakdowns or by moving from one part of the plant to another. Company officials said the minimum wage for non-productive workers is 25 cents an hour, with the expert tradesmen drawing from 60 cents to $1.90 an hour.

The Briggs Company has employed about 6,000 men.

Judgment Reserved In Port Hope Case

COBOURG, Jan. 27 (Staff Correspondent). — The County Court sat yesterday at Cobourg trying a case of Mrs. Ethel Davidson of Port Hope, against Claude Wickett, merchant of Port Hope, for removing the foundation of a barn, when he altered it, so that her land fell down upon Mr. Wickett's property. A large number of witnesses was called to prove the condition of the walls which were removed and to prove the damage to the lands of Mrs. Davidson.

Mr. Wickett's contention was that Mrs. Davidson had not been in occupation of her premises 20 years to acquire an easement in lateral support of her lands.

The case lasted all day before Judge O'Connor, who reserved judgment, and arranged with counsel to view the premises to see the condition of the wall and the condition of the lands that had fallen in.

The Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., appeared for Mr. Wickett, and A. R. Cochrane, Esq., K.C., for Mrs. Davidson.

INQUEST IS HELD INTO THE DEATH OF J. M. PAYTON

Deceased Came to His Death By Taking Potassium Cyanide Jury Finds.

STOMACH EXAMINED.

Car in Its Erratic Course Narrowly Missed Striking Two Children.

"From the evidence submitted we find that J. Mitchell Payton came to his death while driving his motor car on Monaghan Road, Peterborough, about 12.45 p.m. on Tuesday, January 17, 1933, from the effects of patassium cyanide poisoning self administered," was the verdict returned last night by the jury which heard evidence presented at the inquest into the strange circumstances surrounding the sudden death of J. Mitchell Payton, local manufacturers' sales agent.

Two medical men testified that a post mortem examination failed to disclose any physical ailment sufficient to cause death, nor was there any sign of heart disease to cause heart failure, nor was the injury of the head caused when Mr. Payton's car struck a tree, halting its wild course along Monaghan Road, sufficient to result in his death.

MAN WITH $1852 GETTING RELIEF

Many New Cases of Those Not Deserving Found on Sturgeon Falls' List.

NO QUESTIONS ASKED.

STURGEON FALLS, Ont., Jan. 27. (CP)—Sam Farrell, who received a relief clothing order for $28.79 has $1,852 in the bank and owns a house and lot, he told the Royal Commission enquiring into relief disbursements at to-day's session.

He had been working in the bush, he said. Under persistent questioning by W. H. Williams, K.C., Commission Counsel, he finally admitted his daughter Mildred, 11, received the relief order.

"I told the truth. I never got any clothing. My little girl got it, and I gave her the mischief," he declared.

"Did you return it?" asked Judge J. M. Hall, Commissioner.

"No. I had nothing to do with getting it" witness replied.

James O'Neil, who has received $6.45 a week relief since October and has obtained approximately $28 worth of clothing, told the commission he has $368 in the bank. He owns his own home clear, but had been out of work since 1930. "The way I looked at it, I had been off work so long I didn't want to wait until my last cent was gone," he said.

Grasping Opportunity

Mrs. Sam Farrell came to deny she ever received a clothing order of $15.34 credited to her in the clothing book, though she admitted getting an order for $13. "Everybody else was getting it and I thought I might as well," she admitted.

Ioussant Valle, employed half time at a paper mill at 60 cents an hour, explained a clothing order of $3.75 he received was for work he did for the town.

K. O. Gingras, farming 60 acres in Springer township, obtained $23.32 relief from Sturgeon Falls in August 1932, he said when he had a bank account of $62. He received $3 a week from Springer township.

Antoine Valade, son of Troussant Valade, explained he walked into an office in the town hall where Councillors Demers and Sevigny were sitting and asked for a clothing order. It was given him without question.

TORONTO NURSE DIES OF POISON

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—Nearly a year spent as a nurse in training at a Government mental hospital brought Helen Griffin, pretty and 21, of Huron Street, in contact with so much of the horror and ugliness of life that she turned, in despair, to death, and found peace yesterday in a vial of poison.

She was found lying on her bed, fully dressed, after a young man had forced the door to the flat, in response to a call from the young woman's mother.

Neither police nor Coroner Dr. G. W. Clendenan were able to ascertain just what form of poison had been used. The coroner has ordered a post-mortem and an analysis of the stomach contents.

The poison used smelled of menthol, Dr. Clendenan said, but menthol itself is not poisonous.

The woman in whose house Mrs. Emma Jones, and her daughter, Helen Griffin, occupied a flat, was profoundly shaken by the death.

Feared Effect on Mind.

"Only a few days ago, she came to me and told me that if she had to work another week in the hospital, she'd go as crazy as the others were," she said.

Miss Griffin had resigned her position as a nurse in training just before Christmas, but apparently the work had left its stamp on her. She frequently spoke of her revul-

FARMERS' LOANS WILL CONTINUE

Ontario to Carry on Policy Despite Other Provinces' Action.

BOARD REPORT OUT.

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—Ontario will continue its Agricultural Development Board policy of making loans to farmers—notwithstanding the difficult financial period through which the Government is passing, and in spite of the fact that all other provinces have discontinued for the time being their agricultural loan arrangements.

Announcement to this effect was made yesterday by Hon. Thomas L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, coincident with his release of the Agricultural Development Board's offical statement on operations during the year just ended.

"We are carrying on with our loans," Col. Kennedy declared, "chiefly for the reason that the farmers, despite trying times and the adverse prices under which they are working, are making an honest, determined endeavor to meet their obligations to the board."

In 1932, according to the board's statement, which has been issued over the signature of W. Bert Roadhouse, chairman, there were 4,187 applications passed by the board. The amount of loans passed was $10,861,975. The value of the security therein was $25,296,724. The number of loans actually paid out was 2,647, and the sum involved, $8,500,000.

Col. Kennedy was of the opinion that the number of applications in 1933 and the payment involved would not be quite so high for the reason, as he put it, that few farms were now changing hands and loans were not required as extensively as heretofore. As an example of the change in conditions, he said, there were 100 fewer applications received by the board last December than there were in December, 1931.

REEVE DUNCAN IS CHAIRMAN OF PENSIONS BOARD

Millbrook Reeve Takes Place of Late J. A. Vance as Secretary.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

Deputation From Hamilton Township Visits United Counties' Council.

(By A Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Jan. 27.—Reeve W. J. Duncan of Seymour was appointed chairman of the Old Age Pensions Board of the united counties for this year Thursday afternoon, and Reeve P. Stinson of Millbrook is the new secretary, assuming the duties of the late J. A. Vance.

Mr. Duncan was chairman of last year's Board.

With prospects of a Saturday session of the council, the Finance Committee met last night, and 11.15 were in the midst of a discussion of reducing the salaries of county officials.

The committee, with Reeve Annis of Darlington presiding, and Mr. Stinson secretary, recommended a grant of $4,050 to the Children's Aid Society of the united counties. The grant last year was $4,500, but Rev. James T. Daley of Port Hope, superintendent of the Children's Aid, had informed the council during the afternoon that a reduction of 10 per cent would be acceptable for 1933, and the committee's grant gave effect to his suggestion.

Last Tribute Paid To Jacques Bureau

THREE RIVERS, Que., Jan. 27.—(CP)—The city paused today from its labors to play last tribute to a man who had played a large part in the parliamentary life of Canada for three decades. Hon. Jacques Bureau, K.C., member of the Senate since 1935 and the House of Commons from 1920 to 1925, was laid to rest after an impressive service attended by leaders in church and state. He was a former Minister of Customs and Excise.

At Quebec the legislature refrained from a special morning session so that Premier L. A. Taschereau and many of his ministers could attend the obsequies. The premier was an honorary pall-bearer, the others being men intimately connected with the late senator in either public or private capacities.

EARLY SETTLERS RISKED DEATH

cast my eyes duly heavenwards, as prescribed by that modern Lucullus, Sully-Prud'homme; I heard my respectful and gracious host pronounce the liturgical Hebrew formula, "Le Chaim" (To Life), felt the rich fragrance mount in my nostrils, took a sip, clicking my tongue "hardly" like D'Artagnan of old, and actually could find no words at the moment to render justice to the mellowness, the beauty, the finesse and the exquisite taste of Palestine wine.

What poetry will be born on the son of Eretz Israel, I thought; what dancing words declaimed in those shady eucalyptus avenues on balmy Mediterranean nights with such a nectar to inspire the singers!

Ante-date Zionists

The establishment of Rischon-le Zion as an agricultural colony antedates the establishment of the Zionist settlements of the post-war era by nearly forty years. It was founded by a group of Russo-Jewish students, who had set out to redeem the soil of Palestine and who therefore must be taken as the historic forerunners of the present settlers. Jews have never in the course of history ceased to return to Palestine. But they came solely in the role of the pious pilgrims who sought the consolation of the Holy Places. The men of 1882, who founded Rischon-le Zion, Zicron Jacob and a colony in Lower Galilee named Rosh Pinah, came with an entirely different purpose. They had set themselves the task of nursing back to life the sickly and dying soil of their patrimony. The first generation of those heroic settlers went under in the struggle before their undertaking attained success. That these early colonies survived at all was due to the constructive philanthropy of Baron de Rothschild.

Animated by an overwhelming love for Zion, these early settlers had not the backing of a world organization like the Zionists of today, which supports and sponsors nearly all agricultural undertakings in Palestine. Neither was their action the outcome of a general national awakening in the Jewish people. Nevertheless they possessed the national instinct to such a degree that they ventured forth into a country that was practically hostile. They paid extortionate prices for the land, they were decimated by malaria, and their slender financial resources were soon strained to the breaking point. Word of their heroic action and of their suffering was spread through world-Jewry. Small societies were formed in Russian and Austrian cities, in Berlin and New York, and a movement sprang up on which the Zionists could later build their world organization. Had these pioneer colonies not been supported they would undoubtedly have succumbed in the unequal struggle. Yet, if the settlers fought on, it was not only because they were sustained by the moral and material support of their fellow-Jews elsewhere, but because there was that in them which gave them courage to build for a future they would never see.

Redeemed Soil

In spite of the Ottoman government's unconcealed hostility and other almost insuperable obstacles, this proto-national movement assumed larger proportions than is generally credited. At the outbreak of the great war there were no less than 31 agricultural settlements. A new impetus had been given to orange growing and vine plantation, the port of Jaffa was slowly reviving, nearly 50,000 Jews were engaged in the preliminary tasks of redeeming the soil and world-Jewry was confronted with the spectacle of colonies on the road to success. There remained but the liberation from the Turkish yoke to set Palestine on the road to a Jewish state.

A new type of Jew had emerged, a vision of the future had taken its place beside the pious contemplation of the past. But another road of sorrows had still to be trodden by the Jewish people of the world before their homeland was to be restored to them. Jews were to face each other yet, bayonet in hand, in the armies of the imperialist powers. Thousands were yet to dye the Carpathian snows scarlet with their blood for czar and "Good Emperor Francis." Tens of thousands of them were still to go under with the youth of Europe and America in an insane bedlam of hatred and bloodshed, before the reunion of Israel with the land of Israel with the land of Israel took place.

Village Is Hub

Rischon-le Zion has nothing of the raw and primitive appearance of a new settlement. The Flemish idea of a farming community, with a village in the centre like the hub of a wheel and the farms like the agricultural industries stretching in all directions like so many spokes, is also encountered here. The settlers do not live in what has always seemed to me a disastrous isolation as encountered on the prairies of western Canada. In the case of Rischon-le Zion the population actually engaged in the pursuit of agriculture supports a non-agricultural population of equal numbers, if not more. This is possible on account of the particular kind of culture. The result is that this flourishing village boasts of a not inconsiderable professional population of rabbis, doctors, teachers, agronomes, druggists, bricklayers and carpenters. There is also a farm school for young women. Girls from the younger agricultural colonies come here to equip themselves for the tasks that will be required of them as soon as their new home-colony somewhere else in Palestine has progressed beyond the first stages of draining swamps, building roads and dividing the land in pasture and producing soil.

One of the young women of that school, dressed in spotless white, with a hand-embroidered shawl over her red Clara Bow hair, I encountered as she was milking a cow. Her feet were bare and muscular. She looked up smilingly as I sauntered by.

Learned in One Week

"Can you milk?" she inquired, thereby letting it shimmer through that she was a novice herself, proud to have mastered that intricate art. "It is not difficult," she said. "I learned it in one week."

"So you are learning things here?" I questioned.

"Yes, and there is plenty to learn. And such a short time to do it in, too. Only six months," she went on. "Why only six months?"

"Because then I go back."

"Where to—Poland?"

"No, of course not." Then a short silence broken only by the squirt of foaming cream in the pail.

"I go back to Teladashim. That's where I belong."

"Where is Teladashim?"

"In Galilee."

"Is there nobody in Teladashim, then, to teach you milking?"

Will Own Cow

She burst out in a hearty laugh at my query. Then she resumed: "I really don't know. I have never asked. But I am going to have a cow of my own when I get back and so I must know how to milk."

"You—a cow of your own?"

"Yes. Why not? I and my husband!"

"You have a husband?" I asked in surprise.

"Yes. Why not? I haven't got him yet, but he's waiting."

"With the cow?" I asked.

A new burst of laughter followed. And then in the peremptory fashion of all the milkmaids of history she added: "Listen, you help me carry those pails and I'll tell you. But don't ask me too much!"

"Well, has your husband got the cow already?" I began.

"I told you I had no husband," she said, "but if you mean the man I am going to marry, no, he hasn't even a home so far."

"How are you going to manage, then?"

"You come back in two years' time, mister, and you will see how we have managed."

"What does your fiance do at present?"

"He is at Ain Charod, in the big colony, but he is not going to stay there. He has asked for a piece of land in Teladashim and he will get it soon."

"He must be clever," I said.

"He is clever. He writes poetry!"

"Poetry? But that won't help him here in Palestine."

"Yes, it will. He could not write it anywhere else, he often says. It helps him in his work on the land and the other way around. A day of hard work always brings new thoughts for poetry."

"Poetry after a hard day's work? That seems almost incredible. I could not even listen to the reading of poetry after such a day," I observed.

"Of course not," she came back, "but you are not a Chalutz!" (Jewish pioneer).

A mother writes that her small daughter's dolls were getting somewhat bedraggled from being kept in a chest, when the mother bethought her of a shoe bag. She hung it on the door of the closet, and now each dolly has her own pocket to live in.

REEVE SEES CLOSING OF SCHOOLS ONLY WAY TO SAVE PT, COLBORNE

Claims Even Most Drastic Cuts Will Only Stave Off Liquidation Few Months.

OWE BANK $160,000

PORT COLBORNE, Ont., Jan. 27 (C.P.)—That the town of Port Colborne could only be saved from liquidation by closing the schools for one year was the statement made by Reeve C. E. Steele, chairman of the finance committe of the council in presenting to the council a statement of the town's finances and a resume of the needs for the forthcoming year.

He was recommending, said Reeve Steele, drastic reductions in expenditures, including the elimination of the services of the school nurse and a reduction of $16,000 in the appropriations for school purposes, but these reductions as drastic as they seem, would only tide the town along for two or three or at the most four months. Then, unless some genius came along and showed where some money could be obtained, the town was at the end of its tether.

The town owed the Imperial Bank of Canada $160,000 and no other bank would have carried the town as long as the Imperial had, he said. This year with the huge funded debt of the town with its accompanying heavy uncontrollable expenditure and the little leeway given the council for economizing together with the fact that a large percentage of taxes would not likely be paid, he could not see, said the reeve, but that that debt to the bank would be increased.

PILES

Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves.

If you think a surgical operation is the only way to get rid of itching, bleeding, or protruding Piles, it's because you haven't heard of the harmless internal medicine discovered by a prominent western physician.

After years of study, Dr. J. S. Leonhardt found the cause of Piles to be internal—congestion of blood in the lower bowel—the hemorrhoidal veins flabby; the bowel walls weak; the parts almost dead. Right away the doctor set to work to find a real internal remedy. He succeeded, and after prescribing it for 1,000 patients, with success in over 900 cases, he named his prescription HEM-ROID.

The doctor wants every Pile sufferer to benefit by his discovery, and so there will be no doubting or delay, McDermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Store and druggists everywhere are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end Piles in any form.

So why waste time on external treatments or think of an operation when HEM-ROID tablets are guaranteed.

COMBINE PROBES GOING 2 YEARS

One of Latest Investigation is Underway Among Tobacco Buyers.

FILM CHECK-UP FAILS

OTTAWA, Jan. 27 (C.P.)—Investigation of alleged combines under the Combines Investigation Act, has occupied that division of the Department of Labor almost continuously since the Privy Council judgment of January, 1931, when the act was found intra vires. The latest of these to reach the prosecution stage is that of the fruit manufacturers case which goes on trial in Hamilton tomorrow.

Immediately following the Privy Council judgment, probes then pending were completed. These included the "B.C." investigations in Western Ontario which resulted in convictions and fines in connection with an alleged combine between contractors for building and plumbing supplies, and the case of the electrical estimators in Toronto which resulted in convictions.

An outstanding investigation was that conducted by Peter White, K. C., as a special commissioner, into the motion picture industry, on complaints that a combine existed affecting the distribution and exhibition of films. The report was returned April, 1931, the commissioner finding that a combine existed. Prosecutions, however, resulted in the acquittal of those charged.

Another investigation at present underway is among the tobacco buyers in Western Ontario where an alleged combine was reported early this year. The inquiry is being carried out by Donald Sutherland acting as a special commissioner.

TWO MEN'S GROUPS JOIN FOR MEETING

Dr. C. W. Drury, Toronto, Gives Interesting Address to St. Andrew's, St. Paul's Association.

MARMORA, Jan. 27 (Examiner Correspondence) — Another outstanding meeting was held in St. Andrew's United Church on Wednesday evening by the Men's Association of the church, with seventeen members of St. Paul's Men's Club and a few other guests present, the attendance was swelled to fifty-seven.

R. A. Elliott, vice-president, occupied the chair and after the opening exercises, the president, H. W. Sabine welcomed the visitors and proceeded in a very abe manner to portray current events.

Dr. C. W. Drury, of Toronto, guest speaker introduced by the chairman gave a highly interesting talk on "Progress in Industry." He prefaced his talk with a compliment to the executive of the Men's Association. He first touched upon the device used by the railroads to detect defective rails. Next he outlined the manufacture of cellophane which dates back to the year 1908.

Dry Ice

The most interesting feature of his talk was that which dealt with dry ice. The speaker having brought a block of this ice with him conducted a few experiments to the intense interest of the gathering. He inflated two small balloons and also showed that mercury could be easily frozen with this substance. He explained that one pound of dry ice was equivalent to twenty pounds of water ice. He concluded with references to two way television and narrated in fascinating style his experiences as he visited the laboratory in New York a year ago. A vote of thanks was extended the speaker upon the motion of H. W. Sabine and Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth.

E. C. Prentice will handle current events at the next meeting.

The life long ambition of Sadao Araki, Japan's War Minister, is to make the whole of Manchuria a part of Japan. Rising from a poor youth to one of the most influential and powerful men in Japan, Araki is imbued with the spirit of Japanese imperialism which he calls "Japanism." He declares that this spirit must sweep the world and all obstacles to it removed by force. It was Lieut.-Gen. Encouraging Reports Are Read At Meeting

APSLEY, Jan. 27 (Examiner Correspondence)—The annual vestry meeting of St. George's Church was held in the Parish Hall on Monday evening with a good attendance of members.

The reports presented by the rector were most encouraging, records being achieved in attendance at the services and Sunday School classes. The church warden's report of the finances was satisfactory except for the Sunday collections which showed a decrease from last year. In spite of this, however, the allotments have all been paid in full.

Teh following officers were elected for 1933: Rector's Warden, Hubert James; People's Warden, C. S. Windsor; Lay representative to Synod, C. S. Windsor ,George Tanner and Roy Spence; Advisory Council, Frank Tanner, George Kilborn, Harry James, Harry Tanner, Herbert James, Mrs. T. H. Lean, Mrs. Spence, Mrs. Downing; Sidesmen, Robert and Herbert James.

Hearty votes of thanks were extended the rector, Mrs. Spence, Sunday School superintendent and Mrs. J. Downing, organist.

Church Makes Progress

Reports presented at the vestry meeting of St. Stephen's Church, Chandos, showed progress in every department. Sunday offerings had increased and all allotments had been paid in full. Charles Tanner and Edwin Everett were re-elected wardens and Philip Tanner, Lay Representative. The Sunday School teacher, Mrs. Everett, reported 22 children on the roll, thirty-seven sessions being held during the year.

District Notes

The members of the Women's Institute had a busy day on Tuesday when they were engaged in quilting, meeting at the Town Hall for the purpose.

Among a batch of hen eggs marketed by Mrs. Charles Tanner, four of abnormal size were noticed by the purchaser. They ranged between six and a quarter and six and a half inches in circumference, 3 to 3¼ inches in length and the four together weiged a fraction less than 16 ounces.

INQUEST IS HELD INTO THE DEATH OF J. M. PAYTON

stomach gave positive indications of the presence in large quantities of potassium cyanide, a quick-acting poison, was the evidence of Dr. C. B. Waite, of the Provincial Laboratory here, who performed tests upon the stomach, and Dr. Herbert Young, who was present when the tests were made. Dr. Waite stated positively, "Death was due to potassium cyanide poisoning."

A pint milk bottle, containing a small quantity of water, was found in Mr. Payton's car by police and Dr. Waite said that it was his opinion that the water had been taken to wash the poison down the throat

A slip of paper, also found in the car, with the two words "potassium cyanide" written upon it also gave mute but emphatic testimony that Mr. Payton had ended his own life. Miss Viola Payton, his daughter, shown the slip of paper in the witness box, said that it looked like her father's writing.

In Financial Straits.

Evidence was submitted indicating clearly that Mr. Payton was in financial straits, and that he had sought loans from various friends. Also an insurance agent testified that the morning previous to the day of his death, Mr. Payton had interviewed him to learn what was the smallest amount of money required to keep his insurance policies in force for several months longer. The agent stated that three $1,000 policies on Mr. Payton's life had had loans raised on them up to their full amount, and that one would have lapsed within a few days, while the other two would have expired at the end of February.

Narrowly Missed Children

One witness of the erratic course of Mr. Payton's car north on Monaghan road, as the driver lay beneath the wheel, said that the car had narrowly missed striking two children. The car's contact with the curb at the corner of Homewood avenue changed its direction, turning it away from the children.

The inquest was conducted before Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young, who has just recovered from an illness, by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

Advanced Money

L. J. Pettit, first witness, said he knew J. Mitchell Payton. He had seen the body and identified it as that of Mr. Payton.

Witness said that in the middle of December he knew Mr. Payton was in financial difficulties and was behind in his rent. Mr. Pettit said he had been approached through a third party to aid the deceased in meeting a payment on an insurance policy.

Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, pastor of Murray street Baptist church said Mr. Payton had been a member of his congregation. The deceased had approached witness to secure a loan of about $30. He told Mr. Payton that the money would not be furnished in the nature of a loan, "That money was found for him," said Mr. Sutcliffe.

Saw Accident

John Hammond, supervisor at the Quaker Oats Company, said he had seen the accident. He was in his house at the intersection of Monaghan Road and Homewood avenue. Looking out a window he saw an apparently driverless car run up on his boulevard. The car had been coming north and just missed a telephone pole, then ran along the boulevard striking a tree. In coming up on Mr. Hammond's boulevard it ran over on its wrong side of the road. At one time witness thought the car was going to strike two children. Its contact with the curb changed its direction from the children.

Found Stricken Man

Witness went immediately to the car. He found Mr. Payton lying on his right side in the front seat of the car with blood flowing from a scalp wound. The driver was slumped down. Witness tried to lift the man but could not. He heard a gurgling cough but got no response to a question.

Witness then hurried away to a telephone and called Dr. Howson. Witness said Mr. Payton was breathing when he first got to the car. The car ran about 450 feet after crossing to its wrong side.

Large Number of Spectators

Witness said he moved the gear shift of the car in trying to lift Mr. Payton. There were a large number of spectators about the car, but not to his knowledge did anyone put anything in or take anything out of the car before police arrived. However, this might have been done without his knowledge he said.

Asked For Loan

Clarke Leslie knew the deceased and had a conversation with him shortly before his death. At that time Mr. Payton told witness "he was not getting along so good." Previously, about a year ago, Mr. Payton asked witness for a loan.

Borrowed On Insurance

Percy Martyn, agency assistant of the North American Life Insurance Company, said he had had an interview with Mr. Payton on the Monday before he died. "He wanted to know the least amount of money he would have to pay on a certain policy to keep it in force", said witness.

Mr. Payton had borrowed money to the full extent on three one thousand policies with the company. During December Mr. Payton secured sufficient money to pay enough premiums on his policies to keep them in force until February. He had inquired on January 16. the least amount of money required to keep the other thousand dollar policy up a few months longer. The 30 days of grace on this policy expired on January 20. Nine dollars was required to extend the policy in force past January 20. Mr. Martyn said.

Not Feeling Well

Mrs. Olive Coombe, a resident of Crawford's Grove, said that Mr. Payton was in her store on the morning he died at about 10 o'clock Mr. Payton told witness he did not feel very well. "He did not look very well either. His eyes were swollen underneath," Mrs. Coombe said.

Doctor Testifies

Dr. A. G. Howson, who attended Mr. Payton on the scene of the accident, said he found the deceased slumped up between the wheel and the gear shift. There was a bruise on his forhead and a scalp wound that was bleeding freely. While the doctor was phoning for an ambulance Mr. Payton died.

Dr. Howson, who knew Mr. Payton previously, said that as far as he knew Mr. Payton was in good health.

"Do you know what caused his death?" asked Mr. McElderry.

"No, I do not," was the reply.

Injuries Not Sufficient

Dr. Howson said that he had assisted at the post mortem and did not find any physical ailment that would cause death. "He did not die of heart failure, nor was the wound on his head sufficient to cause concussion and result in his death," said Dr. Howson.

The stomach was removed and sent over to the labratory for examination, said Dr. Howson.

Dr. Herbert Young, who was also present at the post mortem on the body of the deceased, said he agreed entirely with the evidence of Dr. Howson. He said there was no indication of disease, nor did Mr. Payton die of heart disease, nor was the wound on the head sufficient to cause death.

Found Potassium Cyanide

Witness said he took Mr. Payton's stomach to Dr. Waite's laboratory. He saw a test made had shown positive indication of potassium cyanide in the stomach. He said this was a poison which acted very quicky and which caused almost instant death. A very small dose, a grain being sufficient to cause death.

Found Bottle In Car

He said he saw a pint milk bottle lying on its side in the front seat of the car. It contained a clear colorless fluid and was taken to the laboratory.

Dr. Young said potassim cyanide was a very dangerous poison and if the stomach was not examined within 24 hours after death rapid chemical change might remove all signs of the poison.

A paper found in the car was produced by Dr. Young. Only the two words "potassium cyanide" were written on the small slip of white paper.

RESULTS OF TESTS

Dr. C. B. Waite, in charge of the Provincial laboratory here, said he had examined the stomach from Mr. Payton's body and made tests. Tests made for cyanide of potassium showed there was very large amounts among the stomach contents. Dr. Waite said that five grains of potassium cyanide was more than sufficient to cause death and there was much more than that present in the stomach he examined.

There was no cyanide in the milk bottle. "It contained only water," said Dr. Waite. "It is my opinion he used the water in the milk bottle to wash down the potassium cyanide." The congestion in the stomach also indicated directly that the potassium cyanide had been taken in a large dose.

Death By Poisoning

"Poisoning by potassium cyanide" Dr. Waite stated was the cause of death. He said potassium cyanide cause death within anywhere from 15 to 20 minutes to two hours after taken. There was no food in the stomach, said Dr. Waite.

Detective-Sergeant Wm. Meagher said he attended the accident. His evidence as to the location of the car and its course and the position of Mr. Payton's body corroborated that of previous witnesses.

He said a search was made of the car and a pint milk bottle containing some clear fluid and the white slip of paper, bearing the words "potassium cyanide" upon it, previously produced in the front seat.

Miss Viola Payton, daughter of the deceased, said she remembered the morning of January 17. Her father left the house sometime between 9.30 and 10 o'clock in the morning. She did not see him return to the house after leaving at that time.

Like Deceased's Writing

Shown the white slip of paper with the words, potassium cyanide upon it, and asked by Dr. Young, "Is that your father's writing?" Miss Payton replied "It looks very much like it."

"Is or isn't?" asked Dr. Young.

"I think it is, but I would not swear to it," she answered.

This closed the evidence.

At the hospital she was described as a capable and efficient nurse. She resigned voluntarily. There was some talk of a new position as a nurse to begin next week. Miss Griffin had said she would like a position in an ordinary hospital.

Yesterday she was at home with her mother. About 3.30 p.m. Mrs. Jones went out shopping. She returned an hour and a half later. The door of their flat was locked. Knocking gained no response. She waited a while. Then she peered into the keyhole and noting that the key was still in the lock, she called for assistance.

Mrs. Jones and her daughter, Helen (by her first marriage), came to Toronto from Macon, Georgia, about three years ago.

CHINESE ATTACK PROVES FAILURE

JAPS RUSH TROOPS.

SHANHAIKWAN, China, January 27 (C.P.). — Japanese reports said a strong Chinese force attacked Japanese troops holding Chiumenkow ("Pass of Nine Gates") in the Great Wall of China, about 12 miles north of here, early to-day. The Chinese were reported to have retreated after a three-hour battle

The Chinese were believed to be a portion of the command of General Ho Chu-Kuo, Chinese commander of the Shanhaikwan Garrison who was ousted when the Japanese occupied this city on January 3.

The Rengo (Japanese) News Agency learned that reinforcements were being rushed to Chumenkow from Suichung, Manchuria, by the Japanese.

Cordova Mines

Jack Peacock, aged thirteen, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Peacock suffered painful injuries on Wednesday morning in the school yard of S.S. No. 12 when he fell on the ice, cutting his right forearm so severely that it required eight stitches to close the wound.

Mr. Gilbert Steenburgh is taking out a large quantity of wood from the swamp on James Freeman's property. It consists of bolts and cordwood, to be hauled to the Trenton Cooperage Co. at Trent River.

Mr. J. C. Cumming, mining engineer, of Windsor was in this vicinity on Tuesday, looking over the several mining properties, with a view to purchasing. He surveyed the Cordoca gold mine, and the Ledyard property also the iron mine south of the village, lot 19, concession 1, Belmont.

On Wednesday last after midnight, Mr. Will Young met with a rather unusual accident, while hauling wood to Trenton Cooperage Company. The truck on which were loaded three cords of stave bolts overturned on the side of the road near Mr. Little's farm, nine miles east of Havelock on the Cordova road. Mr. Young was not hurt. The men have found it more expeditious to haul the wood at night when the roadbed is frozen, as they make better time, and there is not so much damage done to the road.

A barn on the Martin Clark property east of Havelock on the Cordova road, was burned to the ground in the early hours of Monday morning. The barn contained a number of farm implements belonging to Mr. Fred Ellis, who is the occupant of the property.

Misses Nellie and Margaret Bowen of Campbellford are spending a week at the home of their parents here.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Steenburgh, Jr. spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. George Barrons and family.

Mr. Jack Cunningham of Campbellford spent Sunday with local friends.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ellis and family spent Sunday with friends at Vansickle.

Mr. and Mrs. James Cruickshanks and daughter Joan of Toronto are visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Johnston. They are accompanied by Miss Valla Johnston, who is also visiting her parents here.

A DOUBLE CALL.

One of the distressing features of the prolonged depression is the fact that the municipal share of the cost of relief is often a heavy burden upon taxpayers, who because of the conditions are not far from the relief line themselves and who are having a keen struggle to meet their civic obligations.

It is because of that situation that the Relief Fund campaign now being carried on is of particular significance.

It is an effort to secure voluntarily from those who are financially able to help a large proportion of the amount that otherwise would have to be secured through taxation and thus taken from many people who are in no condition to pay.

Every dollar donated by citizens who have the means to assist this cause is a dollar lifted from the civic tax bill, and thus every donation helps not only those whose names are on the relief list, but those other harassed citizens with reduced incomes who are battling to keep a roof over their heads.

There is a double call, therefore, to all who are fortunate enough to be in a position to come to the aid of less lucky fellow-citizens.

Many have already made a noble response, but much more is needed; let us hope the call will not fall on deaf ears.

MISS MACPHAIL'S VISIT.

The visit to Peterborough to-night of Miss Agnes MacPhail, M.P., one of the leaders in the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, and among the chief exponents of currency inflation as a way out of Canada's economic ills, provides an opportunity for local citizens to hear the views of the C.C.F. set forth at first hand, and there should and undoubtedly will be a large attendance.

With such questions as are to be discussed to-night so much to the fore at the present time, it is the duty of true Canadian people to hear and study all angles of these important problems; it should be obvious that the more enlightened the electorate becomes on the issues of the day the more valuable will be the expression of public opinion.

With many of the views held by Miss MacPhail and the group she represents, The Examiner has not been able to see eye to eye, but that does not prevent us from saying that Peterborough people owe it to themselves to take advantage of her visit to-night to hear the C.C.F. ideas and policies discussed by one who firmly believes in them.

Miss MacPhail is a leading figure in Canadian public life, an interesting speaker, and her subject to-night closely touches the lives of everybody in the district.

For those reasons she is entitled to a worthwhile audience and to an attentive hearing.

WHILE THE GETTING WAS GOOD.

Surely that was a new principle in public ethics that was set forth by ex-Mayor Zotique Mageau of Sturgeon Falls during the relief probe the other day when he declared that back in 1931 the mayor and Council of Sturgeon Falls had decided to get all the money they could out of the Government and not spend a cent of the town's money on relief.

It would be impossible to justify such a policy even if it were true that the money obtained from the Government originated magically, but when it is remembered that the Government's only source of revenue is the pockets of the people of the country, the full enormity of the Sturgeon Falls policy becomes starkly evident.

What the Council of that town really did was to decide that looking after their needy citizens was no Sturgeon Falls responsibility, and that they were going to take all the money they could get out of their fellow-Canadians.

That is what the whole thing amounts to, and it is difficult to understand the mentality of a body of public men who could convince themselves that there was the slightest element of justice or common honesty in the course they so unhesitatingly followed.

"Get while the getting's good" seems to have been the Sturgeon Falls slogan, and all the evidence goes to show that the town certainly lived up to the motto at every stage of relief distribution.

CONDITIONS LESS DISCOURAGING.

That the decline of business in Canada has been arrested, even although the signs of definite recovery are not numerous, is the encouraging statement made by the Bank of Nova Scotia in its quarterly survey of business conditions.

"It is true," says the bank's report, "that business is no longer plunging to greater depths of depression. The precipitous declines of January to June, 1932, have been arrested, but in most cases the truthful recorder of events is confined to the bare statement that decline has been arrested."

The statement points out that Canadian business passed through two phases last year.

The first six months were marked by drastic curtailment in almost every line of economic activity. The depression was unquestionably more widespread and intense at mid-summer in 1932 than at any time in 1931 or earlier.

The continuance of these tendencies in the second half of 1932 would have created a situation so serious as scarcely to bear contemplation.

Fortunately, however, they were abruptly halted at that time.

The diagrams by which the bank measures the changes in some seventy lines of economic activity record a series of curves which had been rapidly declining. In the second half of 1932, following one another in quick succession, most of these curves flattened out.

There was even an obvious, although, limited recovery during the third quarter, but following that recovery, some gains were lost in the quarter just ended.

"Nevertheless," says the statement emphatically, "the situation in Canada is less discouraging than it was six months ago."

AN AMERICAN VIEW OF THE C.C.F.

(From the Christian Science Monitor)

Even while the dismal giant of technocracy has been striding the American stage, in Canada another group, less conspicuous, has been making a deeper stir and a much more hopeful one.

Organized only last August, the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation of Canada is rapidly spreading throughout the country. In contradistinction to the pronouncements of the technocrats, the federation seems to be advancing on the assumption that man is an intelligent being and can work out his own economic salvation without junking freedom or the humanities. While the technocrat is apparently to a large extent concerned with the negatives of unemployment, lack and social disorder, the co-operator sees about him abounding plenty, vast stretches of untouched work waiting to be done.

Having seen this, the co-operator has set himself the task of building up a system that will insure to every consumer a share of the bounty that exists and a portion of the work that must be done. Co-operation, he tells his fellow-men, will solve all social and economic problems. He is willing to employ the machine for the consumers' benefit. And since every man is a consumer, this rather lifts the organization out of the category of a class movement.

The federation is rapidly gaining adherents, numbering in its ranks many advanced thinkers. It aims at an early nationalization of banking, currency and credit as a first step toward a full employment and exchange of goods and services. It is pointing to the constructive results of co-operation throughout Europe as but a hint of what is possible when co-operation is more widely known and applied.

With many members of Parliament in the movement, the Canadian federation looks forward to playing an important part in the next general election. Whether co-operation will prove capable of leading the way to a wider and sounder prosperity remains to be seen. However, since it is an organization of consumers, rather than the stir of a single class or profession, it will bear watching in the immediate future.

THE HORN BLOWERS.

George A. Hodgson, of the Ontario Safety League gave an address in North Toronto Town Hall, and had something to say about horns on motor cars. He told his audience that in his opinion motor accidents would be fewer by 50 per cent. if manufacturers were compelled to leave the horn or signal device off the cars manufactured in this province.

Of course, if this were done we would have to revise a good many of our present methods. We have read of court cases following accidents, and "Did you blow your horn?" was a question much stressed and deeply pressed.

We do not know if a horn ever prevented an accident. It does seem, though, that the presence of the horn produces in the mind of many drivers the idea that they have cleared themselves of all responsibility after giving a honk-honk. Having done that, pedestrians are supposed to hop quickly out of the road and traffic in general should open up and make way.

One can notice almost every day people who persist in blowing their horns when no purpose can be served by so doing. If they come to a corner where traffic is a little blocked they seem to think it necessary to start a toot-toot. It is nothing short of an exhibition of plain ignorance and display of bad taste. Common courtesy would suggest that they should slow down, or come to a stop until matters became ready for them to proceed.

We are not prepared to subscribe to the idea that there should be no horns on cars, but we are certain that a fifty per cent. decrease in their use could be readily accomplished and no harm done. Above all else it is desirable that drivers rid themselves of the stupid idea that they have performed their full duty toward the cause of safety when they blow their horn.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

GOLD MINES AND EMPLOYMENT.

New gold, as it was pointed out in an article on this page last Saturday, is a considerable factor in the maintenance of Canada's economic solidity. Last year mines of the Dominion produced this precious metal to the value of $63,000,000, and gold exports to the United States by the Federal Government had a value of more than $50,000,000. Without such a stabilizing factor the value of our dollar in New York might have been still further depressed.

And that is not the whole story. On new gold produced in the Dominion was paid by the Government a premium equal to the current premium in Canada on United States funds. This is done to encourage production, and while the private export of gold is forbidden, it allows to the mine or prospector approximately the price which might be secured if the metal might be shipped freely for sale to best advantage in the world's markets. The added profit was an incentive to efficient operation, to the utilization of low-grade ores, and to the exploration of new gold fields and areas.

More than 10,000 Canadians are employed in the gold industry, and this tabulation does not include mines where gold, even though produced in important quantities, is a by-product. At least 50,000 Canadians, it is estimated, have their living from gold production, and thus it ranks among our foremost industries. Stock in the gold companies is widely distributed—much of it is held in the United Kingdom and the United States—and the comparative prosperity of the industry was reflected last year in satisfactory dividends and prices.

Canada now is second only to South Africa among the world's gold-producing countries, and our output is rising steadily. It is a factor of tremendous social consequence and economic significance.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It is surprising to find such lively people as the Irish ready to wait two or three days for election results.

If you have not yet sent in your donation to the Relief Fund, will you please act at once. The need is urgent and every dollar will be of material assistance.

Noting that Premier Bennett has left no doubt as to where he stands on the question of currency inflation by Canada, the Kingston Whig-Standard adds: "And this just about settles the matter."

Attorney-General Price advises Conservatives to prepare for an election. He has probably become aware of the fact that Mitchell Hepburn has been getting ready for something of the kind.

This is the signature of a man who challenges discovery of himself as an effective means of throwing discovery of the scent. It does not suit him to be an open book. Not that he is cowardly—fundamentally he is fearless; or that he is receitful—essentially he is upright. But he is a tactician. He has mental sinuosity and flexibility. He wins by outsmarting the other fellow, who usually does not expect to be outsmarted from this direction, in that charm, geniality and good humor suggest the man in question to be easy going. To win is important to him. He has ambition and determination. But at that he is surprisingly matter of fact in the exercise of his method. He does the thing that seems necessary in the way that seems indicated, without quibbling or qualm. In his personal contacts he is tender, sympathetic and by reason of a sense of humor, well balanced and a most reassuring person.

COST OF PRIVATE BILL

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Sir,—The attention of the Peterborough Trades and Labour Council has been called to the Private Bill that is being prepared for presentation to the Ontario Legislature by the City of Peterborough to amend a City By-law to prevent an Alderman who has one year of his term to serve, standing for the office of Mayor and the members were of the unanimous opinion that it was an unnecessary expense for the City to incur at the present time under present conditions, as the City needed every dollar it has for relief; that it was a waste of money to spend a sum, estimated at from $100 to $300 for unnecessary legislation, when so many have to go without necessities and would request the City Council to take no further action in the matter.

Yours truly,
F. C. Wallwork, Secretary Trades and Labour Council.

INFLATION

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Sir,—Amid a welter of conflicting opinions on inflation, two facts seem to stand out clearly.

First that parity with sterling would be a benefit to our prime producers, notably the farmers.

Second that such parity would work a hardship on those who have debts to pay in United States funds, and they are many.

Sanity and fair play suggests a compromise; say a fifty-fifty split. Well, if the pound in New York is worth $3.40 which was the price yesterday. Canadian dollars would be worth within a small fraction of 70 cents. Canadian money is now worth between 86 and 87 cents in New York, about a cent and a fraction off the fifty-fifty mark.

George C. Scott.

TEN YEARS TOO LATE

Editor Peterborough Examiner,

Dear Sir,—The editorial in Wednesday's Examiner, quoted from the "Ottawa Journal," was written about ten years too late. The questions it asks with reference to unemployment insurance should have been answered and acted upon in 1922. In that year Mr. J. S. Woodsworth brought up the subject of unemployment insurance in the House of Commons, but the Premier, Mr. King, promptly stated that "I do not think the government can admit that it is primarily a federal obligation to look after the unemployed." So nothing was done about it.

The creation of a reserve fund to take care of the unemployed, had it been started at that time, would to some extent have mitigated the extreme severity of the depression. For one thing, it might conceivably have checked the extravagance of the years which preceded this critical period. Then, once the depression was upon us, it would have lessened the immediate contraction in spending. Those who still had jobs would have been less terrified at the prospect of losing them, and those who were thrown out of employment would have had left at least a fraction of their former purchasing power.

Now, of course, we must wait another great wave of prosperity before we can hope to inaugurate successfully any of the more acceptable forms of unemployment insurance. When that time comes, it is not improbable that we shall forget the lesson of this depression, and once again lay aside a problem that has been recognized as a governmental responsibility by eighteen other countries.

Yours truly,
W. H. C. Coulthard.

Who's Who in Ottawa

By CHARLES ROSS, Jr.

Hon. Dr. Murray MacLaren

Hearts of New Brunswick men and women have one particular man amongst men of whose splendid record of the past they might well be proud. The man is no other than New Brunswick's minister, Doctor the Honorable Murray MacLaren, who, despite the decorations he has won on the battlefields of France, and his enviable achievements as a honorable minister, still loves nothing better in all the world than simply to go fishin'. He as well has a particular fondness for golf and curling.

What the doctor has achieved as minister of pensions and national health all Canada appreciates. There are thousands who will ever remember him in this capacity alone—purely in the role of the kindly ministering doctor. To countless thousands he has ever kept that little yet gripping human masterpiece of oils fresh breathing and living in their hearts, the masterpiece of the country doctor seated in his buggy and urging his gallant steed to top speed down the countryside road in answer to the visitation of the stork.

Born in the little New Brunswick village of Richibucto, April 30, 1861, his heart has ever remained there, fishin' in his dreams—the purest dreams man ever dreamt, a lover of rippling rills, the scented breath of the pines and the melodious utterances of the little brown thrush and the meadow lark.

SOMETHING MORE ABOUT A CAT

A very nice young woman who is friendly and complimentary and all that, read something I wrote about cats and wrote me about it and asked me to write more articles about cats.

And of course I will....Because I think I know more about cats than I do about human beings.... They are not as confusing as people. They don't talk. They can't write.

Cats don's seem to have any conflicting ambitions, prejudices and ideals. They aren't devious and ticky, either—although some people think they are—and every cat is different and every cat, if you know him well enough, is intelligent enough for his own needs and purposes.

Our own cat has a broken leg at present. We don't know how it happened, but we think he fell off the garage while he was scuffling with big yellow Oscar, who lives next door.

He dragged himself up to the house and even with that broken leg he climbed a vine that grows beneath a second story window and appeared at the glass, asking for help....

We took him to a veterinarian and he was very good while the stranger was holding him and pulling at his broken bones and deciding what to do. He didn't yowl, he didn't spit, he was a perfect patient....The doctor told us it was useless to put a cast on the leg: we should take him home and keep him for three weeks in a big box.

That's what we did. But before we had the box made, he escaped and crawled away from us and hid in a far, dark corner of the basement for almost a day. He wanted to be all by himself, in his pain and bewilderment. But after a while he came out and we put him in the box and he purred and he purred and he purred.

He stays in his box except when we take him upstairs and put him before the fireplace, and he seems happy enough.

But there's something about him that worries us. He knows he isn't quite himself these days; knows he couldn't spit-fire a dog out of the yard; knows that a limping leg makes him only three-fourths of a healthy animal. We hope his leg will heal perfectly, hope he never limps, hope he'll be his natural self again in a few weeks.

We admire his simple courage and his patience and, in a way, we envy the way he is taking his trouble. He may not have any "philosophy," but he acts as if he had and his conduct is something of a reproach to elaborate creatures like ourselves, who boast of our wisdom and abandon it when we need it most.

There, kind lady, is something more about cats.

* * *

P.S: But the one who knows this cat better than I do and feeds him and is taking care of him right now—she says what she has observed most about him is his loss of confidence, even in the familiar surroundings of his home. And her greatest fear is that even when he is well again he will not be his natural, brave self.

P.P.S.: She thinks he didn't fall, but has hit by an automobile.

P.P.S.: And she doesn't think I had to moralize over him, either.

MURDER IN EDEN

By Charles Winfield Smith.

CHAPTER 27

Jere Kane knew that the hospital official had heard correctly. But he was forced to admit to himself that he was just as much in a fog as to the identity of "Buddy" as he had been when he first came across her name in the diary.

He voiced his thanks to the superintendent and took his leave. Outside the hospital he climbed into his cab—he had instructed the driver to wait for him—and directed that he be taken to the Beverly Hills address of Nanette LeRoi.

As the cab sped away he sank into deep contemplation. The girl was dead. That brought the number of murders to three to be laid at the door of the cunning "Buddy." The motive was plain enough.

Bailey probably had refused to meet further demands of this "Buddy" for money. She had bled him for everything he had; what club she held over his head to lend force to her extortions he did not know. More than likely, he mused, it was some love affair.

When the director refused more money the murderer found an opportune time to kill him. Then, fearing that Chivington would tell what he knew—which undoubtedly would lead her to the gallows—she found an accomplice to aid her in getting the old servant out of the way. The accomplice—this hapless girl who had surrendered to the demands of death only this morning—wa the third victim, obviously because the fiendish slayer was afraid she might give away the secret of Chivington's death.

Undoubtedly, he surmised, the attack on Nanette LeRoi was born of pure jealousy.

As Kane rode across the city toward Beverly Hills a large black sedan drove up in front of the county jail. Larry Weldon and Lucy Wilbur alighted and went in, and at the jailer's office asked permission to see Lillian Hull.

They were led into a large room. Presently, Lillian, her eyes red from weeping, came to them.

Lucy took the girl in her arms and sought to comfort her. After a moment:

"Why did you confess?" she demanded.

"They made me," Lillian sobbed. "I couldn't help myself."

"What do you mean, they made you?" Weldon put in.

"The chief hypnotized me," Lillian almost shrieked. "He said things and then asked me if they weren't true. He made me look him straight in the eyes, and he talked quiet like, almost enough to make me forget what I was doing—and the first thing I knew he had me saying that I had killed Richard."

"You didn't sign any confession, did you?" Lucy asked.

Lillian's face fell. "Yes," she murmured. "When they brought me down to headquarters."

"Why in God's name did you do that?" Weldon cried.

Lillian turned helplessly toward him. "What could I do?" she moaned. "They tortured me—"

"What's that?" Lucy broke in. "They tortured you?"

"You mean they beat you?" Weldon supplemented.

"No! No! They didn't do that! But I wish they had. It would have been so much easier!"

Weldon caught her hand in his and pressed it affectionately. "Tell me," he said, "just what happened after they brought you down to headquarters."

Lillian licked her lips as the horrible vision rose before her. She spoke slowly, almost laboriously:

"When the chief and those officers put me in their car to bring me down I realized for the first time what I had said. I determined that I was going to take it all back, that I was going to deny everything I had said.

"But they didn't say any more to me. When they got me down to the chief's office they made me go in by myself and sit down. I was too afraid to do anything else but what they told me to do.

"I sat there for what seems like hours. I could hear them talking outside in that outer office and I heard a typewriter going. Then, they came in, the chief and those four officers. They looked at me kind of funny and then the chief gave me a paper to read. I saw that it was a confession.

"I told them I wasn't going to sign it, if that's what they wanted. I screamed that I didn't kill Bailey and accused the chief of tricking me into a confession. But he only laughed at me and said, 'That's what they all say.'

"He asked me again to sign it and I wouldn't do it. He started asking me questions—he didn't talk harshly to me—his words almost dripped with sugar they were so kind. He kept asking me questions and I kept denying that I knew anything about Richard's murder.

"I talked so much—I guess I screamed, too—I got thirsty. I asked them to give me a drink of water. One of the detectives went to the cooler which sat by the chief's desk and drew a glass. Then he set in down on the table in front of me.

"I reached for it and one of those men pushed it back out of reach. I tried again to get it and they held me in my chair. And all the time they kept firing questions at me and trying to make me say that I would sign that confession.

"I begged them for the water and they only laughed at me and told me I could have it when I agreed to sign the confession. I wasn't going to do it, and I told them so. Then one of the men went to the cooler and emptied out the glass of water.

"Then he turned open the faucet and just let the water run out, awfully slow. I could hear the trickle of the water as it went to waste. I saw the water draining out of the big bottle. I was almost dead with thirst.

"When the water was almost gone I told them I would sign the confession if they would give me a glass of water. The chief put the paper in front of me and gave me his fountain pen and I signed it."

As Lucy Wilbur and Larry Weldon listened to this impassioned recital their features became hard and set. A dangerous gleam flamed in his eyes. His twisted little mouth crooked into a snarl.

Lucy grew pale. Her eyes became cold and lifeless. She said:

"You can still repudiate that confession in court."

"They won't let me!" the young actress cried in anguish. "I know they won't."

"From now on," Weldon almost hissed, "you do just what we tell you. We're not going to let an innocent person suffer for what someone else did."

Lillian looked at them with staring eyes. "I—I don't understand," she stammered.

"We know that you didn't kill Richard Bailey," Lucy asserted. "Bailey paid with his life for his bestial nature," her words were charged with venom, "and I'm not going to let you suffer."

The two women faced each other. Bewilderment clouded Lillian Hull's features. She wondered if Lucy—

"Oh, she couldn't have done it!" she told herself.

Lucy said, "I'll see that you come clear, Lil," meaningly. "You can depend on me."

"Tell me just one thing," Weldon said quietly. "Why did you go there last night."

"I don't know," Lillian exclaimed wearily. "I didn't even know I was there until they grabbed me."

Lucy took Lillian in her arms and whispered something in her ear. Lillian drew back quickly, her eyes filled with fear, consternation written into every line of her countenance.

A matron came to tell them that their time was up. Lucy said to Weldon, "Let's go, Larry."

Th y stared after Lillian as she went away, walking with dragging step, her shoulders drooping, her head hanging. Then they went down into the street and got into their machine.

Weldon clenched the wheel tightly as he drove away. An expression of determination was on his sallow face.

"We have a lot of things to do," Lucy said coldly.

"I know it," he agreed.

U. S. SENATE CONFIRMS THREE NEW MINISTERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—(A.P.)—Senate Democrats to-day clung to their policy of not confirming any Hoover appointments except routine promotions, after considering proposed relaxation to permit confirmation of new ministers to Canada, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the party leader, announced the decision.

He said the Democrats had considered at his suggestion the "advisability of confirming the three nominations, but reached the conclusion "that no action is recommended at this time."

President Hoover has nominated Nathan William MacChesney, of Illinois, Minister to Canada; F. Lammot Belin, of Pennsylvania, Ambassador to Poland, and Henry Frank Holthusen, of New York, Ambasador to Poland.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 27 (C.P.). — Lower Liverpool cables, together with an easier tone at Chicago, carried wheat prices fractionally under the previous close during early trading to-day. Pit trade, however, was draggy and further declines were checked due to the lightness of offerings.

Values at mid-session held at ¼-⅜ lower with May at 46¼, July at 47 1-8, and October at 48 1-8.

A small export business was worked overnight, but this had little effect on the market. Support generally was light and values at the end of the first hour were ¼-⅜ lower. Scattered buying which came in from time to time was credited to eastern and continental interests and locals.

Liverpool wheat shortly after mid-session was about ½d lower, while Buenos Aires wheat at noon was down 5-8c.

Australian wheat shipments for the week totalled 5,000,000 bushels, while clearances from Argentina amounted to 3,601,000 bushels.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

TORONTO EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, January 27 (C.P.)—C.P.R. was called upon to-day to weather a stiff selling squall which originated in London and Paris as a result of the gloomy broadcasts recently from Canada on the railway situation The selling in Paris was partly blamed in the brokers' strike, while holders of the stock in London threw quite a lot of their holdings overboard.

The price dropped $2 here, but recovered before the close to 12¾, where it was down 1½.

The oil shares also came in for substantial selling due to a feeling that dividends might be trimmed. As a result of unloading in the oils and C.P.R. volume was the highest of the month so far.

Other interlisted shares fell back with C.P.R.

Brazilian surrendered ⅛. Nickel ¼. Ford a fraction, and Smelters one point. British American Oil fell back to 7½ and closed at 7¾, while Imperial was steady and International Pete down ¼.

In the utilities Bell Telephone dropped back to 93½ and Shawinigan lost a fraction, while Montreal Power and B.C. Power B were up a little.

Minor losses were registered for Steel of Canada. Loblaw A. and Consolidated Bakeries The trend was also lower for the bank shares Beverage shares were quiet and slightly weaker.

STANDARD EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, Jan. 27 (C.P.).—The Standard Mining Market was called upon to absorb considerable selling in to-day's session, and moderate weakness cropped up here and there over the board, but the price structure steadied in the later afternoon and recovered some lost ground. Teck Hughes was the only issue of the high-priced group to weaken materially, falling back to 4.10.

Wright Hargreaves featured the list with an advance to 4.40, and the close at the top for a net 22-point rise. Dome and Hollinger were down 5 to 15, McIntyre about 25, while Lake Shore moved up to 34.30 for a 20 cent gain.

Siscoe was under considerable pressure and the price slipped back to 1.43 and then recovered a little. It was still down a few cents at the close. Sylvanite and San Antonio held firm and Howey fell back only about 2 cents, while Granada and Kirkland Lake held their ground.

The silver and base metal issues were somewhat weaker, Mining Corporation losing 8, Nipissing 5, Ventures 2 and Castle 1, while Sherritt was stronger. Falconbridge steady, Noranda up a few points, and Nickel off 15 to $9; Coast Copper dropped 25 to $2.

Some of the penny shares fell back fractions, including Barry Hollinger, Bobjo and Canadian Kirkland.

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 (C.P.). — A spirited rally by rail shares in the late trading to-day reversed an earlier decline by the general stock market. Numerous losses ranging from 1 to more than 2 points were recovered entirely, while some shares showed net gains. Tobacco issues and a few heavy industrials, however, failed to recover fully. Issues rising a point or so net included United Fruit, New York Central, Chesapeake and Ohio, Union Pacific and Santa Fe. Delaware and Hudson rose 3 points on short covering.

Take No Action To Stop N.Z. Imports

OTTAWA, January 27 (C.P.). — No action will be taken to hinder the importation into Canada of 250,000 pounds of New Zealand butter now on its way to British Columbia, it was learned in official circles here to-day. The shipment will come in under the regular five cents a pound tariff as provided in the Canada-New Zealand Treaty, and will cost the importer half a cent a pound more than the Montreal market price, it was learned.

EXCELSIOR LIFE HAD GOOD YEAR

Assets and Surplus Funds Were Increased in 1932.

ENCOURAGING REPORT

The forty-third annual report of the Excelsior Life Insurance Company was presented at the annual meeting by First Vice-President James Leith Ross, in the absence of President Alex. Fasken, K.C. The report is a most encouraging one.

Insurance, issued and revived, totalled $15,486,433 for the year, while the total insurance in force at the close of 1932 amounted to $94,631,095.

The total income for the year was $3,694,428.48, of which the sum of $2,763,257.75 represents net premium income.

Payments to policyholders during the year totalled $2,094,573.71. Of this amount, $510,012.50 was paid in death claims, $432,162.32 paid on account of matured endowment and investment policies, $350,547.62 paid as profits to policyholders, and $801,831.27 paid in surrender values, disability payments, annuities, etc. The modern slogan of "Life insurance for living people" is substantiated by the fact that the Excelsior Life's payments to policyholders in 1932 were divided 75 per cent. to living policyholders and 25 per cent. in payment of death claims.

The assets for security of policyholders increased $643,360.23 during the year, and now total $18,706,201.65.

In their report, the directors state: "It is gratifying to state that over 65 per cent. of our bonds are obligations of the cities, provinces or government of the Dominion of Canada."

Surplus funds amount to $2,638,671.94, an increase over last year of $151,267.69.

BANK OF TORONTO IN STRONG POSITION

Surplus is 15.67 Per Cent. of Entire Liabilities to the Public.

The last annual report of the Bank of Toronto recently issued at the close of its seventy-seventh year shows the Bank to be in a particularly strong position. Its surplus, consisting of capital, reserves and undivided profits amounting to $15,500,000, is 15.67 per cent of the entire liabilities to the public. Of its total assets amounting to approximately $114,500,000, it held in cash and securities, call and short loans fully secured over $61,300,000, equivalent to 62 per cent of all liabilities to the public. This percentage indicates a very strong liquid position.

Good Securities

Over 90 per cent of its securities, which are $37,275,000, consist of Dominion, Provincial and other high grade municipal bonds, mainly of short maturities and are set down in the statement at somewhat under present market prices.

Following its usual practice the Bank premises are set down in the statement at less than 50 per cent of their cost.

Follow Sound Policy

Since the Bank opened for business on July 5, 1855, the policy of its founders to provide a sound and safe depository for the public's savings has been consistently followed. While possibly not spectacular, its growth has been steadily upwards, until today it occupies a position of undoubted strength among the financial institutions of this country.

Car Badly Damaged But Driver Not Hurt

A Toronto motorist escaped unscathed yesterday afternoon when his car skidded and turned over in the ditch on the Peterborough-Port Hope highway. The motorist, Albert M. Lurie, 91 Hillcrest Drive, Toronto, was proceeding toward this city. Coming over the knoll just south of the Millbrook turn, a group of horses, which had broken out of a farmer's field, suddenly crossed in front of the car. Laurie applied his brakes, the car skidded and overturned in the ditch. The car was badly damaged but the driver was not hurt.

TORONTO CHEESE.

TORONTO, Jan. 27.— (C.P.) — The Toronto wholesale cheese market was steady to-day with dealers buying large, colored, paraffined and government grades at 10c.

Wholesalers offered cheese to retailers at the following prices: New, large 11½c; twins 11¾c; triplets 12c; old large 17¾c; twins 18c; triplets 18¼c; medium, large 15¼c; twins 15½c; triplets 15¾c.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.— (A.P.) — Downward tendencies showed themselves in grain values early to-day. Absence of any energetic buying in wheat allowed prices to sag. Brokers said uncertainties in political and economic fields were keeping ordinary trade out of the market, opening unchanged to ¼ lower, wheat afterward receded all around. Corn started unchanged to 1-8 off and subsequently held near the initial limits.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Jan. 27 (C.P.)—Trading on the Toronto Livestock market was fairly dull during the week with 300 head of cattle unsold at the close. Cattle, hogs and lambs showed a decrease in prices, while veal calves and sheep were higher.

Cattle trade was dull; calves strong; hogs easier; lambs easier; sheep steady.

The stagnant condition of the beef trade was reflected in the slow cattle markets. Monday's trade was dull with prices lower on all grades and with a holdover to be cut down to a few hundred head, but no buyers could be found for the fair to good butcher cattle and fed calves still left on Thursday. Prices on butchers were down 25c to 35c per cwt., at $3.75 to $3.85 for the best quality with common downward to $3.50. Weighty steers were taken by exporters at $3.50 to $3.90 for the majority, with a few lots of choice steers up to $4.50. Fed calves closed $1 per cwt lower at $4 to $5 according to quality. Good butcher cows were down 50c per cwt at $2.25 to $2.50, while heavy fat cows sold mostly at $2. Canners brought 75c per cwt. Bulls were also lower at $2 to $2.50 for butcher and at $1.50 to $1.75 for bolognas. Small lots of medium to good stockers sold during the week at $2.50 to $3.50 per cwt. Good springers sold stead at around $45 for tops.

Calf Prices Up

Veal calf prices were up 25c to 50c per cwt on all grades. Although tops were still at $7 per cwt, grading was easier and the bulk of sales showed higher. Good and choice calves sold mostly at $6 to $6.50 with common downward to $4.

The hog market firmed on Monday and Tuesday, with sales mostly 10c above last week's close at $3.26 f.o.b. for bacons, at $3.50 of ftruck and at $3.75 weighed off cars. Wednesday's feeling was a shade easier with some hogs selling 10c lower and closed at $3.15 to $3.25 f.o.b. for bacons, at $3.40 to $3.50 off truck and at $3.65 to $3.75 off cars. Selects brought $1 per head premium.

Sheep and lambs receipts included 600 Western lambs. Prices on lambs were fully 25c per cwt lower with a draggy trade at the close. Good Western lambs sold at $5.75 to $6. Native lambs of good quality brought $5.50 with other grades at $3.50 to $5. Sheep sold at $2.50 to $3 per cwt for good light ewes, with culls at 75c to $1.50 per cwt.

Eddie Shore Fined $100 By N.H.L. Prexy

MONTREAL, Jan. 27.—(C.P.) — A fine of $100 was levied upon Eddie Shore of the Boston Bruins for his part in the fist fight in the Canadien-Bruins game at Boston Tuesday night, Frank Calder, President of the National Hockey League, announced to-day. Calder also warned that a repetition would result in a long suspension.

The action of President Calder in disciplining the Bruins' defense star followed a conference with Referee Cooper Smeaton, who received two broken ribs and face injuries when he tried to separate Sylvio Mantha of Canadiens and Shore. No fine was charged against Mantha.

CANADIAN PAINTER DIES

MONTREAL — Patrick Forbes Copland, regarded as one of Canada's most prominent painters of animals died today. He had been connected with the Montreal Star, Family Herald and Weekly Star, and the Montreal Standard for more than 40 years.

Copland studied art in London, where he was born, under Stacey Marks, the great English painter of animals. He showed a remarkable talent in the delineation of animals particularly horses.

Bank Looted

VANCOUVER, Jan. 27.— (C.P.)—Five men held up the branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Sixth avenue and Granville street this forenoon and escaped with an undetermined amount of money.

It is estimated they got about $2,000.

Cash Plowman

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 27.—(C.P.)—An Indian on the Muncey Reserve who takes most of the prizes at plowing matches in the district, has never been known to complete a furrow on his own farm. Reeve Clarence Trott, Caradoc, told the county council to-day when a deputation from the Plowmen's Association asked for a grant. The practicability of plowing matches was being questioned.

Reeve Harold Currie pointed out speed seemed to be no consideration at matches as long as the furrows were well formed for a grant. The practicahours to do a few minutes' work. He doubted any good came from the matches.

NO DRASTIC SCRAPPING IN ROOSEVELT'S SCHEME

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—(AP)—President-elect Franklin Roosevelt's proposed tariff bargaining policy to gain advantages for U. S. industry and agriculture in exchange for war debts revision will not necessarily involve the scrapping of all existing commercial treaties.

That is the opinion of tariff experts who long have been familiar with United States and foreign policies in respect to trade agreements and restrictions.

One expert said in discussiong the possibilities of tariff trading which the incoming president apparently has in mind, said that much trading can be done under the trade treaties which the United States now has, most of which contain the conditional or unconditional most-favored nation clause.

NIAGARA RIVER RECORD.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. — No trace of ice has been seen in the Niagara river this month, and veteran rivermen claim this is a record.

$4,000,000 B. C. Loan is Ratitfied

VICTORIA, Jan. 27 (C.P.).—Attorney-General R. H. Pooley, acting Minister of Finance, announced yesterday ratification for arrangements by British Columbia to borrow $4,000,000 through a Canadian syndicate at a cost basis of 6.35 per cent. Mr. Pooley said:

"The province has made arrangements with a syndicate composed of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Royal Bank of Canada, Dominion Securities Corporation, Ltd., Wood, Gundy Co., and A. E. Ames Co., Ltd., the latter firm being the Syndicate managers, the sale $4,000,000 of 12-year five and a half per cent. debentures, maturing February 1, 1945, the principle and interest of these bonds are payable in Canada only.

"The purpose of the issue to complete the refunding of British Columbia, maturity which fell due in New York on December 15, 1932, and to convert treasury bills at the bank."

U. S. SENATE BARBER BILL COSTS TAXPAYERS $8,000

NEW YORK, January 27 (C.P.). —Says a headline over a Washington despatch to the New York Times to-day: "Pay, shaves, tonics, etc., of Senators cost taxpayers $3,988 228 in year."

The despatch describes the annual report of the Secretary of the United States as "a topic of considerable sarcastic discussion, not for publication, among such Senators as see a touch of humor in a barber bill of $8,000 and a mineral water bill of $8,500."

Purchases included: 500 aspirin tablets, three pounds of bicarbonate of soda, two bottles of mouth wash, five gallons of witch hazel. The cost of mineral water at 25 cents a bottle indicates that more than 25,000 bottles were consumed.

Following removal of reeds which have blocked their course, three dried-up rivers in Ngamiland, Africa, are expected to soon flow again.

FARMERS FIGHT TO KEEP LANDS

Mortgages in Nine Mid-Western States Total Over $1,500,000,000.

SITUATION MENACING

DES MOINES, Ia., January 27 (C.P.). — With an estimated $1,500,000,000 at stake in the form of mortgaged debt in nine states, Mid-Western farmers of the United States to-day stuck with firmness to their campaign against foreclosure sales.

From Le Mars, Iowa, where the movement gained impetus several weeks ago to Idaho and Oklahoma, reverberations were heard in the courts, Governors' Chambers, and in continued gatherings of determined farmers.

Oklahoma, Idaho, and Ohio farmers added their protests yesterday to that of Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska. Census figures for 1930, the latest Census figures for 1930, the atest available, listed the aggregate of mortgages on farms in these nine states at $1,530,081,408.

At Tulsa, Okla., three judges declared a virtual moratorium on mortgage default foreclosures until March 13. Their decision does not apply to contested cases.

Nampa, Idaho, farmers demanded legislative relief and one spokesman threatened to get a "six shooter and four red-blooded men" to force legislation.

Eight hundred Ohio farmers at Bowling Green, forced a finance company bidder to withdraw, and bought $800 worth of property for $14, then returned it to the original owner.

In Iowa, Governor Herring assured a group of Wapello County of his co-operation in delaying farm mortgage sales.

NEW YORK.—Baltimore & Ohio Railroad to-day reported December net operating income of $1,841,587 against $813,328 for the same month of 1931. Gross was $9,863,736 against $11,580,833.

Community Relief Fund

Have you given the matter any thought of just how 800 families or more than 3,000 Men, Women and Children in Peterborough are going to exist unless those who are able to contribute to the Community Relief Fund which is growing daily. Numbers of our citizens have contributed until this Fund in cash and grants by organizations now amounts to over $4,500.00.

Don't just say, "They will be taken care of," and leave it to someone else. There are dozens of Men and Women in the City who have freely contributed more than their share of money, time, labor and health to this effort, and every one who is able to make a contribution to this Fund should do so.

If the whole system of Relief in this City or Dominion would cease to-morrow, what would be the result?

Thousands would perish of starvation or exposure, and a terrible condition of affairs arise.

It is not only in the interests of humanity that we should see the needy taken care of but in the interests of all our homes, of our organized civilization and future prosperity.

Just give the matter a little thought and send in your contribution to FRANK ADAMS, Treasurer of the Fund, which is backed by a Citizens' Committee and the Mayor and City Council.

brook; W. Davey, Hamilton; C. G. Mercer of Hope, and George Annis, Darlington.

Appointments Made

Deputy-reeve N. A. MacColl of Campbellford, as chairman of the Legislation and Bylaws Committee, directed a sheaf of bylaws through their three readings Thursday afternoon.

In the first by-law, Reeve T. H. Lockhart of Bowmanville and ex-Warden W. H. Nelson of Warkworth were appointed auditors of criminal justice accounts for this year.

Mr. Lockhart was appointed by acclamation, and Mr. Nelson, as the auditor from outside the Council, was chosen by vote over Mr. J. Holman of Clarke and C. E. Rehder of Bowmanville.

George O'Sullivan was appointed trustee of Campbellford High School on Reeve C. H. Davidson's motion, seconded by N. H. MacColl.

Deputy-reeve Milne of Seymour proposed Hilliard Jones for the trusteeship at Campbellford and Reeve Duncan seconded his motion, but the Council's vote was largely in the majority for Mr. O'Sullivan's appointment.

Reeve Davidson remarked that it was customary to leave such nominations to the representatives of the municipalities directly interested in the appointments. He said part of Seymour Township was included in the Campbellford High School area.

Other trustees appointed were A. L. Jex and A. D. Spragge of Cobourg; H. J. Mayhew, Colborne; H. J. Thoms, Newcastle; W. J. B. Davison, Port Hope.

Board of Management

The members of the Board of Management of the House of Refuge for this year, as appointed by bylaw, are Warden Rickard, Reeve Fred Waterman of South Monaghan, and Reeve N. Green of Cartwright.

Remuneration of the Board members and also auditors of criminal justice accounts remains unchanged at $4.50 and 10 cents a mile one way.

Mr. Waterman, A. E. Burd and A. R. McKenzie of Northumberland were proposed as the Board of Management trustee from that county; Mr. Waterman was chosen on the first vote and by a large margin.

Business Assessment

Inclusion of business assessment in the equalized assessment by the recision of the 1931 bylaw incorporating the Council's agreement with Cobourg was again projected yesterday in a resolution by Reeve Lovekin and Deputy-reeve Couch of Clarke township.

Deputy-reeve Booth (Cobourg)—"I'm sorry to see this question brought up again. I thought it had been satisfactorily settled. The bylaw omitted business assessment as a concession to Cobourg and the other towns because of the large increase in our property assessment. If you open it up now, Cobourg is willing to take up again the opportunity to consider separation from the Counties, because we are convinced that this is possible.

Reeve Annis (Darlington) said that his township had been considerably affected by the deletion of business tax from the equalized assessment, but for peace and quietness he preferred not to agitate this question at present.

"We are biding our time in Darlington until the five years are up, when a new equalization is made. We feel we have been unfairly dealt with in the equalized assessment, but I wouldn't like to see the question brought up now. In all fairness to Cobourg and the other towns and villages, I think we should abide by the decision we made in 1931."

Reeve Stinson also deprecated the re-opening of the "equalization question." The towns and villages would present a solid front against any attempt to repudiate the 1931 agreement.

"We in Millbrook would be better off if we were just a police village," Mr. Stinson said. "If it were not for our debenture debt we might consider that. We could talk on the equalization until night, but I believe this should be left to the Equalization Committee."

Deputy-reeve Burd of Hamilton supported the suggestion that no change be made in the equalization of assessment agreement.

On Reeve Hooton's motion, seconded by Fred Gray, the motion was referred to the Equalization Committee.

Road Grants Foregone

Reeve Gray of Manvers, in a motion seconded by Reeve Waterman of South Monaghan, demanded that the bylaw of December, 1931, altering the paving agreements with towns and villages in the United Counties be rescinded.

In consideration of the money spent by the Counties Council on local pavements ,the towns and villages several years ago agreed to forego the rebated grants for county road work for periods of ten and thirteen years.

N. A. MacColl, Campbellford, contended that the resolution was out of order, and its suggestion to annul the agreement with the urban municipalities proposed something that would dishonor the Counties Council.

Reeve Curtis (Percy) argued that it should not be assumed that everything done by last year's council or that of the year before was beyond question.

Reeve Stinson.—There is no vital reason for bringing up this matter now. Hastings is the only village affected by the bylaw this year, and I don't think they could get anything back until December. They would be entitled to a refund of 50 per cent of their county road levy. I feel confident that when the road estimates are settled for this year they will be so reduced that the amount would not be worth talking about now."

Mr. Gray.—"Millbrook, Hastings and Campbellford agreed to forego their rebate for ten years, and the other towns made the same agreement for thirteen years, but in December, 1931, those bylaws were rescinded and five years were taken off the periods that were first agreed on when they got the pavements. Last year only .5661 of a mile was spent on county roads. In a year or two the town and villages will be free from the reduced agreement and they will come back for their grants instead of the townships getting the benefit of that agreement."

On Mr. Stinson's motion, Mr. Gray's resolution was laid on the table.

Avoid a Controversy

C. J. Boyce's Schools Committee last night declined to appoint a trustee of Blackstock Continuation School, which has accumulated a surplus from fees for the education of students from outside the school section.

Members concluded that a controversy existed within the Board, and it would be wise for the County not to become involved in the Cartwright school affairs.

ANNUAL REPORT OF ENGINEER IS GIVEN COUNCIL

($67,391.10—$1,165.69) $33,067.70.

The total receipts for 1932 are as follows:

County road rate	$24,045.62
City of Peterborough	9,750.00
Bridge maint. rate	6,000.00
Special rate McCall's br...	1,345.90
Workmens Comp.	900.00
Refunds and receipts	657.57
Government grant	33,067.70
Total receipts	$75,666.79
Total expenditures	73,607.51
Balance for 1933	$ 2,059.28

To show the effect of this on the general County finances, at Dec. 31, 1931 there was a deficit of $25,639.-12. Part of this deficit was caused by over expenditure on Roads and on Roads and Bridges. During that our years preceeding 1932 the average amount going into deficit from roads and from roads and bridges was $9,000. During 1932 we kept within our receipts, paid off $6,300 of 1931 acounts and have a balance of $2,059.28. From being $9,000 down in a year we are over $2,000 up so that the total benefit to the general County finances to reduce deficit is over $11,000.

Putting this information in another form:

During the four years preceeding 1932 the county was actually raising 3¾ mills for road work, 3 mills as regular road rate and ¾ mills in deficit. For 1932 the rate was set at 2½ mills and the expenditure was not overrun, so that actually instead of lowering the road rate ½ mill it has been lowered 1¼ mills. For this reason I wish to recommend that the county road rate be left the same as yast year.

The extra grant under the new bridge rate for 1932 amounts to $2,-382.90. Beside this I am applying for a rebate on gasoline tax which will give the County an additional $236.90. This will mean $2,619.80 new revenue to the County.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

A. E. Chalmers, County Road Superintendent.

At the resumption of business of the Council yesterday afternoon a by-law passed its third reading by which the county assumes a stretch of roadway 1⅞ of a mile in length and which includes a portion of Lansdowne street. The bill was introduced by Warden John McIntosh, reeve of North Monaghan Township.

On motion of Reeve W. H. Morgomery, seconded by Reeve A. Jackson, it was resolved that no County valuation be made this year, and that the matter be deferred to the June Sessions.

County Property

When the Council were in committee on County Property, the chairman, Reeve C. S. Tanner, reported upon certain changes that had been undertaken at the County Gaol in keeping with recommendation made to the Council last year by His Majesty's Inspector of Prisons.

He referred to a new lock that had been put on the outer door of the gaol leading from the main court house building, and also new padlocks that had been placed on several other doors. The lock had been placed on the door at an approximate cost of $25, while each of the padlocks of specially approved pattern and supplied by the Taylor Safe Works had cost $8 each.

Other repairs to the gaol door and the provision of screens for the windows of the gaoler's residence, had not been undertaken Reeve Tanner explained owing to the prohibitive cost. An estimate of the work had been obtained which set the price at about $400. The screens he said, were of particularly heavy material, and of special construction and design so that they would not afford any foothold to any prisoner who was contemplating a prison break.

"What about the stove before you quit?" Reeve Ferguson asked.

"Well," Reeve Tanner replied, "the question has already been fully discussed. Everything has been happily settled and the storm in the teacup has subsided."

In answer to Reeve Montgomery, the chairman stated the new stove had been installed in the gaol kitchen at a cost of $87.

Reeve Tanner also reported that experiments in the burning of wood for heating the County buildings had been undertaken in the early fall of last year. As a result the committee had decided upon the continued use of coal. The grates in the heating equipment were not adapted to the burning of wood, and unless coal was used it was impossible to keep a constant temperature.

Deputy Reeve George Mullen wanted to know what price the County was paying for coal. He was informed that Red Jacket coal was being burned, for which the sum of $8.90 per ton had been paid delivered in the bins.

The question of enlarging the vault, in the County Clerk and Treaurer's office were accommodation is strictly limited at present was also discussed and on motion of Reeve W. A. Anderson, seconded by Reeve E. Leeson, the Warden and the chairman of County Property were authorized to obtain estimates for the enlarging of the vault and to report back to the June Sessions of the Council.

Roads and Bridges Committee

On motion of Reeve Tanner, seconded by Reeve Jackson, the County Roads and Bridges Committee recommended that the Coucil attend the Good Roads Convention and that reservations for twelve be requested for the Good Roads banquet.

An amendment moved by Reeves Leahy and Mann, that the members of the Council attend the convention but that they do so without receiving any commission, and that only expenses be paid was defeated, as also was an amendment to the amendment that no action be taken.

In moving that no action be taken Reeve W. A. Anderson, was seconded by Reeve Ferguson. The mover of the motion remarked that as far as he could see there was no legitimate reason for any member of the council to attend the convention at the expense of the county.

Reeve Tanner urging that his motion be supported, said he could well understand Reeve Anderson's viewpoint. Otonabee Township was well provided for in the matter of roads.

Those voting in favor of non-attendance at the convention, were Reeves Anderson, Ferguson, and Deputies Mullen and Davidson, while those in favour of Reeve Leahy's amendment to the motion were Reeve Hickson, Mann, and Anderson and Deputy Reeve Patton.

Reeve Hickson and Given were appointed commissioners to look after Gannon's Narrows and Chemong Bridges.

The committee recommended that no no mill rate be struck for bridges during the current year. It was stated that approximately $3,500 had been spent last year by the County on Chemong Bridge, apart from an additional sum by the local administration. The bridge would not need any further repairs this year.

The Warden and Reeves Hales, Steenburgh and Leeson were appointed to act in conjunction with the County Road Superintendent in the undertaking of repairs to Deer River Bridge, and which had been previouly recommended by last year's committee.

While the Council was in committee on Joint and Legislative under chairmanship of Reeve Jackson, a bill passed the third reading to authorize the lithographing or engraving of the signatures of the Warden of 1932 Council and the Clerk and Treasurer on the coupons, of the $35,000 debentures issued for the borrowing of the money for Provincial Highways.

County Solicitor E. A. Peck M.P. explained to the members of the committee that it was merely a formal precdure, and was merely undertaken as a matter of expediency.

and Bowmanville, each of which last year received $750 from the counties council, the Finance Committee last night adopted a resolution by Reeve C. H. Curtis of Percy, seconded by Deputy-reeve N. A. MacColl of Campbellford, that each hospital be given $500 on receipt of certificates from the clerks of these municipalities that they had made similar grants of $600.

Reeve Gray of Manvers had mentioned a straight reduction of 50 per cent from last year's $750, but the Curtis resolution offered a more satisfactory solution to the majority of the members.

The Hamilton Resolutions

The committee next disposed of the resolutions presented to the council during the afternoon by a large deputation from Hamilton township.

Their first proposal to ask the provincial government for power to adjust the salaries and fees of court officials and to declare the fee system obsolete was unanimously endorsed. But, the second recommendation to abolish the county representatives of the Department of Agriculture was not approved.

Reeve Stinson's advice was: "As farmers don't deprive yourselves of a form of help from the government that is a real advantage. If a resolution of that kind came from the urban municipalities there might not be anything surprising about it perhaps, but the agricultural representatives seem to be doing real work. We have all seen results among the junior farmers. The knowledge many of these young farmers display of the fine points of livestock and grain makes their fathers look as if they didn't know anything. Farmers years ago did not have the benefit of this expert help. The foal club at the Millbrook fair last fall was an example of what is being accomplished. There were twenty-three or four colts shown, and the boys took a great interest in them."

Deputy-reeve Milne of Seymour spoke of the benefits his three sons had received in many respects from the help of the Department's representatives. Deputy-reeve Campbell of Haldimand, one of the youngest members of the council, related practical advantages he had gained from the work of the agricultural representatives. Reeve Curtis and others advocated their retention, and this clause of the Hamilton resolutions was rejected.

Reduction of the salaries of the county clerk and treasurer, county road superintendent, also the superintendent of the House of Refuge, and other officials of the counties was approved by the committee as a recommendation, on Reeve Curtis's motion, seconded by Deputy-reeve Campbell.

The fourth proposal from Hamiltown township was to the effect that the salaries of teachers in High and continuation schools should be lowered. It was directed to the school boards in the united counties for their consideration because the items of teachers' salaries and maintenance of schools formed one of the largest items of expenditure the counties had to meet.

Reeve Lockhard of Bowmanville read a news item that Newmarket high school teachers had voluntarily offered to forego $200 on their salaries.

Reeve Cooper (Cobourg)—Was that conscience money?

Deputy-reeve Pascoe (Darlington)—Oxford group.

The committee then turned its attention to the controllable item of expenses, the exposed sector of the counties officials' salaries.

E. L. MacNachtan's salary last year was reduced to $2,700, and as the committee passed the eleventh hour of the afternoon they were of two minds, one to make a further cut to $2,000 and the other to make it $2,200 or thereabouts.

Among those who were in favor of the sharper pruning were Reeve C. H. Curtis of Percy and Reeve G. B. Stevenson of Hastings.

Hitler Backs Down, Creating Sensation

BERLIN, Jan. 26.—(AP)—German politics took a sensational turn late this afternoon when Adolf Hitler informed President Von Hindenburg that he had reconsidered making his support of the "presidential" cabinet conditional upon his appointment to the chancellorship.

By yielding his "all or nothing" policy, Hitler thus paved the way for possibility of support for the Von Schleicher cabinet by the parties from the Centrists to the National Socialists, a condition which would insure the stability of the government for a considerable time.

EXCHANGE BILL FOR LINDSAY CUT

Lindsay Commission Will Pay $2,089.73 Instead of $5,331.90.

SHORTHORN SALE

LINDSAY, Jan. 27. — (Examiner Correspondence).—The local Hydro Commission's exchange bill will be $2,089.73 instead of $5,331.90. This saving was brought about as a result of protest made by the local commission along with commissions in other centres.

The Victoria County Shorthorn Association sale held here on Wednesday brought out a small offering —eleven males. The sale totalled $564.00.

Victoria County Council is going to try the experiment of burning wood in the furnaces in some of the county buildings. There is plenty of good body wood in the north country ready for shipment, and it can be purchased at a very reasonable figure.

It was brought out in the discussion on educational matters at Victoria County Council that one school in the county was maintained by the taxes from three counties. It is Kinmount Continuation School, and owing to its geographical location, it gets taxes from Peterborough, Victoria and Haliburton Counties.

PRESENTATION TO RETIRING ORGANIST

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Scott Entertain Choir and Bethany Church Board Officials.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, Jan. 27. — A very pleasant surprise was arranged recently at the United Church parsonage, when Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Scott were host and hostess to the members of the choir and church board of officials and their wives, and the retiring organist, Mrs. Alva Thorndyke, was presented with a beautiful Pakoway, the presentation being made by William Lee.

The following appropriate address was read by the choir leader, Harry Preston:

"Dear Mrs. Thorndyke:

"It is with great pleasure that we have met here this evening for the purpose of conveying to you in some tangible way the high regard in which you are held among the members of the choir and of the church board.

"We have appreciated your earnest endeavor to make the choir the success it has been, while you were our organist. You have had trials and difficulties to overcome, which many of us do not understand. You have tried to give us of your best and have taken a real interest in the service of song. We are sorry that you are not able to continue the good work you so greatly enjoyed, but we trust that God will bless you with good health in the near future, and that you may find it convenient to take up the work again some day.

"As a small token of our esteem and appreciation, we ask you to accept this 'Pakoway' on behalf of the choir and church board, trusting that you will be able to pack away your troubles and carry with you on your journey through life our hearties appreciation of the many hours spent in faithful service to the church.

"May God bless you and keep you. Signed on behalf of the choir and church board. W. H. Lee and H. B. Preston."

A short program was rendered as follows: Piano solos, Miss Helen Patton; musical contests, games, etc. A dainty supper was later served by the hostess, assisted by Misses Evelyn McKinnon, Hazel Jackson and Rena McKinley.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Scott for their hospitality in lending their home for the occasion, by E. Beer and M. Wright.

With Mrs. Scott presiding at the piano, the company sang "For they are Jolly Good Fellows," closing with Auld Lang Syne, and Good-night Ladies, thus concluding a happy evening.

Second Battalion Memorial Service

BOWMANVILLE, Jan. 27—Veterans of the famous 2nd Battalion, C.E.F., will converge in Bowmanville on Sunday next, January 29th, when the annual memorial service of the deposition of the battalion colors in St. Paul's Church will be held. The last Sunday in January of each year an impressive service is held in this church and it attended by former comrades of the battalion from many parts of Ontario.

The service this year will be of particular interest in view of the fact that since the last service the battalion battle honors have been affixed to the colors. Col Lorne T. McLaughlin, C.M.G., D.S.O., of Bowmanville, former commanding officer of the battalion, will relate the story of these honors during the course of the service.

The 2nd Battalion is perpetuated by the Governor-General's Footguards of Ottawa and the Peterborough Rangers, which units will be represented at the service. The service will also be attended by the Mayor and members of the Town Council, Bowmanville Branch of the Canadian Legion, headed by the Legion Brass Band. The service, which will be both solemn and impressive, will be conducted by Rev. A. S. Kerr, minister of the church, who will also deliver the sermon.

New Brunswick Green Mountain potatoes per 80-pound bag were steady at 80c, as were Prince Edward Island Green Mountains per 90-pound bag at 85c, and Prince Edward Island Green Mountains per 90-pound bag at 95c.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—Wheat slid downward yesterday at the last, after a laborious climb to price-tops unreached heretofore in almost two weeks.

Fresh buying power gave out, despite late reports of new dust storms in Kansas. One reason that brokers assigned for a let-up on purchase orders was extreme uncertainty as to what the coming session of Congress would do.

Losses Are Small.

Wheat closed heavy, ¼c to ½c under Wednesday's finish; corn also was ¼c to ½c down; oats 1-8c off, and provisions varying from 10c decline to a rise of 2c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, January 27. — Things never seem just right for the wheat trader these days.

For the past few days export demand has been practically nil, but despite this, offerings were scarce and prices managed to work a little higher. Yesterday, however, the market reversed itself.

Fairly good export business was reported, said to be between 500,-000 and 750,000 bushels, but a plentiful supply of offerings checked any tendency to advance and wheat values ended the session ½c to ⅝c lower.

May delivery finished at 46½c, July at 47 c to 47⅜c, and October at 48⅜c.

Gains Quickly Erased.

Most of the selling, the source of which was undetermined, was of the profit-taking variety, and soon erased fractional gains scored earlier in the day.

Reports from abroad said improved demand for Canadian and Argentine wheat was in prospect. Shipments from Argentina continue on a large scale, and Australian wheat found a good market in the Orient.

Cash wheat spreads again closed unchanged with the market dull. Domestic demand for oats enlivened coarse grains, but other futures were uninteresting.

ST. JAMES' UNITED CHURCH ENJOYS PROGRESSIVE YEAR

Encouraging Reports Are Read at Annual Congregational Meeting.

APPOINT OFFICERS.

Very satisfactory progress in the work of St. James' United Church was shown on Monday evening when the annual congregational meeting was held in Wesley Hall.

Reports from the various organizations and officials of the congregation were received and found to be most encouraging in every case.

The pastor, Rev. A. E. Moorhouse presided over the meeting and led in the worhip service.

The story of the year's activities followed, with Mrs. Jean Wagar re-appointed as secretary. In her absence F. J. Hogan acted pro tem.

The report of the session given by the pastor, showed a busy and successful year. Seventeen new members were added to the communion roll by certificate and thirty-eight received on profession of faith. There is at present a resident membership of 494. In presenting the work accomplished by the Board of Stewards last year the chairman, E. R. Frost, was very grateful for the splendid results of work done under many handicaps and seemingly impossible success.

The Official Board, through the treasurer, C. F. Kitney, showed an increase over last year, even in this time of depression.

Hearty Co-operation

The congregation was commended for their hearty co-operation and loyalty to the church, which made possible the favourable financial year for St. James.

The work of the Sunday School was outlined by the superintendent, A. E. Prest, who spoke of the whole-hearted assistance of his capable staff of teachers and officers throughout the year. He reported an increase in members as well as in finances.

John A. Sanderson, the school secretary-treasurer, gave in detail the financial standing.

The following classes were reported by their respective representatives and showing that very creditable work has been done all along the line.

Mr. Sanderson reported for Miss Kidd's class of boys, Sunbeam class, King's Own Bible class, Cheerful Workers' class, Treasure Seekers, Sunday School orchestra; Brotherhood, by Robert Kitchen; Ogonawaga Class, by Frank Kunst; X.L.C.R. Class, by Miss J. Martin; Ever Awake Class, Mrs. F. Kunst.

The Ladies Aid Society under the able leadership of Mrs. W. D. Sargent had a specially good year. Mrs. J. A. Fry, the treasurer, in reporting, urged that every woman in the churvh become a member this coming year. With a membership of forty this organization does an immense business.

The Woman's Missionary Society reported by Mrs. R. B. English, had again met the allocation given them by the Presbyterial, besides having an increase in the members and interest.

X L Mission Circle

Following in the footsteps of the parent society the X.L Mission Circle report read by the secretary Miss Aileen Rose, and the Mission Band, led by Miss Connie Wagar, also both met their financial obligation.

The president also sent report for St. James' Young Peoples' Society, showing that this as every department of church life, is keeping step both spiritually and in money matters.

The choir, received favorable comment for its splendid work under Frank Stevens' direction. They have added very materially to the church funds during the year.

The trustee account was given by A. E. Prest and the current account by C. F. Kitney.

The Missionary and Maintenance department has a very favorable standing, even in the midst of depression as reported by Mrs. Fell the M. and M. treasurer.

Upon motion all reports were accepted as read, and a pleasing musical program interspersed the business.

Misses Jennie and Margaret Smart sang a duett in their usual fine style and delightful instrumental numbers were rendered by the Sunday School orchestra with Miss Olive Prest at the piano.

The election of officers was held with W. K. Sloane, Frank Kunst, J. A. Sanderson and E. J. Hotston as scrutineers. Members elected for the year term on Board of Elders were A. E. Prest, Wm. McLaren, F. H. Hogan, and E. Benson.

Elected to Board of Stewards four year term: J. A. Sanderson, E. Kitney, F. Kunst and S. Rowe, For one year term, H. H. May.

The election of Board of Managers was left to the quarterly Official Board.

Mrs. J. A. Fry was re-elected as representative to Anson House. Wesley Rose is to represent St. James' United Church on the Charity Board and C. F. Kitney to Nicholls Hospital Board.

Concluding the business session a hearty vote of thanks and expression of confidence was extended the pastor, Rev. Mr. Moorhouse by the congregation which rejoices in his successful year's work for 1932.

Led by the orchestra, the congregation sang the Doxology and the meeting was dismissed with prayer and the benediction by Mr. Moorhouse.

First Photos Of New Japanese Drive In China

These photos, the first to be received in Canada, shows a Chinese fort at the Great Wall at Shanhaikwan after its capture by Japanese troops. The city, gateway to the Jehol province, was badly damaged by Japanese artillery and bombing planes. Ten thousand picked Nippon troops took part in the battle and the Chinese losses were placed at five hundred. Japanese officials placed the blame for the outbreak on the Chinese garrison at the captured city.

COUNTY COUNCIL REFUSES TO CUT CLERK'S SALARY

Reeve Tanner and seconded by Reeve Given that the Clerk and Treasurer be re-engaged at the reduced salary of 1932.

"What was your salary last year, Mr. Elliott?" Reeve Montgomery asked.

"I received $3,350.00 from the county, said Mr. Elliott.

Reeve Anderson made it quite clear that he was not moving for a reduction in the Clerk's salary for any other reason but that the cost of living had been reduced and that a cut would not impose any hardship. He was fully satisfied with the work of the Clerk and Treasurer and believed that was was also the opinion of the remainder of the Council. He was prepared to stand back of the move he had taken, however, in view of present conditions.

In reply to the Warden, the County Clerk stated that he was bonded in the sum of $15,000. He had a personal bond for $5,000 and also one with a bonded company in the sum of $10,000. The County paid the sum of $37.50 for the $10,000 bond.

Cut Too Drastic

Reeve Montgomery spoke on the salary question, remarking that while he had heard considerable criticism regarding the salary paid the clerk and treasurer, felt that in view of all the circumstances the cut proposed by Reeve Anderson was too big a spread. He felt a more satisfactory arrangement could be arrived at. He also felt the ratepayers had probably lost sight of the money Mr. Elliott had been the means of saving the County in the past.

Reeve Anderson said he could not see what he had done to bring out certain remarks made by Reeve Montgomery. It was not a case of trying to please anyone, nor of wishing to do harm. He felt quite justified in asking that the salary be reduced to $2,400 in view of the pressing needs of the taxpayers.

Reeve Montgomery urged that the cuts were being made at the wrong end. He referred to the high fees paid to the members of the legislature, as an example.

"Yes, I agree with you there" Reeve Anderson said. "If I had my way there are a lot of things that would be cut out. We have to start with the things which are under our control."

Reeve Tanner spoke briefly on the question. It was a matter that should receive careful consideration. "Mr. Elliott," he said, "has given his life to the County."

Committee on Appointments

In committee on appointments this morning it was moved by Deputy Reeve Davidson and seconded by Deputy Reeve George Davidson and seconded by Deputy Reeve George Mullen, that Messrs. Steenburgh, Anderson, Leahy, Mann and Givens be an Agricultural Advisory Board.

It was moved by Reeve Hickson and seconded by Reeve H. Given that Garner Nicholls be caretaker of Chemong Bridge, at a salary of $115 per year.

An amendment was moved by Deputy George Mullen and seconded by Reeve A. B. Mann that Mr. Grant be appointed bridge caretaker at a salary of $75.

Speaking to the motion Reeve Hickson said the work during the past year of Mr. Nicholls had been very satisfactory. They did not want another man as caretaker.

Reeve Mann thought the expenditure on Chemong Bridge last year had been exceptionaly high. He spoke of the detour on the bridge that was still in place, as being an asset to the county. Timbers could be taken from that temporary structure when future repairs on the bridge were needed.

Reeve Anderson questioned what the expenditure on the bridge last year had to do with the appointment of a caretaker. The matters were entirely unrelated, he suggested.

When put to the vote the motion carried in favour of the re-appointment of Mr. Nicholls. Those voting on the amendment were Reeves Mann and Anderson and Deputy Reeves Mullen and Davidson.

J. A. Chose was re-appointed caretaker of Gannon's Bridge at a salary of $50 per year, on motion of Reeves Anderson and Jackson.

On motion of Deputy Reeve Patton, seconded by Reeve Tanner, H. B. Rye was re-appointed a member of the Board of Audit of Criminal Justice Accounts.

Dr. J. A. Morgan was re-appointed gaol surgeon. The resolution was moved by Deputy-Reeve Mullen and was seconded by Warden McIntosh.

The re-appointments of G. Fitzgerald and W. E. Packenham as members of the Cemetery Board were made on the motion of Reeves Anderson and Tedford.

An application from J. A. McDonald for appointment as county auditor was considered. On the motion of Reeves Leeson and Steenburgh, Mr. Williams was appointed auditor, and on a further motion Mr. Coons was also appointed county auditor.

Reeve W. A. Anderson was deputed to attend the meeting of the Agricultural Council.

Addressed Council.

R. F. Downey, Inspector of Public Schools, addressed the members of the Council, and after having wished the Council a successful year of business and extended congratulations to the Warden, remarked he had not much to report, "We are still plodding along, and will continue to do so as long as we have boys and girls." He believed the teachers were making steady progress, that at least was the conclusion he had come to in his own inspectorate."

Speaking of the reduction of the grants to rural school fairs, Mr. Downey said despite that, there had been some splendid school fairs. All concerned had co-operated to bring about such a result. Among some of the outstanding school fairs he mentioned those held at Smith and Harvey Townships. The Inspector paid high tribute to the teachers and children of Harvey Township, who had co-operated to make their fair an unqualified success.

SEES STIMULUS TO MORE TRADE

Conference Laid Foundation, Says Borden at Crown Life Meeting.

INCREASED BUSINESS

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—"Canada, in common with many other countries, must find markets abroad for a very large proportion of the products that create her national wealth," declared Sir Robert Borden, president of the Crown Life Insurance Company, in his address at the annual meeting of the Company in Toronto. "To us, as to all the people of the world, a fuller and freer flow of international concern.

"So far as the recent Economic Conference at Ottawa removed barriers impending trade within the British Empire, its results must be of marked advantage. The extent of that advantage will be measured by experience. Great Britain had put aside for a time at least her traditional policy of free trade, and this made such a conference possible. It laid a fair foundation for further development, and possibly its most notable outcome may be its stimulus and encouragement to a wider movement that will embrace all the great producing peoples of the world.

To-day is Testing Time

Many governments seem obsessed with a determination to divide the world into trade-tight compartments. To do so is to stop the circulation of prosperity's life blood. To-day is the testing time of the world's political leadership and we cannot believe that it will fail. War debts, reparations, armaments and tariffs block the way. Beyond lies the road to more normal conditions.

"The fabric of our social order will be strengthened by the removal of excrescences and inequalities. We may hope and we should strive for such progressive and systematic development in the control, direction and purpose of our productive and economic organizations as will tend towards stability in employment and in results.

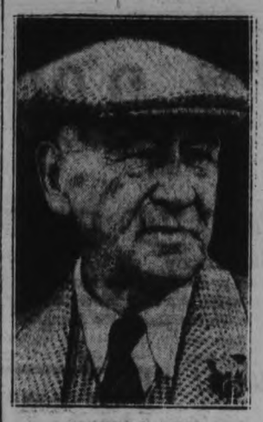
"Conditions in Canada are quite as fortunate as in any country and more fortunate than in many. The people of Canada may well take pride in the stability of their financial institutions so amply demonstrated during this period of stress. Our life insurance companies in particular have met demands for funds in unprecedented volume. Yet their resources have not declined but have steadily augumented. That the Crown Life has made a quite exceptional record during the past year is plainly evidenced by the very satisfactory report presented to-day."

Financial Statement

The annual financial report, presented by H. R. Stephenson, general manager, showed that the company has grown in size and strength at every point.

New insurance issued amounted to $23,000,859 as compared with $21,762,533 in 1931, increasing the total amount of insurance in force to $137,180,619. Cash premium income was $4,026,076.68. Cash interest income (interest, dividends, rents and profit from sale of securities) was $975,631.93. The average rate of interest realized on investments was 5.96 per cent. Premium and interest receipts, together with $19,693.68 additional deposits in the staff pension fund, brought total income to $5,021.29.

In Court Case



GEORGE S. LYON

Canada's G.O.M. of golf, winner of many major competitions, including the International Seniors' title, was reprimanded by an inquest jury in connection with the death of a woman killed by Mr. Lyon's car in Toronto last month. The jury stated that Mr. Lyon should have reported the accident to the police. Mr. Lyon's plea was that he was ill and upset by the accident. It was shown in the evidence that the woman stated she wanted to die, anyway. Mr. Lyon is in his 75th year.

rubber or its possible uses. At that time Mackintosh began to use it in the production of waterproof coats. The possibilities of rubber were not recognized at all, said the speaker, until the process of vulcanization was found between 1836 and 1839. Rubber really came into its own within the past three decades with the manufacturer of rubber tires for automobiles.

Henry Wickham, whom Mr. Crowell said "was the only successful thief to be knighted and receive an annuity", started the rubber industry within the British Empire when he smuggled 70,000 choice rubber seeds out of Brazil, then the only country producing rubber. These seeds were later planted in Sumautra and other British possessions within the tropics, and Britain quickly got control of the industry, and maintained that control for a long period.

At the present time production is far in excess of requirements, the amountof rubber used in industry in 1929 having decreased to one-third last year. Crude rubber is now worth about 40 cents a pound wholesale, but its price has fluctuated within a short period from $3 a pound to three cents.

Mr. Crowell showed some of the diversity of products manufactured from rubber by his company.

J. A. O'Brien was chairman of the meeting, and Miss Mignon Mayneord delighted the club with several splendid whistling solos in her own inimitable manner.

ANNUAL CONGREGATION MEETING FOR ST. PAUL'S CHURCH IS HELD

161 New Members Were Added to Church Roll During Year.

INCREASED GIVINGS.

The annual meeting of the congregation of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church was held last evening with a fair attendance. Devotional exercises were conducted by the minister, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, who was elected to preside, with W. A. Logan as secretary.

The report of the session, presented by Richard Lees, was very commendatory of the various organizations, and referred to the fine spirit of unity and harmony prevailing. The choir and Sunday School came in for special mention. Statistics showed that during the year there were 161 additions to the roll, of whom 80 united with the church on confession of faith. The minister officiated at 33 baptisms, 26 funerals and 23 marriages. Dr. Barr reported in addition that he had addressed 49 outside organizations, and had attended 129 outside meetings. He had also made 971 calls and visited the hospital on 58 occasions. Mr. Lees concluded with a plea for further co-operation and prayer during the year ahead.

The report of the Board of Management revealed increased givings to current revenue and missions, despite the present economic situation. Local funds increased by $208.66, while budget givings were up $283.17. An overdraft, which is being liquidated next Sunday, is accounted for by the fact that no special offerings were made in the fall of the year, as had been done the previous year. On the whole the report was regarded by the chairman of the board, J. W. Anderson, as highly satisfactory.

The Sunday School report was presented by O. M. Steer, superintendent, who gave a glowing account of the work accomplished, and paid tribute to the various teachers and heads of departments. He emphasized the need for increased accommodation, especially in the junior department, and gave great credit to Mrs. Savigny and Mrs. Ross for their zeal in the cradle roll department, which has an enrollment of 90. Reference was made to the Young People's Society by the president, Howard Shackleton, who gave the enrollment as 50, and stated that membership and interest was increasing.

The women's organizations all reported an excellent year, with surpluses in every department. The W.M.S., Fraser Auxiliary, Young Women's Missionary Society, C.G.I.T., all reported that they had raised their allocations. The Faithful Workers' Mission Band report by Miss Simpson showed wonderful work done, the attendance and interest being such as to call for division into two bands, senior under Mrs. E. Howson and junior with Miss Simpson as leaders. The Willing Workers' Mission Band also gave a good account of themselves, under the leadership of Mrs. Rowan. The Ladies' Aid had a good year, with much accomplished, and $906.20 to their credit.

The Men's Association reported splendid results of co-operation with the Ladies' Aid and Choir. Much had been done to aid the young people in various ways. The question of remodelling the sheds to provide additional accommodation was presented by Hurrell Dodds, who gave figures and estimates. It was hoped to provide room for recreation for the men of the congregation as well as for the Order of the Burning Bush. After discussion, it was finally decided to give the Board of Management authority to underwrite the cost of the work if, in their opinion, it was deemed wise to proceed.

Reports were also heard from representatives on the various boards, and the representatives were re-elected. The retiring managers, viz., J. W. Anderson, Wesley Armstrong, A. Davidson, F. Raines and R. J. Goring, were re-elected.

At the close, Mr. Lees announced the approaching General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, which will meet here at midsummer. After the usual votes of thanks, the meeting closed with the benediction.

YEAR'S WORK IS REVIEWED

St. John's Anglican Church at Lakefield Holds Annual Vestry Meeting.

OFFICERS APPOINTED

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 27. — The annual vestry meeting of St. John's church, was held in the Parish Hall on Monday night, with a fair attendance, with Rev. W. J. Creighton, M.A., in the chair, and Rev. A. W. Mackenzie, M.A., D.D.M., acting as vestry clerk.

Rev. Mr. Creighton addressed the gathering, giving a short summary of the year's activities.

During the year there were 14 baptisms, and the rector made 460 visits. At Easter there were 96 communicants and at Christmas 112, the latter the largest number since 1927, when there were 135 communicants.

J. F. Harvey, B.A., chairman of the Finance Committee, reported several committee meetings during the year, two men's gatherings which it is hoped will have beneficial results.

The following officers were appointed People's Warden: J. F. Harvey, vestry clerk and treasurer, G. G. Connell; sidesmen, James Simpson, S. E. White, M. Hampton, T. Watson, C. C. Stenner, T. Simpson, E. Robertshaw, L. Charlton, M. Smith, G. J. Jackman, E. W. Bailey; auditors, B. Q. Dench and K. A. Mackenzie; Finance Committee, the wardens, vestry clerk, Messrs. Marling and Goldsmith; Lay delegates, O. A. Langley, T. A. Simpson and E. M. Grier.

Rev. W. J. Creighton named John Hampton as his warden.

Dr. Mackenzie proposed that it be put on record the great loss St. John's parish has sustained during the year in the passing of so many who loved and served the church so loyally, passing on from the Church Militant on earth to the Church Expectant in Paradise.

SEYMOURDELEGATION COMPLAINS COUNTY ROAD MONEY IS WASTED; HAMILTON FARMERS ASK ECONOMY

Inefficiency Alleged By Large Deputation From Seymour Township.

AT COUNTIES COUNCIL.

Hamilton Township Urges Further Cuts in Salaries.

COBOURG, Jan. 27.—Two large deputations from Seymour and Hamilton townships generally advocating further economies were heard by the council of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham Thursday afternoon.

Headed by ex-reeve George Van Volkenburg the Seymour farmers, twenty-four of them demanded greater efficiency in the expenditure of the appropriations for county road work in their township.

"We are not asking for any more money, but for more value for the money spent on the roads in Seymour," Mr. Van Volkenburg said.

The deputation was introduced by Reeve W. J. Duncan, who explained that the twenty-two miles of county road in Seymour seemed to be too extensive for their one local foreman One road was to Trent Bridge, another to Hoard's and the third was part of the road to Hastings village.

Frank Lee said that Seymour's county roads were neglected. "We don't know who is to blame, whether our foreman or the county superintendent."

Thomas Fry—"There was $5,000 spent last year on our three county roads, but I can't see where we got $500 value for our money. We feel that our roads are extra bad. Perhaps they might be made into two sections with a man in charge of each."

Mr. Van Volkenburg favored the biaectional idea, and said some change for the better must be made. Seymour was well provided with road machinery, and was as capable of building roads as the counties.

Harry Wood—"The road from Trent Bridge to Campbellford has been in abominable shape. Where we used to have ten tourists over that road, we have just had one this year. They go around by the pavement to Peterborough and then by No. 7 highway to the lakes. A Cleveland man said that the Trent Bridge road was the worst he had driven over in five years. Some $2,300 was spent on it last year, but there was not one man who travelled over it but would say it was $300 worse off than a year ago. I understand more money was spent on our roads than in municipalities that have pavement, but there is nothing to show for it."

H. Tinney raised the objection that the county roads commission should not have the local authority they exercised.

"I maintain that our township council should have the right to say who our foreman should be, and if we don't get value for our money at least we'd have our chance to get value and be the only ones to blame."

Mr. Tinney alleged that the foreman drove around in a truck cab to look after two men.

"They spent $1,265 on the county road to Hoards and I defy any man to show where half of it was spent properly. If our township council had any say, the foreman, Mr. Gillespie, would not have been kept there.

Fred Peake and Deputy-reeve W. S. Milne both supported the petition for more efficiency on the county roads in Seymour.

Reeve C. H. Davidson of Campbellford said the Hoard's road was not the best, but with all the work done on them the roads in Campbellford were just as bad as those in the township.

"The trouble is there is not enough money spent," Mr. Davidson said. "Maybe Mr. Gillespie should get out and do more work but it is almost impossible to make a good job when he can't get enough money."

Deputy-reeve MacColl of Campbellford agreed with the delegation that the roads were bad.

"We can't afford to have a white-collar foreman in these hard times. It is impossible to say whether the money has been spent judicially or not because we have nothing by which we can make comparisons."

Reeve Curtis—Bert Gillespie has outlived his usefulness, and it is time for a change.

Reeve Davidson remarked that one knew when he got out of Seymour into another county because of the more numerous ruts.

One of the Seymour men replied: "The holes must have got some means of transportation because they are all on the Seymour side now."

Reeve Curtis asserted that some of the road foremen in the county were the most active persons in municipal elections.

"They should exercise their franchise and keep their mouths shut," Mr. Curtis said. "Our foreman was not one of them because he knew where his bread was buttered and kept quiet."

C. J. Boyce, deputy-reeve of Percy, said he believed the Seymour deputation and moved that their petition be referred to the Roads and Bridges committee.

George Greer, county road superintendent, said he had promised the new council of Seymour that he would meet them and adjust their grievances. For that reason he did not think it right that the deputation should come before the counties council before he had met the township council. He said he had recently driven over the road from Campbellford to Hoard's at 40 miles an hour, and there was not a rut two inches deep in it.

Reeve Duncan replied that he was glad the ratepayers had come down from Seymour with their complaint, and it was quite proper for them to look after their own interests, although Mr. Greer had promised to meet the Seymour council.

"When they are looking after their interests they are looking after the interests of these united counties," Mr Duncan said.

Hamilton's Demands.

Abolition of county agricultural representatives, further reductions in the salaries of the counties clerk and road superintendent and high school teachers, and abolition of the fee system in legal proceedings, were the salients of economy which the Hamilton township deputation attacked.

The speakers were Dan McAllister, Charles Burrison and Fred Nixon who in the oratorical manner pleaded with the council to reduce the county tax rate. Their request was referred to the Finance Committee.

The council chamber and its vestibules were again crowded to discomfort yesterday as the Seymour and Hamilton ratepayers with a number from other parts of the counties pressed in to display their strength and hear their advocates.

Thursday's business was concluded late last night with three committee meetings, the Finance taking the central stage in the proceedings.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH HOLDS VESTRY MEETING

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, January 27. — The annual vestry meeting of St. George's Anglican church, Hastings, was held on Monday evening with a good attendance of members of the congregation.

Reports were presented by the churchwardens, Women's Auxiliary, Junior Auxiliary, Young People's Society and the Sunday school—all showing satisfactory conditions in their departments.

The following officers were appointed for 1933:

Rector's Warden:- C. B. Plant; People's Warden: T. Curl; Rector's sidesmen: C. Blackburn, Sr., G. Marryatt and E. Radford; Peoples' sidesmen: Messrs. N. Dainard and C. Blackburn; lay representatives to the Synod: Messrs G. Marryatt, and C. B. Plant.

G. Jeffries acted as Vestry clerk for the meeting.

A general discussion concerning all matters of the church was entered into by those present, and a strong feeling of optimism was prevalent for the year of 1933.

A motion was carried extending appreciation and thanks to all who in any way had rendered their services in the past year.

The Rector occupied the chair, and closed the meeting with the Benediction.

BENSFORD MEN HOLD BANQUET

Frank Kitney and J. B. Nelson Were Guest Speakers at Banquet.

TRUE FELLOWSHIP

BAILIEBORO, Jan. 27.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Frank Kitney and J. B. Nelson, of Peterborough, were guest speakers at the district laymen's banquet, held in the United Church Sunday school room at Bensfort on Wednesday evening.

About seventy-five men sat down to the sumptuous banquet catered to by the ladies of Bensfort Church.

Edmund Dawson, vice-president of the local Lay Association, acted as chairman, while Messrs. Herb. McCannan and Hudson, of Peterborough, provided music and led in sing-songs throughout the evening's program. Piano and harmonica duets rendered by these two artists, as well as a whistling solo by Mr. Hudson, were much enjoyed by all.

Mr. Kitney, who has for many years been an active worker in Coldsprings Sunday school, and also in St. James' Church, Peterborough, delivered the first address, and was introduced by Mr. Church, of Fraserville.

The speaker spoke of his regrets of the recent sad bereavement that Bensfort Church had suffered in the loss of one of its loyal old members in the person of the late Mr. Fletcher. Deceased, he stated, had been a close friend of his family since they had arrived in Canada from the Old Land many years ago. Mr. Kitney stated that there was always an inspiration received in a gathering of men such as this which could not be received from any other gathering when men from various parts of the district gathered together, old men and young, to converse and enjoy just such a profitable time together.

The speaker went on to say, "I would always choose a church social of this kind to any other social function. It is true I attend gatherings in various clubs and lodges and gatherings in connection with the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association and yet the true fellowship comes from gatherings among our church members in the church.

"I truthfully believe that this depression which we are passing through at present is part of a divine plan. It is making us think more seriously than ever before and we are realizing our responsibility at last. Let us consider the church finances. When our budget in 1932 was presented to us it looked practically impossible, owing to the conditions of the present day, but when the situation was placed before the church members they met the crisis and in most instances the budget was raised, the almost impossible was accomplished."

The speaker stated the work he found his greatest pleasure in was Sunday school work. "For thirty years," he said, "I have been teaching a young ladies' class in Sunday school, and I realize results from the efforts put forth."

In conclusion, Mr. Kitney congratulated the local organization on their success of their gathering, and expressed his hope that the Laymen's Association would continue their work and build up a great organization where great things could be accomplished.

Introduced Mr. Nelson.

W. G. Waterman, ex-deputy reeve of North Monaghan, introduced the next speaker, Mr. J. B. Nelson, agricultural representative of Peterborough County.

Mr. Nelson opened his remarks by saying that years ago a Child was born to this world, and we are told He increased in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man, and so to-day our young men take their place in the church and church activities. It is true they obtain their physical side of life from their work and play. Their intellectual life is developed at home and school. Their social life may be advanced in clubs and other social gatherings, but the church not only develops the religious side of man's life but all four sides are developed to a great extent within the life of the church.

The speaker said the social and religious lines of those in the city are quite different from those in rural districts. In the city the social life is found coming from various sources, but to-day the rural centre of social enterprise is found within the church.

Not so many years ago the church activities did dwindle to a great extent; the young people had no difficulty in securing money. Times were prosperous and rural young people went far afield and bought their pleasure, and as a result young people's work fell to a great extent and, generally speaking, almost died. Now the times have altered. Young people find that money is scarce, and once again a healthy condition is found to exist around country churches.

Young people on the farms are not alarmed about the condition of the world to-day; their parents do the worrying. They are engaged in building up their church organizations and developing that healthy atmosphere which centres around the country church, and they find it satisfying. Mr. Nelson referred to one rural church where these conditions actually existed, and he believed it was general throughout rural parts.

A fair indication of these conditions is manifest in the gathering here to-night, he said. The movement is general all over the country. "I was looking over the faces of those present when I came this evening—many were serious and others had long faces, scarcely a smile could be noticed on a face—and I can readily understand why they are thus. Conditions on our farms to-day is serious. But after we had partaken of this sumptuous banquet and heard a few jokes and Herb. McCannan had led us in a happy sing-song, the expressions had vanished and smiles had taken their place. We have forgotten for the time that hogs are only three cents a pound. The same circumstances exist in the city. When business men leave their business and hurry to the Kiwanis Club luncheon their worry tells on their expression, but soon they forget their troubles when some humorist causes a hearty laugh, and they return to their business new men."

Mr. Nelson stated this meeting was the first of its kind he had addressed, but he found pleasure in doing so and trusted such an organization would strengthen and find results as time goes by.

Rev. E. M. Cook moved a vote of thanks to the visiting artists, and this was seconded by W. H. Barnard.

Election of Officers.

The election of officers for the ensuing year followed, conducted by Rev. Cook. W. G. Waterman was appointed president; E. Dawson, vice-president, and F. Barnard, secretary. A committee of two was appointed from each charge on the Fraserville circuit—Messrs. R. Delehay and S. Hogg, from Fraserville; Messrs. W. Howson and W. Wood, from Bensfort, and Messrs. N. Thompson and Hadril Dawson, from Bailieboro.

The next laymen's banquet will be held at Fraserville.

BRIDGE WIZARDS PLAN CONTRACT TOURNAMENT

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Contract bridge wizards have decided to settle it once and for all here in Chicago. Leading rivals in the art of finessing decided at a meeting last night—at which not a single hand was dealt—to sponsor an international contract tournament here next summer.

Ely Culbertson was there as a representative of the United States' Bridge Association, and so was E. M. Lagron, president of the Western Bridge Association. They decided that championship claims of various clubs and organizations would be set aside—that laurels would go to the winners of the local meet which they said they hoped would attract upwards of 25,000 players.

Incidentally Culbertson revealed that there will be no changes in bridge rules for three years.

COAL COMPANY LAYS CHARGES OF CONSPIRACY

Claim For $115,000 Involves 25 Coal Dealers, Railway Officials, Bankers.

ALLEGE DEAL BROKEN.

Charge Winnipeg Men Prevented Coke Being Brought in—Held Price Up.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 27 (C.P.). — Charging conspiracy in preventing th bringing into Winnipeg of 40,000 tons of coke from Algoma Steel Company, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and selling it at prices under the prevailing rate, Mid-West Coal Company to-day filed statement of claim for $115, against 21 coal dealers, railway officials and bankers.

The suit is founded on an agreement claimed to have been made by Mid-West Coal Company with receivers for the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ltd., the statement of claim declares that on May 15, 1932, plaintiffs agreed to purchase 40,000 tons of coke for the purpose of selling it at a profit to retail coal merchants in Manitoba.

The agreement was verbal. Parties to the negotiations, it is alleged, were plaintiffs, receivers for the Steel Corporation and C. B. Devlin, Fort William, Ont., manager of the Pacific Coal and Ore Dock Company.

Plaintiffs allege coal dealers in Winnipeg, interested in coal mines in Alberta and Saskatchewan, attempted to break the agreement. One of the charges is they threatened the Canadian Pacific Railway Company with withdrawal of their coal transportation contracts and transfer of them to competitive lines, and as a result of the threat, the company, through officials named in the pleadings, joined in the scheme to break the contract.

Terms Of Agreement.

One of the terms of the original agreement, the statement of claim says, was that the coke was to be delivered on the docks of the Pacific Coal and Ore Dock Company, at Fort William, and that the company would be paid $1 a ton for storing and keeping it and acting as trustee for the receivers. Further, it is claimed that C. B. Devlin would have the Imperial Bank of Canada guarantee payment of the coke as it was shipped to the dock.

Plaintiffs say before and during the time of the contract they secured purchases for large quantities of coke and maintained they could have disposed of the entire 40,000 tons, making large profits. This, however, was prevented by the conspiracy, they say which, it is claimed, was "in contravention of section 498 of the criminal code, to unduly enhance, unduly advance, and unduly increase the price of coal in the city of Winnipeg and the Province of Manitoba."

Alternative plea states defendants "maliciously determined" to prevent plaintiffs from bringing the coke into the province so it would not enter into competition with coal sold by other Winnipeg dealers.

Sense and Nonsense

WOMEN MAKE THE STARS.

SENSATIONS on the screen are perhaps no novelty, but the meteoric rise of five young men in the past year or so to star prominence opens once again the question: How do they do it?

The men are Clark Gable, Paul Muni, James Cagney, Warren William and George Raft.

James Flood, director of "Under-Cover Man," George Raft's first important personal assignment in a title role, declares it's all woman appeal. "No screen start is made," says Flood, "except with the approval of women theatre-goers." And that, he maintains, explains why these new additions to the celluloid firmament have achieved their fame suddenly, spontaneously and enthusiastically.

MOVIE STARS WANTED—BADLY.

CARL LAEMMLE, JR., motion picture producer, claims from 20 to 40 entirely new motion picture stars are necessary for the coming year. If Hollywood can't supply them, he said, "New York or Podunk must."

Carl Laemmle, Jr.

"The casting situation in Hollywood is more acute at the present time than ever before," Laemmle amplified. "Outstanding performances of 1932 were given by stage actors more than 40 years old and stage actresses near and in their 30's. Young leading men and leading women not only are scarce but can not measure up to the performances of their elders."

He said little theatres and semi-professional acting groups should point the footsteps of their players toward Hollywood and that 'college dramatics will have to adopt new training methods."

TURNED LOOSE WITH A FORTUNE.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO if someone left you a million?—all Paramount's stars have their fling in "If I Had a Million" on the Capitol screen Monday—some of the cast, Cooper, Raft, Oakie, Laughton, Ruggles, Wynne Gibson, Alison Skipworth, Francis Dee.

A saga of men who lived for the moment, with death reaching for the rudder comes to the Capitol in "Air Mail" on Wednesday. On the same program—perilling a dozen lives through the sinister influences of mind control, an innocent-appearing woman of beauty toys with the fates of twelve ex-college girls, in "Thirteen Women." Irene Dunne and Ricardo Cortez co-feature.

Kate Smith's "Hello Everybody" makes its premier showing in Canada on the same screen next Friday.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

THAT MAURICE CHEVALIER was taught to dance by J. W. Jackson, the English music hall entertainer, who also initiated Charlie Chaplin?....Frederic March used to pose for artists Howard Chandler Christy, Neysa McMein, Charles Dana Gibson and Norman Rockwell?....Jean Harlow's school-mates used to call her "Little Old Lady," because her now famous platinum hair was then snow white?....When Gary Cooper first came to Los Angeles, he worked for $2 a day as a house-to-house canvasser for a portrait photographer?....Sari Maritza won a flock of medals for fancy ice-skating at St. Moritz?....Susan Fleming is the granddaugther of Baron von Philip, a Swedish nobleman who designed the machinery for the Bethlehem Steel Works in Pennsylvania?....Rex Ingram, whose "Four Horsemen" and other productions placed him among the leading directors of the screen, is returning to motion pictures under the banner of Gaumont-British. "Baroud," his first production, has been completed in Morocco and will be shown in the United States soon. Mr. Ingram also played the leading role.

KATHLEEN NORRIS FILM BASED ON REAL FACTS.

OBSTACLES of love are overcome by a married man and his lovely stenographer in the screen version of Kathleen Norris' sensational novel "Second Hand Wife," coming to the Regent on Wednesday. Sally Eilers and Ralph Bellamy feature.

DULL PARTIES IN HOLLYWOOD CLUB?

WHAT'S THIS? Elsa Maxwell, famous English hostess, comes right out and says that Hollywood's exclusive Mayfair Club gives dull parties.

Miss Maxwell, who knows everybody there is to know in Europe, is out here to give RKO pointers on throne-room procedure for Connie Bennett's new picture, "Our Betters."

As one whose entertainments are the talk of London, she speaks with some authority. And she says of the last Mayfair:

"To my great surprise, it was an uninteresting party. No one seemed to have a really good time. And there were definite reasons for this. In the first place, at a large ball of this kind, people should never be seated at long tables. There should be no more than six to a table, and the tables should be round, so guests can circulate and so the waiters won't be falling over you.

"In the second place, the music should be absolutely continuous. Those waits between numbers bring a dinner dance to a deap stop."

Briskly and surely, Miss Maxwell made several other criticisms, then she smiled.

"Where Hollywood really excels," she said, "is in small parties. They are delightful. Among others, I have dined with Mr. Charles Chaplin, Mr. Gary Cooper, the George Fitzmaurices, the Samuel Goldwyns, the Irving Thalbergs, and I have never spent more pleasant evenings. In their homes, the people of Hollywood entertain charmingly.

"It's just the big parties that are dull."

WOMAN IS TO-DAY ALMOST PERFECT

Social Conditions Have Made Great Change in Women.

By Central Press Canadian

LONDON, Jan 27—"Modern woman is almost perfect," says Professor E. McBride, famous British physiologist.

"She is taller than her mother and her elder sister, and she does not suffer from the many minor ailments that at one time were accepted as inevitable for girls.

"The tremendous change in women's ways of living, with its exercise and hygiene, is largely responsible for her physical perfection.

"The effects of tight lacing were so far-reaching that it has taken at least twenty years to reap the full benefit of the fashion for a natural figure.

"In my opinion the chief reason for the existence of the beautiful, healthy girls who will be this year's brides is a great change in social conditions which has been taking place during the last thirty years—that is, the dimmution in the size of the family.

"Families of eight, ten and twelve children were common in my boyhood. The strain of bearing, nursing, and rearing wore out the mother with deleterious effects on the younger children.

"The standard of young womanhood has never in living memory been as high as it is now.

"And the finest flower of 1933 girlhood is found in—the middle classes."

RADIO NOTES

By

R. H. CHILDERHOSE

Wind does not affect radio reception directly. If your aerial is loose, or has one or more bad connections, the wind can cause noise or fading by blowing it against nearby objects, or trees against the aerial, or by moving the section containing the bad joints. It might also blow bared power wires and tree branches together, or move hanging street lights containing loose lamps, and so cause noise. It has also been known to blow the aerial of the broadcasting station badly enough to cause fading.

Ed.—Mr. Childerhose will be glad to answer any questions asked by radio fans. If you have any trouble just drop a note to Mr. Childerhose in care of The Examiner.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

IT IS WELL in these early weeks of the New Year to take a sort of mental inventory of ourselves and see if we are fostering any of the good things which we openly spoke of, or silently wished would materialize during 1933.

* * * * * * *

Have these things already gone into the dump heap of futility? Have they been scrapped because of no effort on our part to further their becoming realities?

* * * * * * *

Are we aware of this scrapping, or do we still vaguely suspect they will materialize or be fulfilled just because we think of them with desire?

* * * * * * *

Unless we actually want a thing enough to try to get it, we cannot want it very much. Our New Year wishes, if they are to be fulfilled, should be more than thought-seeds by now.

* * * * * * *

They should have been planted and tended, and perhaps have begun to show tiny sprouts.

* * * * * * *

As wishes vary according to desires of individuals, and avenues of opportunity for them to materialize differ, it is difficult to make helpful suggestions except in very obvious instances, but one such may prove an aid.

* * * * * * *

Many people have the wish to travel abroad. A person can make some progress toward this desired fulfillment by acquainting herself with steamship prices and accommodations, exact places to stop and to visit in sections selected for a tour, etc., etc.

* * * * * * *

Tourist agents and steamship companies' staffs, in offices scattered about the country, are glad to supply information and help prospective travellers, whether the trip is merely being planned for some indefinite time or is to materialize soon.

* * * * * * *

Of course, not every fervid wish can be so literally acted upon.

* * * * * * *

But even if not, it can be nurtured. Perhaps in the quiet of one's room, one can prepare oneself for calmer and stronger progress, making one ready to work and see things through to a fine and happy finish.

* * * * * * *

Whatever the wish, it is but wasted breath or thought unless one makes some attempt to attain its fulfillment.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Some skin diseases are peculiar to winter, and other are more likely to occur in the summer. There are, for instance, few cases of poison ivy or mosquito bites in the winter; also ringworm.

But that common and troublesome diseases calle "psoriasis" is more likely to attack its victims during the winter. It may appear in a very mild form, no more than a scruffiness with thickening and scaling of the skin on the elbows and knees, or there may be severe forms with patches involving large areas of the body surface. Certain people are subject to it and have recurrent attacks every winter.

No one single treatment can be said to be applicable to all cases. Diet is an important factor. Most of these patients have found that there are certain articles of food which they cannot eat without subjecting themselves to a severe attack. The use of alcoholic liquors in any form usually causes the onset of an acute attack. In some people use of pepper or spices will do the same thing.

One of the best of the modern treatments is that of Goeckerman by the combined use of applications of tar and exposure of the violet light. Tar is a complicated substance, and experiments have been made to separate it and to discover which element is effective in psoriasis. Up to the present time these experiments have not met with any success.

Tar alone, without the use of any ointment, will effect results and, therefore, the curative value is known to be in the tar and not in any ointments in which it is dissolved.

The treatment has to be applied with considerable care. An ointment containing a very small amount of tar is used at first. After it has been allowed to stay on for a day, it is removed and the spots exposed to the quartz lamp, beginning with a very light exposure. Gradually the strength of the tar and the length of exposure to the light are increased, and in this way the treatment is carried to full strength. Considerable success has been reported in cases treated in this way.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

F. M.: "Some time ago you recommended taking salt for bromide eruptions. How much, and in what form?"

Answer: Common table salt, or sodium chloride tends to drive bromine salts out of the body. Bromine salts are not eliminated in the kidneys very readily and hence tend to become stored in the body and to replace the chlorine atoms. When the ingestion of bromides is stopped, a reversal of this process can be effected by using chlorine salts, of which the most easily available is common table salt. It can be taken by mouth in practically any quantities, or better, can be administered by a physician intravenously, and will clear up bromide eruptions and other symptoms of bromism much more rapidly than simply stopping the ingestion of bromides.

BE BEAUTIFUL

"DEAR MISS GLAD: I have a little, heart-shaped velour powder puff that I am very fond of and hate to discard. It has, however, become quite soiled, and I realize that it's bad for the skin to use a soiled puff. Is there any way that I could cleanse this puff so that I wouldn't have to discard it?

"PEGGY."

It is very simple to cleanse a puff of the type you mention. And if you cleanse it often enough, it will remain clean and fresh, and there will be no need for you to discard it. Fill a basin with tepid water and dissolve in it some bland soap flakes. Then place the puff in the basin and permit it to soak for a while. After the soaking, squeeze the soapy water through the puff with your hands until all grime has been removed. Then rinse the puff thoroughly with clear water, and lay it on a towel in the sun to dry. When thoroughly dry, it is best to rub the puff between your hands, so that the nap becomes softened, and no harshness remains.

"Dear Miss Glad: I've been following that excellent reducing course outlined in your "New Figure" booklet for only two weeks now, and have already lost 12 pounds. I'm simply delighted about it, too. However, there's one thing I'm puzzled about. I do the exercising prescribed, but was wondering if it would be more beneficial to exercise in the morning or in the evening. Do you know?

ANGELA."

The most beneficial time for exercising depends upon your constitution and your habits of living. Exercise taken in the morning wakes you up, stimulates the circulation of your blood and makes you feel full of life and vigor. It tones up your whole body in preparation for your day's work. On the other hand, exercise taken in the evening is refreshing and exhilarating. It helps you to recover from the fatigue and tension of the day. A few slow, rhythmic exercises taken before retiring prove soothing and relaxing, and help to induce restful slumber. Ordinarily, the ideal course for the average individual is to exercise in the morning and at night, both.

* * *

"Dear Miss Glad: My little daughter brought several of her playmates home with her last week, and a few days after their departure, I noticed some nits in my hair. I probably acquired them from the youngsters, but it sure does upset me. And so I'd be extremely grateful to you if you could suggest a remedy of some sort.

MRS. T. K."

Hot vinegar provides an effective remedy for a mild pediculosis condition such as you describe. Before retiring at night, saturate your hair and scalp with hot vinegar. The vinegar, of course, should not be hot enough to burn your scalp. After the soaking, wrap a turkish towel about your head and retire. The following morning, remove the towel and shampoo your hair thoroughly with a bland soap and tepid water. Then brush your hair briskly to remove any remaining dead parasites. Three or four of such treatments should be sufficient to correct the condition of which you complain.

Canada has 75 factories engaged in the paints, pigments and varnishes industry and output during 1931 was valued at $18 536,463 or 23 per cent under the previous year.

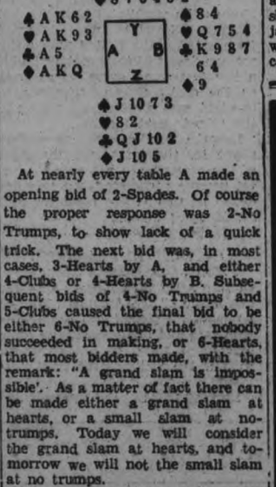
"GRAND SLAM IS IMPOSSIBLE"

In a duplicate game, November 12, the following interesting hand was dealt at the Knickerbocker Whist club, at an afternoon session of guests As no experts competed the hand gave considerable trouble.



At nearly every table A made an opening bid of 2-Spades. Of course the proper response was 2-No Trumps, to show lack of a quick trick. The next bid was, in most cases, 3-Hearts by A, and either 4-Clubs or 4-Hearts by B. Subsequent bids of 4-No Trumps and 5-Clubs caused the final bid to be either 6-No Trumps, that nobody succeeded in making, or 6-Hearts, that most bidders made, with the remark: "A grand slam is impossible'. As a matter of fact there can be made either a grand slam at hearts, or a small slam at no-trumps. Today we will consider the grand slam at hearts, and tomorrow we will not the small slam at no trumps.

In most cases the opening lead was the singleton club—the most troublesome lead possible at the heart call. As there were only five clubs missing, it should have been quite evident that a singleton had been lead. It could not possibly be a fourth-best, and have Z play the 10. It was improbable that the lead came from 3-2 after B had bid clubs. Below is given the safest method of playing for the grand slam.

Win the first trick with declarer's Ace of clubs. Lead the Ace and K of spades. Lead the 6 of spades. Have dummy ruff with the 4 of hearts. Lead dummy's lone diamond. Declarer wins the trick. Lead declarer's last spade. If Y trumps, the dummy must overtrump. Probably Y will trump with the 10, by splitting his heart equals. Have dummy overtrump with the Q. Lead back a low trump from dummy, and win with declarer's Ace and K, dropping all opposing trumps. In case Y trumps low, dummy will cover Y's trump, then lead back the Q and a low heart. If Y discards, instead of trumping, dummy will trump low and then lead back the Q of hearts and a low heart. In any event the declarer's Ace and K will pick up the last two hearts held by Y and Z.

Having picked up all trumps, the declarer will have left only winning cards in the two red suits, while dummy holds the winning club. Careful play should yield a grand slam at hearts, against any opening lead.

"Gossip ana Such"

THE HOLD-OUT BRIGADE of willow swingers who sport the Flatbrush livery in the summer months is acquiring new members every day, now that the last of 1933 "feelers" has passed through the hands of the postal authorities. To date such sterling stars are Hack Wilson, John Frederick, Hollis Thurston, Joe Stripp, Gordon Slade, Joe Shaute, Val Picinich and Jack Quinn have returned their contracts unsigned and more often than not assuming that 'auteur 'ir so common to temperamental stars.

DODGER OFFICIALS HAVE indicated a desire to re-adjust the figures of some of their athletes, but the remainder face an ultimatum of either slapping their John Henry's on the originals or else look for a ditch-digging or pen-pushing means of earning their living. And with jobs being what they are, salaries ranging from $6,000 to $10,000 are nothing to throw in the ash can.

THE FOLLOWING LITTLE ditty, from the pen of Dan Parker, labelled "Seaman Watson's Lament," comes in at the opportune moment with the Watson-LeBarba go scheduled for to-night at Madison Square Garden. Some sports sriveners have called the Seville Battler to cop the duke, but for the most part the issue remains in doubt.

"Me nyme is Seaman Watson an' I 'ails from 'crost the brine,
In a town in dear old Blighty wot's called Newcastle-on-Tyne.
Though I've served in the King's Nyvy and now run a public 'ouse,
I'm not a cove wot dissipytes or goes out on a souse.
I likes me bleedin' arf an' arf,
I'll tyke a swig o' bitters,
But I knows enough to stop in time afore I gets the jitters.
I'll down me porter neat but they can never sye of me
That I'm a bloke wot likes to 'ave an egg beat in me tea.
Me tryde is bashin' blighters on the biarsted, bleedin' conk;
I 'its 'em on the bloomin' 'orn until I mykes it 'onk.
Afore I'm through I sets the bleeders on their bloody 'ead,
And the only time I'm 'orizontal's when I lie in bed.
Now I'm tryning for the big scrap on weak tea and marmalade,
Since me bleedin' rival 'eard it, he's been orfully afraid.
If I don't knock out the blighter, as I surely think I will,
It will be a very close shyve for LaBarba of Seville."

TOMMY GORMAN OF OTTAWA, one of Canada's most versatile sports figures will have a job on his hands if he hopes to hold the erratic Major McLaughlin down and drive the Chicago Hawks through their National hockey league paces by managerial reins controlled from the players' bench.

* * *

IN WINDY CITY HOCKEY, up to now at least, the Major has never failed to get his manager. The late Peter Muldoon was the first to fall, then followed in rapid succession Hughie Lehman, Barney Stanley, Herb Gardiner, Tom Shaughnessy, Dick Irvin and Emil Iverson.

* * *

THE CHIHAWK OWNER tried out managers that knew hockey and those that didn't. They all went the same inglorious route. The Major sat in his arena box surrounded by his socially correct friends. He had a telephone by his side connected with the manager's bench and he employed two runners who raced with scribbled notes from box to the bench every few seconds.

* * *

THIS METHOD OF GETting into the hair and the teeth of his managers proved highly effective The managers became more jittery that their most tempermental ice stars and they used to spend between-period moments in the club dressing room, giving excellent imitations of men who had gone stark, raving mad.

* * *

AT THE END OF THE SEAson, often sooner, the manager would resign hurriedly and with great determination. Major McLaughlin would nonchalantly shoot his cuffs and immediately engage another while expressing dignified astonishment at the curious mentalities of his pilots.

* * *

GORMAN FACES A TOUGH proposition, but Tommy knows all the answers and most of the questions to fit any situation. He may succeed in keeping the Major chasing rainbows instead of note-bearer and retain for himself the only seat at the hockey controls.

EDDIE SHORE LEADS BOSTON CLUB TO 4-2 VICTORY OVER TORONTO LEAFS IN HUB CITY

Irvin Clan Wilts Under Heavy Pressure With 5 Minutes to Go in Final Period.

COTTON-JACKSON SCORE.

Chihawks Hand N. Y. Rangers a 3-1 Defeat on Their Own Ice—Senators Tie Wings.

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—(CP)—They may tack a fine on Farmer Eddie Shore for conduct unbecoming a defenceman and gentleman farmer, or something, but the blonde wheat-grower from Saskatchewan who is this week's "bad boy" of hockey today planted a huge fist on his latest record with some pride.

"Not a penalty," chortled the two-fisted driving force of Boston Bruins the greatest of present-day defence players as far as the fans are concerned and a particularly interesting figure at the moment to President Frank Calder of the National League. "And look where we are."

Three-Way Deadlock

The Bruins were in a three-way tie for first place in the circuit's United States division, mosty because Shore — down to business again after an early-week fistic spree with such assorted company as Sylvio Mantha, Canadien, Canadien defenceman, Referee Cooper Smeaton and another official — played one of the most sensational games Boston fans have ever seen him turn in.

On top until late in the third period, Toronto Maple Leafs succumbed to a terrific assault led by Shore that netted three quick goals and gave Bruins a 4-2 triumph over the Canadian section leaders. As New York Rangers took an upsetting 3-1 setback from Chicago and Detroit Red Wings could do no better than a 1-1 tie at Detroit against Ottawa, Bruins advanced into a deadlock with Rangers and Wings.

While Boss Calder had under consideration Shore's case, arising out of his battle at Boston Tuesday night, Eddie played through 60 minutes of blazing hockey, provided assists for two of the deciding three Bruin goals and gave the penalty box a wide berth. Harvey Jackson's goal in the second period, after Hal Cotton had scored for Leafs and Marty Barry for Boston in the first, had given Toronto a margin that stood till less than five minutes of the game remained.

Shore helped Nels Stewart to get the tying counter and after old Perk Galbraith had sent a long shot into the Toronto cage Eddie came back and passed to Harry Oliver for another tally.

The drifting Senators, seemingly on a non-stop hop to the bottom of the Canadian section, came to life with surprising effect at Detroit to battle the Red Wings on at least even terms in every period. They came closer than any team to beating the Adams flyers in the new year. As it is Detroit has won nine of its last 13 starts and tied the other four.

Scores First Goal

Johnny Gallagher, rangy defenceman from out Kenora way, hustled the Wings into a first-period lead, scoring on a double assist by George Hay and Larry Aurie. But there the hustling ended. There was not another loophole in the armour Alex Connell wore and Cooney Weiland, Senator centre, knotted the count for keeps in the second period, picking up Hec Kilrea's assist for a close-in shot.

Rangers were outplayed by Tommy Gorman's Hawks who pulled up to a position just three games back of the leaders. Pudge Mackenzie scored in the first period and Lolo Couture got another in the second before Young Ossie Asmundson used a Bill Cook pass to advantage. Johnny Gottselig got the final Chicago goal.

Draw With Americans

Canadiens fought an aggressive battle against New York Americans but the crafty men of Joe Simpson, always willing to take a split decision in the other fellow's back yard, held their own after Nick Wasnie game them a lead in the second period.

Wildor Larochelle evened the score for Canadiens in the third period but the Frenchmen couldn't get another By winning Americans went into a tie for second place with Maroons who were idle.

Townsend Chosen To Meet Canzoneri

NEW YORK, January 27 (C.P.).—Billy Townsend, the golden thunderbolt from Vancouver, has been chosen as the next opponent of Tony Canzoneri, world's lightweight champion. The pair will clash in Madison Square Garden one week from to-night over the ten-round route.

Canzoneri' title, however, will not be at stake, as the match will be an overweight affair. Townsend, though, must scale 140 pounds on the day of the bout.

Townsend, it is believed, will furnish Canzoneri with tough opposition, for he is rated a stiff puncher. The Vancouverite will have at least seven pounds advantage in weight.

Well, gang, it's time to put up the horse for the night. See you again soon.

Hockey Standing

Following are the two local O.H.A. group standings to date:

Intermediates.

	P.	W.	L.	T.	Tp.
Peterborough	5	4	0	1	1
Port Hope	4	2	2	0	2
Bowmanville	5	2	2	1	1
Orono	4	0	4	0	0

On the above it is stated that Orono has played four games, but they may have played one other with Bowmanville (most likely an Orono loss if it was played) as a scrambled schedule with several postponements have made it difficult to keep track of all games played. The Petes and Bowmanville will have to replay that ninety-minute 3-3 tie in the latter town if it has a bearing on the team finishing in second place. First and second teams play off for the group title.

Juniors.

	P.	W.	L.	Tp.
Peterborough	4	4	0	2
Port Hope	3	2	1	3
Bowmanville	2	0	2	4
Cobourg	3	0	3	3

This is approximately the junior section standing, though possibly Bowmanville and Cobourg have met once which is not recorded. However, only Port Hope has a mathematical chance of beating the Petes, by winning their three remaining games, while the locals lose their last two. The team finishing on top meets the winner of the Fenelon Falls-Lindsay-Bobcaygeon section for the group championship. The local juniors are scheduled to play to-night in Cobourg, while the Petes' intermediates are billed to meet Port Hope here.

HONOR FOR MADOC.

NEW YORK, January 27 (C.P.).—"I will give my best. That is all I can do. I still have the old British fighting spirit, and I want my old shipmates to know I am fighting for them," quoth Thomas "Seaman" Watson, featherweight champion of the British Isles to-day as he prepared to weigh in for his bout to-night with Fidel Labarba, Los Angeles ringman.

Watson enters the ring to-night under plenty of handicaps. To start with, the odds against him winning are placed at from two to three to one by the boys along the Cauliflower Alley. The Englishman has been embarrassed by a trial before jury in a local gymnasium to see whether he was a fit opponent for Kid Chocolate, recognized by the New York State Boxing Commission as the world's titlist.

When Chocolate was debarred from entering the United States, the seaman found himself matched with a boy just about every bit as good as the dusky Cuban. The winner to-night gets a title bout with the the "Keed" next month.

Labarba was reported in perfect shape for the joust. The handlers of the seaman are not sure he has yet become acclimated, but they declared he was in fine condition and confident of winning.

Switchgear	1	0	2	4
Office	1	2	0	2
Tool Room	0	1	2	2

And back we go to London to pop in at White Hart Lane, the home of Tottenham Hotspur, where all is smiles. It doesn't seem to matter whether your club is in the first or second division, for if you have a winner the fans will flock to see you play. Tottenham is in the second division, and fighting for promotion. Every home match sees over 30,000 onlookers and recently, when Stoke visited, there were 50,000.

And the manager at Tottenham is our old friend Percy Smith, who played centre forward for Preston more than 20 years ago and later played centre half for Blackburn Rovers. Percy is a tin hat, for he comes from Hinckley in Leicestershire.

SCUGOG BEATS NORWOOD SQUAD BY 5-2 COUNT

Lindsay Holds the Edge, Offensively and Defensively, Throughout the Game.

BEAVIS HAS OFF NIGHT.

(Examiner Correspondence)

HASTINGS, Jan. 27.—Lindsay's O.H.A. team paid a visit to Norwood Combines on Thursday night and went home on the long end of a 5 to 2 count after a fast, heavy checking game.

Lindsay had a big edge on defensive play, and this along with the hard game the Combines had on Wednesday helped Lindsay to carry away the win. Beavis in the Cambines net also had a bad night, some easy looking goals flashing on the red light.

The Combines opened the first period very fast, netting their two goals in the first two minutes of play. Play went back and fosth till fifteen minutes of the period had elapsed when Hogan hit the twine for Lindsay.

In the second the Combines had considerable more of the play but Eberts was to good for them, robbing Cripps, Stevenson and Calladine of what looked sure goals in quick succession. Calladine was shooting them hard off the right boards. With fine minutes left to go Reeves broke away and made a perfect pass to Martin who tied the score. Two minutes later Hogan put the Scugog town one up to make the score 3 to 2 at the second rest period.

Add To Count

Opening the last period, Williams brought Beavis to his knees with a hot one from the right boards. Scriver was away on another of his rushes but was bowled over at the defense. Gerster got a soft one for the visitors on a shot from centre that Beavis didn't see. Fenton missed the best chance of the period for the Combines when he had only Eberts to beat and shot over the top. Both teams started to rough it up. Reeves was chased for tripping, Fenton followed him for charging and Calladine got the gate for slashing, leaving the Combines two men short, but no damage was done. Fever got a rest for charging and with five second to go Crafton got Lindsay's fifth goal.

For Lindsay Eberts, Wileman and Fever looked the best, while Cripps Calladine and Stevenson, along with Scriver on the defense stood out.

Lindsay, Goal, Eberts; defense, Wileman and Fever; centre Houston; wings, Williams and Gersten; Subs, Hogan, Crafton, Reeves and Martin.

Combines—Goal, Beavis; defense, Scriver and Webb; centre, Stevenson; wings, Cripps and Calladine; subs, McConnell, Rogers and Fenton.

First Period

Combines—Calladine.
Combines—Cripps.
Lindsay—Hogan.

Second Period

Lindsay—Martin (Reeves).
Lindsay—Hogan.

Third Period

Lindsay—Gersten.
Lindsay—Crafton.
Penalties—Reeves, Fever, Fenton, Caladine.

Bowling Notes

Pins flew high and wide this week when the eight teams in the Auburn Woollen Mills' employees league visited the Duffus Alleys for their regular weekly tussle. The Herons continued their consistent winning taking three points from the Vultures to hold first place in the league. F. Redpath's Eagles climbed into second place in the race by trouncing the Owls, 3 to 1. A splurge of clever pin toppling on the part of the Blackbirds sent them into a tie with the Sea Gulls for the cellar position. These wins tighten up the league considerably and make it look as if the race on the home stretch will uncover some torrid battles. High scores are as follows: Men, C. Carson, 265—657; R. McLavey, 246-624; E. Ottney, 238—616. Ladies: V. McNamee, 242—521; N. Sauve, 195—546; A. Gore, 196—619.

The Young Judeans went down before the superior trundling of the George street bowlers this week on the Y Alleys in the Church League. St. Andrews on the other hand gave St. Paul's plenty of opposition and the final verdict resulted in a two all split. Tobe Westbye bowling for St. Andrews spilled the maple in great style, breaking both the high single and high three records which have stood so far this season. His solo count of 376 shattered the 303 score made by Jack Gray, while the high three total, 753, displaces M. Ruiter who had 728.

In the Men's League on the Y Alleys this week the scores were somewhat lower than the usual run. Northern Lights took the Keough boys for a real ride winning every game. Miller and Cowan for the losers secured singles of 234 and 225 respectively while Eastwood led the Lights with 269. Commercials took the big half of a 3-1 decision from the Y's Men, Roy Lewis of the latter team leading the scorers with 221, 233, 167.

The heaviest hitting this week was dished up when the Olympics cashed with the Aberdeens taking three out of four points. Nelson Routley led the parade with 230, 290, 218 and opposing him Richardson spilled 232, 213 and 199. The team totals were as follows: Olympics, 1041, 957, 974; Aberdeens, 978, 1042, 892.

Soccer Shots

By WILLIS ENTWISTLE

Well, gang, it's a long time since Empire sportiana trooped the news for the benefit of Old Land soccer fans in its entirety, so what do you say if we gaze into the crystal or hop on the old withbroom and take a peep at Kipling's muddied oafs across the old herring pond?

* * *

Yes, you might have known it, first stop is Arsenal's Highbury, where lady luck broke her funny-bone and sent London's crack club into the doldrums, by smiling at Walsall in the cupties. Poor Old Arensal have taken it on the chin plenty these last few weeks. Some folks say the heavy grounds are telling a tale on some of their none too young players. Joe Hulme has been playing a long time and so has Alec James. Dave Jack played his first game for Bolton in 1921 and was at Plymouth before that.

But there's a bright side to Arsenal, for the team has played to about 600,000 people on the home ground this season and has proved as good an attraction away. Gates at Highbury have averaged $10,000 this season and every visiting club takes away 20 per cent as its share. More than 65,000 visited the Sheffield Wednesday ground on New Year's Day to see Arsenal beaten. Arsenal has a splendid new grandstand and you need not walk up the stairs unless you so want, for there is an electric elevator.

* * *

And the next stop we make is at Filbert street, the home of Leicester City, where everything apears to be going wrong. Peter Hodge, the manager, who started with Raith Rovers, went to Leicstr, then to Manchester City, and now back to Leicester, is having a tough time. Leicester hasn't won a match on a Saturday since the season opened.

* * *

Now for Huddersfield, with its oceans of mud and a history that is engraved on the parchment of football's life. But we haven't long to stay at Huddersfield. Just long enough to congratulate W. H. Smith, the veteran outside left, who has played in 500 league games and scored 109 goals for the club.

We'll have to dash through Sheffield to get back to Lancashire and we are reminded of Billy Foulke, the old Sheffield United goalie. Billy stood 6 feet 2 inches and weighed 300 pounds. He was an international in 1897. When he finished playing he fell on lean times and, for a while, was a tremendous attraction on the pleasure ground at Blackpool.

* * *

Back in Lancashire we find the famous J. R. Smith back at centre for the Bury club. Jar played first for Kilmarnock, next for Rangers, then Bolton Wanderers and finally Bury. Recently he went doing a little vaudeville work, for Jar is quite a singer, and essayed to get a transfer as he thought Bury had seen enough of him. But he has taken a new lease on life. Billy Stage, the old Bury, Middlesbrough, Burnley, Southampton forward, is now mine host at one of the Bury public houses. Drop in on little Billy some time and hoist a couple. Righto, Bill, we will.

* * *

Up at Burnley, where the gates are a thing of the past, and there are generally more players than spectators, Tommy Bromilow, the old Liverpool international, is trying to round out a successful team. Wilf Crompton, son of the famous Bob of Blackburn fame, is doing well at outside left for Burnley, as also is Bennion, the former Manchester half-back, who came to Canada with the Welshmen.

* * *

Joe Smith, the ex-international of Bolton Wanderers, and now manager at Reading, has had a terrible time recently, for, at one period, all his first team were down with influenza. Reading was played at Cardiff recently and Cardiff is one place where the depression alighted and stayed. The story of the South Wales club is a football tragedy. Anyhow a Cardiff supporter, at the end of the game, hollered to the Reading trainer, also a Welshman, "How many players have you down with the flu, Bill?" "Eight," replied the trainer. "Well, I hope they are soon all right, and this lot of ours dies," came back the wag.

MADOC BATTLES TO 1-1 COUNT WITH MAROONS

Runnions and Ross Are Marksmen in Hard Checking O.H.A. Tussle.

BRILLIANT GOAL-TENDING.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MADOC, Jan. 27.—Campbellford and Madoc Juniors battled to a 1-1 tie after 30 minutes of overtime in an O.H.A. fixture at the latter town last night. This is the second time these two teams have left the ice with a tie decision. The game was cleanly played and well handled by James Watson of Madoc, four penalties being chalked up against homesters while the Campbellford Maroons had three.

Runnions put the Maroons in the lead early in the first period beating Nickel in the Madoc net by a close-in shot. The teams battled through the remainder of the period and well on into the second when the homesters evened the count, Ross tallying on an individual effort. From then on it was anybody's game, effective checking and good combination followed by many brilliant saves making it an interesting battle for the spectators.

Watson, Runnions and Bush copped the starring honors for the visitors while Rashotte, West and Terry played a spectacular game for the locals.

Line-ups:

Madoc — Goal, Nickle; defense, Ashley and West; centre, Akey; wings, Terry and Ross; subs, Rashotte, Armstrong and McGuire.

Campbellford—Goal, Watson; defense, Oddie and Milla; centre, Runnions; wing, Bush and Lambert; subs, Couch, Wilks, Nelson and Oubett.

AUSSIES TURN OUT FOR CRICKET TESTS

Nearly 400,000 Persons Pay $125,000 to Watch First Two Matches.

By WILLIS ENTWISTLE
Central Press Canadian Staff Writer

Industrial conditions are said to be as bad in Australia as in other parts of the world, but one wouldn't think so from the official figures of attendances and receipts at the first two test matches in Australia. The cricketers certainly gathered in the shekels.

The first struggle at Sydney was watched by 158,125 people and the receipts $60,000. The second match at Melbourne was seen by over 200,000 people and they paid $65,000. At Melbourne on the first day there were 64,000 spectators, 37,000 on the second, 68,000 on the third and 32,000 on the fourth.

The fourth test is at Brisbane on February 10, and Patsy Hendren, writing in an English paper expects England to be beaten because of the intense heat. If this were to happen everything would depend on the fifth and final test at Sydney, commencing February 22.

And just to return to that disastrous Melbourne test for a moment, Andy Sandham, says that the only ball you can be sure of hitting when Melbourne's bit of bird lime is sticky is a full pitch, for even a half volley is likely to do you in by turning at right angles at the last moment.

And despite all the row over leg theory bowling and body smashing bumpers, the Australian Board of Control is going ahead with arrangements for the tour of England in 1934. The board declined to grant permission for the 1934 Australian team to play in South Africa after the English visit, as it would be to strenuous, but are prepared to entertain a self-contained visit.

In the Australian season of 1933, testimonial matches will be played at Melbourne for Blackie and Ironmonger, and at Sydney for Collins, Kelleway and Andrews.

Ironmonger is the veteran who is playing in this season's test and Collins and Kelleway, also Andrews will be best remembered for their connection with Australian teams just after the war. Collins especially was a splendid player, and could both bat and bowl.

Bobby Jones poses with a guest as the two look over the new "perfect" golf course near Augusta, Fla., which Jones aided in designing. The guest is none other than Melvin Traylor, noted Chicago banker and one-time possibility as a presidential candidate.

"Tubby" William Of Lindsay Replies

The other morning we mentioned about the new curling trophy that is going to be donated in Lindsay next year, all because "Tubby" Williamson skipped and won a game without even getting one of his rocks on the rings. Here's Tubby's answer:

"I noticed your comments regarding our record game played here recently on heavy ice, and I think Billy Hewitt and Dick Butler were in recent consultation and meditation endeavoring to perfect a defensive against the new hockey rules or perhaps Dick received some pointers from Dick Irwin on how to play a perfect defensive game.

"Dick was my vice-skip and his perfect knowledge of defence was uncanny. So much so that our stones of all times guarded the rings; so if you meet Dick in the Toronto bonspiel you might have some trouble crashing through his kitty-bar-the-door tactics, but if you can coax him beyond his own blue line you will make him play a wide-open game. I am sure Dick would not like his system of play to be known, as I think he has already applied for a patent.

"I remember a quite similar game five years ago when I was with Lakeviews, and we were playing in The Mail and Empire competition up at the Granite Rink. I was vicing for Alex. Keith. Alex's rink was so bad that when he came to curl his only shot was to take off guards. In this game he should have received enough practice to be an authority on this phase of the game, but we lost, so you see the great possibilities in Dick Butler's new system."—Mail and Empire.

McNamara And Hill Win At Cleveland

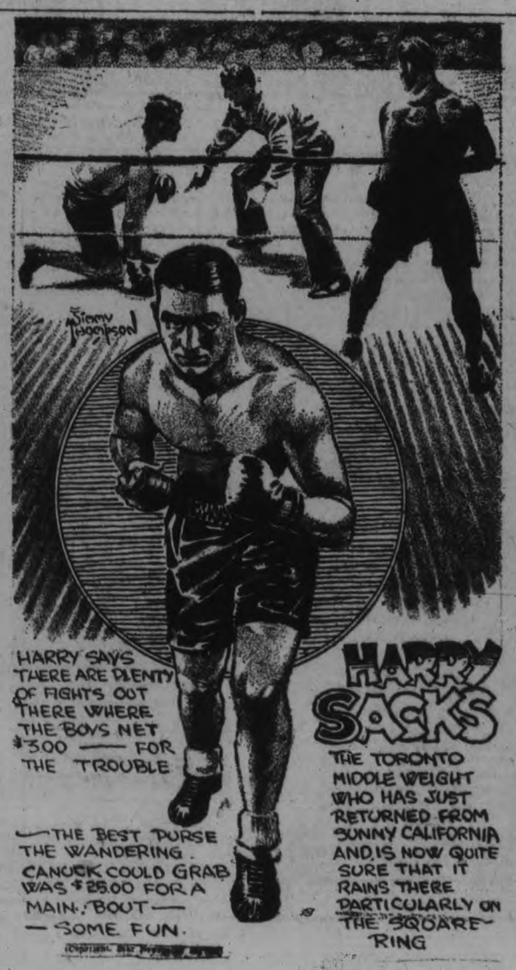
CLEVELAND, Jan. 27 (C.P.). — Reggie McNamara, the old iron-man of six-day bike racing, had another victory to his credit to-day, but he knew he had been in a tough grind. Along with Norman Hill, American rider, veteran Reggie led home the pack in Cleveland's first bike marathon last night, pressed to the utmost by the Swiss team of Saveer Van Slambrouck and Freddie Zach.

The Swiss riders spurted courageously in the final hour to draw up even with the winners in mileage, but they were far behind in sprint points, and thus took second place.

Little Jules Audy, of Montreal, furnished the thrill of the race's closing chapter. An hour before the end the 19-year-old platinum blonde was tossed from his bike during a jam, but he remounted and continued the grind. With Jack Sheehan of Ireland, the partner he found when Torchy Peden of Victoria, B.C., was forced out with injuries, Audy was only a lap behind the leaders at the end, but placed no better than fifth owing to a small bag of sprint points.

JUDGE SIGNS WITH DODGERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 (A.P.)—Joe Judge, veteran first baseman, who recently was given his release by the Washington Senators, to-day signed a contract with the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National Baseball League.



BEARS' HURLER GOES TO YANKS

Ties With Art Smith of Toronto for Pitching Greatest Number of Complete Games.

LEADS IN VICTORIES.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27. (AP) — Don Brennan, portly right-hander, whose hurling played a large part in bringing the International League penant to Newark, and who performed quite impressively in the Little World Series, scored a shutout against his rivals in the struggle for the 1932 pitching championship.

Brennan's rating in the official mound averages released yesterday reads 1-1. Winning 26 games against eight defeats, he was first in the won and lost percentages by a small margin with an average of 2.97 for each nine inning game. Brennan will go south with the New York Yankees, who own the Newark Club, this Spring.

Brennan Leads in Wins

In addition, Brennan turned in the greatest number of victories, tied with Art Smith of Toronto for the honor of having pitched the greatest number of complete games, each hurling 21; led in shutouts with six and was second to Beryl Richmond of Baltimore on the strikeout list of the first group of pitchers—those who pitched 10 or more complete games. Richmond whiffed 155 and Brennan 129.

Another Newark pitcher, Harry Holsclaw, was second in the earned run averages with a 3.43 mark, and Leo Mangum of Montreal third at 3.51. Merrit "Sugar" Cain of Baltimore was second in the won and lost percentages with 16 victories and five defeats for a .762 mark, followed by Arthur "Bud" Teachout of Rochester with 14 and seven for .667.

Mamaux Effective

Among the second division hurler, who pitched more than 10 games, but not 10 complete one, Manager Al Mamaux of Newark showed the way with a 2.56 earned run average. In this group also were Harry Smythe, who for the second year appeared in the greatest number of games, 53, and Emery Zumbro of Albany, the leading "finisher," who wound up 29 contests.

Gowell Claset of Montreal pitched the most innings, 262, faced the greatest number of batters, 1,246, allowed the most bases on balls, 144 and made the most wild pitches, 12. In the last two of these departments he also was first during 1931.

FINAL SCHEDULE TUSSLE TO-NIGHT

Local Intermediates Entertain Second Place Port Hope Outfit at Brock.

The Petes' intermediates, undefeated this year, wind up their home schedule at the Brock at 8.30 to-night, against the second-place Port Hope outfit. They can complete their regular sheet of games this evening with a clean sweep by trouncing Port Hope, but may have to journey again to Bowmanville to finish that 3-3 tie game, as it will probably affect the standing of the other playoff team. The Petes are in the playoffs now, and can't be shaken from the top rung.

Fans will likely turn out in large crowds to cheer the classy Peterborough machine across the home finish line without taking defeat. Despite the scarcity of ice in January, Manager Eddie Wright has worked out a smart hockey team and they had stiff opposition, especially from Bowmanville whom they tied in Bowmanville and beat out here. Both Port Hope and Bowmanville are now fighting for second place and a chance at the group title, but the Petes feel confident they can grab it off this year.

This contest this evening promises to be a hard-checking affair, with the visitors having an unusualy heavy defence pair and one player in particular, the 240-pound Harwood, who goes out of his way to bump them. He believes in getting the dangerous opponents early and flattening them hard two or three times, rendering them easy to check the rest of the game. He also does considerable rushing. The Petes were nursing a number of bruises and some hard feelings toward Harwood at the finish of the game in the Hopers' town, and this promises plenty of action. Micks, the goalie, should be much better tonight, being away off-form when the locals licked them. It will be good entertainment, and fans should attend and get their money's worth, at the same time supporting a winning team for a change.

Cricket Results

SYDNEY, Autralia, Jan. 27 (C. P. Cable)—Wickets fell cheaply on a rain-soaked pitch to-day in the exhibition cricket match between the visiting English test team and New South Wales.

The scores were: New South Wales, 160, (Rowe 70, Brown 69) Hammond three for 22, Mitchell three for 32, Verity two for nine); M.C.C. 199, (Wyatt 66, Verity 33, Leyland 29, Brown 29).

It was the second day's play and New South Wales went to bat with an overnight score of 169 for five wickets. They lost their remaining five in quick fashion, however, and scored only 11 more runs.

The M.C.C. inning opened in only mediocre fashion and six wickets had fallen for 163. The remaining batsmen collapsed before slow bowling on a poor pitch and the team was out for 199.

Bowling Gossip

(By H. W. MAHOOD)

The Lawn Bowling Campaign is under way. The clubs in and near Peterborough will offer the public during the 1933 season as fascinating attractions as can be found anywhere in Canada. The Peterborough club features unusual advantages. The fees are within the reach of the many. The tennis department of the club is getting results in the way of prospective members.

The Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club is not an exclusive one. It makes no claim to being select. It is for everybody—men and women. Here are names of folks you may consult and ask any fair question you may have in mind: Andy Brown, E. R. Disney, J. D. Fitzpatrick, W. J. Oke, Benny Chesler, C. H. Williamson, J. T. Braund, and W. A. Richardson, and R. M. Glover.

If you are interested in Carpet Ball Bowling, take a look in and see what is a-doing. Andy Brown and Dr. MaHood initiated the game at the Club House Thursday afternoon.

SPORTS — HOCKEY—BOWLING—BOXING — Day by Day — BASKETBALL — OTHER SPORTS

(By C. J. P.)

Ho, hum, more hockey games postponed last night. What a life! All was in larkness up at the Brock where a double-header was billed. Those City Leaguers are having their troubles by the bucketful this winter again, a water-bucketful. Eventually, we suppose, there'll be enough cold weather to get caught up on the different local leagues but it's tough going, and one can't look ahead with any degree of comfort to February. The O.H.A. in natural-ice centres continues to take it right on the Van Dyke, but such is life in the year of 1933.

* * * * * * *

Don't forget those C.G.E. games at the Brock tomorrow afternoon, just in case there is ice. They were wowing the fans up there last week. And the School League games in the morning at All Saints' rink are: Central vs. Prince of Wales at nine; Queen Alex vs. King George at ten, and King Edward vs. Queen Mary at eleven. As the hoofers say, "The play must go on."

* * * * * * *

Some changes have been made in the Ladies' Basketball League schedule, starting tonight. It is published today. And those working out for the men's O.A.B.A. team are at it again this eve at seven up at the "Y." About fifteen were out the first tryout, so it looks as if Peterborough should scare up a pretty fair cage squad.

* * * * * * *

The City Basketball League will be starting shortly. Six teams have been chosen so far, and their names and the schedule will be run probably within a week. They go right through till late in the Spring, and if the competition is as keen this season as last, it'll be a dandy circuit. The games will be played at the Y.M.C.A., except for the home games of the P.C.I. team, which is in this year. Permission has been granted the Collegians to strut their stuff in home games on Wednesdays at the Collegiate gym. Good stuff, that.

We're glad to be able to dig the old lunch-hook down in the dope bag to-day and pull out a little boxing parcel. It's not local, though and that's a pity. At that, the rabid followers of the tin-ear artists will sardine themselves into cars and journey any reasonable distance for a good fight show. And Lindsay is not an unreasonable distance, whatever else may be wrong with it. Yeah, they're running another big Regimental mitt card up there in about three weeks, with the best of the local Alpha Club sockers, Oshawa and Lindsay in it. Clord Garwood will take up Roy Hope for Lodge of Oshawa and Ned Minicola for Ripley the Motor City mauler, as well as a few others. The Alpha boys are working out now. More anon.

* * * * * * *

Amateur boxing is on the uptrend throughout Ontario now, and by Spring there'll be some fine cards run off. The game has taken a decided spurt and is now packing 'em in, and this should boost pro fight shows. Probably the two main causes for boxing's decline was high prices in these times, and rasslin'. The latter racket will still draw plenty for some time yet, but the novelty is partly wearing off. Another thing, the mitt promotors have scaled their prices down within barking distance of Mr. Average Fan and that's being wise. Boxing locally is in a slump but may come out of it when hockey is on the skids in another five or six weeks.

* * * * * * *

Word from London, England, states that Jack Dane of Peterborough, Ont., lost a six-round decision to Dave Forbes of Glasgow. It was a prelim on a card that featured Jack Peterson, British heavyweight boxing champion—but what about Larry Gains?—and Jack Pettifer. Jack Dane is not a Peterborough boy, but a Toronto product, although he began his pro career in our town well over a year ago.

Port Hope huskies are scheduled to wind up the local intermediates' home schedule for the year at the Brock tonight, and despite their defeat right at home Wednesday, the boys from the "loveliest town in Ontario" were just sore enough the other evening to say they'd win out right here. That's not likely as the Petes have gone through their schedule without a loss this year, a tie in Bowmanville being their toughest game. It might be a pretty fair tilt, though, tonight, and sure to be rough as the guy Harwood, backed by 240 pounds, makes a personal issue of every check and fans hard feelings from the start. He'll step into anyone, and some of the Petes don't take kindly to deliberate shouldering, boarding, etc. The Port Hope cheer contingent, with their haunting "Ontario-o-o-o" song, will be on deck.

For the second time within about three weeks, Madoc and Campbellford O.H.A. juniors went to a ninety-minute tie, playing last night in Madoc on heavy ice. Runnions notched one in the first, and Ross sewed it up in the second tighter than a number three shoe on a fat lady. Those teams must be just about even on strength. Last night's prolonged argument was featured by close-checking and brilliant goal-minding by Watson and Nickle.

And more basketball, Church League this time. It's the annual clash between the two George Street juvenile teams at six tomorrow at the "Y", with Knox juveniles meeting St. Andrew's at 6.35, and Murray Street tangling with Knox juniors at 7.15. The latter team must win to keep out of the hole and cop the second half, then meeting Murray again Feb. 5th and 12th for the title. Murray Street can tie with Mark Street and Knox by pulling out in front in to-night's tussle.

* * * * * * *

Sport shorts: May know tomorrow about those Toronto Leaf players who will referee, maybe, the Merrett Benefit Game here next Wednesday; looks promising now . . . . All Southend League cups must be into the hands of the secretary by Feb. 1st . . . . Empire Cubs beat Canucks, 7-0, and Rangers won from Blackhawks, 6-2, at the Sacred Heart rink last night in the slush . . . . Four Church League games, with All Saints, George Street, Knox and Trinity winning, were run off last night too at All-Saints' rink . . . . That City League double-header, Rangers vs. P. C. I. at eight and Rotary vs. St. Peter's at nine, postponed last night, may be played tomorrow evening at the Brock.

TRINITY TEAM BLANKS SAINTS

Knox Juniors Take an Easy 7 to 1 Victory From Murray Street.

IN CHURCH HOCKEY.

Trinity Juniors whitewashed St. Paul's, 3-0, in the last junior Church Hockey League game at All Saints' rink last night. Knox Juniors took an easy 7-1 win from Murray Street, George Street Juniors blanked Mark Street 2 to 0, while the juvenile game went to All Saints over St. John's to the tune of 3 to 1. The ice was soft, but flashes of fast, clever hockey marked all four contests.

The juveniles opened proceedings with a good battle, with little difference shown. Platt, Rusaw and a fluke gave All Saints their three counters while hard checking and good goal-work held St. John's to the lone marker. There were no outstanding players on either squad, both front lines and defences turning in steady work. Combination suffered due to sticky ice.

The first junior game saw George Street forge ahead in the second period of a hard-fought contest, Parnell tallying. I. Cassie got their other one in the third. Mark Street fought back furiously and crowded the winners all the way, but could not break into the tally sheet. Again, good defence and goal-tending made it a close struggle.

The teams:

Mark Street: Goal, Ferguson; defence, Wright, Mitchell; centre, McLean; wings, Alton, Stewart; alternates, Darwin, Reynolds.

George Street: Goal, Currie; defence, Parnell, Lesurf; centre, L. Cassie; wings, Heard, I. Cassie; alternates, Macdonald, Taylor

Referee, C. Sproat.

Knox Juniors Win 7-1

The Knox Juniors proved too strong in every frame for Murray Street and piled up a 7-1 count at the last. Watson was the big scoring star with five. He got three in the first, assisted once by Gatfield, one in the second and one in the third. S. Seabrook got one in the second for the winners and McDonald one in the third. Harton shoved in the losers' only score in the first.

The teams:

Murray Street: Goal, V. Holmes; defence, Miller, A. Holmes; centre, Harton; wings, Pammett, Ellis. No alternates

Knox: Goal, Hammell; defense, S. Seabrook, Fisher; centre, Gatfield; wings, Watson, McDonald; alternates, Master, G. Seabrook.

Referee, N. Frost.

Bow to Trinity 3-0

St. Paul's bowed to Trinity, 3-0, in a smart final game, the winners getting one in the first and two in the second, but having a job to hold their opponents out in the last hard chapter. Hayes found the twine for one in the opening session, and Hamley and Armstrong did the sniping in the middle go, the latter on a pass from B. Huffman. The winners' goalie had to be good as the Saints tried hard to get one near the end. Both sides showed nifty hockey from the goalies out.

The teams:

St. Paul's: Goal, Kirkwood; defence, R. Clark, Marsh; centre, Wooll; wings, Morrow, Rowan; alternates, White, A. Clark, G. Clark.

Trinity: Goal, Clark; defence, Davern, McBain; centre, Head; wings, Armstrong, Hamley; alternates, Mattice, Haynes, E. Huffman, B. Huffman.

Referee, C. Sproat.

STEWART WINS PICTON TROPHY

Local Man Captures Much Coveted Cup at Poultry Show.

16 WHITE WYANDOTTES

PICTON, January 27. — Among the many out-of-town exhibitors at the Poultry and Pet Stock Show was an old-timer, J. Gillespie Stewart from Peterborough, with a string of White Wyandottes. Many people will remember Stewart sending a smart exhibit 700 miles from the Canadian Sault to our Prince Edward Show away back in '19 when George Moore was its president. That time, under adverse conditions in severe weather, and the long trip, his Wyandottes made a meritorious win.

This time he had 16 snow-white birds in the very pink of condition, spotlessly clean, and which sure captivated the attention of everyone visiting the show. Many knowing critics have said they could hold their own in any competition. GOODNIGHT STORIES

By Max Trell

This is a locomotive
It makes a puff-puff-puff.
And when it isn't puffing
You know it's puffed enough.
—Shadow Sayings.

Mij was such a good shadow, and he tried so hard to do what was right. It really wasn't fair that he should have been treated in the way that he was. But I must tell you the story.

The five children, and their five shadows (the children and their shadows always managed to stay together) were out playing. It was getting near dinner time First Dinah went home with her shadow Hanid, then little May went home with her shadow Yam, then Rolf followed them with his shadow Flor, and Frank with his shadow Knarf. That left only Jim with his shadow Mij.

Now Jim didn't want to go home to dinner I guess he was hungry enough, but he thought he'd rather play a little more. He was playing locomotive and trains. He kept running up and down the street shouting: Choo-choo....clackity-clack... here comes the train, keep off the track."

Jim ran and ran and ran. His poor shadow Mij kept getting more and more tired. You see, Mij had to keep following his master wherever his master ran.

"Jim-m-my, where are you?" Jim's mother called. "Come in at once!"

"All right, in just a minute," the boy answered. Then he began running along the street again. He said to himself: I have to go to Chicago, then to Washington, then to Philadelphia and then to New York."

Mij held onto the lamp-post.

All that took a little time, you see, even though Chicago was only as far as the lamp-post, and Washington was at the first house, and Philadelphia was at the pump, and New York was in front of Jim's porch. Mij was simply too tired to take another step. But he had to go along. He dragged behind his master. He begged: "Please don't go to Chicago....please."

Then Mij got a scheme. He thought that if he held onto the lamp-post he would be able to rest for a few minutes, and catch his master before he got to the porch of his house. That's what Mij did. He clung onto the lamp post. But what did his master do? His master suddenly got hungry and decided not to go to Washington and Philadelphia but to run right home. So into the house went the locomotive and the trains. The door slammed shut, and poor tired Mij—poor little shadow—was left outside in the cold Wasn't that terrible? He got inside later, all right, all right, but that's another story.

An epidemic of mpmjs is prevalent in the village, many of the children being absent from school owing to the disease, which, however, has appeared in a comparatively mild form.

Principal B. B. Dawson was able to resume his duties as teacher of the senior room in the Public School on Wednesday after more than a week's absence, owing to illness with flu.

Local residents were much interested in the "Toronto Personalities" in Monday's Globe which showed George Bradfield Walsh, K.C., as the figure for the day, Mr. Walsh having been born and brought up in Millbrook, receiving his early education at the local Public School and later graduating from Osgoode Hall. He served overseas with the Bantam Battalion, and was awarded his K.C. in 1920. He is the youngest son of Mrs. C. W. Walsh and the late J. Wesley Walsh, and clerked in Dr. H. A. Turner's drug store in the holidays while working his way through high school and college. He is married and has two sons.

The Women's Institute, with the co-operation of the Municipal Council, is sponsoring a concert and dance in the Town Hall on Monday, January 30, proceeds to be devoted to local relief purposes.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Brown, Mrs. J. Todd and Miss Jennie Brock were visitors to Peterborough on Wednesday, visiting for a short time with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brock.

A number of badminton players from Peterborough were in the village on Friday evening for a friendly game with local club members, the total score being in favor of the Millbrook players.

The Wide Awakes, C.G.I.T. group, met on Tuesday evening for its weekly business and study program, the Scripture lesson being from the missionary prophet, Jonah, and the topic centreing round this "far call of the promise God so loved the world." Business chiefly was concerned with the final arrangements for the hot supper which the girls are serving in the former J. Steele store on Saturday, January 28, from 5.30 p.m. until all are waited upon. Helen Mitchell read a "New Year's Rule," and was appointed to give the current event at next week's meeting. Early-comers may be served with hot supper at five o'clock if necessary on Saturday, and the girls are grateful to the many friends in the congregation who have generously promised to help with the supplies for the tea. The proceeds are to be devoted to the group's contribution to the M. and M. fund of the church and the annual levy to the National Girls' Work Board, Toronto.

The newest "necklace" is a double band of gems in the shape of an X fastened to the backs of deep, square-cut evening dresses, or crisscrossed on the front of high-necked afternoon frocks.

IT'S LIVER THAT MAKES YOU FEEL SO WRETCHED

Wake up your Liver Bile —No Calomel necessary

For you to feel healthy and happy, your liver must pour two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels, every day. Without that bile, trouble starts. Poor digestion. Slow elimination. Poisons in the body. General wretchedness.

How can you expect to clear up a situation like this completely with mere bowel-moving salts, oil, mineral water, laxative candy or chewing gum, or roughage? They don't wake up your liver.

You need Carter's Little Liver Pills. Purely vegetable. Safe. Quick and sure results. Ask for them by name. Refuse substitutes. 25c. at all druggists. 54

RUBBER GOODS AND HOW MADE IS DESCRIBED

O. B. Crowell Addresses Local Branch of Engineers.

INTERESTING BUSINESS.

Methods and processes involved in the manufacture of specialty rubber goods of various forms were described in an address by O. B. Crowell, chief chemist of the Viceroy Manufacturing Company, Limited, of Toronto, to the Peterborough Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada last night. Mr. Crowell built his address around many samples of crude, processed and finished goods of his firm's manufacture which he had brought with him for illustration.

The specialty rubber goods business is an interesting one to the technician, Mr. Crowell said. In the business many different problems must be faced each day which would not come up for the rubber manufacturers concentrating in narrower fields such as the manufacture of tires and footwear. The Viceroy Manufacturing Company, he explained, does not touch the field of rubber tires, rubber footwear or mechanical rubber goods, but manufactures a line of products ranging in nature from rubber erasers to storage battery cases. That the firm has a list of eighty-eight ingredients on its compound list will give an idea of the range in production, he said.

Process Explained

Commencing with rubber heels, Mr. Crowell provided for the assembled engineers descriptions of the processes of manufacture of a number of the many and varied products of his firm. In the case of rubber heels, he explained, crude rubber is compounded with carbon and other ingredients called for by the laboratory formulas. The particular formula is for a composition which will meet the specific requirements of the case. The mixture is forced into a long bar of which a cross section roughly approximates the shape of the finished heel. The bar is sliced and the individual slices placed in multi-cavity moulds, from which the finished heel is turned out. In the moulding and curing process, 165 tons pressure and a temperature of 350 degrees are required.

The difference between raw and vulcanized rubber was explained by the speaker. Before a piece of rubber is vulcanized its tension, elasticity and set indexes are relatively low, he said. Tension refers to the strength of the material and set refers to its tendency to return to its original form after stretching. Vulcanization brings a complete change of the rubber's physical properties, multiplying its strength and elasticity many times over and improving its set.

Rubber Bands

"Although rubber bands may seem an insignificant line of manufacture, it is surprising how great a volume of this product we turn out," Mr. Crowell continued. "The process of manufacture is simple enough but a very careful selection of materials and constant checking is necessary. Probably more care is required in regard to the material which goes into our rubber bands than in any other product we turn out. In the process of manufacture, a mixture which is about 90 per cent pure rubber is formed into long tubes by the extrusion process. After curing, the bands are sliced from the tubes. In the case of some of the smaller rubber bands, the machines will slice as many as 15,000 per minute.

"The manufacture of rubber eraser would also seem a simple matter to the man on the street," Mr. Crowell said. "However, there is a lot more to it than you would think. We have been at it for eight years and do not know it all yet. The principal ingredient in the mixture for erasers besides rubber is pumice. Other abrasives have been tried but pumice is the only satisfactory abrasive for the job."

The process by which childrens' rubber bounce balls are made, was outlined as particularly interesting. The two uncemented halves of a ball are placed in the upper and lower parts of a mould. Pills of ammonium chloride and sodium chloride are placed in the bottom half with a small amount of water. The two halves are joined under pressure and subjected to heat during the process. As a result of the reaction of the gas pills and the water, nitrogen is formed in the ball and gives the ball a high degree of inflation. The ball is allowed to cool before it is taken out of the mould to avoid bursting, rubber lacking tension while in a heated condition.

ECONOMIC DEMOCRACY IS SUPPORTED

Government Asks City Council To Refund $14,790

Government Investigator James L. Malcolm Makes His Report of Recent Investigations to Finance Committee of City Council.

COUNCIL LABORED UNDER MISCONCEPTION IN HANDLING OF RELIEF WORKS IN CITY

Regular Employees of the City, Gang Foremen, Teamsters And Truck Drivers Should Not Have Been Paid For Their Labor With Relief Orders.

Because the City Council paid regular employees of the city—gang foremen, teamsters and truck drivers—with relief orders for the labour on unemployment relief works during the months between May and October last year, James L. Malcolm, Government relief investigator, told the Finance Committee of the City Council last evening that Peterborough must make a re-adjustment to the Federal and Provincial Governments of $14,790.37.

The $14,790.37 which must be returned to the governments, represents their grants of two-thirds obtained by the city on such payments to regular employees.

"You were labouring under a misconception in the handling of your relief works," Mr. Malcolm told the members of the City Council last night in explaining the situation. "There was nothing dishonest about it on your part and nothing hidden about it, but you made the error of keeping on with your relief work and paying for it out of relief funds."

Total Amount $22,185.50

He stated that he had gone carefully over the amounts paid to these regular employees during the six-month period, as given to him by the city officials, and had found the total to be $22,185.50. The amount the city will refund to the Governments will be two-thirds of this total.

On a total of $8,103.65 paid out to casual workers on city unemployment relief jobs, who were not registered on the city's relief rolls, Mr. Malcolm said the Governments were not seeking any refund. "We will wipe this out because as your Mayor states, if these men had not been given this work they might have been receiving direct relief," he announced. He intimated that the governments' had taken a lenient view on this amount, on which a refund of two-thirds could also quite properly have been demanded, was due

PHILADELPHIA HOME BOMBED

HOUSE IN RUINS.

Anti-Fascists Suspected Behind Plot—Injured Will Recover.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 28 (C.P.).—An explosion attributed by police to an anti-Fascist bombing to-day killed Mrs. John M. Di Silvestro, wife of the Supreme Master of the Order of the Sons of Italy, in the United States, injured at least 12 other persons and demolished the Di Silvestro home.

The injured are four of the Di Silvestro children: Arnold 19, Helen 14, Anita and Floria, 11-year-old twins; Miss Marie Guernia, governess and secretary, and at least seven other persons, occupants of nearby residences. Hospital authorities said none of the injured was in serious condition.

Police said the explosion was caused by a bomb apparently placed inside the house. Internal strife, they said, existed in the Order of the Sons of Italy, and the fact that Di Silvestro is a close friend of Premier Mussolini, were given by police as possible reasons for the bombing.

VICTORY SURE FOR DE VALERA IN FREE STATE

Republicans Hold Lead of One Over All—145 of 153 Seats Reported.

8 FOR LABOR ALLIES.

Opposition Forces and Press See Dark Times Looming Ahead.

(By George Hambleton, C. P. Staff Writer.)

DUBLIN, Jan. 28.—(C. P. Cable.)—With only eight seats out of 153 to come, results of the Irish Free State general election this afternoon gave the Republican-Labor government supporters a total of 81 seats in the new Dail. This ensures a majority of eight over all, not including the Republican speaker, even should all remaining seats go against the government.

The Republicans already had an independent lead over all of one member and looked to increase it. But it was fairly evident that for a good working majority President Eamon De Valera would again have to rely on the Labor members under William Norton.

In this connection, the Opposition newspaper, Irish Times, observing the "outlook is very grave," admitted that while De Valera would probably be again "bondage" to the Labor party, "in essential matters, the Republicans and Labor have most things in common."

Party Standing.

The party standing with 145 out of 153 seats reported gave the following:

Republicans	73
Labor	8
Nationalists	43
Independent	10
Centrists	11

Popular Vote.

Here is the popular vote in the Irish general election, based on first preferences, in all the seats where the count has been analyzed—about 135 out of 153:

	1933	1932
Republicans	869,458	566,329
Republicans	689,458	566,325
Nationalists	417,467	449,779
Centrists	126,795	34,989
Independents	68,892	124,512
Labor	79,222	89,263

ZIONIST PIONEERS TRANSFORM WASTE LANDS OF ARMAGEDDON

Former Valley of Death Now Scene of Broad Smiling Pastures.

ROOM FOR 100,000

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Valley of Esdaelon, Palestine, Jan. 10—From the desolate rocks of Gilboa, those tragic heights where disaster overtook Jonathon I had a birds-eye view this morning of the immense panorama of the Valley of Esdraelon, the throbbing heart of Jewish colonization in Palestine. Prophecy has indicated this plain as the scene of Armageddon, Battle of Lord. Armageddon is, in fact, the old biblical name of this region. With a shock I wondered whether the prophecy could signify that this vast and tranquil valley, with its scores of brand-new Jewish villages and colonies, is destined to be turned into a human slaughterhouse, filled with the clash of arms and the moan of wounded men. Are Verdun, the Somme and Ypres, by some ironic prank of fate, to be eclipsed in horror in the land whence the message of world peace emanated? Is the Battle of the Lord to be marked by unimaginable blood-shed? I wondered.

Pierre van Paassen

Or was the Battle of the Lord not in progress right before my eyes, in that "prisoners have been

Oratory Too Much For One Hearer

"I, too, am indignant when the worthy Homer nods," wrote the poet. Miss Agnes McPhail, M.P., certainly expressed indignation when the snores of a sleeper in her audience at the Legion Hall last night interrupted her address.

Miss McPhail had just nicely launched into her subject when the loud, disconcerting sound of snoring echoed through the hall. Overcome by the oratory, one of the audience was clasped tightly in the arms of Morpheus.

"My goodness" exclaimed Miss McPhail, "has somebody gone to sleep?"

When the sleeper awakened it turned out to be no less than one of the city's aldermen. Probably the news which Relief Investigator Malcolm had just previously given the Finance Committee brought on the tired feeling.

STARKES CLEARED

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld.—Roland G. Starkes was a free man to-day. A Supreme Court Jury had exonerated him of guilt in connection with 72 charges lodged against him following a police investigation of relief administration in Green Bay, the district he represents in Newfoundland's House of Assembly. After three hours of deliberation they brought in a verdict of acquittal late last night.

EASTERN COAST LASHED BY GALE

Tides Reported Highest in Years—Heavy Damage to Fishermen's Gear.

LINERS HEAVE TO.

HALIFAX, Jan. 28—(CP)—Showing scant signs of moderating at mid-forenoon, a gale out of the east piled turbulent water high on Nova Scotia's coast today. Settlements along the south and eastern shores of the province reported the highest tides in years; landing stages, wharves and fishermen's gear were swept away or damaged at many points. There was no loss of life.

Three liners lay off Halifax Harbor, waiting for the violence of the storm to subside before they essayed an entrance. They were the Montclare, Montcalm and Letitia. The Silvia, inbound from New York, reported herself hove to, 270 miles off Chebucto Head.

All fishermen's wharves at Portuguese Cove near the entrance to Halifax harbor, were swept away. A quarter of a mile of roadway was washed away at Ketch Harbor, and at Herring Cove members of the life-saving crew were standing by in the expectation their boat house would go down. Wharves at Duncan's Cove were smashed.

NEW FIRMS AT HAMILTON.

HAMILTON, Jan. '28 (C.P.). — Twenty new firms were brought into Hamilton during 1932, according to the annual report of the industrial and publicity department of the city. Of the 20, 11 were manufacturing industries, four are outside industries, mostly from the United States, having their products manufactured in local plants. Total capitalization of the firms is estimated at around $500,000.

Mexican Burglar With Harem Leanings Keeps Wife, 18 Sweethearts in Luxury

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Generosity to the fair sex was Armando Ortiz' ruination, police said today, as they accused him of supporting a wife and 18 girl friends by brazen thefts.

He gave each of them a separate home, police declared, and in his desire to make them comfortable his thefts grew bolder and bolder until finally he was captured attempting a particularly audacious one. . .

Each of the 18 friends received a stolen rado, his wife told authorities. Impartiality was Ortiz' motto To prevent jealously he called at each household at stated intervals. If he paid his visit to one girl at noon on a certain day, then the next week he would appear at 2 p.m., and so on in rotation.

Large Audiences Hear Two Gifted Speakers Discuss Economics

A State Banking System To Act As a Collective Spending Body To Relieve Present Congested Conditions Is Advocated By Speakers.

ECONOMIC AS WELL AS POLITICAL DEMOCRACY IS ANOTHER IDEA FAVORED BY SPEAKERS.

Miss MacPhail Would Raise Much Of The Money Required For Government Purposes By Placing Tax On Accumulated Wealth.

A State banking system to act as a collective spending body to relieve present congested conditions; insurance against the "fears of the poor"; an economic as well as political democracy for Canada; a Federal tax on accumulated capital and unspent balances: these were some of the ideas advocated last night by two visitors to the city, Miss Agnes MacPhail, M.P., and John Collingwood Reade of Toronto, economist, who spoke to approximately thirteen hundred people at two meetings. The main gathering, held in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute, totalled an audience of over one thousand people, the big place being taxed to capacity and over, many sitting on the stage, while the smaller overflow meeting, with about three hundred people in attendance, was held in the hall of the Canadian Legion.

The views of Canada's only woman member of Parliament, and of an economist from Toronto, were listened to with vast interest by the large gathering in the Collegiate, where intent faces were turned up to the lighted stage where the two people discoursed.

A little surprising, perhaps, was one element in the views advanced. Miss MacPhail appeared to have a profound belief in what she spoke of, but she made the assertion quite firmly that good times would probably never return again, a broad statement that must have caused a mental gasp for many. While the man, the shrewd-thinking economist, said quite as plainly that depressions of the past had been settled usually by some unforeseen and surprising element, unlooked for by those who were struggling most against the tide of the times.

At the Collegiate, J. J. Turner was in the chair, while G. A. Brethen of Norwood, ex-M.P., presided in the Legion Hall.

Silver collections taken in both halls were donated to the City Campaign for Relief now going on.

Miss MacPhail

"I was very pleased when Mr. Peck, your member, came to my hotel and welcomed me to his constituency. That is the etiquette of the House of Parliament and Mr. Peck, as you know, is a gentleman," said Miss MacPhail, who told her audience she would "talk along" with them while the collection for relief purposes was being taken up.

"And I will try not to say anything that you dislike while that is going on," she assured them, with one of the whimsical bits of humour with which her address was enlivened and which drew from her hearers answering appreciative chuckles. In fact, applause punctuated the lady member's speech from first to last, and she knew, apparently, just how to twist a few words to gather their instant attention and make them see the point at once. Her manner is as direct and sincere as always. She knows how to get her crowd.

"The fault of our party system in Canada," she went on, "is that instead of a group of fine individuals thinking out our problems in a way that would lead to their solution, they all think alike, and that, of course, means that they don't think at all."

Claiming that she had been misquoted in Texas about the liquor question, Miss MacPhail said: "Oh, these terrible newspapers. But still there are many fine newspaper people, men and women alike.

"We have as our major problem in this period two groups of people; on the one hand those who have things to sell and can't dispose of them, and on the other, those who want to buy and can't. And then there is that added number of our population who can find no work to do. Each year 100,000 young people are being turned out of our schools and colleges with increasing prospects of unemployment. Youth is troubled and that is not a good thing. They are facing a future without hope.

"I do not think that there are only three-quarters of a million of people in Canada who are unemployed. I think there are three-quarters of a million heads of families in that condition. We have also a decadent agricultural industry. In fact, every industry, with the exception of gold mining, is British Ambassador Accepts Sudden Invitation for Debt's Talk.

SAILS HOME TUESDAY.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (C.P.).—Sir Ronald Lindsay has accepted an invitation from President-Elect Franklin Roosevelt to visit him at Warm Springs, and arranged to fly from here to Atlanta at once.

The plane was scheduled to leave at 11.20 a.m., carrying the British Ambassador for a debts talk with the President-Elect of the United States.

When Mr. Roosevelt heard that Sir Ronald was returning to Great Britain Tuesday to confer with his Government on war debts, the State Department was asked by Mr. Roosevelt to extend an invitation to Sir Ronald to visit him.

It was emphasized at the State Department that the visit of the envoy is being made with the full approval of the present Hoover administration; in fact care was taken for the official arrangements to be made through the regular diplomatic channels.

TORONTO, Jan. 28. (CP) — Kenny Kane of National Hockey club is automatically suspended by the Ontario Hockey Association for his alleged attack on referee Frank McCurry after a game between Marlboros and Nationals here, Secretary W. A. Hewitt of the O.H.A. said to-day.

"Kane will remain suspended until his case is presented and acted upon by the sub-committee of the O.H.A. executive. The player will be given a chance to state his part of the action."

Kane allegedly punched McCurry after the game, which Marlboros won 2-1.

CALEDONIA, Ont., Jan. 28 (C.P.).—Fire early to-day destroyed the Kett building, containing two stores and a garage. Kett Bros., garage, Morris' meat store and Philip Norton's decorating shops were burned.

Town Watchman William Main noticed smoke coming from the rear of the garage while making his rounds, and turned in the alarm. The local brigade made fast time to the scene, but could do little to save the building. A heavy north wind was blowing. The building, of frame construction, burned furiously.

The fire spread to the attached building occupied by J. Norton, who resides in the apartment above the butcher shop. The Norton family were forced to vacate but were uninjured. Embers and sparks were blown across the street, and it was feared for a time the fire would get beyond control.

Office furniture and records from the law office of J. E. Stubbs and Dr. Goddard's dental office were carried into the street but the great work of the firemen checked the blaze before it could spread further. Two large gasoline pumps in front of the garage were saved.

The damage is estimated at $20,000, partly covered by insurance. The cause of the fire has not yet been determined.

VISITOR SLAIN IN SPEAKEASY

Harlem Haunt Becomes Bedlam as Gunman Wounds Owner, 2 Others.

CAUGHT IN ESCAPE.

NEW YORK, January 28 (C.P.).—A man was killed and three others wounded during a wild melee, in which bullets roared and knives flashed, in a Harlem speakeasy before dawn to-day. Screaming women and shouting men fled from the place, leaving it littered with abandoned wraps and pocketbooks.

A regular weekly dance was in full sway in the place, when a gunman sauntered to a table where Peter Moran, owner of the resort, was sitting with two men and two women. Without warning he pulled out a gun and began firing.

Moran, wounded in the thigh, tumbled under a table. The next bullet hit David Feldman, 24, who staggered into a corner and died. Henry Clark, 28, another man at the proprietor's table, fell with a bullet in the head, and then the gunman flung away his empty gun and started for a rear exit.

As panic swept the place, several men closed in on the gunman Near the entrance they got him down and jammed pen knives into his body again and again. Taken to a hospital, he was identified as Joseph Fisher, 27.

ROAD SUPT. SALARY NOW $1,500 $2,000 TO CLERK AND TREASURER BY COUNCIL OF UNITED COUNTIES

Deciding Votes Cast By Warden Rickard and Reeve Annis.

CONCLUDING SESSION.

Division of Council on Salary Qustion Resulted in Tie.

(By A Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Jan. 25.—Reductions of $700 in the salary of E. L. MacNachtan, clerk and treasurer, and $900 in the salary of George Greer, county road superintendent, as recommended by the Finance Committe, were ratified by the council of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham at their concluding session late Friday afternoon.

A summary of the changes in the remuneration of counties officials and other employees for 1933 follows:

Major E. L. MacNachtan, counties clerk and treasurer, reduced from $2,700 to $2,000.

George Greer, county road superintendent, reduced from $2,400 to $1,500.

Miss H McMahon, stenographer to Mr. Greer, reduced from $1,000 to $800.

J. F. McMillan, superintendent of the House of Refuge, reduced from $900 to $700.

Employees on county road work: man and team reduced from 45 cents en hour to 35 cents.

Crusher foremen down from 48 cents an hour to 35 cents.

Patrolmen reduced from 25 cents an hour to 23 cents.

Tractor operators reduced from 45 cents an hour to 35 cents.

No changes were made in the following salaries: Mrs. Thompson, matron of the House of Refuge, $800; J. F. Hutchison, turnkey at the jail, $800; and the matron at the jail $200.

Early Morning Session.

In a long discussion of the question of salaries the Finance Committee sat Thursday night until almost two o'clock Friday morning. The general sentiment of the members of the committee favored a readjustment downward, but some of the members objected that the proposed cuts were too drastic.

When the committee's report was presented to the council as the final and probably the most important business of the afternoon, with Reeve George Annis of Darlington in the chair, the division of the

REEVE ANDERSON MOVES FOR CUTS; F E W ENDORSED

Salaries of Superintendent and Matron of House of Refuge Cut.

FEW GRANTS ARE PASSED

Grant to County Plowmen's Association is Cut $50.00.

The economy axe was wielded in Peterborough County Council chamber yesterday, and it's keen edge fell here and there with effect looping off expenditures in demand to the pressing need for economy. In one or two instances, however the blows of the chief axeman Reeve W. A. Anderson, went wild, and the axe descended without effect.

At the morning session Reeve Anderson's motion seeking to reduce the salary of the County Clerk and Treasurer to $2,400 a year was defeated. Still on the economy trail Reeve Anderson sought to have the committee fees of the councillors reduced from $4.50 to $3.50 per day, when business resumed in the afternoon. A vote on the question resulted in a tie, and the chairman of Finance, Reeve Ernest Leeson cast the deciding ballot in favor of the commission fees remaining the same as last year.

Combined salaries of the superintendent and matron of the House of Refuge, which last year amounted to $1080, after the ten per cent cuts had been made, were further reduced by the Finance Committee to $840 per annum, taking effect from March 1, next.

In moving for this reduction Reeve Anderson, who was seconded by Reeve Allan B. Mann, said that although the cut might appear to be a drastic one, it must be borne in mind that the superintendent and matron were living at the House of Refuge under comparatively good conditions. They had no light, heat or tax bills to meet

Reeve Montgomery felt that the county had received wonderful service at the House of Refuge, a point upon which Reeve Anderson was in entire accord, but he believed that if a change was to result from the reduction the county might stand to be the losers. It certainly did not show very good appreciation of the services of the superintendent and matron, Reeve Montgomery thought, to reduce their salaries.

Replying to the representative from Norwood, Reeve Ferguson said that as far as "this thing appreciation goes" the county pays its officials to render service. If these peope had not been good people, he remarked, the county would have dispensed with their services. "I can send a dozen people up from Asphodel who will take the jobs at the reduced salary."

Reeve Anderson concurred with the remarks expressed by Reeve Ferguson. "We have got to make up our minds that prices are down to a low level to stay," he said.

Those voting in favor of the mo-

WAS BEING BEATEN.

ST. ALPHONSE DE CLARE, N.S., Jan. 28 (C.P.)—"John Jeddry came to his death by a bullet fired from a revolver in the hands of Albert Hatfield."

This is the verdict of Coroner's jury which heard details of Monday's fatal quarrel in the village post-office.

Ulysses Comeau ,who lives in the building where the post-office is housed, said Jeddry, aged 25, struck Hatfield, aged 16, heavily on the face. Almost at the same time, a shot rang out, and Jeddry dropped.

Mrs. Mary Ann Robicheau, who adopted Hatfield three years ago, wept bitterly as she told of the home-coming of her foster son after the tragedy.

"Johnnie is dead," she quoted him as saying. "I killed him; I'm sorry. I should have let him beat me, but it is too late."

Hatfield, charged with murder, will have a preliminary hearing on Feb. 2.

PAUL-BONCOUR IS OVERTHROWN UPON TAX ISSUE

Cabinet Resigns Following Stormy All-night Session.

LEBRUN SEES LEADERS.

Fall of 40-day Government Will Cost Country $50,000 an Hour Says Expert.

PARIS, Jan. 28. (AP)—The government headed by the veteran fighter, Joseph Paul-Boncour, resigned to-day a few hours after being overthrown on a taxation issue by a boisterous, shouting chamber of deputies.

President Albert LeBrun called for immediate consultations with party leaders in an effort to select a new premier.

The Paul-Boncour cabinet fell at dawn, fighting for a balanced budget, with former Premier Edouard Herriot vainly trying to rally support. The vote was 390 to 193.

The fall of the 40-day old government, Finance Minister Henri Cheron said, would cost the country $50 000 an hour and on Tuesday Paul-Boncour, who will carry on current business, or his successor, must ask for February credits on the bas's of a $1,250,000 daily deficit.

President Lebrun summoned the presidents of the senate and chamber Leon Blum, leader of the Socialist party which caused the overthrow, Herriot and other leaders for consultations.

Socialists Bolt

The 59-year-old premier, who had been war minister under his predecessor, Edouard Herriot, lost his post because the party with which he formerly was affiliated, the Socialists, deserted him.

They brcke up the Radical-Socialist combination which had sustained his cabinet as well as that of Herriot for six months by refusing to accept a five per cent increase on income and other general taxes.

Edouard Daladier and Camille Chautemps, Ministers under both Herriot and Paul-Boncour, and Jules Jeaneneny, President of the Senate, were considered likely to be called upon by President Lebrun to form a new government.

There seemed little chance that Herriot, who made a last minute plea for the taxation measure, would

SPLENDID RECORD.

(Examiner Correspondence)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 28.—On Tuesday evening the annual meeting of the Lakefield Volunteer Fire Brigade was held with Fire Chief A. H. Clark in the chair and a good attendance of members present. Officers were elected as follows:

Assistant chief, Gordon Scriver; deputy chief, Louis Sabatino; hose captain, William Hamblin; chemical captain, Harold Hamblin; motor captain, Charles Hunter; hose lieutenant, Milford Hampton; chemical lieutenant, Clare Chittick; motor lieutenant, Douglas Davis; secretary treasurer, Bruce Charlton.

During the year lectures and demonstrations have been found very helpful and the benefits derived have been great. Several bad fires have given the brigade the acid test, in withstanding excessive smoke as in the case of the Reid fire on Fitzgerald street in mid autumn and bitter cold winds and exposure for a whole day at the Dawson fire in December. The brigade emerged from these tests with flying colors and added to their excellent record.

PICKETS PLACED.

Officials Give Workers Till Monday to Return Before Taking New Staff.

DETROIT, Jan. 28 (A.P.) — Hopes for an immediate end of the Briggs Manufacturing Co. strike, which forced a shut-down of Ford Motor Co. plants, were dimmed this morning when the customary starting hour passed with no indications the employees were returning to work.

State and City Police were on hand at the Highland Park Briggs plant, and a crowd was gathering, including some pickets. But an hour after starting time, observers could not see that any workers had entered the plant.

Oscar G. Olander, State Commissioner of Public Safety, had announced that any workers who cared to return to work could do so "without molestation." Company officials had made the striking employees an offer of a guaranteed base rate of pay and the employees were reported to have held a secret meeting at midnight to consider it.

Officials were reported to have told representatives of the workers that all who returned by Monday noon could have their jobs back, but that they would start filling their places with new applicants after that time.

HEADED FOR ORILLIA.

BEAVERTON, Jan. 28 (C.P.). — The police of Orillia and district last night sought trace of two men, one of them believed wounded in a revolver duel with Constable Hector Reid, and who escaped in a car held in readiness after an attempt at burglary.

According to George Black, chief constable here, Constable Reid surprised a man in a dark lane at the rear of a hardware store here. The man, apparently trying to force an entrance, drew a revolver and fired at Reid, who dropped to the ground and returned the fire.

The man then fled to the river bank, where his accomplice awaited in a car. Reid said the man staggered as he went to the car and had to be assisted into the vehicle by his associate. Reid said he thought his first bullet had wounded the man, and he fired a second at the automobile and believed he hit it. The car sped off in the direction of Orillia.

brought from prison and they that sat in darkness from the prison-house, that the bruised reed has been left unbroken and the smoking flax not quenched?"

For this valley, which can easily hold a population of 100,000, is slowly fillnig up with Jews from the dismal ghettoes of eastern Europe, from the countries where they and their fathers have lived in perpetual terror and insecurity of life.

Jordan Mere Thread

Far off, on my left, loomed the sombre, massive pile of Carmel, blotting out the sea with its stupendous naked black of granite. A tender violet haze shrouded the evangelic hills of Galilee across the valley. At my feet stretched an enormous carpet of radiant green, checkered with patches of yellow and brown fields and red-roofed villages. Hermon, the snow-capped sentinel of Israel, stood dreaming in the mild winter sunlight above the Anti-Lebanon. On my right lay the Jordan Valley. The river seemed a mere blue strand of silk on the hem of the mountains of Moab.

Cowbells tinkled below and over the bottom of the valley crawled a motor caravan. In Gilboa it looked like a toy for children. Scattered through the valley lay clumps of eucalyptus and clusters of cypress trees stately as on parade.

Former Death Trip

Twelve years ago this huge valley was a stewing marsh, a ghastly poisonous swamp. It was a death-trap for man and beast. When the Turkish government in the old days wanted to get rid of a particularly obstreperous Bedouin tribe, Turkish troops drove the tribe slowly in the direction of the Emek Valley. From a distance the plain looked a wonderful pasture ground and the Bedus moved in with their flocks of goats without suspecting the trap. Within a year malaria and dysentry had killed off half the tribe. One summer in the Emek and not a soul was left, the whole tribe had perished. In this way the Turks got rid of a troublesome clan and the clan died never suspecting Turkish duplicity. Wasn't Allah the giver of life and death? "Mektoub!" said the sheiks and the elders of the people. "It is fate!"

To-day the swamps have been dried up. The Jews dug ditches miles in length to drain off the stagnant waters. Malaria has been conquered. I slept with the windows open in Afuleh, in the middle of the valley, and had the electric light burning almost till dawn, reading Joye's "Dubliners," and not a single mosquito entered the room.

Pioneers Were Giants

The formidable task of draining a valley of the Emek's proportions would have been a creditable performance for steel-nerved, hard-drinking construction gangs, such as linked the two oceans at Panama or those that blasted steel roads through the Rockies. In the Emek, the Zionist pioneers knew nothing of the exhilarating atmosphere of camp life or of the animation that usually accompanies a location rush. No spinning roulette wheels, no roaring dance halls, no relaxation whatever. No periodic pay-day relieved the monotony of existence. There was not a single diversion, no amusements, no let-up in the grind and no prospect of a pot of gold at the rainbow's end. It was dull, monotonous, brutal and terrible work in stinking ditches, along dusty roads, under a pitiless tropical sun. Hundreds of men and women perished at the task.

Most of the Zionist pioneers were graduates from east European colleges, idealists, bookish fellows, by no means one usually encounters on big jobs, as in Russia, for instance. You simply stand perplexed when you come to size up the work performed by these students and girls from the ghetto towns of Poland and Lithuania. I know I did.

No Flag-Waving

Revolutionary armies, like those of France and Russia, have sometimes accomplished similar incredible tasks in a boiling fever of excitement, in a moment of exaltation and fervor, but these Jewish boys and girls did it without the waving of flags or the inspiring rhythmic thunder of some Marseillaise or Internationale. With a patience so perfect that sometimes it must have seemed to them that time itself was suspended, they set about their task and persisted. "So much love, so much sweat, so much work has been poured into that soul," said the great poet Bialik to me, "that one of these days the womb of the earth will produce a new prophet!"

Work for the Lord

It was not the prospect of material gain which drove the Jewish pioneers in Palestine, for they may own no land. As in the days of Joshua, the land is the Lord's, or the common property of the Jews all over the world. Those on the soil are merely tenants for the nation. Such things are incomprehensible to capitalists who assure us that individual ambition and initiative is the only guarantee of success in a given undertaking.

What drove the Zionist pioneers to redeem the land was love. When the first colonists arrived after the liberation of Palestine and found that the ancient soil, the land of their fathers, was sick unto death, that the desert had crept across Jordan like some terrible wasting disease, drying up the strength of the land and sapping its energy, then their love for the land doubled and trebled so that they overcame what would have been legitimate despair. In the manner the pioneers of Israel approached the soil there was something at once filial and maternal. Here in Esdraelon one can see what Professor Unamuno of Salamanca, means when he said: "Spain is to me a daughter and a mother!"

You must have been to Esdraelon to realize that those who predict defeat for the rebuilding of Palestine figure without the undying love of the Jews for Eretz Israel, the Land of Israel.

VON SCHLEICHER CABINET QUITS

Chancellor Fails to Obtain President's Authority to Dissolve Reichstag if Necessary.

RULE OF 56 DAYS

(By Louis P. Lochmer—A.P. Correspondent).

BERLIN, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Chancellor Kurt von Schleicher, heading the 20th Cabinet since the establishment of the German Republic, resigned to-day after governing only 56 days.

This period was shorter than that of any predecessor except the last Imperial Chancellor, Prince Max von Baden, who lasted 30 days when the revolution swept him into the discard.

General von Schleicher realized from President Paul von Hindenburg's refusal to invest him with power to dissolve the Reichstag next Tuesday that he no longer enjoyed the confidence necessary to steer the ship of state solely on the President's authority in the face of a hostile Reichstag.

Hindenburg Accepts.

The resignation of the entire Von Schleicher Cabinet was accepted by the President after he had refused the Chancellor's request. Baron Franz von Papen, preceding Chancellor, was charged to report on whether a Cabinet could be formed on a Parliamentary majority or other bases, if the majority was unobtainable.

General von Schleicher seemed to have started auspiciously as Chancellor with an address in which he proclaimed social justice as the cardinal aim of his Government and made promises to virtually every calling, trade and industry.

His conviction that his policy was creating an atmosphere of peace and quiet and was successful was strengthened by the absence of violence during the Christmas season. The Chancellor definitely hoped this peaceful atmosphere would continue.

Calvin Coolidge Said: "The American Political System Neither Claims Nor Seeks Any Justification for Its Existence Save Righteousness

By H. W. L. MAHOOD

As these lines are being written, the American flag is at half-mast in Washington and throughout the world wherever there is a diplomatic post, or a navy, or any army contingent of the United States. Far and wide, everywhere in the world the press almost without exception is speaking words of praise as the life and public services of Calvin Coolidge are appraised.

Coolidge possessed virtues and abilities which have challenged the respect and approval of the world. He was transparently sincere. He was loyal to the highest American ideals. Unquestioned was his integrity in public and in private life. Honest Cal, as truly as Honest Abe was he. Withal he was reverent. In his mind constantly was God as a living presence.

This remarkable appraisal of Calvin Coolidge after his life work was completed is the reaction from his right appraisal of the attributes that make for strength no nobility of character. His conception of government will never fail to challenge the American people. He said: "Religion has laid the foundation of our government. It neither seeks nor claims justification for its existence save as it strives after righteousness. It had its beginnings, it found its inspiration in the religious beliefs of the men who settled our country and established and maintained our constitution and our laws. If this Republic is to endure it will be through the support of men of like mind and character."

It was at the dedication at Washington that he said of Bishop Asbury: "It was of what that bishop preached and what other organizations through their ministry preached that our country has developed so much of freedom and has contributed so much to the civilization of the world."

It will be well for the American people to remember this when seeking social reforms. The government of a country never gets ahead of the religion of a country. Religion alone of all the forces at work in the building of a nation gives and assures the blessings of liberty and prosperity. The blessings which have come to the civilized nations cannot endure if we neglect the claims of religion. The co-operation of Cal. Coolidge with Al. Smith in working out a policy of relief for the American railroads will never be forgotten by the American people. Coolidge was no narrow religious fanatic.

True, he was a man of deep religious convictions. Take the story of his relation to the little white church at Plymouth out of his life and you make impossible his granite character. In making a true appraisal of the character of this man it will ever be necessary to recall the religious factors which made the man he was.

Amid the green mountains of Vermont nestled a little village of less than ten homes. Here was born the great leader of the coming days. His father owned and conducted a wee bit of a store. In this tiny village were a stone school house and a meeting house, holding some one hundred worshippers. This church could not afford a stationed minister. An itinerant preacher visited this little mountain village occasionally. The preacher was the only vital touch that the people had with the great outside world. But the preacher had a message of redemption world-wide in its outlook. Such a message kept the villagers from becoming provincial-minded. The gospel message always widens man's horizon. Early in life Calvin Coolidge became interested in world issues and problems. He was blessed with a hungry, restless mind. The coming of the minister was always anticipated by this eager youth, because there was something in the message that gave him the broader view of life and its responsibilities. Tennyson said to his mother when questioned about some unusual excitement that had come over him, "I hear a voice speaking to me out of the wind." And there were times as the preacher spoke of the redemption through Jesus Christ that young Coolidge heard a voice calling to him out of the future. This experience never grew less. It had much to do with the formation of his character. In all his official acts Calvin Coolidge sought to express the Christian attitude. Previous to his first message to Congress, a group of church men had canvassed the attitude of the churches upon the outstanding public questions then before the country, including such questions as immigration, women and children in industry, the League of Nations, and other issues of moral and social character. The President's attitude to the Christian view was reflected in his first message to Congress. Calvin Coolidge was sensitive to the Christian ideals of the people. Many times the President sat in council with religious leaders to consider the application of Christian principles to public affairs. These were the hours when the inner Coolidge came to the light.

A Chat with Young Peterboro

ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 5.

"WHY are the twelve disciples called apostles, too?" says Harry. "It's just the same thing with a difference," says I. "They were disciples while they were learning what to do, and apostles when they were doing what they had learnt. We used to have pupil-teachers in the days when I went to school. They studied at the teachers' school in the mornings and in the afternoons they taught classes. They learned by doing. Why Jesus chose just twelve, I don't know, unless it was He took them as samples to show what He could do with just ordinary folks.

"It says that Jesus 'made' the twelve disciples and apostles. I have seen some who called themselves 'self-made' men, and I always thought they'd have made a better job of themselves with some outside help. Well, the Saviour made the Twelve by taking them into His pupil-teacher school. I think they learned most about God by being with the Saviour and seeing God's love in Him.

"People generally learn more from what you are than from what you say. Jesus taught them first to know God from Himself, and then taught them how to live so they could pass it on to others. You know the best way to remember a lesson is to tell it to someone else. That's why we have to get up in class and tell what we have been studying. I think the more the Twelve told what they had learned from Jesus, the bigger it seemed to them, until at the last they were ready to lay down their lives for the Gospel. But they had to practice as well as preach. It's not only knowing the truth, but doing the truth that makes us real followers of the Master.

"Here it is in a nutshell. Jesus said, 'Learn of Me,' and 'Teach all nations.' He said, 'Come!' and He said, 'Go!' Now Pick out which ones belong to the disciple side, and which to the apostle side, and then tell me if they don't both go together."

WEEKLY BIBLE LESSON

(By REV. WYLIE CLARK, B.D., D.D.)

JESUS AND THE SABBATH.
Mark 2:13-28 and 3:1-6.

EVERYONE who lives to be seventy years old has ten years of Sabbaths.

That is a long time, and if God so arranged it, then this time must have a purpose in our lives.

True, these days come only one at a time—one in every seven. That is a fine arrangement. If they came all in a lump they would upset our work and defeat our plans. Coming as they do, they are a weekly tonic and do much to re-create us in body, mind and soul.

It is a most refreshing thought that for as long as we live, by the appointment of God, we should work only six days in seven.

It has been tested and proved that men, horses and machinery do better work and last longer when they stop and rest on the Sabbath.

Men, animals and things are so made that they require time to renew their used-up energies and thus get back to the normal.

It is a great thing to unhitch the team on Saturday night or lock the door of the shop and know we are free until Monday morning.

Sometimes, when I was a boy, I thought the Sabbath was a day to tie a chap up and keep him awfully good; but when I learned it was not that at all, but a real day on which one could do many things, as well as go to church and Sunday school, then it became by far the best day in the week.

Jesus explained why there was a Sabbath. It was like all the other gifts of God—it was for the good of man—not to bother them or deprive them of any privileges, but to rest them and give them a chance to think about God and worship Him.

Jesus did not heed all the rules which the Jewish rabbis had laid down for the keeping of the day. He let His disciples walk through the wheat fields and rub out in their hands the ears of grain. He made it lawful to do good by healing the withered arm of the man.

Now if the Sabbath days are for us what are we doing with them? Are they just holidays at the end of which we are more tired than on work days, or are we using them to deepen our thoughts about God and our place in life?

On a Monday morning two boys applied for the same position. In age, appearance, family connection and education they had equal chances. The man said to them: "What did you do yesterday?" One said: "Oh, I had a great day. I was out at the lake all day. I did not get home until midnight. Gee, I was tired and hated to get up this morning."

The other said: "I was at church and Sunday school. Dad and I went for a walk, after which we all had a sing, and I went to bed at eleven."

The last chap got the job.

JESUS AT WORK

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL.

Our lesson begins "And they go into Capernaum; and straightway on the Sabbath day he entered into the synagogue and taught." Back of this simple statement is a note of pathos we are apt to miss unless we are reminded of what immediately preceded as recorded only by Luke in 4:16-31. He came to Capernaum because his own native townsmen of Nazareth had ruthlessly expelled him from the synagogue of his childhood and driven him from the only town he knew as home. Thus Capernaum becomes his adopted home and its synagogue draws him, regardless of the experience on the preceding Sabbath in the synagogue he knew and loved best of all in the earth.

Authority in the Realm of Truth.

But he nursed no grudge against the church of his day for the shortcomings of some of its members. "He straightway entered and taught." And how he taught there is significant: "And they were astonished at his teaching: for he taught them as having authority, and not as the scribes." He needed not to consult the opinions of others. He spoke as one who was expressing new, vital truths that were a part of himself and that issued like living waters fresh from his own soul. His was the authority of personality and sincerity and finality. He not only spoke the truth; he seemed to be the truth.

Authority in the Realm of Demons.

His teaching was interrupted by the weird cries of a demon-possessed man in the synagogue, the demon testifying to his divine personality as "the Holy One of God." To this evil spirit Jesus spoke in sharpest tones of authority as he "rebuked it," saying, if we translate literally, "Be muzzled and come out unclean spirit convulsing the man and crying with a loud voice, came out of him! The further result was the amazed comment of the congregation: "What is this? a new teaching! with authority he commandeth even the unclean spirits and they obey him." His was authority over demons as in the temptation in the wilderness.

Authority in the Realm of Disease.

From the synagogue the Master went into Simon's home, where "Simon's wife's mother lay sick of a fever; and straightway they tell him of her: and he came and took her by the hand, and raised her up; and the fever left her, and she ministered unto them." Luke, the physician, says she "was holden of a great fever . . . and he stood over her, and rebuked the fever; and it left her." Here is authority in the realm of disease.

Then follows an amazing picture of the Good Physician walking authoritatively through the wards of an immense "field hospital": "At even when the sun did set they brought unto him all that were sick, and them that were possessed with devils. And all the city was gathered together at the door, and he healed many that were sick with divers diseases, and cast out many devils." Authority in the realm of disease!

The Source of Authority.

Jesus walking among the sick at sunset is the ideal picture of the "end of a perfect day." How that day and every day began, and how he got this authority he exercised in every realm is told here: "And in the morning, a great while before day, he rose up and went out, and departed into a desert place, and there prayed."

Would you have something of his authority? The secret is that it is won in the realm of devotion in communion with God in prayer.

In French Canada, the family parties and exchange of gifts among grown-ups come on New Year's day. Christmas is a religious festival.

LET not my dream of things I hold most dear
Tie me to earth, but with a vision clear;
Help me to build this day, dear Lord, with Thee,
The things which last through all eternity.
Attune my ears to hear Thy message, Lord;
Inspire my lips to speak alone Thy word.
Veil Thou mine eyes from things I should not see,
Help me to leave my burdens all with Thee.

IT is written that it is very difficult for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of heaven. This does not refer to the possession of wealth, but to one's vain and avaricious life, for while man grows fat God is forgotten.

None either ought to imagine that he is blessed because he is poor, and neither ought the rich man throw away his money thinking thereby to gain eternal bliss.

The kingdom of God is in truth justice and love towards the needy, and it condemns none who properly uses that which he has, and who works for right and justice not in avarice but in the love and fear of God.—Jacob Bochme, Rosicrucian Mystic, 1575-1624.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Jesus and the Sabbath

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Mark 2:13-3:6.

Jesus' methods were unique and original. While others sought out the so-called best people for their followers, Jesus appealed to all classes. He especially offended the sensibilities of his enemies when he called as one of his followers Matthew, the tax collector.

Matthew gave a farewell banquet to his associates in the Roman tax collecting service which Jesus attended. His enemies criticized him for thus eating and drinking with publicans and sinners. Jesus explained, "They that are whole need not a physician, but they that are sick."

When his disciples on the sabbath gathered a few heads of wheat and rubbed away the chaff to satisfy their hunger, Jesus' enemies criticized him. But Jesus defended them saying, "The sabbath was made for man and not man for the sabbath."

Seeing in the synagogue a man with a withered hand Jesus healed the man on the sabbath day. Knowing that his enemies were ready to put him to death for this good deed, he asked them, "Is it lawful on the sabbath day to do good, or to do harm? to save a life or to kill?"

LABOR'S DEMANDS.

Premier Bennett told a delegation from the Trades and Labor Congress, which waited upon him yesterday seeking unemployment insurance and voicing a dozen other requests, that many of the things asked for were impossible.

It is to be imagined that after reading the deputation's program most Canadians will agree that the Premier's description was accurate.

When the Government is asked, in the face of the present financial crisis, to take the lead in raising wages by restoring the 10 per cent. deduction made last year and to inaugurate vast schemes of public work, to reduce the old age pension age limit and to increase the amount of pension paid, it will be realized that the seriousness of the situation as regards the nation's financial position has not been appreciated.

The deputation also requested that income taxes should be sharply increased, and the interest on public bonds and debentures reduced.

There is however, a limit to the extent in which "the rich" can be made to pay, and too steep an income tax usually defeats its own object, while the impossibility of reducing bond interest should surely be apparent.

Those bonds were sold on a solemn contract to provide so much interest; no nation that values its credit could afford to contemplate any breach of that contract.

INFORMING THE PUBLIC.

Much was said at the convention of the Ontario Municipal Electrical Association this week about the need of supplying the public with more timely and reliable information in regard to Hydro affairs, and out of the discussion it is to be hoped will come a new policy in this regard.

In recent years the Ontario Hydro has done little or nothing to keep the people of the province informed as to Hydro transactions and activities, and the result has been anything but helpful to the prestige of the publicly-owned power system.

It is impossible to think that criticism of Hydro management would have grown to its present proportions if the public had been taken into the confidence of the commission in regard to power purchases and other matters about which at the present time there is so much complaint.

When business is done in camera, when important transactions are completed without a word of explanation, the conditions are just right for the creation of suspicion, and suspicion once given a start is difficult to head off, as both the Ontario Government and the commission have undoubtedly by this time discovered.

It pays to deal fairly and frankly with the public; conversely to treat the people as if they had no right to be curious about what is their own business is a sure way of inviting trouble.

If the error of their keep-silent policy has at last become apparent to the Hydro management, perhaps a better condition of affairs can now be looked for.

THAT RUSSIAN DEAL.

The Russian barter deal will undoubtedly be aired during the coming session of Parliament, and Mr. Bennett will be called upon to give to the House the statement in regard to the matter that most people feel that he should long since have given to the country.

For many weeks this question has been discussed throughout the country, farmers' organizations have been stirred up to pass resolutions calling upon the Government for action, many columns of comment have been published in the newspapers, and yet, failing a definite statement from Ottawa, few people know exactly what all the fuss is about.

The Toronto Star, leading the clamor on behalf of the suggested transaction, says that three classes of people are opposed to the deal. The first and largest class, it says, consists of those who have been misinformed in regard to the whole matter, the second of those who would like to save Mr. Bennett from embarrassment, and the third consisting of people who think the Russians are wicked and no Christian people should deal with them.

To which the Financial Post retorts that there is a fourth class opposed to the deal, namely, the persons who are well informed on the proposal, who have no interest in Mr. Bennett's embarrassment and who believe that there should be no restriction on trade with Russia other than those necessary to safeguard our tariff and our Imperial preference treaties, but who do not believe that the Government should guarantee export credits to Russia any more than to South Africa, Bulgaria or any other of the more than 100 countries with whom we now do business without Government guarantee of credits.

"Let the Russian deal go on by all means," says the Post, "if the traders negotiating can swing it. But let us not have the taxpayers put up the money to make them their private profits."

Its a perplexing situation, but it could have been made much easier to understand with a clear-cut explanation from the Premier, who so far has failed to discuss the matter in public.

MORE NECESSARY THAN EVER.

The need of a generous response to the present appeal on behalf of the Peterborough Relief Fund has now been sharply accentuated by the revelation of the fact that a re-adjustment with the Government in regards to relief payments as a result of a misunderstanding last year will materially reduce Government assistance this year and throw a greater burden upon this municipality.

Through the adoption last year of a plan thought to come within the scope of the Government relief scheme, Peterborough was overpaid by the Government, and now that it has been discovered that some of the payments were not covered by the relief plan regulations, the matter has to be re-adjusted which involves necessarily a smaller amount of Government aid this year.

Under such conditions it is more desirable than ever that relief funds shall be supplied so far as is possible from voluntary subscriptions from those citizens wh o have escaped the worst effects of the depression; otherwise the burden, now heavier than was at first anticipated, will have to be loaded on the shoulders of the taxpayers, many of whom, as we have already pointed out, are themselves in difficulties and cannot reasonably be asked to carry a bigger load.

The fortunate ones in the community will have to come to the rescue of the rest—otherwise the situation will be desperate for a good many of our people.

Those who have not yet subscribed are asked to give these facts earnest consideration.

GOVERNMENTAL ECONOMY MUST START WITH PUBLIC.

(From the Farmer's Advocate)

W. Sanford Evans, a Winnipeg M.L.A., and recognized as one of Canada's leading statisticians, is addressing Canadian Clubs in Eastern Canada and attempting to present a true picture of the wanton extravagance condoned by the people of this Dominion. It is not merely extravagance; it is a headlong rush into national bankruptcy.

Up to 1913 Canada was ruled with frugality and thrift as compared with later policies, for since the beginning of the great war expenditures have pyramided to such an extent that the Dominion Government spends $134 for every $100 of income. Provincial Governments are more prodigal still and lay out $154 for $100 of income. Nearer to the people the municipal governments are forced to move with some caution, but even they have managed to spend $124 for $100 of income safely collected. With these figures Sanford Evans is able to show how unsound and dangerous our financing really is and where it will inevitably lead us.

There is only one safe method of financing known to governments, corporations and individuals, and that is the balanced budget. When the crisis broke in the United Kingdom the British statesmen risked their political careers to form a national government and balance the budget. It had to be done, and it was done in true British style.

Interest charges alone in 1931 were more than sufficient in Canada to have met all the operating expenses of the country in 1913. If we continue to "keep up with the Joneses" the present national income from direct and indirect sources will not be more than enough to meet the fixed charges on our debt alone.

Another startling revelation that should awaken the Canadian public from slumber is the fact that the cost of Government is $50,000,000 in excess of the value of all field crops in Canada. This amazing statement was made several months ago by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce and has since been repeated by Mr. Evans, after further investigations no doubt. All forms of government have united in one grand spending spree. Now it is the morning after!

The Farmer's Advocate has no desire to unburden upon the harrassed governments of the day all the blame or responsibility for annual expenditures which are now to a considerable extent uncontrollable. The people have demanded services, roads, canals and institutions of all kinds that meant growing government expenditures and increased debt. Successive governments and successive councils have bowed to the will of the people until huge obligations have been entered into, and perhaps the greatest obligation of all, from the viewpoint of the Dominion, are the Canadian National Railways.

The problem is with us and we might as well acknowledge our responsibility, severally and individually; but why drift further? If we will press for economy with the same sincerity and the same determination that we clamored for expenditures in years past, governments and councils will be encouraged and empowered to curb reckless spending, tighten the belt and balance the budget.

However, economy is a more difficult policy for a government to pursue than one of lavishness. Salaries, pensions, retiring allowances, grants and appropriations for this, that and the other thing have soared to what now appear like dizzy heights. Only through constant pressure from taxpayers will they be reduced and any form of equity established. Through the use of the ballot we elect representatives to transact public business, and through those representatives an awakened public opinion should make its wishes known at this winter's sessions in the council chambers of the nation.

Mr. De Valera, it is now certain, has a clear majority, and it remains to be seen what use he will make of it.

Parliament opens next week, and from present indications it will be a notable session, especially when Mr. Hepburn backs the Premier up against the wall and gives him "both barrels," as he threatens to do.

At last some snow fell in these parts Thurs., but the village Chamber of Commerce is hoping to keep the news outa the papers in California, southwest of here.

The depression has hit this village at last., times being so hard that the town clock has started laying off hands, the Hall of Wisdom philosopher notes.

This here may be a unusual January, but any way Rolly Denne, our worthy Mayor, has been re-elected president of the Agricultural Society same as every other January, we hasten to point out.

Aggie MacPhail lectured here last nite, telling the folks how prosperity starts with the farmer Aggie aint got much use for either of the old political parties, judging by her talk.

J. McIntosh of North Monaghan, our southwestern suburb, has been elected Warden of this fair county. John knows his way about in municipal politics and oughta make a good boss for bad times, according to our way of thinking.

Your scribe would like to warn Walt Stocker that his Christmas tree in Confederation Sq. has developed a decided list to starboard. Better get it down before the spring opens up, advise we.

Our village hockey team has licked Port Hope and Bowmanville this week and E. Wright, the manager of the same, is hoarse singing "Happy Days Is Here Again."

Our county legislators met here this week and got a road bill for round 37,000 dollars, which is a lotta money, whether its paid in inflated, deflated or recredivated currency or what have you, we helpfully point out.

Readers of this colyum that has still a little money left in the old sock is reminded that Frank Adams is the general treasurer of the village Relief Fund and he'll be glad to hear from all and sundry that wants to help in this here financial crisis.

Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, Physician

This is the signature of a surgeon who writes the incisive, rigidly controlled yet sinuous and flexible hand suggestive of his profession. Incidentally, we have here an example of profession affecting handwriting; the exertion of conscious control over the fine nerves and muscles of his hands and fingers becomes second nature with the surgeon and carries over, as in the case in point, into the signature. Apart from the professional aspect, we find in this signature indications of all-round development—capacity, scholarship, the artistic and the humanitarian. This man is temperamental, apparently highly strung; notwithstanding, he is steady, stable, thoroughly reliable—by reason of great physical stamina and a high degree of self mastery. He is experimental by nature. He has a keen fast mind which is in constant quest; but which subjects the new and untried to a challenging and critical reception. He not only receives quickly and assimilates carefully; he associates ideas cleverly and is therefore able to compass and corelate diverse interests. He has character of sterling quality intuitive understanding and rare sympathy together with a round objectivity of attitude.

RADIUM FOUND AFTER MINER'S CASUAL GLANCE

Chance Discovery From Air of Odd Formations Led to Bear Lake Riches.

PITHBLEND VEINS.

(By Jack Hambleton, C.P. Staff Writer)

PORT HOPE, Ont., Jan. 28—It's a long way from Great Bear Lake, just outside the Arctic circle, to the shores of Lake Ontario and this quiet town of Port Hope. But stacked in a factory building here are 56 tons of pitchblende ore from the northern lake, and Canada's only radium refinery here has started operations.

From the casual but skilled glance of a prospector, cruising in an aeroplane high above Great Bear, has emerged this romantic dream of radium in quantities sufficient to supply the hospitals of the world and to break the Belgian monopoly which for years has kept the price of radium almost beyond reach.

More than 100,000,000 years ago, nature staged a giant upheaval in the Great Bear country. Volcanic activity cast precious metals of all kinds to the surface of the earth. Fantastic rocks were scattered about. Veins of silver, gold, copper and other metals were exposed. Then nature recovered from her illness and all was still.

Much of the rock in the district is bare—stained with rust, yellow, green and gold. But it remained for Gilbert Labine, veteran prospector and miner, to read aright nature's notification of her treasures. Labine had been prospecting in the country of the Great Bear, searching for copper. Years before Dr. J. MacIntosh Bell, a Government geologist, had reported the shores of Great Bear Lake were "often stained with cobalt bloom and copper green."

And so, following a "hunch" Labine investigated. He had moderate success, and then as winter drew nigh, broke camp and headed home. As his plane roared through the northern skies, Labine glanced down casually.

Rich Strike

Below him was the "cobalt bloom and copper green," wide streaks of it, streaks of the wildest colors known to man. To Labine the story was plain. Nature had waited all those years for some prospector to look down from above and see her treasures. He knew those stains were outcroppings of copper and other metals oxidized by the weather. His skilled eyes took in the extent of those colored streaks, and knew he had struck it rich.

But Labine went on to civilization. The following spring, he returned. With E. C. St. Paul, an old friend and prospector, he again flew in to Bear Lake and started prospecting up the shores. The lake was still frozen over, so St. Paul and Labine rigged a sled with a sail and placed "creepers" on their boots. They hiked mile after mile across the frozen surface of the Great Bear, checking the rocky shores for sign of gold or other mineral.

The terrible glare from the icy expanses of the lake proved too much for St. Paul's eyes and he became snow-blind, but the two never hesitated. Six weeks of constant travel and search brought the couple to Echo Bay, where a temporary camp was erected. With St. Paul still unable to see, Labine strolled away from the camp, still systematically searching for those mysterious stains.

He located silver in large quantities. His eyes roamed up and down the high cliffs of Echo Bay. There was a strange, an unusual streak; a dark ribbon of deep-colored lava. It reached from the top of a cliff to the bottom, and wandered away beneath the lake.

Labine stared in unbelief. "It can't be pitchblende," he told himself. "It can't be." But it was. He had searched for the same mineral in Lanark County in Ontario, and had studied similar formations too long to be mistaken. A little further on, he found still another vein. And that pitchblende is the highest grade deposit of its kind in the world.

Thus was another chapter written in Canada's mining history.

MURDER IN EDEN

By Charles Winfield Smith.

CHAPTER 28

From the jail Larry Weldon drove straight toward Hollywood. Lucy Wilbur sat beside him, slumped far down in her side of the car, waiting for him to speak.

Threading his way through the heavy traffic he drove slowly, carefully. Only once did he say anything, and that was when he narrowly averted a crash at a busy intersection.

"We've got to be careful," he muttered. "We can't afford to have anything—anything—happen now."

"No," Lucy agreed.

Weldon did not speak again until he drove up in front of the apartment building in which he resided. He climbed out and motioned for her to follow him. They went up in the elevator to the fifth floor and presently they were in his quarters.

He carefully locked the door. Nor did he speak until he had gone over his place thoroughly to make sure that there was no chance of being overheard. Then:

"Lucy," coldly, "Nanette LeRoi knows more about this business than she's letting on."

She allowed a faint smile to touch her lips.

"I'm not so sure of that, Larry. I have known Nanette ever since she has been in Hollywood."

"I tell you," determinedly, "she's hiding something. Either she killed Richard Bailey or she knows who did."

"Larry," reproachfully, "you're talking out of your head."

"Am I?" with a sneer.

"Of course you are. Why that girl wouldn't hurt—"

"No?" His lip curled. "Perhaps you don't know her as well as I do, then."

"Why," bewildered, "I don't know what you mean."

"Of course you don't. But I happen to know that Nanette LeRoi is none other than Judy King—or Judy Banning—"

"Judy Banning? Who is she?"

"I suppose you have a ready forgotten that case in New Orleans. Judy King was once a famous musical comedy star—"

"Yes, I know."

"And she married Martin Banning, a millionaire no-good of New Orleans. Life with him became unbearable for her and one night she killed him."

"Where did you learn this?" she demanded.

"Lillian Hull knew her. Lil danced in the chorus of one of her shows and recognized her one night at a party. But the kid didn't have sense enough to keep her mouth shut."

Lucy smiled contentedly. "You're all wet, Larry. Lillian's been in Hollywood all her life and—"

"You forgot about the three years she took to the road. She—"

"That's right!" the woman exclaimed. "She was gone from Hollywood for three years—during those years when she was being transformed from a kid to a young woman."

"Well," sarcastically, "now that you have seen through that get this. When we were driving back from the beach last night you remember we saw Nanette drive away from that cowboy actor's place?"

"Yes."

"And she thought we were following her?"

"I know she did."

"Where was she going? She was driving like a maniac. When she left there she didn't even bother about waiting to change from her bathing suit. Where, I ask you, was she going in such a hurry?"

Lucy's eyes narrowed dangerously and the color returned to her wan cheeks. Her lips curled into a sneer.

"You believe," she almost hissed, "that she was coming back to Hollywood to do away with Chivington—"

"Exactly!" he confirmed. "She had an alibi, just as she did the night Bailey was murdered. If the trail got warm she could say she was at the beach—"

Lucy Wilbur smiled knowingly. So, she thought, Nanette was caught in the web now, and she could not get free. Inevitably, suspicion must be focused on her.

If Larry Weldon could have read her thoughts at that moment he might have wondered if he wa right, after all, in his attempts to fasten the guilt on Nanette LeRoi. Lucy Wilbur was like a woman transformed. Inside her heart was singing and she felt that a great burden had been lifted from her shoulders.

Now, she told herself, if she could just complete that work—

"Nanette and I have been good friends," she said, and her voice grew cold and hard, "but if any harm comes to Lil over this—"

"That's just it," Weldon exclaimed eagerly. "We can't let any harm come to Lil. We've got a way to get her out of this."

"What do you propose to do?"

"Go to the police and tell everything we know. That will clear her."

"And," cunningly, "that will focus attention on us. I don't want that. I'm in enough trouble all ready—"

"I don't understand," in perplexity.

"Yes you do, Larry. You know I'm having a hard time getting work. I don't know why they won't give me parts—Heaven knows I have kept myself straight enough. But the studio knows that Bailey was considering me, and that mean something. I'm not going to get mixed up in this any more than I have to, because I have to have work. If I don't—"

"Yes, but what about Lil?"

"She'll come out of it, all right. You can rest assured of that. We know she didn't do it—"

"We don't know anything of the kind," he corrected her. "She left us at the house, and you know how she really felt toward Bailey, even if she did try to be nice to him so she could get that part."

"I know—I guess you're right, Larry. What," hopelessly, "are we going to do?"

"There's only one thing for us to do, Lucy. We've got to plant the seed where it will take root."

"And how," unbelievingly, "are we going to do that?"

He stared at the floor in puzzlement. Finally:

"I don't know, Lucy. But we will find a way."

Lucy arose to go. "I'll leave it te you," she said.

But when she was outside his apartment she turned and gazed steadily at the door for a moment, then:

"I'll teach them a lesson," she hissed.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

A MYSTERY OF THE SEA

On this date in 1870 the ss, City of Boston, of the Inman line, sailed from Halifax for Liverpool. Her original port of departure had been New York where she had taken on passngers, mails and a fairly large cargo. Halifax was her last port of call; there she took on the Canadian mails, 41 cabin and ten steerage passengers, the first class being nearly all Halifax merchants on their spring buying trips to England. The day was Friday; the ship sailed down Halifax harbor at noon; from the moment she was lost sight of off the heads she was never seen or heard of again, unless by a fisherman three days later. The first intimation that anything was wrong was the publication of a paragraph under the heading "Disasters" on the shipping page of the British Colonist of Halifax on February 16:

"At last accounts the mail steamer City of Boston had not arirved in England"

A cable telegram from Mr. Inman dated February 16 says "I have no fears for the City of Boston. She cannot get on with these strong east winds. The New York mail boat, due last Friday, not yet reported."

Hope was not abandoned until March 10. Meanwhile some one in Boston played a cruel hoax by publishing a messsge said to have been received from Cork: "City of Boston arrived. All well." As soon as this was bulletined at the Halifax newspaper offices, the church and fire bells were rung, men and women on the streets shook hands and there was a general air of jubiliation. But twelve hours later it was announced that the "message" was bogus and had never come over any of the cables. The perpetrator of this wicked "joke" was never discovered, although a reward was offered. Search steamers went over the route, but not a scrap of wreckage was found. The master of a fishing schooner reported that at midnight on January 31, while of Sable Island, he saw rockets go up from a steamship out of control, but the weather was so bad he could not get near it. The trooper Orentes reported on arrival in England that she had met extreme weather, meeting a hurricane which lasted for five days. Some Haligonians believe that the City of Boston met the same fate as did the Titanic in 1912, crashing into an iceberg, but against this is the fact that there would have been some wreckage. The only apparent relic was the finding of a board on the coast of Cornwall on February 11, bearing the words "City of Boston sinking"; but this was not accepted as evidence since it was hardly likely that if sent from the vesel it could have reached England so quickly.

When it was certain that the ship had gone with all its passengers, memorial services were held in St. Paul's (Anglican) church and St. Mary's (Roman Catholic) Cathedral. And for many years old folk dated their reminiscences from either that date of the day the ill-fated ship sailed.

MARMORA.

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Wells attended the funeral of the former's uncle at Port Perry on Monday.

Irish Election Statistics

(By George Hambleton—C.P. Staff Writer).

DUBLIN, Jan. 28 (C.P. Cable). —Here are some satistics which reveal the extent of the Republican success in the Irish Free State general elections:

Republicans increased their vote in virtually each of the 30 multiple-member constituencies; the Nationalist Opposition showed an increased popular vote in only nine.

The Republicans gained four seats and lost one.

The Nationalists gained one seat and lost eight.

Labor gained two and lost one.

The Centrists, Opposition, gained six and lost two.

Independents gained one and lost two.

Analysis of the above gains and losses show a net gain for the Government forces of four seats; a net loss to the Nationalists, chief Opposition party, of seven seats. When the completed results are in former President William Cosgrave will likely have lost 10 seats in the Dail.

Labor, which kept the Republicans in power by its balance-holding group for the last eleven months, did better than expected. The Centrist party, which was against De Valera and hoped to secure the balance of power themselves, failed of their objective. It did indeed draw its votes from the Nationalists, leaving the Republicans intact. Five of the Cosgrave seats went to Centrists.

VICTORY SURE FOR DE VALERA

tion; for the combined Opposition, 613,154.

Asks Co-operation

Through his party organ, The Irish Press, President De Valera declared "The National policy is now definitely determined—may we not appeal to all citizens or goodwill to co-operate in the task of restoring to our country its former greatness and of making it a happy and worthy home for our people.

"The dead who died for Ireland," the President added, "will attend us in our efforts. Our exiled children will sustain us with their thoughts and prayers. The whole world will wish us well."

The Irish Times expressed the misgivings of former President William Cosgrave's Opposition forces. The Labor Party, even if its support should prove essential to the Republicans, would, said The Times, "do nothing to check De Valera's Republican aspirations. These were muffled discreetly during the campain, but already the newly-elected Ministers begin to talk of an Independent Ireland.

Reaction Cry

"Once again in swift reaction the cry 'to your tents, O Israel,' comes thundering from the north," The Times continued. "De Valera is pledged to abolish the oath of allegiance to the crown, to destroy the Free State Senate, and in both designs Labor will support him. He is pledged to invade the farmers' sanctity of tenure in the interests of landless men, and here too Labor is his most willing ally. Finally, Labor will help him maintain the economic war with the United Kingdom.

"In short," The Times summed up, "even if the election should prove a complete stalemate and De Valera has no independent majority, he will be able to work vast and irreparable mischief. A free democracy has put him in this position and must take the consequences."

Will Be Prominent In Ottawa Jan. 30

When the Federal House of Parliament opens at Ottawa on Monday, it will start a session which observers believe will be one of the most important in many years Two of the leading questions which will come up for discussion are the railways bill and currency inflation. The latter may not get very far, while the railways question presents so many complicated angles that it will be several weeks before the report of the commission headed by Lyman P. Duff (lower right) will come before the House. It is now in the Senate and must be passed there first. Unemployment and relief are other matters which will take up a considerable amount of time. J. S. Woodsworth (upper left) will go back to the House heading the new party, the Canadian Commonwealth Federation, and will likely have much to say before the House closes for the summer. Leader of the Opposition Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King (upper right) has made few public statements since the closing of the last session, and his position is more or less unknown. A revision of the companies act and the new shipping act recommended by Sir Alexander Gibb (lower centre) will also come before the members. It is expected that Major C. G. Power (lower left), Quebec Liberal will, endeavor to have the liquor export ban lifted. There will, of course, be innumerable other matters of interest brought up in resolutions by private members, and it is believed that Laborites will renew their fight to have Section 98 removed from the Criminal Code. Prime Minister Bennett (upper centre) is in for a lively session.

JOHN A. DEWART ADDRESSES CLUB

Friday Night Supper Club Hears Fine Address at Weekly Meeting.

WELL ATTENDED.

"War—its history, causes and prevention" was the subject of a highly-interesting and well-prepared speech at the "Y" Supper Cub last night by John A. Dewart, guest speaker of the evening. C. A. Salmonsen presided, with H. B. Cowan, V. Milburn and R. A. Piper being the guests. Miss Agnes MacPhail, M.P., who was to have been guest of honor, sent her regrets through Mr. Milburn as being unable to attend. It was one of the best-attended gatherings of the season.

The speaker opened his address by saying that those who were in any way connected with the World War certainly hoped never to be called upon again, and hoped there were never again be such a need. However, he pointed out, that much of the progress of humanity had had been made as a result of wars. He traced war from primitive times to the present year, condemning the modern war as it is fought for its serious effect upon the whole of civilization, rather than affecting only professional armies.

Dealing intimately with the various causes of war, Mr. Dewart went on to name methods whereby such tragic occurrences might be prevented. The control of the manufacture of arms by governments, taking it away from private companies, Mr. Dewart felt, would go a long way along the road to world peace. The breaking down of the present economic trade barriers would also make for a better feeling between nations, he said. And, finally, Mr. Dewart stated, the peoples of the world should be educated to a feeling of internationalism rather than the narrow nationalistic patriotism which marks the different peoples of the world today.

It was an educational talk, very intresting and entertaining throughout, and Mr. Dewart received a hearty vote of thanks from the assembly at the conclusion.

Grain Review

WINNIPEG EXCHANGE

WINNIPEG, Jan. 28 (C.P.) — Faced with a falling-off in export demand for Canadian grain and pressure of shipments from southern-hemisphere countries, wheat futures displayed remarkable firmness on the Winnipeg Grain Market this week.

General lightness of offerings aided the market, and the close Friday found values as much as ½ cent higher than the same day last week. May delivery closed the six-day period at 46½ cents; July at 47¼, and October at 48¾, an advance of ⅝ to ½ cent.

Supplies from Australia and Argentina command the foreign market at present, and demand for Canadian wheat this week was poor. Only moderate commitments were taken by United Kingdom importers and clearances of wheat from Vancouver also declined. Inquiries have already been received for wheat shipments in the Spring, however, and many traders anticipate brisk movement of Canadian wheat during the next few months. Heavy shipments of wheat were made this week by both Australia and Argentina, mostly to the Orient and the European Continent.

Cash grains were monotonously quiet and spreads closed the week practically unchanged. Trading in coarse grains also was slow, prices moving in sympathy with wheat.

CHICAGO MARKET

(By John P. Boughan, A. P. Market Editor)

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—(AP)— All at once a new interest for the grain trade has developed—country grist mills.

Long looked upon as just so many picturesque antiques, neglected survivals of the little red schoolhouse era, the grist mills are at present awakening widespread attention as forming in the aggregate a large-scale outlet for the domestic supply of wheat, and furnishing also a big source of flour. Trade reports current here today indicate farmers have gone back wholesale to the ancient custom of taking wheat to countless small rural mills and of bringing home instead an output both of flour and feed.

Helped by such reports as tending to confirm assertions that total supplies of wheat in the United States have been over-estimated, or not enough allowance made for unusual domestic disappearance, wheat this morning showed ¾-⅞ cent advance compared with a week ago. Simultaneously, corn was ¾-⅞ up, oats ⅛-¼ off, and provisions unchanged to 15 cents down.

In addition to reports about grist mills, advices from many sections of the United States show farm feeding of wheat, especially where that grain is available and other grain scarce, has been made extra liberal use of for livestock and for poultry as well.

SILVERWOOD'S IN STRONGER POSITION

Company Continues to Pay Preferred Dividend—Operating Expenses Lower.

Silverwood's Dairies Limited as at January 5th, had greatly improved its liquid position compared with April 2, 1932, the beginning of the current fiscal year, it is learned from an official source. Bank advances, which stood at approximately $200,000 at the beginning of the year have been reduced to less than $15,000, and accounts payable are lower. Mortgages and other obligations which are a direct charge on certain of the subsidiary plants have been reduced or paid off.

Liquid assets, consisting principally of inventory and accounts receivable after reserve for bad debts, are a trifle higher than at the beginning of the year, with the result that the working capital position has been materially improved.

The company continues to pay its preferred dividend and while profits are less than in the previous year ,there has been a material saving in operating epenses. Dividends on the Class "A" and common stocks were discontinued midway in the previous year.

Receipts from debentures which were sold on the partial payment plan to customers and others in the last year are being applied to obligations which rank ahead of the preferred stock, so that, with the portion of earnings which is going to reduce bank loans, the position of the preferred stock is steadily being bettered.

GOVERNMENTS ASK CITY COUNCIL TO REFUND THE SUM OF $14,790

to the fact that there was no suggestion that the City Council had tried to be dishonest in its dealings with the government nor had there been any concealment of what was being done. "We appreciate that it was wholly a misconception on your part," he said.

Mayor Moves Motion

After discussing the situation with the relief investigator, on motion of Mayor Denne the Finance Committee decided unanimously that Mr. Malcom's report be adopted and that Mr. Ellis, secretary of Provincial Relief Board, be notified that the Council had accepted his recommendation of an adjustment.

Mayor Denne commented, "However, I am still of the same opinion that it is better to give men work than to hand him out direct relief".

The other members of the City Council took the same view. They expressed the opinion that the city had benefitted from the expenditure on unemployment relief works and had something to show for the money spent in relieving the unemployment situation.

Handling Relief Well.

Mr. Malcolm complimented the City Council on the manner in which relief is being administered in Peterborough. "I think you are handling everything here most commendably, and doing splendid work You deserve congratulations, and I think Peterborough could be set up as an example to many other places"

In beginning his discussion with the members of the Council, Mr. Malcolm said, "As you gentlemen know I was here last December and took up the whole subject of direct relief. I found that regular city employees were being retained on the payroll maintained by relief orders.

'I think you were under the misapprehension that when relief work was discontinued on May 1 last year by the Governments, you would be able to keep on with your relief work only paying out of relief funds. However, there is a fine line of demarcation.

"I am not here in the spirit of criticism. A few places have made the same mistake. I think you have made the mistake of putting work first instead of relief. There has been nothing dishonest about it and nothing hidden. But you made that error and it is my unpleasant duty to come here and tell you the amount that it is necessary you refund to the Governments.

"I have gone over it all, obtaining my figures from your own officials. I have classified the men that were engaged on the work. First you had some men working who were on the relief rolls and who were receiving relief orders for their work. They are out of this picture. Then there were some men not on the relief rolls who did casual labor. Then there is the third class, consisting of regular city employees who were kept on, paid out of direct relief fund in mistake. These were gang foremen, truck drivers and teamsters mostly."

Men Were Necessary.

Alderman Macdonald—"We considered these men necessary if the relief work was to be continued."

Alderman McNabb—"Let us hear the bad news. Give us the figures."

Mr. Malcolm—"I find that the total amount paid out to regular employees in relief orders is $22,185.50. The amount paid out to casual workers, who were not registered as on relief, totals $8,103.65. We will wipe this last amount out because as your mayor states if these men had not been given work they would have been receiving relief anyway.

"Of the $22,185.50, continued Mr. Malcolm, "you have already paid a third and the other two thirds comes to $14,790.37 which must be taken out of your later relief accounts to the Governments. The Ontario Relief Committee will have to make adjustments on this with the Federal Government."

Same As Monthly Figure

Alderman Macdonald—"Fourteen thousand dollars. That is just about what our relief is running to per month now, and we are getting no work whatever for it."

Alderman McIntyre—"Do I understand that this is for work last year that was created for unemployment relief work."

Mayor Denne—"Yes, that's it."

Alderman McIntyre—"You did it all in good faith."

Mr. Malcolm—"If it had not been done in good faith and you had not been honest about it, we might have done with you as we are doing with Sturgeon Falls. There is nothing about this I couldn't explain and wouldn't explain to anyone."

Alderman McNabb—"I understand that when this was taken up with Mr. Ellis we got the wrong conception of it?"

Mayor Denne—"Yes, that was over a year ago."

No Disgrace.

Alderman Fitzpatrick—"There is no disgrace in this proposition at all. The work was created for relief employment and we charged everything to relief."

Alderman Holland suggested that if the Council had made a mistake and was being asked to make a refund for the error to the Governments, the Governments had also benefitted in Peterborough because the first year this city obtained no two-thirds grants for relief monies expended here.

Alderman Macdonald—"I think the Government has looked very favourably on the work we have done here."

Alderman Tuggey—"If the Government had thought that we weren't acting in good faith, they would have made us pay that other $8,000.

Acted Very Leniently

Mr. Malcolm—"Yes, that's true. I think the department has acted very leniently. There is a small town I could mention which made the same error you did. However, in that case even police uniforms were purchased on relief orders. They gave me false statements and did everything to cover things up and as a result they are in a nasty fix. You did nothing like that."

Alderman McNabb—"In view of what Mr. Malcolm has said that we have done nothing dishonest, but only misconstrued our powers on relief, we have nothing to feel guilty of, and the public have not suffered in the least since the city benefitted from the work and money went into the pockets of our citizens. We have nothing to do but pay it back to the Governments."

Mayor Denne—"I am still of the same opinion that it is better to give men work than to hand him out relief."

Alderman Hamilton, chairman of the Board of Works—"The work included sidewalk repairs, road repairs, oiling, storm drains, stone crushing, cleaning gutters, and local improvements such as curbs on Sherbrooke street, Walkerfield and Homewood Avenues and sidewalks on McDonnel, Lansdowne, Mark, Dublin, Marie and Birdsall streets. Some of this will be charged to local improvements. Then there was approximately $2,000 for work on the parks."

Not Been Discovered

Alderman Sloan—"Would this mistake not have been discovered if Mr. Malcolm had not come here.

Alderman Macdonald—"No, it probably would have gone on."

Alderman Sloan—"Its well he came when he did."

Mayor Denne then moved his resolution adopting Mr. Malcolm's report and that Mr. Ellis be notified that the Council accept the adjustment requested. The motion carried unanimously.

Mayor Denne asked Mr. Malcolm, "What do you think of the manner in which relief is being managed now?"

Mr. Malcolm—"Things are being managed in a most commendable manner and you are doing good work. It is very commendable and I think Peterborough could be set up as an example to other places. I am glad you put on the inspectors. I believe that there have not been many alterations as a result of their operations. That rather surprises me, but I think it is mainly due to the small proportion of foreign population you have here. But I still maintain that examination of home conditions is a very important part of relief and I think the inspectors should be kept. The inspectors' job is not only to try and learn whether the people are trying to put something over on you but also, and this is very important, to see how he can help the families, encourage them a little. If you are going to reduce the number of inspectors I would suggest that you divide the city in wards and assign them to ladies, making each woman responsible for one ward.

Thankful for Women

Mayor Denne—"We are very thankful for the work the women's organizations are doing. They are certainly out visiting and seeing that the women are getting properly cared for. They are meeting in their homes and knitting socks, doing everything to help. You are well satisfied with the way relief is being handled?"

Mr. Malcolm—"Certainly I am."

Discussion then turned to the dispensation of food. In this connection Mr. Malcolm said, "The Government as well as yourselves are feeling their way. This is a new problem in this country and we are just getting experience."

He said that in some cities the relief committee has prepared a list of the wholesale cost to grocers of staple foods and they permit the grocers a 10 percent over this.

Most of the Council expressed satisfaction with the manner in which the food was being distributed here and expressed their faith that the grocers were not taking advantage of those on relief orders. The problem was really one for the relief committee to solve, it was said.

Mayor Denne expressed his sincere thank s for Mr. Malcolm's visit to Peterborough. "We want to thank you for your patience, and express our pleasure at seeing you again," he said. A letter will be sent to Mr. Ellis expressing the Council's regard for Mr. Malcolm.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

Saves $2. So Easy! No Cooking!

The best cough remedy that money could buy can easily be mixed at home. It costs very little, yet it's the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a 16 oz. bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. To make syrup, use 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and saves two-thirds of the money a family usually spends on cough medicine. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, clears the air passages, and thus ends a severe cough in a hurry.

Pinex is a compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

tion to reduce the salaries of the two House of Refuge officials, were: Reeves Anderson, Mann, Leahy, Hickson, Tedford, Ferguson, Jackson, Given and Brown and Deputy Reeves Davidson and Patton.

On motion seeking reduction in councillor's committee fees the voting was recorded as follows: For a reduction—Reeves Anderson, Ferguson, Jackson, Given, Mann, Leahy and Deputies Mullen and Davidson. For fees to remain the same as last year—Reeves Steenbugh, Hickson, Tanner, Montgomery, Tedford, Leeson, Warden McIntosh and Deputy Reeve Patton.

Gaol Officials Salaries

Although the Department of Justice do not definitely commit themselves, the inference that might be drawn from the correspondence between the Department and the County Clerk, regarding reductions in the salaries of gaol officials, and which was the subject of discussion among members of the council, was that the government will not pay subsidies on such salaries unless the arrears of salary of such officials are paid by the county for the past year.

When the County Council at the January sessions last year, cut the salaries of the gaol oficials ten per cent, they did so without sanction of the Department of Justice, as a result of which, instead of efecting a saving of approximately $250 they are now actually standing to lose an annual sum of $800 in government subsidies on such salaries.

On motion of Reeve Tanner, seconded by Reeve Anderson the clause pertaining to the reduction of gaol officials salaries which was brought into effect last January was rescinded, conditional upon the subsidies for 1932 on such salaries being paid by the government.

A further resolution was carried on motion of Deputy Reeve Davidson, seconded by Reeve Mann, "that we ask the government for their approval of ten per cent salary reductions for gaol officials for the year 1933."

Grants

The Committee on Finance recommended to the County Council that the following grants be allowed:

Children's Aid Society $1,000 —moved by Reeve Anderson, seconded by Reeve Tanner.

Peterborough Plowmen's Association $100—moved by Deputy Reeve Davidson, seconded by Reeve Leahy.

Regarding the bill for $268 received by the county from Peterborough Board of Education in respect to the fees of thirteen children from the Shelter who are attending King Edward School, County Solicitor E. A. Peck advised the council that the county was liable for the claim.

On motion of Reeve Anderson, seconded by Deputy Reeve Mullen, it was recommended that the amount be paid subject to the account being certified by John Edgar, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society.

House of Refuge

Fred D. McIntyre, chairman of the House of Refuge Board, submitted his annual report, after first having congratulated the Warden on his election and other members of the Council upon having been returned to office. The report was as follows:—

"I have pleasure in submitting my report to you, although I am not a member of the Council for 1933.

"I am satisfied that the Board did their duty unsparingly in 1932, and any credit that is due reflects upon my colleagues, who were always ready and willing, and rendered most valuable assistance.

"The Home has been well managed by the Superintendent and Matron, and the condition of stock and farm reflects great credit to Mr. Fry.

"The old people seem to respect and are willing to take advice from the Matron, which is evidence of kindness of the matron. There has been some sickness that required hospital treatment, but we may expect such and are only too glad to try and get relief for our less fortunate citizens.

"I have never heard anyone complain of meeting the expense by the people of those who really need it having no other visible means of support.

"Due to the passing of some of the inmates the subsidy from the government fell short by $90 as you know some of them were put on the pension list heretofore. Our produce etc. sold fell short by $49.62 and we paid a liability current from 1931 of $733.25 and now leaving a liability current from 1932 of $756.59. You will plainly observe that the House of Refgue has a nominal expenditure over the estimate for the purpose."

"In submitting this report I wish to say that I have spent many pleasant occasions with the County Council and although I will not be associated with you officially this year I can assure you that I am separating from you for the present with the best of feeling towards you all.

"Trusting that my successor will be as generously dealt with as I have been in House of Refuge matters and that my successor as Reeve will receive the same assistance as I have had in all county matters.

(Signed) F. D. McIntyre."

Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield also tendered a brief subsidiary report.

Plowmen's Delegation

J. J. Duffus, president of the Peterborough County Plowmen's Association, made a request to the Council for annual grant of $150. He pointed out that last year the association had not asked for a grant because they had numerous prizes on hand which had been donated by the community at large. He stressed the importance to the county of the work of the Plowmen's Association, and thanked all who had helped in making last year's plowing match in Ennismore Township so successful.

V. J. Eastwood, Sr., supported Mr. Duffus' appeal for a grant and paid high tribute to the merchants and others of Peterborough City and County for their unfailing interest and support.

Howard Quinn, vice-president of the Plowmen's Association also spoke briefly on the point. The entries for the match last year, he said, had been heavier than ever before.

Reduced Grant

The Warden assured the delegation that the matter would receive due consideration by the Finance Committee, who later in the afternoon recommended to the Council that the grant be $100.

HASTINGS

Miss Patricia Donaldson returned to Toronto after visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Whitred.

Miss Rhea Preston spent Monday evening with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. John Oliver, who entertained a few close friends in honor of their daughter Velma of Toronto who has been visiting at her home.

Messrs. Cecil Johnston and Ed. Mercer of Hamilton spent several days with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Johnston.

Mr. W. Wilis of Cobourg is visiting friends and relatives in Hastings.

Misses Dorothy Johnston and Angela O'Shea of Peterborough spent Sunday with the former's parents.

The Young People's Society of St. George's Church met on Monday evening with Cyril Blackbourn presiding. Routine business was then done and it was decided to hold a night of games old and new next week instead of the usual social evening. The evening of February 6th will be musical and February 13th a Valentine Box Social. The event of the meeting was a debate on the subject "Resolved that reading is of more value than travelling." Charlie Jefferies and Leta Dainard upheld the affirmative and Ernie Blackbourn and Marjory Blackbourn the negative. Both sides were well presented and the judges reported in favor of the affirmative. The "National Anthem" brought a very interesting meeting to a close.

ROAD SUPT. SALARY NOW $1,500 $2,000 TO CLERK AND TREASURER

council on a motion to adopt the report resulted in a tie, 19 to 19. Both the chairman and Warden Rickard had not voted, and in a temporary interruption of the proceedings the Warden said: "We'll vote, all right, and declared himself in favor of the committee's report. The Warden and the chairman of the Finance Committee were figuratively "on the spot."

Reeve Annis had the last word. Recalling the procedure of the Finance Committee Thursday in delegating a sub-committee to consider the salaries question and several other matters on the agenda, he said that he and the Warden and Reeve Hooton had been instructed by the Finance Committee, with the sub-committee's suggestions before them, to consult Major MacNachtan, explain to him the feeling of the members and ask his cordial cooperation by accepting the reduction for this year because of the extreme decline in the incomes of farmers and other ratepayers.

"I realize that it was a drastic cut," Reeve Annis stated, "but Major MacNachtan met us in a fine spirit, agreed to the reduction for this year, and I know that his action is appreciated by every member of the council." (Applause.)

"In committee I was one of those who felt that if we cut Mr. Greer's salary to $1,800 we were going far enough. But, they didn't see fit to give it to him, and as our clerk and treasurer agreed to his cut when he was informed of the general scale we had suggested, I am voting for the motion, and Mr. Greer will have to do what he likes."

Mr. Greer's Statement.

Mr. Greer, in a previous statement to the committee, said he had been superintendent of the county roads since 1918. In fact, the original by-law for $1,500 is still in effect. For years, Mr. Greer said, he had paid all his own expenses, and during that time his position had been a comparatively poor one. With increases and the purchase of an automobile by the council in 1927 the job had become a good one. Last year he accepted a cut of 20 per cent.

"I was prepared to take another cut of 20 per cent," Mr. Greer said, "but with $1,500 surely no one thinks I should travel all over these united counties and pay my own expenses. I thought last night when I offered to take $1,800 I was doing pretty fair. I didn't think you should ask me to take only $1,500. The government pays half my salary, and at $1,800 that would mean $900 to be paid by the council. I don't think there is another road superintendent in Ontario getting only $1,500. I know two or three at $1,800."

Mr. Greer said then that he wasn't sure whether he would accept the reduced salary. Later, when interviewed by the Warden, and Reeves Annis and Hooton he expressed his agreement.

The division of the council was called on an amendment to the Finance report by Reeve Hooton, seconded by Reeve Green of Cartwright, that Mr. Greer be paid $1,800.

Warden Rickard and Reeve Annis, voting against the amendment, caused its defeat by 21 to 19.

In the Thursday night committee discussion, Reeve Curtis of Percy said: "I'm not going back to my ratepayers and tell them I got weak-kneed when I got in front of those fellows."

Reeve Cooper of Cobourg supported the proposed reductions. "The people asked me to try to cut salaries as much as possible within reason, and that is why I am here. I know how the farmers are hit, and business with the merchants is just about nil. And with the carpenters, plumbers and others, is any one of them getting by?"

$40,000 For Roads

The appropriation for county road work this year was discussed by both the Roads and Bridges and Finance committees.

In Roads and Bridges committee, Reeve Curtis urged that $40,000 be fixed as the maximum of expenditure, but finally a compromise was agreed to at $50,000.

Reeve Stinson (Millbrook) in Finance Committee, opposed the $50,000 figure.

"If you make it that much they are likely to go ahead and spend it," Mr. Stinson said. "That's too much for maintenance, and that's all that should be done this year. I wouldn't spend $10,000 if we didn't have to."

Eventually, a motion by Deputy-reeve Burd of Hamilton, seconded by Reeve W. E. Cooper of Cobourg, was adopted to the effect that not more than $40,000 be spent on county roads. And the Finance Committee is the body which directs the budgeting.

Additional Appointments

Reeve F. K. Denyes of Brighton township was appointed yesterday a county road commissioner for two years. Reeve Quinn of Cramahe was also nominated, and on the vote that was adverse to him congratulated Mr. Denyes on his appointment.

"We are good friends," Mr. Quinn said, "and I know he would be the first to congratulate me if it had gone the other way."

The three commissioners for 1933 are Warden Rickard, Reeve C. G. Mercer and Reeve Denyes.

Reforestation Committee

Deputy-reeve J. F. George of Brighton township and Deputy-reeve J. O. Ball of Cavan were appointed members of the Reforestation Committee.

Reeve Davey of Hamilton township, who was appointed to the Old Age Pensions Board, resigned the chairmanship of the County Property Committee, and Reeve James Smith of Haldimand was chosen in his place.

Reeve J. A. R. Elliott of Port Hope was appointed to the special county propery committee. The two other members are Reeve Smith and the Warden.

Deputy-reeve M. Booth of Cobourg suggested that the Warden's picnic be dispensed with this year as a little economy. He said it would also save the county the councillors' day's pay.

Warden Rickard's comment was that this matter rested with himself.

Not Sending Delegate.

Reeve C. H. Davidson (Campbellford) moved in the Roads and Bridges Committee that the council pay the $15 membership fee in the Good Roads Association, and send Reeve Mercer as a delegate. Deputy-reeve J. O. Ball (Cavan) seconded the motion.

Reeve Curtis (Percy) moved an amendment, seconded by Reeve Gray (Manvers) that no action be taken.

The amendment carried.

The Legislation and By-laws committee of which N. A. MacColl (Campbellford) is chairman requested the provincial government to reduce from $1.75 to $1.50 a day the charge upon municipalities for the hospital care of indigent patients.

Interim Teachers

On the recommendation of the School Committee of which Deputy-reeve C. J. Boyce (Percy) is chairman, the council endorsed the appeal of the interim teachers that they not be rquired to return to Normal School for a second year.

The Trustees and Ratepayers' associations of Durham and Northumberland were each given a grant of $15 to assist them in carrying on their oratorical contests in the primary schools.

J. R. Battisby of Campbellford and J. R. Ruddy of Bailieboro were granted auctioneers' licenses.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN.

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 40c to 42c; oats, 20c to 22c; barley, 30c to 32c; corn, 32c to 34c; rye, 29c to 30c; buckwheat, 26c to 30c.

TORONTO PRODUCE

Supplies of creamery solids from Ontario and Western points were fairly plentiful this week and, as buyers were not in the mood to acquire any large lots, there was some accumulation and prices during the latter days of the week eased fractionally. Brokers offered fresh-made Ontario solids at 20½c to 20¾c for No. 1 and 20¼c for No. 2, a very narrow spread between the grades. Regraded Ontario solids and Western makes were quoted at the firm figure of 21c, but there was little demand for supplies from the Prairies. Creamery prints were quoted to the trade at 24c for No. 1 and 23c for No. 2, a decline of 1c per pound from the top of the spread in prices in effect last week-end.

Cream Firm

Prices to country shippers on churning cream were quite firm with the recent changes. Local buyers of butterfat quoted 21c to 23c for special, 20c to 21c for No. 1 and 17c to 18c for No. 2, f.o.b. country points.

Cheese Prices Steady

The supply of new cheese was not too heavy for the local demand and prices were firm on the brokers' market at 10c for large, 10¾c for twins and 10½c for triplets. Quotations to retailers were steady with recent advances at 11½c for new large, 11¾c for new twins, 12c for new triplets and 1c for new stiltons. Old and medium makes were ¼c higher in most quarters, with old large at 17¾c and old fedium at 16¼c.

Egg Market Weak

Egg prices hit the slides in no small way this week as supplies piled up and demand did not take care of them. Prices to country shippers were reduced almost daily and at the week-end there was quite a spread in quotations to country shippers, as all the local buyers did not think alike.

Country shippers were offered much lower prices at the week-end than at the first of the week, quotations on Friday being 15c to 17c for extras, 13c to 15c for firsts and 11c to 13c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned. Prices to retailers were 24c for extras in cartons, 22c for extras loose 20c for firsts loose and 17c for seconds loose. On Friday brokers' prices were down to 18c for extras 16c for firsts and 15c for seconds graded in free cases.

Poultry Continues Firm

In sharp contrast to present conditions on the egg market, the poultry market continues in a very firm position. Fresh receipts at most points are seasonably light and an active consumptive demand stimulated by the low prices, is taking care of most offerings. There are, however, still a few chicken and fowl being packed for storage. A few frozen turkeys are offering in a jobbing way to dealers and at prices about a cent higher than those which prevailed about two weeks ago. It is understood that there is a fair demand for these and that some sales have been made at the higher prices. Turkeys are the only kind of poultry in normal supply in storage, but as they are now priced below chicken and fowl they should enjoy a good movement during the year.

U.F.O. Resolution Rejected by Agricultural Committee at Cobourg.

$297,071 BANK CREDIT.

Invite Cabinet Minister to Meet Counties Council Soon.

(By A Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Jan. 28.—The mere mention of "inflation of the currency" in a circular letter from the U.F.O. was greeted with a summary resolution of no action by the Agricultural Committee of the united counties council Friday morning.

With a gesture of immediate dismissal of the U.F.O. proposals, the committee of which Reeve F. B. Lovekin of Clarke is chairman refused to hear any more of the U.F.O. recommendations.

The motion by Deputy-reeve L. Campbell of Cramahe township, seconded by Reeve J. Smith of Haldimand township, Invite Cabinet Minister.

In a quest for "concrete information" regarding the cost of administration of justice, schools and other departments of county administration, the council yesterday passed a resolution requesting Fred J. McArthur, M.P.P., to invite a member of the provincial cabinet to meet the counties council in Cobourg at an early date to be arranged by Warden Rickard.

The resolution was moved by Reeve W. Davey and seconded by Reeve C. H. Davidson.

"The idea is that the members attend this meeting without pay," said Mr. Davidson. "It is for the purpose of going into the whole question of administration of justice costs, school grants and other matters so that we will have full information."

"Our costs are increasing," Mr. Stinson said, "and I'm heartily in favor of this resolution."

N. A. McColl (Campbellford)—If we are to get the ear of a Cabinet Minister it seems to me it should be immediately if anything is to be effectuated this year. It should be before the sessions of the Legislature next month, and if anything came out of the meeting, the Minister would have time to bring before the House any proposals for reducing the cost of administration of justice or other matters that might be good legislation."

Petition Rejected.

A Haldimand petition to have eight miles of the township road through Centreton be assumed as a county road was rejected on the policy of the last two years avoiding extension of the county road system.

Current Credit.

Authority to borrow from the bank for current expenses monies not to exceed $297,071 was set out in a by-law read by N. A. MacColl of Campbellford yesterday and read three times. He explained that the credit of councils had been curtailed to 70 per cent of the total taxes collected in the previous year. This by-law simply gave effect to the usual accomodation for paying counties expenses until this year's taxes are paid into the treasury. The rate of interest is not to exceed 5½ per cent.

Oratorical Contest.

A grant of $15 each to the Ratepayers' Associations of Durham and Northumberland counties, the same amount as last year, was recommended by the Schools Committee Friday.

Robert Dawson, Warkworth, president of the Northumberland Association, explained that these grants were used for the promotion of public speaking among the school children. He suggested that the grants be made $25 as in 1931, but N. A. MacColl, Campbellford, objected that it would not be logical to give increased sums after reducing the salaries of counties officials.

Incidentally, Mr. MacColl questioned the benefit of the contests in oratory, although he was in favor of assisting the two Associations in their effort.

"The speeches of the young people are just recitations or memory tests in 99 out of 100 cases," Mr. MacColl said.

"The boys and girls of twenty years ago would be afraid to get up and make speeches the way they do today," Reeve Stinson remarked.

But they were probably doing more thinking than talking, and after all we need good thinkers more than good talkers," Mr. MacColl replied.

Mr. Dawson said that Premier Bennett, Mackenzie King and other public speakers prepared their addresses and memorized them although not word for word. And their speeches were probably pot all their own thought.

Reeve Annis was re-appointed representative of both counties to the Ontario Agricultural council which was organized last year at the behest of Col. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28. — Rumored war threats in the Far East between Russia and Japan jerked wheat prices upward fast late yesterday, and temporarily more than offset earlier declines.

The rumors of Russian-Japanese friction were decidedly indefinite, except that they related to Japanese aviation plans. Previous sellers of wheat who attempted to reverse their market position found offerings had suddenly become scarce, and that little wheat was obtainable until quotations jumped in some cases to above Thursday's finish.

Wheat closed nervous, unchanged to 3-8c lower; corn unchanged to ¼c advance; oats unchanged and provisions unchanged to 5 cents down.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, January 28.— It was a dull day on the Winnipeg grain maryet yesterday. Wheat futures lacked any inclination to move in in either direction, hovering within a half-cent range throughout, and closed the most listless session in weeks practically where they left off on Thursday. Even the report of moderate export business faied to shake off the ethargy.

Values cosed unchanged to just ¼ cent lower, with the May delivery at 46½, July at 47¼, and October at 48¾.

Traders showed little interest in the market, and the pit at times was deserted. Buying support at no time was strong, but offerings also were extremely light. Generally the market was left to itself.

Two hundred and fifty thousand resulting in weakness on the Liverbushels of wheat were sold for overseas shipment, but this did not create a flurry in the trade. Freer offerings of Canadian wheat were reported frrom the United Kingdom esulting in weakness on the Liverpool exchange.

As usual, cash grains also were indifferent, spreads again closing unchanged. Coarse grains trading was a repetition of the wreat futures pit.

New Social Order Inevitable—Heaps

FORT WILLIAM, Jan. 28 (C.P.) —That a new social order is inevitable if Canada is to cope successfully with the multitudinous problems confronting it with the economic breakdown was the theme of an address by A. A. Heaps, M.P., Winnipeg, before an audience of several hundred in the civic auditorium here.

A Government that had the courage to conscript men in the war crisis of 1914-1918 should have the courage to conscript wealth in the crisis of to-day, he said, to wage war not against men but against poverty.

State control of industry and of banks with the Government substituting planned production in the place of "haphazard production" is the only solution to the present depression he declared.

Toronto To Have No More Cadet Training

Toronto's Cadets are no more—at least, they are no longer obligatory. By a motion which passed the City Board of Education, those who have fought for years to abolish Cadet training in Public Schools have at last won their victory. No longer will Toronto see such colorful parades of Red, khaki, and blue coated Cadets marching down University Avenue before the reviewing stand (see above). The training was abolished as being absolutely useless. With what pleasure will Miss Agnes MacPhail read of this!

New Stillman Suit Recalls Old Episodes

Here are the principals in the latest chapter in the James A. Stillman family, recalling alleged episodes which became public just ten years ago when the private lives of the former head of the National City Bank, New York, and his ex-wife "Fifi" Stillman McCormick, were aired in court. Photos show (1) Luc Rochefort, former Montreal financier, now living in reduced circumstances on Long Island, who is suing Stillman (3) for alienating the affections of his wife, Marjorie Rochefort (2); (4) "Fifi" and her present husband, Fowler McCormick, grandson of John D. Rickefeller; (5) Fred Beauvais, Canadian Indian guide, who, in 1922, was accused by Stillman of being the father of "Fifi's" son Guy; (6) Flo Leeds, who "Fifi" Stillman alleged had been intimate with Stillman.

Steel plates and uprights of the once-palatial liner were twisted like candy from the intense heat of the flames that roared unabated for three days while the ship drifted in the channel.

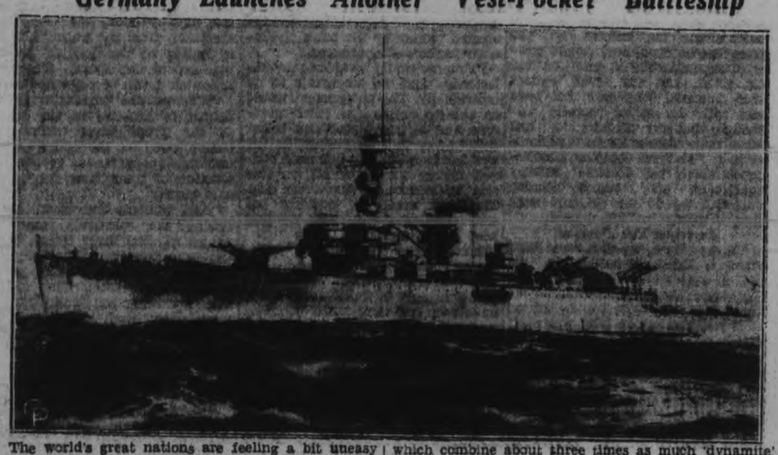
Germany Launches Another "Vest-Pocket" Battleship



The world's great nations are feeling a bit uneasy over Germany's post-war navy, which, while it stays within the bounds of the Treaty of Versailles, has nevertheless become a potent factor among the world's murder-machines. Germany has just launched another of those 10,000-ton vest-pocket battleships which are dwarfed by the big ships of other nations, but which combine about three times as much 'dynamite' per pound of weight. Above is a drawing of what these new ships look like. They are trim and speedy, and German engineers have introduced many innovations heretore unheard of in naval warfare. It was reported just after the launching of the new 'Deutschland' that the secret plans for the ship had been stolen.

Japan Makes New Drive To Annex Jehol

The threat of Japan to launch another assault on the province of Jehol in North China in an attempt to annex that province to Manchuria, where she has already set up a puppet state, is again occupying the undivided attention of the nations of the world. TWO LARGE AUDIENCES HEAR MISS MACPHAIL AND J. READE DISCUSS ECONOMIC PROBLEMS down. Individuals and municipalities and governments are bankrupt. And they will go lower. Times will get worse. I am not saying this to frighten you into joining the C.C.F. but because the volume of money, in relation to goods and services, is getting less, and that means that price levels will go lower and lower. And there is no one, not me, nor you, nor Bennet, nor anyone else, who knows how it will end. I should say especially Bennett," concluded Miss MacPhail thoughtfully, to the sound of applause.

Speaking of the previous speaker, Mr. Reade, as "having the stuff," Miss MacPhail went on to reiterate his assertion that "the issue of the means of payment should be in the hands of a central bank of issue and re-discount and that the State and the State alone should issue money and that it should so issue in goods and services, and not in relation to gold only as gold is one of the commodities and one of the services." (Applause).

"Is it not a terrible indictment against our civilization that people should starve and suffer and get high blood pressure and take strokes because of worry, simply for the reason that we have not dug enough gold out of the ground to write paper money against gold in sufficient volume to buy the necessary things of life?

"Some say if you have a central bank and you issue money in volume against goods, in scientific measure, you won't be able to buy gold with your money. But who wants to buy gold? I don't. I want to buy a new frock or seeds to plant in the garden or a tank to pump water upstairs. I don't want to buy gold.

"Crucified on the Cross of Gold"

"The people who are willing that we should starve and die because we haven't gold enough are not the people who are going to suffer thereby. They are willing that the rest of us should be sacrificed to the god of gold while they keep away from the altar.

"It is not my country. There is no reason why I should wear myself out trying to persuade people to be intelligent. They should inform themselves on their own problems. A change is going to come only by intelligent, collective thinking.

"I think this is the crux of the thing: That we have allowed the issue of money to go into private hands and those private people (not maliciously) have issued the means of payment of money against our assets at very handsome rates of interest when it was least needed and not when it was needed the most. Now, I would have to own a township and have a long line of aristocratic ancestors to get bank credit. If, as Mr. Reade says, ninety-six per cent of our money is pen and ink money, and it is a banker's fountain pen that makes it sound money, it is a mystery to me.

"But another thing that has gone wrong is that we have had no science at all in our production. Well no, I don't mean that exactly. We have had no science in the volume of our production. We have today too many factories that have come into competition with similar types of factories that are producing more goods than the market can absorb.

"We have through time solved the problem of production of goods but we haven't solved the problem of distribution of the great quantities of goods we have produced and our whole economy (I am using the word in the economist's sense), our whole national planning has been to increase capital and to increase savings by thrift, in order to invest this accumulated capital in production. Little bank branches in small places have been pouring the money into city banks in order that capital should go more and more into the production of goods.

"And yet we should have an economy of consumption of goods, rather than of production.

"And we will have to lift pretty rapidly the burden of Federal taxation from the consumers and put it where it belongs; on accumulated capital. (Applause).

Tax on Capital

"We have two great economic points: the great mass of the common people can consume more goods than they can pay for and, on the other hand, are those who can pay for more goods than they can consume. Because a man is worth ten millions, he can't eat more than you can, nor can he wear more than one suit or drive in more than one car. He does not consume more than John Jones around the corner. (And I don't mean Prosperity Corner).

"We should remember too that by taxing capital, we are relieving it of the worry of wondering what to do with so much money. And it can be done constitutionally, by means of an income tax, an inheritance tax and a tax on unspent balances. The State who so generously gave," said Miss MacPhail ironically, "will in justice take away." (Applause).

"And this is coming," she said thoughtfully, "regardless of who is in power. It is coming out of necessity.

"I don't want people to go down to degradation, and live in unlovely surroundings and wear clothes that they despise. I want them to develop their own personality as individuals. I think there will be a steady rise in the standard of living and that we are going to solve the problem and save our civilization.—

"I have been in the House of Commons for eleven years and I have seen industry coming and wanting special privileges because they were so important and because refusal would have such a terrible effect on the whole national fabric. But, just ask industry to do something to help the workers and suddenly they become private business.

"We want some scientific planning. Government to-day is not planned scientifically. They are still talking about hard work and thrift, those two things, that, with porridge, make a Scotchman. But the system that makes those things necessary in an age of plenty is a wrong system. People as highly placed as Mr. Beatty get up and mouth sentences about hard work and thrift. In the old days when there was want, it was because of scarcity and people took the little they had and spread it thinly, to eke out. But think what would happen to the plenty we have now if everyone applied that principle to it. The truth is the truth and error is never truth, even though highly-placed people enunciate it.

"Another thing that is important is the care of the wrecks as we go along. It is not the fault of people that they are haunted to-day by the fear of illness, of accident, of poverty and unemployment. We should have a scheme of insurance that will relieve people of these haunting fears of the poor. There is nothing that is worse, in my opinion, than an organization that will set out to make a profit by playing on people's fears. And this is not the business of private enterprise. It is the business of the State.

Health Measures

"We are coming to a time when the health of the people will be considered as much the business of the State as their education is now. There are many people today who are ill and yet neglect getting medical attention because they can't pay for it.

"A great many people say you can't lower tariffs. We get a glut of goods in a country because the common people haven't the money to buy them and their owners want to put a fence around them so those who do want them may buy them. They want to sell them elsewhere but they say it is a very wicked thing when Germany and Russia dump their cheap stuff in on us. Oddly enough, they have been saying that lately of Great Britain. Taxes against British Goods to-day are often higher than their values. You see, you can talk much about patriotism, without really practicing it. It is like religion. You may talk a lot about it on Sunday and then do the other fellow all the rest of the week.

"It is nonsense to say we can't do what we want to do. Since the war, we have had fifty International Conferences. We go from conference to conference, from defeat to despair. It has become a racket. When things are too bad to stand, some pompous man gets up and says: "Let's have a conference." And then you must be patient and bear up until the result of the conference is known.

"I think that we will have world-wide economic justice just when each country is willing to have it within its own borders. There is no use in sending people to economic conferences when they are blind and deaf (unfortunately not dumb) to misery at home.

"I do not think this is an ordinary depression. It is the breakdown of a system. I don't think prosperity will ever come back, or at least only spasmodically. Inflation might bring it back temporarily but the unemployed will never work again. We have to face the thing. Many people who are pious say you must bear it and the cheerio folk say everything will work out all right and there is no such thing as a depression. But we will all get out of it only by careful mental exercise."

Party Slaves

Miss MacPhail said that she had fully expected some of the backbenchers in the House of Commons to free themselves from the reins of partyism as the depression heightened. "They are decent people as a whole if you turn them loose from the machine. But you see they can't think. And discipline is too strong for them. They break down those who go against the machine. You remember W. F. MacLean and Andrew McMaster. Henri Bourassa is the only one that can't be broken. I enjoy hearing him stand up and tell Mr. King what he thinks. And I did think that some of them, like H. H. Stevens, would finally say to the leaders: "If you are living in the 19th century, we are not." And I thought that Mr. King, who has been sitting waiting for the other side to come a cropper, would say something at that meeting in Toronto. But when I came back from the south and asked a man I met in Detroit: "What did Mr. King say in Toronto?" he answered me in one word. You may guess it for yourselves."

Miss McPhail then outlined briefly the inception and rise of the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation, which she said was a terrible name and the organization of C.C.F. clubs, of which there are nine in Toronto to-day.

She spoke of one only of its clauses, that which has to do with the security of tenure for the farmer in his used land and the worker in his home. That, she said, was inserted by request of the farmers of Saskatchewan who considered that it ensured to them a moratorium and that they could not be turned off the land which belonged to them.

"What is the C.C.F.? It is an idea—an institution that can be used by independent, thinking people for mobilizing the people without domination by a machine, to liberate those in the House of Commons, because, oddly enough, it is there that the foundation will be laid. We are trying to make human values greater than material values. It is a garment of the spirit, as I said in Calgary.

"I don't want people to live materially alone. I want them to live abundantly. Those have failed who lived only to make a living and have not been able to master the greatest art of all—the art of living. That is to me what it is all about.——I am interested only in one thing; that is that human people will collectively develop an intelligence that will enable them to live in abundance a life that is satisfying."

Mr. Reade's Address

Introduced by the chairman as a member of the staff of the Saturday Night of Toronto, John Collingwood Reade gave a very instructive and technical type of address which placed him as an expert in the very involved subject, "Monetary Reform in Canada," of which he spoke.

"I think possibly that this depression has lasted long enough," he said, "to convince people that they are not in the midst of an inevitable occurrence, something like the measles, which, if left alone, will pass off of its own accord. In depressions of the past, it was found that recovery came through some fortuitous circumstance which, as a rule, was quite outside the people themselves or their governing bodies. But even if now there should be some new and sweeping invention, the likelihood of it pulling us out would be doubtful."

Saying that 1914 sounded the end of the financial era of that time, Mr. Reade referred to the pre-war activity and the collapse which gradually followed.

"Now," he said, "we have to look for a new technique. The superfluity of Government debts caused by the war has made lending to foreign bodies both unprofitable and unsafe. We must sit still and suffer or have the courage to face the fact of being confronted by the greatest economic and industrial depression in history. I am afraid that bland optimism is not sufficient. It is said that a people get no better government than they deserve, but it might be said also that a people get no better economic conditions than they deserve. We can't expect a pre-war era to function in a post-war era. There is little doubt that almost all of our financial and economic axioms need to be challenged.

"We have reached a very delicate period and self-sufficiency is a thing of the past. The breakfast table of the average family carries on from all quarters of the earth. We have not the skill nor inherited experience nor the facilities for shearing the sheep and making our own clothing and candles, as our forefathers did.

"Debt enters in a large degree into our economic system. With every credit the reverse side of the shield carries a debt and we are under an obligation to bring something to the market or get the necessary funds with which to discharge that debt. That complicates our finances and it means that we can no longer afford to think only in sectional terms. We are so knit together by a common market that we much think co-operatively.

"Our system of government has grown up by thinking that if each man pursues his individual interests, the interests of all will be served.

"There has grown up also between the owner and the owned, between the investor and those with whom he invests, a vast veil of corporate finance, investment banking and kindred things. We have reached a point of integrated economy for you can't have mass production without it. Finance has grown up in response to its demand. We have this syndicated banking system which is the recorder and the nerve center and the integrator of industry. Now do those who have the responsibility fully comprehend it. Do they understand the problem which they are called upon to face? I think the answer must be no, because they are still conducting the whole thing on a restrictionist basis.

A Great Machine

"Here we are with a gigantic instrument of production and yet periodically we have times of hardship and shortage. At a time when we are over-glutted with three railways doing the work of one, with factories capable of producing ten times as much as the market can absorb, all our responsible people are shouting economy and thrift How pitiful it seems to hear men in responsible positions talking about thrift and hard work and patience and waiting and cutting down on consumption. Is that the best they have to offer?

"The whole question is one of price or in other words, of relationships. What determines the value of money are the goods and services that money is capable of commanding. Now, money is capable of commanding more of both and therefore it is more valuable and a considerable dis-equilibrium results. The fall in prices and the change in the value of money means a change in all terms. Those who borrowed a dollar in 1929 now have to find about $1.67 to pay it back with. The change in the level of prices is able to redistribute fortune's favors and to bestow wealth here and hardship there.

"When we come to deal with a remedy for this, we hark back to a period in our history when there was a shortage. When there was a potato famine, for instance, there was a real shortage in potatoes, so we hark back to the finances of those days. But hard times were different then. A real shortage was felt and it was necessary to work hard and produce more, to make the fat years help the lean ones, as it were. But our lean years of today have nothing to do with a shortage.

"Our trouble is low prices. Now there are two sides to the price equation; supply and demand and since before, the factor of supply has been more under the control of the central powers than the other factor of demand, the result has been that every effort we have made to raise our prices has been to restrict the supply rather than to increase the demand. We have capped the oil wells of Oklahoma we have plowed in the cotton of the South, we have burnt the coffee and destroyed the rubber plantations in Brazil. That system threw people out of employment. We tried to restrict our little financial box rather than to expand it and comprehand the fullness of the power we enjoyed. Such is the power of superstition and tradition and old ideas. And any revolt against such financial convention has been met with the cry of "heretic", although that cry of late has had more than a suspicion of a whimper in it "We have complete obsolescence about us; obsolete railway equipment and obsolete housing and still we do not do this work that is ready for idle hands.

Increase The Demand

"In war time, we discovered that when a thing needed doing, we did it and money was the least handicap. We found that money is the reason why you can do things, it is not the reason why you can't do them. Why can't we apply our anaytical ingenuity and process of organizing our natural resources to the problem of increasing the demand, rather than restricting the supply?

Mr. Reade spoke of the famous "easy money" of 1925, and said that, in the United States, Andrew Mellon remitted taxation in the wrong direction by remitting income tax instead of removing obstructionist sales and corporation taxes, "new money was being used", he said, "very largely with the exchange of securities." Bankers began to realize opportunities of lending money in vast amounts running into millions, rather than in small sums, thereby gaining the most advantage from their credits. Consequently there was a definite inflation of credit and a consequent starvation in agricultural credit and from 1925, the world price level began to decline.

In May of 1928, the commodity price index began to drop slowly and call money was spent in the market, rather than on clothes and other necessities of life. And then the Federal Reserve Board of the United States began to feel alarmed and were bothered with a superfluity of short-term funds. The Board began to restrict cash reserves to member banks and suddenly the security market went to pieces.

"Now," said Mr. Reade, "nearly all of our money, nearly ninety-six per cent. of it, originates as a loan from the banks. In most cases. the bulk of the bank deposits originated as loans on collateral and when security values went to pieces, the banker proceeded to unload his own securities as fast as he could, which knocked the bottom out of the market, and then he called his customers. As soon as the panic took place investment and spending stopped and the whole rate of circulation of money was slowed up. When loans are being re-paid faster than new loans are being made, the volume of bank deposits begins to shrink. In the past four years, in the United States, the total destruction of bank deposits has been eight billions of dollars, and not only that, but a great deal of the remainder has been transferred to current account. And prices fell and liquidation took place until now we are wondering whether we can liquidate any more and whether we will have to default instead.

"We have developed a self-intoxicating instead of a self-compensating banking system. As soon as we get on the up and up, there is no limit to the credit but when the bubble bursts, there is no credit to be had.

Rationalized Banking

"We must rationalize this business of finance. We must not assume that the banker is a scurrilous creature. He is not responsible for what is itching us. The banker inherited this system and he had to operate it or be turned out. But what I find fault with him now for is the fact that he stubbornly refuses to revise his opinions or to change his mechanism A pig-headed conservatism is the trouble with the banker now.

"But if a financial oligarchy is going to assume power, it must also assume responsibility. We have only had a political democracy, and not an economic democracy.

"All the financial system must be subjected to some sort of social supervision—and we ask as a criterion, the general welfare of the people at large."

Mr. Reade quoted an economic authority as defining inflation as being such an expansion of effective means of payment as will revise commodity prices. He went on to suggest that as individuals were now unable to exert any spending power, under fear of possible consequences financially, that corporate spending be engaged in. He said countries who would fear to disarm individually would willingly do so collectively, if other nations would agree to the same procedure, and the same idea could be applied to spending. Increased taxation, he went on, was out of the question, and further borrowing from the United States was also an impossibility, while the last internal loan was floated with great difficulty. Even the banks were afraid of it."

To bridge the gap caused by these disabilities, he advocated the establishment of a central bank with powers of issue, in which all chartered banks would keep their cash deposits and the government, by depositing treasury bills, would be able to borrow sufficient of the newly-created money by the bank, to finance periods of depression.

"Thus we would be able to do collectively what we are afraid to do individually. The government would be able to support its relief measures and to run bigger and better deficits, for there is nothing in the world so horrible as a balanced budget, taking something off on this side to balance up the other side. The bank would do nothing but watch the price level and try and keep money safe."

Speaking of the result of inflationary measures, Mr. Reade said that one result would be the increase in debt to the United States, as almost one-third more would be required to pay every dollar owing here. "The country as a whole would gain," he said, "but certain portions of the country would lose. We would lose something on the swings and find it on the roundabouts."

Mr. Reade answered several questions at the conclusion of his address.

Repeat Addresses

Both addresses were repeated a second time; each speaker giving an hour in each hall.

A pleasant interlude in the serious business of the meeting, where men and women struggled to comprehend some difficult financial theories, was the singing by little John Lewis, tiny fair-haired son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lewis, of a nice little song which brought much applause to the little lad who pointed so triumphantly to his right side when he reached a "heart" bit in the song, and whose bright little face and piping voice added much to the enjoyment of those present.

The orchestra from Coldsprings, led by J. A. Wilson, played effectively in both halls and on both platforms. Mr. James Dutton, on behalf of the Relief Committee, outlined the case of the poor of the city and asked for donations of money or clothes or vegetables, saying that only about one-quarter of the objective of $20,000 had yet been attained.

The Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr proposed the vote of thanks to the speakers in the Collegiate Hall, and Vivian Milburn performed a like office at the Legion Hall.

At the close of the meeting, J. E. Smith, secretary of the committee in charge of arrangements, presented Miss MacPhail with a dainty clock, the gift of the Westclox Company, while Mr. Milburn presented a similar gift to Mr. Reade.

The audiences in both instances numbered people from the city and the surrounding country district, on all sides. Arrangements for the meeting, which was held under auspieces of the Peterborough U.F.O. Cub and a number of local citizens, were in charge of Kenneth Petrie, president of the U.F.O. Club; E. A. Scott, secretary; Charles E. Moore, W. W. Dawson, Thomas Shield, Vivian Milburn, H. B. Cowan, J. E. Smith ,Alex. Huston of Coldsprings, W. Garbutt of Douro, Albert Armstrong of Smith, Wilbert Rosborough of Smith, and J. A. Wilson of Coldsprings.

Pretzel-Benders Laugh At Machine, Chief Bugaboo Of The Technocrats

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 28 (C.P.).—The machine, bugaboo of the technocrats, will meet its match in the Pretzel-Bending industry, says Charlie Betz, portly, genial Pretzel executive.

Charlie should know. His factory on the Mississippi levee turns out these twisted tidbits by the millions to grace the family table.

"They'll never be able to make a machine bend 'em the way they should be," predicted Betz, a Pretzel molder of the old school.

"You see, dough has life. It's not like wood, or iron, or other things they use in factories. It's living, and it takes a human being—an artist—to get the feel of the dough and twist a Pretzel right."

St. Louis, Charlie said, is the twisted-doughnut capital of the country. Business fell off when the saloon went out, but reached the turn when people began eating more pretzels in their homes.

"We had to change our models a little," Betz admitted, "before we rounded the corner, but now we're doing better than before prohibition."

Betz, who has studied the history of pretzels as well as the art of bending them, traced their origin back 500 years. They were first baked, he said, not for saloons but for German monks who gave them to children as a reward for piety. Hence the first pretzels were made to represent arms folded in prayer.

P. J. SARGINSON IS PRESIDENT PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION HEAD

Fish and Game Association Officially Organized at Campbellford Meeting.

PASS RESOLUTION.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 28. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The Campbellford Fish and Game Association officially came into being at a public meeting held in the Campbellford Public Library last evening and a resolution was unanimously passed, to be forwarded to F. J. McArthur, M.P.P., for presentation to the Provincial Parliament, requesting that the present legislation regarding the fishing season be amended to enable that of pickerel to be dated from June 15 of each year for the protection of bass and maskinonge.

P. J. Sarginson is the first president of this organization, other officers being Vice president, Anson Connor; secretary treasurer, Fred Smith; executive committee, the officers with J. M. Ferris, George Atwell, Fred Keler and John Gay.

Fred Smith, in presenting the resolution, stated that bass were through spawning before the fifteenth of June, but before that date, from the opening of the pickerel season, many fishermen, when fishing from the banks, hooked bass which were inshore fanning their spawn, and there were very few who threw them back in the water. Especially was this true of the youngsters who went after pickerel. No blame was attached to the fish inspecors he pointed out as it would be almost impossible for them to make a proper check-up on his situation. And in any case pickerel fishing from the shore was very poor sport as pickerel very seldom come into the bank.

Resolution Reads

Mr. Keller, speaking on the subject pointed out that when bass are fanning their spawn they will bite at any hook, and when they are taken from the water, it is not a matter of the loss of he fish but also of the spawn. The resolution as it will be presented reads:

"Whereas the permitting of the fishing of pickerel in the waters of the Trent River before that time allowed for the taking of bass and maskinonge tends to the destruction of many bass fish in the said river."

"And whereas the permitting of fishing for pickeral from the shores of the River Trent before the time permitting the taking of bass and maskinonge and especially at a time when they are on their spawning beds and at a time when bass and maskinonge bite very readily, many bass and maskinonge are caught and retained with the result that millions of spawn of our best fish are destroyed."

"And wherease bass and maskinonge are all through and away from their spawning beds in the River Trent before the 15th of June."

"Be it and it is hereby resoved, That we, the Campbellford Fish and Game Association, request the Department of Game and Fisheries of the Province of Ontario, to amend the present regulation in regard to the fishing for pickerel so that the season for taking the same will correspond to that for the taking of mass and muskinonge, and that such time as regards the River Trent be from the 15th day of June until the last day of October in each year."

J. I. Adams, endorsing the resolution, stated that there was one thing he thought should also be dealt with, and that was a request to the proper authorities seeing that the water levels were retained 'n the spring of the year. It was not an uncommon thing, he said, that in spawning time the levels of the water are dropped below navigation point, and many fish and their spawn destroyed.

George Atwell also spoke on this subject, endorsing Mr. Adams' idea with the result that a resolution was passed authorizing the executive committee to draft a resolution for presentation to the proper authorities requesting that the water levels of the Trent River be kept at regulation height during the spawning season and before the opening of navigation.

HASTINGS, Jan. 28 (Examiner Correspondence). — The Conservative party workers of Hastings held a very enthusiastic meeting on Friday evening, the first of its kind held in Hastings in some time. The speaker of the evening was F. J. McArthur, M.P.P., of Cobourg. The meeting was called for the purpose of discussing a banquet to be held in the village.

After considerable discussion, February the eighth, was decided on. The ladies have agreed to serve a fowl dinner, for which the plates will be 75 cents. An effort will be made to have Mrs. Fallis of Peterborough as a speaker, and the local member assured the meeting that he would have a Cabinet Minister from Toronto present to be one of the speakers of the evening. In addressing the meeting, Mr. McArthur thanked the loyal workers of the Tory party for the good vote that was always polled at Hastings. Expressing his regerts at not coming to Hastings more often, but it was his intention during the coming year to pay many visits to Hastings; the banquet being the first step towards a more friendly relationship with his followers in the district. The speaker gave a very interesting account of the Government and the values to be derived from an organization working in perfect harmony.

ORGANIZATIONS ISSUE PROTESTS

Irish Theatre Heads Uphold Shows in Revolution to De Valera.

Contention Over Subsidy.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(CP)— A resolution objecting to the recent attack by two Irish organizations in New York on the theatrical presentations of the Abbey Theatre Irish players of Dublin in Canada and the United States has been sent to Eamon de Valera, president of the Irish Free State, through the consul general, William J. Macaulay.

The resolution, sent in the form of a letter to be forwarded to President de Valera, was signed by Patrick Farrell, director of the Irish Theatre and also of the Museum of Irish Art in the Barbizon Hotel.

The protests of the plays presented by the Abbey Theatre Players were made by the Fianna Fail, Inc., of New York, and the United Irish-American Societies of New York. The principal objections were to the subsidy received from the Irish government by the players, which presented plays such as "The Playboy of the Western World," "Juno of the Paycock," "The Shadow of the Gunman" and others. The objectors contend those plays are displays of "filthy language, drunkenness and prostitution."

The resolution, in reply, declares that the plays objected "do not malign the Irish people and there is no indication of prostitution."

OPPOSE CHANGES.

BARRIE.—Simcoe County Council was on record to-day as being opposed to any modification of the Liquor Control Act that would increase facilities for sale of wine and beer in this province, by endorsing a resolution to that effect passed by Middlesex County Council.

VICTORIA CUTS ALL ITS GRANTS

Bridge Committee Abolished, County Officials' Salaries Reduced.

EXPENSES HALVED.

LINDSAY, January 28 (Examiner Correspondence). — Victoria County Council applied the paring knife with vigor yesterday on all grants, etc. The annual grant of $800 to the Lindsay Central Fair received a ten per cent. cut, as did the grant to the local Horticultural Society. The grants to the townships in the northern part of the county were cut twenty per cent. The expense allowance for the Good Roads Convention was cut in half. There was also a ten per cent. cut in salaries paid county officials, etc. The salary of the county clerk and treasurer was not reduced, as that official was willing to forego the salary increase due him. The allowance for councillors attending Council, as well as committee sessions, also came in for the cut. The Council also decided in the interests of economy to abolish the Bridge Supervising Comomittee, the work to be handled by the Small Roads Committee.

The old hotel at Lorneville Junction, on the C.N.R., which has been occupied by two families, narrowly escaped destruction by fire last night. The fire was first noticed in the attic of the building, and was making good headway. Many farmers in the district responded to the call for help and were later assisted by the fire engine from Woodville. The blaze was subdued after a stiff fight.

J. Craig, a resident of Victoria Road, appeared in Police Court yesterday to answer to the charge of being in possession of a still. He was remanded for a week.

It has been announced here that Rev. Father Corkery, curate at St. Mary's Church, has been transferred to the parish of Wooler, succeeding Rev. Father J. PAUL BONCOUR IS OVERTHROWN receive an invitation again. He has declared in unequivocal terms that he will not resume the office until France has agreed to make the month overdue debt interest payment to the United States.

Balk at Debts

The Socialists, who turned against Paul-Boncour this morning, also had bolted from the bloc supporting Herriot on the debt issue; Paul-Boncour had not attempted to break the deadock on the debts since he formed his Cabient December 16—four days after the memorable early morning Chamber session which refused to pay the United States on the due date.

But the stocky, little Premier was threatened by many pitfalls in attempting to put over his Cabinet's plan for balancing the budget. The all-night session began yesterday evening with the Cabinet encouraged by the Chamber's favorable vote of 348 to 243 in the afternoon to take up the Government's program. But the unwillingness of the Socialists to accept the higher tax rate shattered the bright prospects for survival.

DEMAND OFFICAL RESIGN

OAKVILLE.—Charging that A. S. Forster, as chairman of the Oakville Welfare Board had purchased relief fuel from sources outside the municipality, and that this had been secured at prices in excess of those for which it could have been procured in the town, a deputation representing the Workers' Association, appeared before the Oakville Town Council last night, and demanded the official's resignation forthwith.

Poison Was Procured From Hastings Man

Police learned to-day that the poison J. M. Payton, local manufacturers' sales agent, took to end his life on January 17, was purchased at T. A. Coughlin's drugstore in Hastings by Mr. Payton on Saturday, January 14. Mr. Coughlin read yesterday's report in The Examiner yesterday and immediately telephoned police.

"In making the purchase of potassium cyanide he told me that he wanted to use it to clean his clothes," Mr. Coughlin told police. Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young said that this information showed conclusively that the jury had returned a true and proper verdict at the inquest.

MARK STREET CHURCH CHOIR OPERETTA IS WELL RECEIVED

Sunday School Auditorium Well Filled at Initial Presenation Last Night.

PLEASING NUMBERS.

The Sunday school auditorium of Mark Street United Church was well filled with an appreciative audience last evening for the musical operetta, "The New Minister," put on by the choir, under the direction of the organist and choir leader, Mrs. W. A. Greenslade, with E. V. Morphet as stage director.

The play, which is very amusing and true to life, takes place in the church and opens with the coming in of the choir, who spend some time in discussion before the arrival of the Professor Top Note.

The opening chorus was an ensemble of the entire choir, costumed in many quaint and gorgeous gowns, which must have been rescued from dust covered trunks in attics and breathed of long forgotten days. The chorus, "Nature's Voices Sing," was exceedingly well rendered, and the burlesque solo by Mrs. Binks causes roars of laughter.

The story and dialogue concern the choosing and the coming of a new minister to the church, who is unmarried and many hopes beat high, that he will choose a wife from some of the fair maids.

About this time a young school teacher, Miss Daisy Lovejoy, comes to the town and joins the choir. This part is exceedingly well taken by Miss Jean Hurl, who sings a solo, "Let Me Sing," while she is criticised by the other girls of the choir. The sexton, R. Payne, is a very busy man and well suited to his part. He sings "When I Shovel in the Coal."

The Music committee, composed of M. Peters, W. Binks and W. Gracie wearing old style swallow tail coats, high plug hats, made a decided hit in their song, "The Music Committee" and other parts they took. Another pleasing number was given by Miss Hurl and a chorus of young men, "A Pretty Little Flower is a Daisy." This was followed by a meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society at which an amusing dialogue takes place, with the president, Mrs. De Lancy (Mrs. B. Morrison) presiding. After discussing plans for entertaining the new minister they sing a chorus, "The Ladies' Aid Society."

Novelty Number

While the Music Committee still confer on the choice of the new minister, Ralphy Bunter (L. Agnew) rushes in and asks them to select man who can play baseball. His solo "The King of a Preacher I Like" was exceedingly well rendered, his fine baritone voice being heard to splendid advantage in this number.

Following this the Old Maid's Club hold a meeting and resolve to rescind a motion and vow they had made to never marry. They sing a chorus "Old Maids' Lament."

The New Minister, Rev. H. A. Brown (E. V. Morphet) arrives and is warmly welcomed in a chorus "Hurrah for the Minister New!" The dialogue following this chorus is very amusing when the different oficials call on the new minister each offering such contradictory advice that the minister is perfectly bewildered and leaves the stage after which a chorus with a number of solo parts is rendered entitled "How Do You Think You Will Like the Man."

About this time the preacher is presented to the school teacher and they are both overcome with surprise to meet here as they had been former sweethearts.

The song "What Will the Poor Preacher Do" and "The Sexton Tolled the Bell" were exceeddingly popular numbers as was also the Ladies' Aid chorus, "Chicken Pot Pie Supper."

The minister is again visited by the church officials and urged to choose a wife. He replies by singing a solo with chorus which receives hearty applause "I Haven't Made Up My Mind" concluding by telling them he has decided to marry and presenting them to Miss Lovejoy the school teacher. The play concludes with a very fine chorus, "The New Minister" with the preacher singing a solo part and chorus parts by the Old Maids and Music Committee.

The part of the Professor is well taken by W. J. Smith and many of the ladies in the chorus take their parts so well that it is impossible to single outstanding characters. Mrs. Wand as the village gossip has a difficult part which she does remarkably well. The Operetta is a fine musical production and abounds with many humorous situations and dialogues. The choir and conductors are to be congratulated on their efforts.

During the intermission Miss Freda Kelcher rendered several brilliant piano numbers and Mrs. Greenslade and Miss Kelcher played a duet.

At the conclusion of the entertainment the cast was entertained socially by U. B. One Bible Class. The piano was kindly loaned by Heintzman Hall.

The following is the cast of characters:

Rev. H. A. Brown, new minister, E. V. Morphet; Professor Topnote, choir leader, W. J. Smith; Ralphy Bunter, baritone, L. Agnew; Seth Perkins, a joke, H. Hall; Daisy Lovejoy, school teacher, Miss J. Early Bloomers

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 28.—(C. P.)—"The flowers that bloom in the spring, tra la," are causing some concern here. Snowdrops are out in bloom in Victoria Park, while flower beds and tulips are up three inches or more.

"They imported snow for a ski meet in Chicago," an official of the Parks Board says. "Why can't we bring in enough to put these foolish spring flowers back to sleep for the rest of the winter?"

Community Relief Fund

Have you given the matter any thought of just how 800 families or more than 3,000 Men, Women and Children in Peterborough are going to exist unless those who are able to will contribute to the Community Relief Fund. Numbers of our citizens have contributed until this Fund in cash and grants by organizations now amounts to over $4,500.

Don't just say, "They will be taken care of," and leave it to someone else. There are dozens of Men and Women in the City who have freely contributed more than their share of money, time, labor and health to this effort, and every one who is able to make a contribution to this Fund should do so.

If the whole system of Relief in this City or Dominion would cease to-morrow, what would be the result? Thousands would perish of starvation or exposure, and a terrible condition of affairs arise. Consequently it must be carried on by those who are able to contribute.

It is not only in the interests of humanity that we should see the needy taken care of, but in the interests of all our homes, of our organized civilization and future prosperity.

Just give the matter a little thought and send in your contribution to FRANK ADAMS, Treasurer of the Fund, which is backed by a Citizens' Committee and the Mayor and City Council.

WARSAW

"When the Greek Agesilaus was asked what he thought most proper for boys to learn he replied 'What they ought to do when men.'"

"Teach the children first to be wise and good," was the advice given by Montaigne, an educational writer of the 17th century.

We are all interested in education, but how often we fail to realize how much that word implies! Education defined is the systematic training of the moral and intellectual faculties.

The school is but one of many educational agencies. By nature it is the supplement and extension of the home. Both have as their mission the releasing of the child from his selfish, self-centred and self-regarding impulses, and training him to respond to the call of the true, the good and the beautiful.

Now the school to accomplish this task uses its own peculiar means and methods. To use a homely term, the kind of learning that the school exists to impart is book-learning.

What mankind has learned concerning Nature, Humanity and God is contained in books. The experiences of the race are transmitted to each succeeding generation, and summed up in a printed record. Science, literature, history, art, philosophy and theology, have all been organized so that the youth can secure a knowledge of them in the brief years of school life. From these records the child should learn those things which one should know, and those abilities which one should possess, if he is to be a worthy member of society.

Literature, history and nature-study, develop the imagination, which we must possess if we wish to enjoy life, for it is by filling up the present with ideals and hopeful anticipations for the future that much of the monotony of our work-a-day hours is relieved.

The formation of habits has an important bearing on moral life. The educator in teaching the subjects on the curriculum is able to modify the child's re-actions and develop in their stead more valuable habits. Thus, education endows the child with habits of neatness, regularity, accuracy, obedience, honesty and virtue.

From the standpoint of moral life knowledge is valuable only as it expresses itself in right action. That pupil has studied the habits of birds and animals to little purpose, who needlessly destroys their lives, or causes them pain. He has studied the reign of King John to little purpose if he is not more considerate of the rights of others on the playground. He has gained little from the lives of Robert Bruce, Columbus or La Salle, if he does not manfully attack difficulties again and again, until he has overcome them. He has not read the Heroine of Vercheres, or the little Hero of Haarlem aright if he does not act promptly in a situation demanding courage. He has learned little from the story of Damon and Pythias, if he is not true to his friends under trying circumstances, and he has not imbibed the spirit of the Christmas carol if he is not sympathetic and kindly toward those less fortunate than himself.

As Montaigne said: "If the mind is not better disposed by education, if the judgment is not better settled, I had much rather my scholar had spent his time at tennis."

The home should contribute its rightful share to the education of the child. The natural tie which unites child and parents enables the parent to give effectual instruction in moral and manners. The parents should supervise with great care the child's reading, and foster the love of good music, which adds to the "common round and daily task." Thus the child should go from the family hearth to the class room, and return, with a feeling of sanity which contributes greatly to his mental and moral developments.

"Education should secure for the youth a successful and pleasurable career in life. Public school education is a foundation for choosing a vocation. The pupil should be urged to choose something worthy and of real service to mankind. Technical schools are helping many young people to solve this problem.

Other educational institutions include the church and the modern public library, which affords opportunity for independent study.

Agricultural short courses, which give definite instruction in connection with dairying and agriculture, the Women's Institute and many other clubs, are great educational agencies.

Our newspapers and radios interest us in the peoples of other nations, and should thus educate us to work for peace and goodwill, to link the nations in a common brotherhood.

With all their educational influences man should adjust himself to his physical surroundings that he is able to make this co-operation effective and thus live a socially efficient life. It is that life which is the aim of education."

MILLBROOK

At a recent Institute gathering the scheduled speaker was unable to be present, owing to illness, and the president just 'put it up to the members' what they should do as a substitute for the regular topic. "Let's have a 'hodge podge'," was the prompt reply from two or three of those present, "we haven't had a lot of useful hints for a long time and they are always interesting and practical."

"Very well," came the presiding officer's consent," but you must all be ready with a variety of suggestions, so our program does not lag" and the proceedings were off to a good start by one member asking for a recipe for winter pickles "as my supply made last summer and fall is almost exhausted."

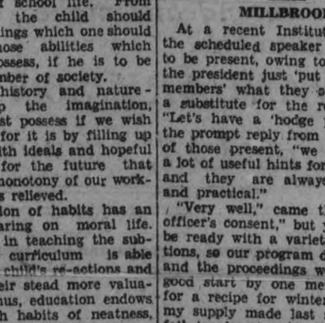
This did not prove to be a 'poser' at all, and the information was given for Winter Chili Sauce; One large can tomatoes, three medium sized onions, cut fine, half cup cider vinegar, one cup white sugar, one teaspoon ground cloves, one teaspoon grated nutmeg, two teaspoons cinnamon. Let boil until the onions are tender, then thicken with one teaspoon cornstarch. This is very nice with cold meats.

The next query was how to make the popular tomato juice that "health specialists are recommending us to give to our families every day"? This too was answered, though just to drain the juice from a can of tomatoes, using the residue as a vegetable was a plan feasibly employed. "You will need ripe tomatoes for this," the elderly lady who gave the recipe said, "wash them thoroughly but do not peel. To four quarts of the tomatoes add a small onion, a level teaspoon celery seed, (or if your prefer use the celery tops), add enough water to cover the tomatoes, and boil quickly until soft—about fifteen minutes. Strain and add one teaspoon salt to one quart of liquid and pepper if desired, also a dash of papriko. Bring the hot juice to the boiling point and bottle. I make a second extraction by adding more water to the pulp and find I have a good soup for immediate use—then the pulp goes to the hens. We like this tomato juice served quite cold and for my little girl I manage a glassful in her school lunch."

Some discussion intervened here regarding the use of the word 'cocktail' for the tomato juice, a number objecting since it is rather more familiar with the social beverage served as an appetizer before dinner in many homes, particularly if entertaining is in progress, and I believe it makes our young people regard with favor the stronger liquor to which so many of us have the strongest objection." "Why not just call it an appetizer?" was the president's suggestion, "like you, I dislike anything that even appears to condone this social drinking habit—it is the thin edge of the wedge that often leads to an appetite that controls the life eventually. Or why not this body of women think over the subject and at a later meeting bring in our suggested names for this healthful beverage?" And the matter was left at that for the current meeting.

Another query had to do with a difficulty experienced by one member who found herself short of icing sugar to finish 'toppingoff' a cake, and "company waiting in the living-room or supper." However there was help for this troubled one also since another of those present had been in a like predicament, "and I found by taking nearly as much cocoa as I had sugar, adding a tablespoon of cold coffee, and one of melted butter, and I had a lovely chocolate icing, not the least bit bitter, and delightfully smooth."

The program was voted a 'complete success' and it was decided to have another like it "should our speaker fail us again at any future date, and indeed not to wait too long for any such emergency to arise, since we have found this afternoon so helpful."



Get Rid of That

SORE THROAT!

Any little soreness in the throat grows rapidly worse if neglected. Crush some tablets of Aspirin in some water, and gargle at once. This gives you instant relief, and reduces danger from infection. One good gargle and you can feel safe. If all soreness is not gone promptly, repeat. There's usually a cold with the sore throat, so take two tablets to throw off your cold, headache, stiffness or other cold symptoms. Aspirin relieves neuralgia, neuritis, too. Use it freely; it does not hurt the heart.

Checks And Plaids

By MME. LISBETH

A screen ingenue leads a checkered career, indeed. See pretty little Ginger Rogers, who is wearing a strikingly original costume of checks and plaid.

Her tailored skirt is made of checkered wool with two lovely pockets set in at a handy angle, and two buttons covered with solid color material to match the saucy little vest. Said vest has two buttons covered with checked wool to match the skirt.

The blouse is a frilly affair made of hand-painted starched chiffon, and the vestee jacket is brown wool.

A large number attended the social evening put on by the Y.P.A. of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church. The society is planning to get up a play and a committee was appointed to choose a play and make arrangements. Mr. and Mrs. Reg. McCann, as convenors of the Social Committee, put on the following program: The opening number was a piano solo by Miss Blanche Baker, this was followed by a reading entitled "Mr. Butler and the Owl." Dorothy White gave a vocal solo. The duet by two little girls, Edna Windover and Noreen McCann, with Elaine Grant at the piano, was very fine. Noreen McCann gave a recitation entitled "The Song of the Teakettle," and the closing hymn brought to a close this part of the program.

Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Bowen visited Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McKague, Morganston on Tuesday.

Disabled Freighter Sends Call For Help

SEATTLE, Jan. 27 (A.P.)—Tossed about in stormy weather 1,000 miles off the Washington coast, the disabled freighted Everett called for aid from other ships and within a short time two sister vessels were ordered to proceed to its assistance.

A radio message early to-day from the American Mail Line vessel reported the ship, and her crew of 35, were in no immediate danger.

The Everette, 13 days out of Seattle, en route to the Orient, reported it was making six knots an hour in stormy weather.

BETWEEN BOOK ENDS

Here is the more modern half of our list of the 100 books most worth reading, as selected by the editors of "The Golden Book." It is only natural that as we approach our own period the number of books of vital interest to us should increase in numbers. This half of the 100 books which are most valuable to us in fulfilling our desire to understand clearly our own generation were written during the last 130 years.

Grimm's Fairy Tales; Household Tales. Anderson's Fairy Tales; Goethe's Faust; Wilhelm Meiser's Apprenticeship. Wordsworth's Poems. Byron's Poems. Shelley's Poems. Keat's Poems. Browning's Poems. Tennyson's Poems. Arnold's Poems. Scott's Ivanhoe, Heart of Midlothian, Guy Mannering. Austen's Pride and Prejudice. Bronte's Wutherin Heights. Lamb's Essays. Carlyle's Heroes and Hero Worship; French Revolution. Poe's Poems; Tales. Hawthorne's Scarlet Letter. Emerson's Essays. Thoreau's Walden. Whitman's Leaves of Grass. Melville's Moby Dick. Balzac's Pere Goriot. Hugo's Les Miserables. Duma's Three Musketeers. Flaubert's Madame Bovary. Manupassan't Selected Stories; Thackeray's Vanity Fair. Dicken's David Copperfield; Picwick Papers. Eliot's Middlemarch; Mill on the Floss; Meridith's Ordeal of Richard Feveral. Butler's The Way of All Flesh. Hardy's Return of the Native; Tess of the D'Urbervilles. Carroll's Alice in Wonderland; Turgeniev's Virgin Soil. Tolstoi's Anna Karenina. Dostoievsky's Crime and Punishment; The Brothers Karamazov. Ibsen's Ghosts; The Wild Duck. Chekov's The Cherry Orchard. Twain's Huckleberry Finn. Pater's Appreciations. Stevenson's Essays; Kidnapped. Nietzsche's Thus Spake Zarathustra; France's Penguin Island; Crime of Sylvestre Bonnard. Kipling's Kim. Doughty's Travels in Arabia Desert. Fraser's The Golden Bough. Shaw's Man and Superman. Conrad's Nostromo; The Nigger of the Narcissus. Galsworthy's Forsyte Saga. Roland's Jean-Christophe. Cather's My Antonia. Dreiser's The American Tragedy.

The last two authors, Willa Cather and Theodore Dreiser, represent the most conflicting forces in America to-day. Dreiser symbolizes the desire of the masses of America for a mediocre but secure society intent on daily bread and mass pleasure. The products of the organized ignorance engendered by mass education are rarely sublime—they are not required to be. Miss Cather, on the other hand, stands for a liberal and individualistic culture. And to the common reader, her last two novels confess defeat.

Apparently enticed by these days of "Eskimo Summer," the publishers are finding it difficult to restrain their Spring Lists. Recent publications include the long-awaited "Kennel Murder Case," by S. S. Van Dine; H. G. Wells' "The Bulpington of Bulp," and Bernard Shaw's allegory "The Adventures of a Black Girl in Her Search for God"—being a dip into theology on Mr. Shaw's part. Apropos to Mr. Shaw, Don Marquis recently conceived of a brilliant short-cut to fame—he would dramatize Bernard Show's plays! Michael Arlen breaks silence with a serious, prophetic novel, "Man's Morality"; John Masefield published his "Recent Prose" before leaving for America in December; Sinclair Lewis has a new story of action, "Ann Veronica"; Isabel Patterson—the I.M.P. of The New York Herald-Tribune, is causing a stir with her most unusual study, "Never Ask the End"—and for a lighter vein, we have Ian Hay's "Midshipmaid," and a new Oppenheim mystery, "Jeremiah and the Princess."

February is to see the publishing of Virginia Woolfe's "Flush," the biography of a Spaniel; "All Men Are Enemies," a romance by Richard Aldington; "More Plays" from A. A. Milne; and H. M. Tomlinson's "Snows of Helicon." Hugh Walpole has a new novel—not in the "Rogue Herries" series—entitled "All Souls Nigght." Norman Douglas has finished what promised to be two volume of dynamite—his biography, "Looking Back." James Joyce, fighting blindness as he is, has his "Two Tales of Shem and Shaun." This includes the two fables, "The Mockse and the Gripes" and "The Ondt and the Gracehoper"—and is a segment of a larger book-to-be.

And then Poets E. E. Cummings, Robinson Jeffers, T. S. Eliot, Richard Aldington and Conrad Aiken all have new volumes of verse. Ogden Nash has a generous book of rhymes "The Life of the Party," illustrated, of course, by Artist Soglow. Incidently we nominate Robert Frost or Ogden Nash as Poet Laureate of America. Christopher Morley's "Mandarin in Manhatten," a similar collection of verses to the author's "Translations from the Chinese," is due in March, and April showers will bring "Rain in the Door," another "mad" novel by Thorne Smith. Much good reading here, even if you follow Samuel Roger's, Banker Poet, habit of reading one old classic for every new book which comes out.

SCIATICA?

(Stabbing Pain in Hip & Thigh)

"Six years ago I was laid up with terrible Sciatica. Nothing did me any good until I took T-R-C's. From the first dose I felt relief. ANSWER TO MR. QUINN

The following letter has been received by The Examiner from the West Peterborough County Orange Lodge Legislative Committee in answer to a letter recently published from Mr. Quinn on behalf of the Separate Schools of Ontario. The committee in its note to the Examiner says requesting publication, "This makes four articles, two for the Separate School side and two for the Public School. We hope the controversy will end there as we have no desire to carry it any further at present."

The Editor of The Examiner:

It is not our intention of replying at length to the letter of Mr. Quinn. A few remarks on some points raised will suffice to show that our former letter was quite justified and that Mr. Quinn is not playing fair with your readers.

It is somewhat strange how interested Mr. Quinn is "in fairness to our non-Catholic friends." This is only a blind. The present agitation of separate schools for taxes of protestants is not in the interests of fairness to non-Catholic friends, but they are trying to smother or chloroform the electorate in believing that they are the essence of righteousness and justice and that all who oppose these unwarranted demands are just the opposite. While Mr. Quinn objects to the language used in our former letter, which was not rude but intentionally frank, he should direct his remarks to the organs of his own church. Only six weeks ago the Catholic Record referred to an address of an official of Orange Order as 'the preachment of the alley cat variety' while the Catholic Register in an editorial two years ago referred to another leader in the Order as a 'low-brow.' Orangemen do not stoop to such terms of abuse, but Mr. Quinn must not assume that we will not speak out the truth, even if he does not like it. He forgets too that the Roman Catholic Church is on record in absolute opposition to the public school system, terming them 'hell begotten Common Schools,' 'nurseries of vice rather than of virtue,' 'sinks of iniquity instead of fountains of knowledge,' and 'their great and ultimate object the destruction of the National School System of Upper Canada' which campaign received aid from Lower Canada. Having all these things in mind, we take with a grain of salt the plausible arguments of even so fine a gentleman as Mr. Quinn who is trying to discharge a difficult task thrust upon him.

We said the present demand is a steal. That is exactly what it is. If you find a man in your home trying to take what belongs to you, you do not argue with him as to how he intends taking it or by what means he hopes to get in possession of it, you realize at once that he is after something that he is not entitled to, something that is yours. It is called stealing and the man who steals is a thief. Precisely in this case. The law does not grant the separate schools what they say they want. At whose expense would they secure these extra revenues? From the public schools treasuries. Mincing or choosing words means nothing when you are dealing with such vital issues. It is all right to talk of neighborliness and friendship, a splendid thing to cultivate, but not if it allows the friend to enjoy privileges at your expense.

It should be borne in mind that Ontario has separate schools because they were forced on them, a sort of a hold-up. Quebec put the gun to the head of Ontario and Ontario (Upper Canada as it then was) surrendered, but that is no reason why this present generation should continue what is regarded as a tremendous mistake.

The Roman Catholics who are interested in this question, begin their argument by assuming that their schools are on a parity with the public school. When they convince themselves that that is so, they find no trouble in building up a case, but that is just where they start wrong. The law does not regard the separate schools as being equal to the public schools. In the eyes of the law everyone is a public school supporter until he signifies desire to support a separate school (a privilege enjoyed by no religious denomination other than Roman Catholics).

The law does not exempt separate school supporters from all taxation levied for public schools. There is a limit on this exemption, and section 14 of the S.S. Act clearly states this. Mr. Quinn should quote the entire clause when he mentions it at all. That at least would be fair to the non-catholic friends, as he desires to be. The assumption that a man is exempt for all taxation leads Mr. Quinn to go into an angle of stock held in the C.P.R. But he puts up his own straw man to knock down. The law exempts only 'proprietor or tenant' on his realty in 'the place where he resides.' The intention was to permit a householder or tenant of a house to have the taxes of that particular place where he is living listed for separate schools and so exempted from public school taxation, if he chose to support separate school. That is exactly the extent of the law. Anything further is something not covered by the original school act, so Mr. Quinn wants a change, an amendment to the B.N.A. Act. It is just as fair for public school suporters or believers in a one-school system to ask that separate schools in Ontario be abolished. This would mean an amendment to the B.N.A. Act too.

Does not Mr. Quinn feel that when Directorates refuse or decline to apportion taxes of their companies even when asked, that they sense public opinion in opposition to this form of support for religious schools? He is overjoyed at the measure of support he feels he has secured from non-catholic people. If he feels that his campaign has won protestants to Roman Catholic views, he should read again part of the address of Rev. George T. Daly, C.S.S.R. before the Catholic Truth Society in Toronto in 1929 when he dealt with the apathy of Catholics which was retarding the spread of Catholic truth. He said, "The large non-catholic world is pressing around us on al sides unperturbed by our teaching. They are untouched by our teaching. This is particularly true in intellectual circles where the problems of the day are discussed and solutions proposed."

If Mr. Quinn is so sure that his cause has the moral support of so many non-catholic people, including some Orangemen, let him test that support in a plebiscite of the electorate. This would answer the question as to whether the Orange Order in Peterborough or Toronto or in Ontario, in this present question, represents the views of the protestant population and perhaps a large portion of the Roman Catholic folk too. Instead of continuing endowments of one particular religious group, let us see whether the people want separate schools or not. Mr. Quinn would soon get his answer as we would get ours. The possibility of determining this point is not so remote either, and Mr. Quinn should not evince any surprise if he finds himself and his school system in the position of defending their very existence.

Yours truly,
West Peterborough County Orange Lodge Legislative Committee.

WHITE HYACINTHS

. . . to feed the soul

A GREAT department store, one of the largest in the country, published a most unusual advertisement. "Buy something you don't need," it read. And there is a sound and worthy philosophy beneath that seemingly cold and calloused plea . . . a philosophy that has endured for centuries.

"If I had two loaves," wrote the Persian poet, Sadi of Shiraz, "I would sell one, and buy white hyacinths, to feed my soul." And throughout all history, men have sold their loaves to buy white hyacinths.

We would modify the exhortation of the department store. Buy something you could do without, but something you very much want. . . . The antique chair you've been promising yourself. The new carpeting for the dining-room. . . . The electric grandfather's clock, or the sterling silver.

Values were never so great, for the amount expended, as now. You have only to turn to the advertisements in this newspaper to be convinced. Here is written a story too important for you to miss. And very often you will find you may keep both loaves . . . and have your hyacinths as well.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

THE HOME DECORATOR is wise when deciding upon color schemes, to consider the effect of time on pigments, papers, and textiles.

* * * * * * *

Much has been written on suiting colors to exposures of rooms so that sunlight effects can be introduced into northern rooms or those which get very little sunshine, and a cool quality be instilled into the rooms flooded with light.

* * * * * * *

Little, however, has been said about the influence of time and wear on the things employed in the decoration.

* * * * * * *

Blue is perhaps a hazardous color to use. A greyness creeps into the color which makes it lose its charm, sometimes giving a soiled appearance to perfectly clean things.

* * * * * * *

Blue hangings and blue sheets will acquire a grey pallor with laundering unless one gets really sun-proof textiles. So think twice before introducing a blue scheme into a room unless the decorations can be changed frequently.

* * * * * * *

Pink s a satisfactory color insofar as changing tones is concerned. The hue merely gets fainter and fainter without altering its general color, and a delicate pink is as attractive in its way as is a deeper tone.

* * * * * * *

Pink sheets, for instance, may be tinted finally, but there remains an attractiveness just the same, even though frequent washing and ironing has dimmed the shade.

* * * * * * *

Green is fickle. It may acquire a yellower tint and lose its beauty of bluish toning, or it may alter by getting a brownish tint. Sometimes it may grow bluish. Usually this tends to beautify the shade, although it may cause it to clash with other greens in decoration.

* * * * * * *

In these days of sun-proof dyes, changes of color are not so expected, but nevertheless they occur too frequently from some special causes, or because the textiles are not sun-proof.

* * * * * * *

It is wise to realize what may happen and avoid annoying changes if possible.

For the benefit of those ladies who did not hear Miss MacPhail last night, it might be interesting to describe her dress: She wore a plain but very well-cut rough crepe frock of black with tiny cuffs and cowl collar of white satin. At the side belt fastening and on the left shoulder were triple large cut steel buttons. She wore a little necklet of black and white beads and her dark hair, now showing traces of grey, was prettily waved. She wore beige hose and strap slippers on her small, well-shaped feet. After her speech, she sat down and quite unconcernedly powdered her nose. Her coat of black lamb had mink collar and cuffs.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

A SMALL-SLAM AT NO-TRUMPS

Yesterday we saw how A-B could win a grand slam at hearts on the hand given below. Today we will show how B can make a small slam at no-trumps, by a simple squeeze of Z, against any opening bid.

	♠Q 9 5 ♥J 10 6 ♣3 ♦8 7 6 4 3 2
♠A K 6 2 ♥A K 9 3 ♣A 5 ♦A K Q	Y A B Z	♠8 4 ♥Q 7 5 4 ♣K 9 8 7 6 4 ♦9
	♠J 10 7 3 ♥8 2 ♣Q J 10 2 ♦J 10 5

Several tables of duplic[illegible] played the hand at 6-No Trumps, but no played in B's position fulfilled that small slam contract. Although both black suits have been bid, the most normal opening lead by Z is either the Q of clubs, or the 3 of spades. The result should be the same. Suppose Z leads the Q of clubs. Win with declarer's Ace. Run off four heart tricks. At the fourth trick of play Z must let go his lowest club and at the fifth trick he must discard his lowest spade. If he lets go a diamond, with three solid tricks of that suit in dummy, Z only postpones a discard from his black suits. Let A win the sixth trick with the K of spades, then give the next trick to either Y or Z, by leading a low spade. That is the first and last trick that the adversaries can win. Each of them holds just one more spade. The last two tricks will be won by two good spades held by A, who also has three solid diamond tricks, while B must win the thirteenth trick with his K of clubs. There is no escape from a small slam on an opening lead of clubs.

Suppose that instead of leading the Q of clubs, Z's opening lead is the 3 of spades. Play the hand as follows: Let Y win the trick with his 9 of spades; he will lead back his Q of that suit, trying to give his partner a second trick. The next four tricks will go to the hearts. At the sixth trick, when the last heart is led, Z is squeezed. He had to let go his lowest club on the fifth trick. Now he must let go a spade, making good both spades in dummy, or Z must let go his second club, making good every club held by the declaring side.

Of course Z can stall, by discarding a diamond, but that will not do any good. The seventh, eighth and ninth tricks will be won by dummy's three top diamonds, and Z must unguard one or the other of his black suits. Either the last four tricks will go to dummy's two spades and the Ace and K of clubs, or those four tricks will go to the Ace of spades and three clubs.

If Z makes an irregular opening lead of either red suit the same tactics followed above will give Y-Z a single spade trick, and the squeeze will yield the balance of the tricks to A-B.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Many people have a natural or a congenital increase in the horny layer of the skin. During the summer months, when the skin and all the appendages, such as the nails and hair, grow more rapidly, probably on account of the increased amount of blood in the skin during the heated periods, this gives little trouble because the skin grows sufficiently fast that the horny layer is thrown off rapidly. But in the winter the scales are liable to accumulate on the surface and cause a rough, chapped appearance.

When normal skin is viewed under the misroscope, it is possible to distinguish five layers of the true skin, which rest upon the corium, or elastic tissue beneath. Strictly speaking, however, these layers are simple modifications of the same sort of cell, changed as they are pushed upward by the process of growth. The basic cell is large and multiplies rapidly. As these cells are pushed upwards by the formation of new cells underneath, they become flattened and more horny in character. It is the upper layer of such cells that is affected in the conditions we are discussing.

There are several varieties of this abnormality, varying from heavy scales universally over the body—the so-called fish skin or ichthyosis, to a slightly increased scruffiness of the skin on the exposed surface in cold weather. Ichthyosis, or fish skin, is a congenital disease, making its appearance usually during the second year of life and characterized by the presence of gray, dry, rough or scaly skin. In an extreme case it is broken up by fine fissures, and this causes the skin in such persons to be subject to eczema.

No treatment has been wholly successful in freeing the individual of discomfort during the winter, and no treatment has yet been devised which will prevent the recurrence of the disease in succeeding seasons.

The best results occur from the use of the X-ray or ultra-violet light. Hot alkaline baths containing borax or sodium bicarbonate, or baths containing starch or bran, soften the skin and in this way prevent excessive scaling. The clothing should be warm and of a sufficiently fine texture to avoid irritation. Frequent inunctions of fatty material, such as coco butter have proved beneficial.

A variety of the condition consists in the appearance of small horny spots about the opening of the hair follicles. There are of pinhead size and frequently are mistaken for pimples. Due to the coiling of the hair during its growth and the collection of grease in these spots, they are, in fact, very likely to become infected and actually to be pimples. The treatment is the same as that for true ichthyosis.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

A. G.: "After hair has been destroyed by the X-ray, does it grow back in?"

Answer: In the ordinary dosage used for treatment with the X-ray, the hair, which temporarily fall out, always returns. Only doses strong enough to cause permanent injury to the skin produce permanent loss of hair.

BUSINESS IS BRISK AT RELIEF BUREAU

Coal-Oil Lamps Are Greatly Needed to Supply Some of Unemployed.

Business at the Relief Bureau in the C.D.S. Groceteria is brisk every day. Many people are taking advantage of this depot where supplies of all types are received and given out to those who are unemployed, and lack money to buy necessary articles.

One small major need at present is for coal oil lamps. Electricity has been in suc hgeneral use for years that these lamps have become almost like antiques, but many citizens without money find their electric light turned off in these times, and lamps and candles are being pressed into service for the necessary night lights. Anyone with coal-oil lamps in the attic would do a good deed to get them out and telephone 3315, and they will be called for.

Stoves and mattresses are constantly being required, also work clothing for men who get the odd job of wood-cutting and other things to do.

Several fine suits for men have been sent in and are thoroughly appreciated by those who receive them.

Baby carriages, mattresses, high chairs, clothing of any and all types, can be used. In fact the need is almost limitless, and any article of furniture or clothing is welcomed.

Here is a letter that speaks for itself: "I have five small children, all under nine. My husband is out of work. I was wondering if you ever get any sewing machines, or would there be a chance of getting one. I wouldn't care what it was as long at it would sew, as I could make old things over for them. I hope this isn't asking too much, as they are badly in need of clothes."

Crab Meat and Spinach
Baked Potatoes
Tomato Salad Celery
Lemon Pie Coffee

Here is a new way to serve spinach by combining it with crab meat and making it the main dish of the meal. Make the tomato salad with the whole canned tomatoes. You can use the liquor in the can for soup or seasoning.

Today's Recipes

Crab Meat and Spinach—Clean and wash one peck of spinach. Cook slowly in the water that adheres to the leaves. Chop, season and arrange in a border around the edge of a greased baking dish. About 30 minutes before serving time, fill the center with one can of crab meat mixed with one cup well-seasoned, medium white sauce. Tuna fish, salmon or any creamed fish may be used instead of the crab meat. Sprinkle grated Parmesan cheese over the top and bake in a moderate oven, 375 degrees Fahrenheit.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Use a Bag

The cheesecloth bag is an indispensable laundry aid. It need not be more than a half yard square, or a little larger, if a blouse is to be accommodated. Leave one side open and through this run a draw string. Once in the bag, fine materials can be squeezed in the suds to one's heart's content, without danger of undue strain or of damage caused by a rough fingernail.

By this means one also overcomes the natural urge to rub soap on the soiled parts. It is better not to do this, as undissolved soap often forms a coating over dirt and consequently must be rubbed out before the dirt can follow it. When this improper method is employed instead of gentler but more effective methods, neckbands and wristbands receive more friction from laundering than from everyday wear.

You will find the cheesecloth bag a great boon when washing the mesh, satin or crepe collars, cuffs, vestees, and blouses that are in fashion at all times. Common sense tells us that if mesh is maltreated with hand rubbing, the comparatively loose arrangement of its weave will be disturbed and the pattern distorted. The nature of the weave of satin also demands gentleness, as the cloth derives its sheen from long, fine threads of silk laid closely together on the surface to reflect light.

These long threads are moved out of place and broken by rubbing. The satin appears dull and lifeless—and it is not the fault of the soap and water. Crepe has another distinctive weave. In crepe, the threads that run one way of the cloth are gathered up ever so slightly on the threads that run the other way. Any friction is likely to disarrange the relation of the threads. Gaps will appear between them, and the material is likely to shrink.

Simple safeguards such as the cheesecloth bag guide the uninitiated into correct methods and help to bring success in home laundering.

HUMBLEST PEASANT CAN MINGLE WITH THE HIGHEST IN IRELAND AND WILL NEVER BE OUT OF STEP

Miss E. Beard of Toronto Addresses Lyceum Club of Art Association.

LITERARY RENAISSANCE.

There is Something in Irish That Grips You Speaker Declares.

"I am not Irish myself, but when I went to Ireland last summer, I found that there is something about the Irish people that grips you. They have a way of saying things that is always different and their heads are always up. They come from away down there by the Mediterranean, from a race that is old as time itself, and they seem to be conscious of the kingliness that is in them. Even the humblest Irish peasant, unlike those of other lands, can mingle with the highest and never be out of step."

Miss E. Beard of Toronto spoke to the members of the Lyceum Club Women's Art Association at their regular meeting yesterday afternoon in the Art Rooms of the Conservatory of Music, taking as her theme "The Literary Renaissance," from the standpoint of Irish literature.

It was an informative and interesting address whose main content consisted of two papers, one outlining the progress of the Irish Renaissance, the other having to do with the works of Lady Gregory, famous the world over as the patroness of the noted Abbey Players of Dublin.

The president, Mrs. W. Blackwell, introduced the speaker and made several announcements of forthcoming meetings.

"Most people," said Miss Beard, "think of the Irish Renaissance as being the work of William Butler Yeats in the revival of a moribund language and the progress of the Little Theatre Movement in Ireland—the product of an intellectual aristocracy somewhat removed from life and its problems."

The speaker went on to trace the rise of the movement, from the beginning of the 19th century up to the period in 1889 when Aubrey de Vere, Allingham and Ferguson published works of conflicting type, all bearing on the renewal of the ancient glories of the Irish language and its poetry and prose.

The Ancient Gaelic

Douglas Hyde and Yeats were identical in purpose, declaring that the essence of nationality is contained in language and devoting themselves almost exclusively to a revival of the Irish tongue. Yeats said: "I would have Ireland re-create her ancient arts," and he joined in his crusade for the revival of the ancient Gaelic by Thomas McDonald, who asserted that English was an impoverished language and an imperfect algebra of art. Both advocated the use of Anglo-Irish, which is a fusion of the English language and the rough old idiom of the Irish tongue.

In the second paper, dealing with Lady Gregory Miss Beard spoke of the manner in which that dramatist regarding the Irish peasant from above and with an eye impregnated at all times with humor, painted a dramatic picture of him which was not true to life but which appealed to those who wish to laugh when they go to the theatre and who had a popular conception of an Irishman that tallied exactly with Lady Gregory's stage product.

The other plays of the dramatist, however, received high praise from the speaker, who regarded her "Golden Apple" as equal to the best work of Barrie and Maeterlinck, in its mixture of humour, humanity and a sincere faith in the existence of a fairy world.

A few reminiscences of her recent trip to Ireland concluded Miss Beard's address.

The vote of thanks to the speaker was voiced by Mrs. H. E. Connelly and seconded by Mrs. E. H. Howson.

A very pleasant addition to the program, made by special request, was the inclusion of two Irish songs by Miss Dorothy Sager, whose lovely voice was heard to great advantage in "Danny Boy" and a folk song from County Antrim, "I Know Where I'm Going." Accompaniments were played by Mrs. Agnes Logan Green.

Afternoon tea was served at the conclusion of the program.

Petite And Blonde

Heather Angel

Now that England's newest actress has left home to join the growing film colony in Hollywood, the English screen is quite depleted. Heather Angel has been featured in many British pictures. Arriving in the United States, she found the lead in "House of Refuge" awaiting her. Heather is 23, petite and blonde.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

A charming screen star whose hair has been brown, blonde, red and platinum blonde, now is permitting her tresses to grow out their natural color. And she's giving her hair plenty of brushing in the interim. For she knows well that brushing does a great deal to promote hair health and growth.

Every girl who wishes a head of glossy, luxuriant hair should realize the importance of hair brushing. But there's another thing, too, that is essential to hair loveliness. And that is the use of a proper brush. For a number of minor troubles can be caused by the use of an improper brush.

Brushes, in the first place, must always be clean. That goes without saying, of course. And the bristles must not be sharp or stiff enough to injure the scalp. Indeed, sharp, metallic bristles are likely to increase dandruff. And they are also likely to scratch the scalp and severely irritate it.

The ideal brush for giving the hair a thorough nightly brushing is one with medium stiff, flexible bristles set in small bunches some distance apart. And the tufts of bristles should be higher in the center than at the sides. A curved brush of this sort is best because it touches more of the scalp at each stroke than does an ordinary, straight brush.

It is an excellent practice to have a different brush for dressing the hair than the one ordinarily employed for giving the hair that nightly one hundred strokes. For a medium stiff brush tends to lay the hairs too close to the scalp. A soft brush is better for use when dressing the hair. It does not flatten the hair too much, and yet it will impart to it a lovely gloss and sheen.

This type of brush needs equally as much care as the one that is used for the nightly one hundred strokes. It should be cleansed and sterilized just as frequently, and should be permitted to dry and air in the sun as often as possible. For if a hair brush is of the proper kind, and kept in the best and cleanest of condition, it will, when used, do a great deal to promote hair health and loveliness.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Colors

Martha: I think that you will find shades of tan, brown, blue, gray, dark green, dark red and black most becoming to you.

Reducing

Margie: It is indeed possible to deveop the bust, and at the same time reduce hips, waist and thighs. Full information on this is contained in my "New Figure" booklet, but is too long to print here.

Freckles

Mitzi: Both lemon juice and dilute peroxide form good freckle bleaches. Permit either bleach to dry on the skin and then apply cold cream to counteract any drying effects.

Charged With Theft From Station Cell

According to police, Angelo Chevier, alias Joe Kelly, French-Canadian, is something extraordinary in the way of a thief. "He practices his profession wherever he may be," police explained.

Chevier was in the police cells on a vagrancy charge on January 17, and police say that when he was taken up to the county goal on remand, under police escort, he was wearing an overcoat he had stolen from the police cell room.

He was charged before Magistrate Langley with the theft today. He pleaded not guilty, explaining that his own coat was torn and he just "picked up" the other coat which was handy to him on his way out of the cell.

He was remanded until Friday for trial.

Weir Tallies Winner To Give Petes 2-1 Victory

MICKS PLAYS STELLAR GAME IN HOPE GOAL

Free-for-all in Third Period Enlivens Uninteresting Game for Spectators.

NO LOCAL STARS.

Every Player Doing His Best Although Handicapped by Poor Ice.

The Petes' intermediates chalked up their fifth win of the season to wind up their home schedule at the Brock last night, pulling out a 2-1 victory over a battling Port Hope team. Rough, sticky ice made it an uninteresting slow game till the third period, but a fair crowd got its money's worth in the exciting last stanza.

The local league-leaders scored one goal in the first while blanking the opposition. Neither side tallied in a listless second frame, but the Hopers tied it early in the third and it was a battle the rest of the way. The Petes got their last one three-parts way through this chapter. A free-for-all fist fight among the players, having to be stopped by the police late in the third, made fans forget the dull spots earlier in the contest.

Outstanding Star

No player stood out on the home roster, though Creighton and Dallin seemed to be hardest working pair out there. Weir went good, while Howe and Lebarr looked good at times. Gillespie stopped his share of hot ones, and the rest of the boys tried hard. Defensively, the Petes had a big edge, and had it not been for great net-work by Micks, they would have won by a larger score.

Micks drew applause several times for his great saving on hard shots close in. He was practically unbeatable on all kinds of shots and rebounds, and steadied his whole team by a fine performance. His defence body-checked hard but the local lads got through pretty regularly. The 240-pound Harwood did not play because of an injured finger, and his bulk was badly missed. The forwards all fought hard, Dawley and Hagerman being the best. Port Hope drew six penalties while the Petes were guilty on five occasions. It was a heavy-checking affair, but fairly clean.

Visitors Threaten

The visitors threatened early with four-man rushes, but a rolling puck made combination difficult. Creighton got the Petes' first marker after five minutes when he tore in fast to grab Jarvis' wide shot as it rebounded off the boards, and "Red" slammed it in. Play livened up after some messing around, and stiff checking was the order. The Petes were having a decided edge, with Port Hope stalling late in the period, and Howe pulled off a smart lone rush just before the bell.

Gillespie came out for a neat save to start the middle go, and play was slow and ragged. They began stepping into each other and kept the bell ringing. Hills went off for holding, with Creighton and Sneyd next for roughing it up. Hills was no sooner sprung than he was jailed again for tripping. The crowd was yelling for action, and the Petes turned on the juice, most of the local players threatening in turn to score, but Micks was unbeatable. Cancilla was jugged for tripping, and the local forward trio peppered Micks from all angles. Play was faster and more exciting at the finish.

Scores Equaliser

Lebarr almost shoved one in early in the third, and then Hagerman came back fast up the right boards, his hard shot from defence going in off Gillespie's pads. Lebarr was chased for charging, and play was red hot and rough. Dallin looked good on several rushes, and the Petes had more shots than their rivals. Gillespie stopped some tough ones and the local second line checked nicely. Then the first line came back and threatened for a space, with Weir up front and Ellis back on defence. With six minutes to go, Ellis took the rubber right through but his shot was blocked. Weir, racing in to the corner retrieved it and blazed in an angle shot to give the Blue and White the one that proved the winner. Howe went off for boarding.

Donnybrook Starts

Then came the Donnybrook with two minutes to go. Rowden tore into the Petes' corner where Lebarr was getting the puck. They checked hard for a second with Rowden clipping Ted on the head with his stick, and then both tangled. Lebarr hung a couple of wicked punches on the other's chin and then the other players tangled in the corner, swinging their fists. Referee Sabatino was having an impossible job trying to separate the battlers, and the crowd was pouring out on the ice when two police constables went out and restored order, both Lebarr and Rowden going to the penalty-box. The Petes were two men short and checking hard at the last gong.

The teams:

Port Hope: Goal, Micks; defence, Sneyd and Francey; centre, Dawley; wings, Hills and Hagerman; alternates, Cancilla, Rowden and Roach.

Peterborough: Goal, Gillespie; defence, Weir and Lebarr; centre, Ellis; wings, Dallin and Dundas; alternates, Creighton, Hatton, Jarvis and Howe.

Referee—Jack Sabatino.

LONDON LOSES TO INDIANS 3-2

Alfie Moore in Cleveland Nets Stops No Fewer Than 60 Shots.

REFEREE RILES FANS.

TORONTO, Jan. 28.— (CP) —After tieing the leading London Tecumsehs twice this season the cellar-place Cleveland Indians finally scored enough goals to eke out a victory over the leaders.

With Goalie Alfie Moore, former London amateur, holding the Tecs to two goals, Indians rammed three past Red Stuart in the London nets to inflict the second home defeat of the season upon the league-leaders.

Moore stopped no fewer than 60 shots and upset the plans of Tecumsehs to increase their margin over Syracuse Stars, who are trailing them by one point.

Tory Gregg netted what would have proved to be the tieing marker in the last 30 seconds, but Referee Mickey Ion spoiled this when he ruled it "no goal."

This caused a delay of 10 minutes as the ice was cleared of debris which descended upon Referee Ion from the disappointed fans. One fair fan was so incensed over his ruling that she hurled her compact in the official's direction.

Indians scored a goal in each period, M. Brophy, Daley and Riley netting the puck, while Eric Pettinger scored both counters for the homesters.

"Seaman" Watson Scores Decisive Victory

BRITISH FEATHERWEIGHT HANDS FIDEL LABARA A BAD BEATING

Watson Comes Back Strongly After Two Early Knockdowns to Convince 12,000 Fans That He Was Far From the Punk They Believed.

WILL MEET KID CHOCOLATE NEXT MONTH FOR NATIONAL BOXING COMMISSION TITLE

NEW YORK, Jan. 28. (CP). — There are no barnacles to-day on Thomas "Seaman" Watson, fistic pride of His Majesty's navy.

The slender, pale faced leather pusher from Newcastle-on-Tyne convinced 12,000 spectators and his most caustic critics in Madison Square Garden last night that he is far from the "punk" they believed as he handed Fidel Labarba, crack featherweight from Los Angels, the worst beating he has suffered in years.

"He can't fight much," a lot of the American experts said after viewing the now famous "trial by fistic jury' Watson was forced to undergo a few days after his arrival in this country.

But the little Briton made them eat their words last night after he had recovered from a shaky start and belted the Californian in decisive defeat in 12 rounds while the crowd roared its approval.

Makes Poor Start

There was no question as to the merits of the decision. Once the seaman got underway he was master of the situation. Gone was the nervousness that assailed him in th gym trial. He pounded Labarba fiercely a close quarters and his ripping right counter punch forced the one-time flyweight champion to hold frequently. Labarba had a shade the best of it in the first four rounds, flooring Watson for no counts, but from then on the veteran of more than 200 battles on land and sea had a clean cut margin.

Victory was doubly sweet for Watson. Not only did he prove beyond a shadow of doubt his capabilities as a fighter worthy of holding the championship of the British Isles and fit foeman for any battler on the North American continent at the weight but he also won the right to meet Kid Chocolate, recognized in New York State as world's featherweight champion. The pair will likely meet in a title match at the Garden next month.

A Clean Fight

In his dressing room after the joust Watson smiled for just about the first time since he has come over here and read the sharp criticism in the press of his fighting prowess.

"I am glad I didn't let my old shipmates down" said the victor.

"It was a clean fight and I hope I may be able to meet Watson in London some day" said Labarba, who wore marks of the conflict. He said he was naturally disappointed at losing but that there was no doubt as to the better man.

Watson and his handlers will remain in Gotham for a few days, a tentative plan to fight in Toronto and Montreal has been abandoned.

ALLAN CUP HOLDERS ELIMINATED IN O.H.A. SENIOR "A" STRUGGLE

Marlboros Defeat Toronto Sea Fleas for Third Straight Time.

SCORE IS 2 TO 1.

(By the Canadian Press)

The championship trail had ended to-day for Toronto Nationals, Allan Cup holders, who, beset with player desertions and riddles with injuries, struggled along until they were eliminated from the Senior Ontario Hockey Association race last night by their intra-city rivals, Marlboros, who defeated them by a score of 2-1.

Hamilton Tigers maintained their two-point margin over the second place Dukes by defeating the rugged Port Colborne Sailors, 3-1; and Niagara Falls Cataracts caught Kitchener Empires away from Hamilton ice—where they have been doing so well lately—and slapped on a 4-0 kalsomine.

Nationals have failed to win a game from Marlboros this year, dropping three straight to the team they beat last year for the Ontario title.

The Sea Fleas went down fighting as indicated by the fact that they scored the last goal of the game, when Kenny Kane, their tempestuous pivot, battled in a double pass from Cliff Chisholm and Harvey McClelland.

Kane nullified this good effort when he jumped upon Referee Duke McCurray as the official was going to his quarters. For this attack, he drew upon himself, the possibility of suspension.

Bobby Morrison scored the first Marlboro tally on an excellent individual rush. Speedy Jack Shill notched the other counter, when he snared Jimmy Primeau's pass-out from the corner and tapped it past Goalie Ronnie Geddes.

Goalie "Hawse" Marsh had an easy session when the Tigers downed the Ports. The Yellow and Black blanketed their opponents and allowed them few shots on the net.

The single goal of the losers came near the end of the game, when Harry Gray lofted one from centre ice that Marsh juggled and allowed to slip into the net.

Captain "Goney" McGowan regained his sights, after a few scoreless games, and rifled in two of the Hamilton counters. "Red" Farrell scored the other one, and incidentally drew down four of his team's 11 penalties.

Shifty Jerry Shannon gave ample evidence why he is leading the group's point-scorers, when he scored one goal and assisted in two others as Cataracts pulled out an easy win over Kitchener. He helped Scotty Bowman and "Chet" Steele notch counters and took a pass from Maxie Kaminsky to net one himself. Kalbfleisch was the other marksman.

Two of the markers were scored when Empires were short-handed.

Lindsay Juniors To Enter Playoffs

LINDSAY, Jan. 28.—Lindsay O. H. A. juniors defeated Bobcaygeon juniors by the score of 4-1 in Bobcaygeon Arena and will enter the play-offs with Fenelon Falls. The contest was closely fought and Bobcaygeon died hard when a terrific third period offensive netted them only one goal. This was Bobcaygeon's last chance to enter into the finals of this group, but they were outskated and lacked the finish around the nets.

For Lindsay Stephens in goal was particularly outstanding, and Jack Tripp, scoring three of the four goals, was the pick of the forwards. Wakelin scored Lindsay's other tally, while Connway was the goal getter for Bobcaygeon. The lineup:

Bobcaygeon—Goal, Kimble; defence, Kellett and Connway; center, Johnston; wings, Kelso and Nichols; subs, Kennedy, Newman, Gordon and Nichols.

Lindsay — Goal, Stephens; defence, Campbell and Thomas; centre, Wakelin; wings, Dart and Lamb; subs, Tripp, Murphy, Cain and Wakelin.

Referee — Max Aldous, Fenelon Falls.

Inside Sportin' Dope— By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, our hockey teams has been pushing along nicely since my last, and neither outfit has stubbed its toe as yet, up to Thurs., which is doing very nicely, neighbors. Mister Wright's intermediates took Bowmanville into camp Tues. nite 5 to 3 after a really snappy battle, and Thurs. nite they travelled down to Port Hope and made the Ontarios like it to the tune of 9 to 2, and the 2 wins gives the local lads a head scissors on 1st place in the Lakeshore group. The Port Hope game was more or less of a practice canter on soft ice, and the Wright talent was never in no real danger of getting licked, even if the Ontarios did grab themselves the 1st goal, but the tussle here with the Bowmanville gang was something else again. Them Rubbertown fellers always did save their best hockey for Brock st. rink and they've always been tough to knock off here. The Tues. fixture wasn't no exception, for the visitors was in front at the end of the 1st dash, and the teams was tied when they skated off for their 2nd gulp of the oranges, etc. However, in the final 20 Mister Dallin and Mister Creighton registered bull's-eyes on 2 quick shots, and that was enough to give the home talent the verdict.

Baseball is beginning to crowd its way into the headlines, Mac, which reminds us that before we know it the boys will be out there tossing the old horsehide around. Right now salary cuts is the big item, and it looks like most of the big show performers is going to find the old sock a little lighter this year. It can't be helped, because if the jack ain't laid in there at the box-office it just naturally follows it can't be paid out to the lads in the monkey suits. At that the stars'll get enough of the old mazuma to enable them to laugh at old Col. John D. Pression, so they ain't got nothing to worry about.

Hockey fans what read this colyum is reminded that next Wed. nite the Petes will tangle with a all-star East Peterboro League team in a benefit game for Geo. Merrett, the E.P. player who was so badly hurt a few weeks back. All the proceeds will go to the injured lad, and they should oughta be a real crowd out for this worth-while cause. Pack the old ice-box, folks, and give an unlucky lad a real boost. You'll be doing a good turn and at the same time you'll see a lively game of hockey, for this E.P. select aggregation ain't going to be a push-over for no man's team, and the 2 teams will be in their "shooting" as our rassling friends say when, if ever, a bout is on the level.

Well, Mac, that's as far as I'm going to-day, so you'd better drop off here.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

Central Press Canadian Writer

Quite a lot has been said and written about Australia's failure to successfully cope with Harold Larwood's leg theory in the cricket test matches at present being played in the Antipodes. Old stars of the game are inclined to express annoyance at what they term Australia's churlishness, while others recall the speed of Cotter and Gregory to offset the outcry from down under. Jack Gregory was faster than Larwood ever will be.

But several experts are inclined to believe that Australia is failing to best Larwood in the tests because the land of the kangaroo hasn't a good left-hand batsman to upset the bowler and cause the field to be shifted frequently. A Warren Bardsley would make small work of any one theory adopted by a bowler.

England saved the third test by having two left-handers, Leyland and Paynter. They both came off in the first inning after England had lost four wickets for a paltry sum.

Meantime the West Indies are setting their house in order to send a cricket team on a tour of Great Britain in the next few months. Jack (G.C.) Grant, brother of Rolf, the former Canadian college boy, will captain the team, just as he did the one to Australia, and he expects to leave Trinidad in April.

A. D. Nourse, the veteran South African player, who is now nearing 60 years old, is still a splendid cricketer. Recently he played opposite his own son in a big match and hit up a century, while the son also made his presence felt. Nourse has given English bowlers plenty of leather hunting in the past.

Canada is plenty interested in this Fidel LaBarba, selected to take Kid Chocolate's place in a bout against Seaman Watson, the British featherweight boxing champion who left his pub in the north of England to seek fame in the land of the almighty dollar. When LaBarba first turned pro he boxed about four bouts with little Jimmy McLarnin, down in California, but he couldn't take the measure of the young Canadian.

Then LaBarba stayed among the feathers while McLarnin gradually put on weight. After a successful career, LaBarba suddenly went studious, and quit to get among his books. But he's back in the ring again and expects to account for Watson in this, a non-title bout.

Watson didn't leave England with any halo of trumpets. Even the boxing board of control in London didn't send him away with any more than a nod of the head.

Glasgow Rangers couldn't beat the Vienna club in the soccer game at Ibrox and more than ever it is becoming apparent that the clubs on the continent, trained by English players, are up in the forefront of the football world. The Football Association has sent out notices to two continental bodies asking them to play an all-English team in May and the prospect of the tour of the Englishmen is creating tremendous interest in Italy and other countries.

CEMENT TOWN BEATS LEAGUE LEADERS 5-3

Homesters Get Three in Third in Gallant Bid for E.P.L. Victory.

PLAY FAST HOCKEY.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 28.—(Examiner Correspondence)—Lakefield's EP.L. entry, firmly entrenched in the cellar, pulled the surprise of the season last night by trouncing the league-leading Norwood Combines, 5 to 3, before a good-sized crowd here. The gallant youngsters from Cement Town fought back hard after trailing, 2-0, in the first period to run in the tying counters in the second session and get three more in the third while Norwood could tally just one.

The ice was good and play fast and fairly clean throughout. Norwood's combination wasn't as good as the winners, and the Combines faded somewhat under the hot pace set by the homesters the last two frames. Calladine, Cripps and Stephenson were the best of the visitors, with Rogers and Beavis also showing up well. For Lakefield, George Wanamaker went great in the nets, looking like Lorne Chabot. Bob Wanamaker starred throughout, with Wingett and Northey also effective.

Opens Scoring

The first period was all Norwood's, with Pat Calladine being the fastest man on the ice and good all-around. He scored twice in quick order around the middle of the stanza. Kennedy, bad man of the game, drew two penalties and Webb one. With two Lakefield players and one Norwood one off early in the second go, R. Wanamaker got the 1st Lakefield goal, on Wingett's pass. Jewell got the equalizer later, with a player off from each team. Kennedy drew two more benchings, with Jewell, Cripps and Scriver being jugged once each.

Lead in Third

Jewell's goal, on R. Wanamaker's pass, was disputed but allowed early in the third. Wingett, on an assist by R. Wanamaker, shoved in the next one halfway through, and then Northey pulled off a neat solo effort to counter the last local one. With a minute to go, Stephenson made it three for Norwood alone. Stenner had a couple of penalties, Jewell, Calladine and Rogers one in this period. Twice the goal-umpire was changed over disputed goals. The teams:

Norwood: Goal, Beavis; defence, Webb and Scriver; centre, Stephenson; wings, P. Calladine and F. Cripps; alternates, Rogers, McConnell and Fenton.

Lakefield—Goal: G. Wanamaker; defence, Stenner and Wingett; centre, Walker; wings, Jewell and Northey; alternates, Kennedy and R. Wanamaker.

Referee—Max Board.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA TAKES LEAD

BRISBANE, Australia, Jan. 28. — (C.P. Cable).—South Australia took the lead against Queensland in the first innings of the Sheffield Shield cricket match here to-day. Queensland was dismissed for 129, due largely to the bowling of the Test player, C. V. Grimmett, who took six wickets for 49 runs. South Australia had knocked up 184 for six wickets when play was closed for the day.

M.C.C. AGAIN VICTORS.

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 28. — (C.P. Cable).—The M.C.C. visiting English Test cricket team defeated a New South Wales eleven here to-day by four wickets. The scores were: M.C.C., 199 and 110 for six (Wyatt 66, Verity 33, Hammond 33, Chilvers three for 29). New South Wales, 180 and 126 (Bradman 71, Rowe 70, Brown 60, Hammond three for 22 and six for 43).

SHIELDS AND HALL TO MEET SINGLES TEST

New Jersey Player Partnered With Marcel Rainville in Doubls Final.

AT MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Jan. 28. —(C.P.) — Two highly ranked United States players to-day will settle the custody of the Canadian covered court singles tennis title for 1933. They are Francis X. Shields of New York, ranked fifth, and J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N.J., defender of the championship. Each player came successfully through five matches since the tournament opened on Tuesday, reaching the finals by winning from Montrealers yesterday.

Hall and Shields will also play in the doubles final to-day. The New Jersey player is partnered with Marcel Rainville of the Canadian Davis Cup team while Shields will be side by side with Edward W. Burns, Jr., of New York.

Hall had a strenuous semi-final match with Rainville in the singles, only winning after the terrific fight indicated in a score of 4-6, 8-6, 13-11, 6-2. Shields' powerful driving fairly blasted Charlie Leslie of Montreal of the courts, 6-2, 6-1, 6-1.

In doubles Hall nad Rainville conquered Dave Morrice, Montreal and Albert Law, New York, 6-8, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4, while Shields and Burns won in straight sets from a pair of rising Montreal youngsters, Roland Longtin and H. Paul Emard, 6-4, 8-6, 6-2.

City Hockey League Twin Bill To-Night

That oft-postponed City League double-header will be held to-night at the Brock Street Rink, the first game being played from eight till nine, and the second from nine till ten. It's Rangers vs. P.C.I. in the initial contest, followed by Rotary vs. St. Peter's. A good sheet of ice is promised players and hockey fans.

The Collegiate outfit has been showing up well with plenty of practice lately, and will be just about the toughest team in the league to beat out of a playoff position. Rangers, however, show a world of speed and scrappiness, and this first tilt will doubtless be not only hard-fought, but ending with a low, close score. The Rotary, champs last year, will run into a tough outfit in St. Peter's, a squad that is not only experienced, but noted for a fighting spirit from bell to bell. They are well-coached and should make this second a smart game. Followers of all four teams and others interested in City League hockey will likely be out in force.

AT THE GRAND

"GEORGIA MINSTRELS" COMING TO THE GRAND THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 2

The promise that everyone from grandfather down to Junior—taking in all the middle-stages such as Joe College and Betty Coed,—will be pleased by the next show at the Grand is made by the management.

Fanchon and Marco's modern presentation of the famous Richards and Pringle's "Georgia Minstrels" is the incoming stage show one night only, Thursday, February 2nd.

The older generation will be carried back to another day, when "Mr. Interlocutor", the "end men," and the brassy band signified the greatest attractions that the day's stage had to offer.

"Flaming youth," it is guaranteed, will be immensely entertained by The Three Gobs, Billy Miller and others of the new Mills Bros.-Cab Calloway "hotcha" era.

The name of Richards and Pringle, in connection with their minstrel show, has been famous for more than 70 years. The new group, according to its present manager, Arthur Hockwald, is the finest it has ever presented. Hockwald has been in charge of the show for more than 20 years.

Included in the cast of 45 are Clarence Dotson, The Big Six Comedians, Thomas Harris, Chick Beeman, Lasses Brown, Billy Mitchell, Nay Brothers, The Three Georgia Browns, Billy Miller, Norvelle Reese, a chorus of 20 voices, and a colored orchestra. Prices, 25c to $1.00. Plan opens Tuesday at 10 p.m.

Glad for Watson Says Kid's Pilot

HAVANA, Jan. 28. — (C. P. Cable.)—"We are gald to hear of Watson's victory," said Louis Gutierrez, manager of Kid Chocolate to-day when informed of the Briton's clear-cut triump over Fidel Labarba last night at New York.

"As soon as we can go to the United States we will be glad to give him a chance for the featherweight title. Watson's fine showing proves we never pick any set-ups," Gutierez added, speaking for himself and his dusky charge.

BASKETBALL — OTHER SPORTS

(By C. J. P.)

A couple of promising City Hockey League embroglios on tap to-night at the Brock from eight till ten. It's Rangers against P.C.I. in the first one, while Rotary tangles with St Peter's at nine. Saturday night with good ice and two lively junior games should draw a pretty fair crowd we'd imagine. They're worth seeing, and we'll bet both games are plenty close and exciting all the way.

* * * * * * *

Congrats, Lakefield, for licking Norwood, 5-3, last night. Not that we have anything against Alex Kempt's Combines, but we like to see a real race in any loop. We were just about ready to count Lakefield out of the running when they pull a real upset by handily trouncing the toughest team in the E.P.I., and last year's champs. That means that Lakefield may still come on fast and do a lot of damage to other team's hopes. They're a game bunch of battlers, being small physically but ready to step into anyone.

* * * * * * *

Speaking of stepping into each other, Lebarr and Rowden made a pretty fair job of it at the Brock last night in the third period. In fact, they nearly started a young war It climaxed a fine third period, but the first two were nothing to drop a postal to the old folks back home about. Just a listless tussle on bumpy ice, with the odd flash of exciting hockey to keep the fans awake.

* * * * * * *

Doubtless, quite a few fans went tot the Brock last night just to see this big guy Harwood, not figuring on much of a battle. But it turned out the opposite way. It was a close game with the issue in doubt till the end. And big Harwood didn't play, after all, but he was there in the penalty box all through the game, that broad, chunky bird in blue overcoat and iron lid. He had an injured finger in bandages, and said repeatedly that he wished he was in there when the Petes began checking hard.

* * * * * * *

Those Port Hopers are fighters all right and in a way, we sort of wished it was them and us in the playoffs, with the big guy playing. Micks covered himself with glory by turning in a swell game in goal, and that's all that kept the Petes from pulling out a three or four goal win. But neither side killed itself with work for two frames. The locals all went good at times, but we'd hardly pick any one as being a shining light. After all, that's the best way for a team. Just win the game and never mind trying to star individually.

* * * * * * *

After the game, Eddie Wright got in touch with W. A. Hewitt of the O.H.A. to inquire about playoffs, and was told that it will be Bowmanville and Peterborough. It seems that once a game goes the full limit of overtime and is still tied, each team gets a point. Therefore, Bowmanville is in second place now with one point more than Port Hope, and the scheduled completed. The Petes will go to Bowmanville either Monday or Tuesday, whenever they're told to, for the first playoff game. The second one will be here next Friday goals counting in this home and home series. We're calling the Petes to win their group.

* * * * * * *

And here's an odd news dispatch from Edmonton, showing where police summonses have been issued to Duke Keats and Ernie Anderson for fighting and starting a free-for-all on the ice in a game there last Saturday. Section 100 of the Criminal Code says that an affray is the act of fighting in any public street or highway or fighting to the alarm of the public in any other place to which the public have access. A maximum of one year's hard labor is provided. We wonder if local hockey players realize they can be pinched by the cops for fighting on the ice. We didn't know it ourselves.

* * * * * * *

The Ontario Football Association is meeting in Toronto to-day, and this city is not represented this year. Last season's local executive decided to take no action until the annual general meeting to be held February 20th. The local association has been affiliated with the O.F.A. the last two years, but owing to the financial obligation, some of the members felt that thirty-five bucks is too much dough these days to belong to organized soccer, as other expenses bring it up to around the century mark.

* * * * * * *

The substitute question will be discussed today under the Hamilton Soccer Association's notice of motion. That is, that the O.F.A. embody in its rules that two subs be used, and recommend that the Dominion Football Association co-operate in like manner Last season every district made its own ruling. The local district has always favored three subs, and will doubtless carry on the same way this summer.

* * * * * * *

Grab-bag: Knox Midgets beat Mark Street, 5-3, last night and both these Church Hockey League teams will next meet in the finals . . . . A bouquet to Max Board who is turning over his last night's refereeing fee of the E.P.I. game to the Merrett Benefit Fund. . . . . The local O.H.A. Juniors would like to play Cobourg Monday and Port Hope Wednesday to wind up their schedule, but nothing's definite yet . . . . We won't see any more O.H.A. hockey here this winter till the playoffs—just to remind you that the winter is moving along . . . . Seaman Watson's fight against LaBarba in N'Yawk last night kind of made followers of the sour science forget Phainting Phil Scott, the ring's fawncy diver . . . . If reports are correct, Kenny Kane of Nationals faces possible suspension from the O.H.A as a resultof his alleged attack on "Duke" McCurry following the termination of last night's game between Nationals and Marlboros.

AHEARN DENIES KILREA RUMORS

Ottawa Club Has No Intention of Placing Hec on Auction Block.

WAR ON INDIFFERENCE.

OTTAWA. Jan 28 (C.P.).—Determined to land his team in the National Hockey League playoffs, Frank Ahearn, president of the Ottawa Senators, instructed Cy Dennenny, team manager, to-day to clap $100 fines on all players who show "indifferent" hockey. At the same time, President Ahearn branded as "ridiculous" reports Hec Kilrea was on the auction block, but admitted waivers had been sought on Wally Kilrea, the younger of Ottawa's brother act, and Alex. Smith, defenceman.

Earlier in the season, said Aheard, a trade was proposed with Montreal Maroons, Hec Kilrea for Baldy Northcott, but it fell through. Before the season opened New York Rangers offered F. Boucher centre player on the famous Cook-Boucher-Cook front line, for Kilrea, but the Senators rejected the offer. Several times Detroit Red Wings have sought the big left-winger but the "no sale" sign was held out by Ottawa.

In adopting the fine system, Ottawa is following the example of Toronto Maple Leafs and other league teams. Busher Jackson, left winger on the Leafs' kid line could not hit his stride this season until faced with the prospect of paying $100 fines for every indifferent showing, Aheard said, adding Jackson stepped out in his last season form.

"Y. W." SENIORS INCREASE LEAD GIRLS' LEAGUE

A. David Registers Only Counter for Blue Petes in 21-1 Defeat.

C.G.E. SENIORS WIN 3-1.

The "Y" Seniors increased their lead in the City Ladies' Basketball League games last night, when they held the Blue Petes to a 21-1 defeat. A. Davis registerd the only counter for the losers from a foul off H. Cole. In the first half the Blue Petes played a five man defense and held the "Y" Seniors to three baskets. H. Cole gathered two tallies and E. Armstrong the other. At half time the Seniors led 6-1.

In the second session the "Y" Seniors found the Blue Petes easy to solve. H. Cole was the outstanding player for the winners, sinking four more baskets and one foul shot off P. McCellan. I. Davidson ran in two quick tallies followed with one by J. Allin.

Line-ups:

"Y" Seniors—Forward, I. Davidson, E. Armstrong, J. Allin; centre, H. Cole; defense, H. Jackson, O. Elcombe, S. Levine.

Blue Petes—Forwards, H. Bradley, V. Huffman, B. Rogers; centre, P. McCellan; defense, R. Allan, A. Davis, D. Allan, K. Caddy.

Referee—Russell Kitchen.

C.G.E. Seniors Win 3-1

In the second game the C.G.E. Seniors administered a 3-1 defeat to the "Y" Intermediates in an exciting game, featured by the tireless attack of both teams. The game was a nip-and-tuck affair with little difference between the teams. M. Aymott started the C.G.E. off with a foul shot from L. Magee. M. Amyott tallied again and at half time, the C.G.E. Seniors led 3-0.

In the second half L. Magee of the "Y" Intermediates contributed the only shot of that period which was a foul shot from L. Coursey. This brought the score at full time to 3-1 for C.G.E. Seniors.

Line-ups:

C.G.E. Seniors—Forwards, M. Hodson, L. Coursey, H. Peryer; centre M. Aymott; defense, M. Hallihan, M. Burnley, B. Cappizoli.

Referee—Russell Kitchen.

Great Contest

The St. Andrews team combined together in great fashion to defeat the C.G.E. Juniors in the third contest. Both teams passed the ball around in snappy manner. D. Seabrooke netted the first basket for the C.G.E. Juniors. J. Cole and M. Weir gathered in two points each mor St. Andrews. A few seconds before half time N. Pearson secured another basket for the C.G.E. Juniors and thus evened the score.

The St. Andrew's played better in the second half and came through with two clever baskets put in by J. Cole. The C.G.E. Juniors only secured one more point from a foul shot off M. Clarke and netted by Z. Thomas. Both teams were guilty of some loose ball handling at critical moments. The St. Andrew's led the C.G.E. Juniors 8-5 at full time.

Line-ups:

St. Andrews—Forwards, J. Cole, M. Clarke, M. Donaldson, H. Heffernan; centre, M. Weir; defense, D. Tremaine, M. Stacey, M. Lytle.

Referee—Joe Cooper.

On Wednesday last the Westclox Juniors proved more effective than the St. Andrews when they defeated them in a well-played game. In the first half the Westclox Juniors went off to a flying start and B. Blade, D. Routley, M. Blade and C. Watman each netted a basket. In the second half J. Cole scored for the St. Andrews which was the only basket netted in the last session. The Westclox Juniors led the St. Andrews 8-2 at full time.

MINSTREL SHOW IS FOR RELIEF

Canadian Water-craft Minstrels to Give Show on February 8.

IN COLLEGIATE HALL.

The Canadian Watercraft Minstrels, who have made a name for themselves this season and last by their presentation of very entertaining minstrel shows, are giving their services for relief shortly, when they will present their minstrel show, "A Night in a Broadcasting Station," in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute, on the night of Wednesday, February 8th.

The entire proceeds will be donated to the City Relief Campaign now progressing. The young men taking part in the show wish to do their bit in this way to augment the campaign fund.

The show, which is under direction of Delbert Lucas and H. Lundy, will have an added attraction in the playing for a twenty-minute period in the oleo, of Mel Leal and his Liftlock Mountaineers, an old-tyme orchestra of the city which has broadcast with much success from Station CFCA in Toronto.

The show is a peppy affair, with the usual blackface end men, funny gags and popular songs. There will be banjo and guitar solos as well and a very funny skit will be included, entitled "The Coon Rehearsal."

This will be a very entertaining presentation and the relief fund will be augmented by your presence. Tickets are priced at 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for juniors.

GOODNIGHT STORIES

By Max Trell

My eyes are large, I'm covered with wool
I eat green grass until I'm full,
This is a riddle; just guess who I am;
And if you're not able, I guess I'm a lamb.

—Shadow Song.

This is the story of a leg of lamb that didn't want to be roasted. The shadow children came upon it in the kitchen. It was lying in a roaster, all ready to be put into the oven by Inda, the cook.

"I won't be roasted, I won't, I won't!" it cried. Of course, you couldn't have heard it cry, but the shadow children heard it very well. Then the leg of lamb tried to kick itself out of the roaster.

"You'd better lie quietly," the shadow warned it. Hanid was afraid that if it kicked itself out of the roaster it would fall right into the mouth of Charlie, the dog.

"Why should I lie quietly?" it demanded, "I don't want to be roasted."

"The dog will eat you," Hanid told it.

Charlie, the Dog, Waits

"Oh, no it won't." The shadows shook their heads and repeated that Charlie was hungry enough to gobble up a little leg of lamb in two shakes of a lamb's tail. "I haven't got a tail I'm just a leg," it broke

"I won't be roasted!" shouted the leg of lamb.

in, a little sadly. "But you needn't pity me. I can take care of myself. I can still run, you know even, on one leg."

Saying this the leg of lamb did its best to stand up. It thought that if it could only stand up it would be able to leap off the table and out of the window. Then it could clear the garden wall and get back to the green fields before the cook could catch it.

"No, no..don't do it" the shadows shouted in alarm. Alas, the leg of lamb did not heed their warning. It got half way up then—plop! it slipped back into the roaster, which was all slippery with gravy and little cut-up onions. It lay there all out of breath. I suppose you are wondering how a leg of lamb could be out of breath. It is curious.

Well, by this time the leg of lamb was so angry that if it had had horns it would have broken every dish in the kitchen. It cried: "You'd better tell that cook not to come near me. I'm going to kick—"

"Oh, you must not!"

"But I am. I'm going to kick with all my might. I'm going to smash this kitchen to bits. You just watch me."

Just at that moment Inda, the cook, came into the kitchen. "Dear me," she exclaimed, looking up at the clock, "it's time that leg of lamb was in the oven." With that she went right over to the leg of lamb. The shadows gazed in terror. They expected the leg of lamb to kick. "Look out!" they cried. But Inda didn't hear them and the leg of lamb didn't (or perhaps couldn't.) So it was put into the oven and roasted after all.

A child born on this day should be versatile, lively, ambitious and successful in employment and in business, but its personal affairs may have complications of a sensational nature.

Pains Around Her Heart

Tired Out After Doing Housework

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

Mrs. Henry Rauch, Muriel Lake, Alta., writes:—"Last fall I had bad pains around my heart, and each morning, after doing a little housework, I seemed to get dizzy and feel all tired out.

Seeing that Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills were good for these troubles I sent for a box, and after taking the Pills for a few days I felt a whole lot better. Since then I have had no return of the dizzy spells and pains around the heart."

SHORT COURSE IN AGRICULTURE CLOSED IN CITY

Warden McIntosh and Council Present at Closing Banquet.

COURSE WELL ATTENDED

Warden John McIntosh and Peterborough County Council were present in a body at a banquet held in All Saints' Parish Hall yesterday afternoon to mark the closing exercises of Peterborough Short Course in Agriculture and Home Economics held under the auspices of the Provincial Department of Agriculture, and to hear an inspiring address delivered by the guest speaker Miss Ethel M. Chapman of the editorial staff of The Ontario Farmer publication.

J. B. Nelson, local agricultural representative presided very efficiently as toastmaster. In the course of a brief introductory speech he pointed out that the Short Course had been attended for the past four weeks by about fifty young people from various parts of the county. They had received valuable instruction, and he trusted that they would return to their respective homes with some ideas that could be put to practical use.

Mr. Nelson thought that the class had been particularly honored by the presence of the County Council. It was the first occasion in the entire history of the Short Courses that the council had been present at any of the functions in a body.

Mr. Innis who was associated with Mr. Nelson in giving the boys instruction in agricultural subjects, and Miss Edyth Petty, nursing instructoress and Miss Margaret Hamilton, teacher of domestic science were also present at the banquet, along with the members of the class. Other guests included not only several prominent farmers and stock breeders of the county, but also Public School Inspectors R. F. Downey and L. W. Copp; E. A. Peck, M.P., J. F. Strickland, K. C., M.P.P., Dr. N. H. Sutton, District Officer of Health; E. F. Reid, chairman Peterborough Board of Education, Mr. Ford, Dominion Hog Grader, and the Rev. J. Douglas Paterson, rector of All Saints' Church.

During the course of a brilliant address, the theme of which was "A Sense of Values," Miss Chapman commented on the arrangements that had been made for the banquet, including the loan of silverware and the making of place cards, decorations, menus and programs, as being "a fine piece of creative work."

Not only had she enjoyed the meal itself and the manner in which it had been served, but she had listened with delight to the addresses made by the various members of the class in proposing toasts and otherwise having contributed to the program. "It bears out a thing I have discussed on several occasions," she remarked, "that in the young people of today, we have something very fine coming along who will prove to be quite equal to the tasks which lie ahead of them."

Far Reaching Results

Miss Chapman had once heard such courses as the one that was about to come to a conclusion, as being a mixture of culture and agriculture, and she believed it was a mixture that was working out with far reaching results.

One of the ways by which young people were showing they had a true sense of values was in a better appreciation of other people. She stressed the value of the social contacts, that had been made by the young people attending the short courses, and remarked upon the privileges of being able to mix with other people having the same interests at heart.

All tended to cultivate an appreciation of values, which was merely the dropping of petty little differences and co-operating one with another in the things that really mattered.

She believed there was a growing consciousness on the part of young people of a better sense of values, and she reminded some of the older members of her audience, that all forward movements of the world had grown out of the dreams of youth. That she pointed out was one of the important reasons why efforts should be made to develop a true appreciation of values among the youth of the land, in the most impressionable years of their lives.

Miss Chapman compared some of the difficulties faced by the pioneers of Canada in the light of present day problems, and contended that it was not much of a sacrifice for the youth of the country to begin right now to assume responsibility, and to go forward to further achievement.

The toast list included the following: "Our Guests," proposed by Olive Bell, responded to by Inspector R. F. Downey and Warden McIntosh; "Our Country," proposed by Reta Torpey, and responded to by E. A. Peck, M.P., and J. F. A revival of interest through a Sharing Campaign among the boys of Peterborough is announced. The campaign will begin on Friday, February 3, and end on February 20. A Tuxis conclave for boys over 16 with speakers from Toronto and a special program of handicraft arts and recreation will open the campaign. There will also be a Trail Rangers camp for all boys over 12 years of age, special features being an address by Kenneth Ward, Trail Ranger representative to the Boys' Parliament for this district, an address from a Toronto leader, songs and handicraft demonstrations. Watch for future announcements concerning dates and places for these meetings.

For the two weeks following February 6, various teams will participate in the share selling campaign. Carlyle Ferguson, local representative in the Boys' Parliament, is leading the revival of interest in boys' work here. The Boys' Work Board meets next Tuesday.

• • •

The "Live Wires" of Mark Street Church held their regular meeting on Monday and the new chief ranger, Ken Hoporoft, led a successful meeting. The talk was built around the purpose of boy training. This group has started a "Current Event" period and the boys study the outstanding happenings in the world news.

• • •

A new game was played, two teams each having a can and a bag of beans. One player stands with the can ten feet in front of the other players of his team. The first in line throws the bean bag at the tin which the person in front uses to catch the bag. Then he throws it back to the next in line and he does the same. Try this in your group.

• • •

The group is divided into four sections, each having a handicraft period. One is making jigsaw puzzles, another leather belts, another book marks and the fourth is working on linoleum.

• • •

George Street Church is lively in Trail Ranger work with Walter Outram, Garnet Dalnard, Jack Mark, Elmer Tretheway and Lee Copp heading up the various groups. A new explorer group here is in the making.

• • •

Knox Church is progressing splendidly. Don Charlton and Larmer Brown have a large Trail Ranger group meeting regularly.

• • •

At St. James', Sid Turner has his group of Trail Rangers meeting once a week in the homes of the boys. They are having great success.

• • •

Grand Trail Ranger Camp officers for 1932 will meet at the Y.M.C.A. at 1.30 Saturday afternoon to plan for the coming grand camp. The following officers are included: Ross Allin, grand chief; Bob Thornton, sub-chief; Lawrence Henry, grand tally; Henry Blade, grand cache and their mentor, Max Parnell.

Tough Customer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—A street fight was in progress, with four men swinging at each other with the gusto of a battle royale.

Came Policeman J. J. Hunter. Two of the men fled, so Hunter tried to collar the remaining two. One resisted.

Wham! Hunter's police stick came down on the fellow's head —and broke. Bam! Hunter's service revolver crashed down on the same head—and was ruined.

Then Hunter decided the only sure method was the ole' art of 'rassling. He pitched in and wound his antagonist in'o a knot, but, meanwhile, the fourth man slipped away.

The one prisoner was booked as Harry Wells, Negro.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY FORMS COMMITTEES FOR YEAR'S WORK

George Benton Jr. is Appointed Secretary of the Organization.

WANT NEW MEMBERS

The first of a series of meetings for the purpose of promoting wider and keen interest in the work of horticulture in all its branches was held on Thursday evening in the office of the Department of Agriculture by the Peterborough Horticultural Society. A general invitation was issued to citizens to bring along suggestions and take part in the discussion of ways and means of spreading the work of the society to the end that further beautification of homes, public places and the surrounding district of the city be made a source of delight and pride to residents and visitors.

The attendance was good and the interest never lagged, many items of business had to be deferred to a later meeting. Dr. A. J. Madill was in the chair, and extended a hearty welcome to the incoming directors, also to the visitors.

General regret was expressed at the decision of S. T. Harris to relinquish the post of secretary-treasurer, an office which he has so efficiently conducted for several years. However, he was prevailed upon to continue as treasurer, George Benton, Jr., volunteering to act as secretary. This was received with general acclaim, hearty support being extended to the new secretary.

The following committees and their personnel were then agreed upon, all chairmen of committees having power to co-operate interested members to assist in the work of their department, the keynote of discussion on this matter being: to spread the work of the society among as many members as possible, more workers, more activity, greater results:

Finance and Campaign Committee —H. L. Beal (chairman), J. Edgar, G. Benton, Sr.

Publicity Committee — R. M. Glover (chairman), H. Theobald, E. Bradshaw.

Competitions Committee — F. Biddle (chairman), J. S. Bell, G. Benton, Sr.

Junior Society — F. H. Dearborn (chairman), J. B. Nelson, Mr. Scott.

Options Committee—S. T. Harris (chairman), J. Edgar, B. Wainman, J. S. Mason, E. M. Monk, J. A. Smith.

Show Committee—F. Biddle chairman), H. Gabbutt, Mrs. Benton, J. A. Smith, E. Bradshaw, G. H. Clarke, Wm. Wilks, J. G. Stenton.

Beautification Committee — Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mrs. F. D. Kerr, J. A. O'Brien, W. Stocker, A. E. Prest, C. Lacheur.

Social Committee—Miss A. M. Price, Miss A. M. Lancaster, Mrs. S. T. Harris, Mrs. G. Benton, Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mrs. F. D. Kerr.

The secretary, G. Benton, Jr., was elected as delegate to the annual convention of the Ontario Horticultural Association, to be held February 9 and 10.

Economy, or rather the lack of funds, continually cropped up in all discussions, but increased effort is to be made by the campaign committee to enlarge the membership in 1933, which stood at 312 in 1932.

Options, or premiums, in 1932 reached a very high standard, both in quality and quantity This standard is to be maintained because it is considered useful to retain the confidence of past members and attract new members, providing plants and shrubs, which amateurs have difficulty in raising owing to lack of facilities.

Gratification was expressed at the interest shown by exhibitors in the shows; efforts will be made to foster and develop that interest, greater diversity of classes, providing more competition; many suggestions being handed to the show committee for enlarging the scope of the work, by co-operation with other societies in the district, also the possibilities of inviting the Ontario Horticultural Association to hold their district show in Peterborough this year.

Further encouragement and assistance to amateurs was considered possible if "The Canadian Horticulturist" could be prevailed upon to give more space in their publication to practical articles on how to grow plants, if possible, accompanied by small sketches. Favorable comments were made upon the attractive make-up of this paper with the January, 1933, issue.

Board fences came in for criticism, and it was remarked where fences have been removed what a wealth of beauty has been revealed unsuspected by the passer-by and brought to mind the poem quoted by T. P. Lancaster, M.P.P., at the 1932 convention of O.H.A., "My Neighbor's Rose":

"The roses red upon my neighbor's vine,
Are owned by him, but they are also mine.
His was the task and his the labor too,
But mine their joy as well as his,
Their loveliness to view.
They bloom for me and are for me as fair,
As for the man who gave them all his care.
Thus, I am rich because a good man grew
A rose-clad vine for all his neighbors' view.
I know from this that others plant for me,
And what they own, my joy may also be.
Thus I am rich because a good man grew
A rose-clad vine for all his neighbors' view."

The Examiner was thanked for the extensive publicity given to the society, and hope was expressed that this would be continued. In reply, Mr. Glover said, "Give me the articles and I will provide the space."

Further business was postponed until Thursday, February 16th, when all interested in horticulture are again invited to attend and assist the work. In the meantime citizens desiring to become members of the society are requested to get in touch with G. Benton, Jr., 782 Water Street, phone 1440W, or any member of the several committees.

Finance being restricted, due to reduction in the Government grants, curtailment of the society's activities will be essential, unless the citizens of Peterborough and district rally and give their support by taking out membership tickets or in donating prizes for the shows. Every confidence was felt that civic pride had now become a virtue and that 1933 was going to be more successful than in years past.

Pacific Mild Wave Sweeps Over Prairie

WINNIPEG, Jan. 27. — (CP) — Sweeping in from the Pacific coast a low pressure area has sent a frigid wave scurrying eastward and brought moderation in mercury readings to the four western provinces.

Temperatures in British Columbia and Alberta were rising and higher registrations were forecast for Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

South Battleford, in Northern Saskatchewan, was the coldest point on the prairies with the mercury holding at 24 below. It was zero at Calgary, in Alberta. Manitoba reported mild weather throughout the province.

In what country is the Don river?

What is the family name of the reigning house of England?

What is the nautical term for the right side of a vessel, facing forward?

Correctly Speaking—

Two adjectives modifying the same noun should be separated by commas if they are co-ordinate in thought; but if the first adjective is felt to be superposed on the second, they should not be separated by a comma.

CORDOVA MAN'S HAND BADLY CUT

John Pressick Struck By Axe As He Attempts to Guide Falling Tree.

13 STITCHES REQUIRED.

HAVELOCK, January 28 (Examiner Correspondence). — While felling a tree in Methuen Township in the vicinity of Oak Lake on Wednesday noon, John Pressick, a young man resident of Cordova Mines, had his left hand almost severed by an axe in the hands of Charles Chard, also of Cordova.

The pair were engaged in notching a tree, when suddenly the injured man saw the tree starting to tilt, and putting his left hand on the trunk to direct it, he was struck a nasty gash on the middle of the hand, that almost cost his life, through loss of blood.

Pressick was rushed to Mrs. Cummings' Nursing Home by automobile in a greatly weakened condition after the trip of about eighteen miles over rough roads. Thirteen stitches were required, and the full extent of the injuries and the damage done to the bones of the hand are not yet fully known. He was attended by local physicians. The men were engaged by John E. Wood, well-known lumberman of Oak Lake.

January Meeting Belmont Institute

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, January 26. — The January meeting of the Belmont Women's Institute was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Robert Anderson, and was well attended. The roll call, New Year's resolutions, was well responded to.

A layette, and other needed articles, were sent to a needy mother, and it was decided to purchase more flannelette for another layette, and material to finish a quilt. Repairs for lamps at the hall were also ordered.

Mrs. Will Smith, who was presented, thanked the members for their gift of one dollar bank account for her new baby.

On motion it was decided to have the secretary write the department regarding a short course, and summer speaker.

It was also decided to send a letter of condolence to Mr. Lancaster, who has suffered the loss of his wife, and active member and president of the Havelock Institute.

An interesting paper dealing with the life story of some of the hymn writers was given by Mrs. J. Seabrooke. This was followed by some of the hymns written by composers named in the paper being sung.

Mrs. Hartin contributed a humorous reading which was much enjoyed, and heartily applauded.

After the singing of the National Anthem, a delightful lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mesdames H. Scott, L. Keane, and J. Roe, and a social half hour was enjoyed over the teacups.

HITLER IS NEW GERMAN CHANCELLOR

IRISH AWAITING ACTION PROGRAM FROM DE VALERA

Rumors Spread Efforts at Negotiating Annuities Dispute to be Resumed.

MUM ON OATH.

Leader Denies Result of Election is Evidence of Hatred for Britain.

DUBLIN, Irish Free States, Jan. 30.—(C. P. Cable.)—The Irish Free State was left speculating to-day on what program of legislation the Republican government will bring forward when the Dail Eireann assembles Feb. 8 now that President Eamon De Valera has for the first time a bare majority over all other parties.

The President, in a post-election interview, made it clear the government atitude was unchanged regarding the land annuities dispute with the United Kingdom, but apart from that, he said, nothing was settled. Rumors sprang up immediately that efforts at negotiating the annuities dispute would be resumed.

Mr. De Valera said the economic policy of the government would be aimed at ruralization and decentralization of industry. He explained the government wished to encourage industries complementary to the agricultural pursuits of the nation to establish themselves in small towns rather than crowd into the cities.

Not Evidence of Hatred.

He was emphatic in a statement that the result of the eleciton was not evidence of hatred for Great Britain. There was a great difference, he said, between a wish for independence from Britain and a dislike of British people. The majority of the people in the Free State, he added, wished to live on the friendliest terms with those of the United Kingdom.

On the subject of the oath of allegiance to the Crown the president said nothing. In his election platform, however, he pledged his party to renounce oath as a requisite to tenure of public office, recalling that the Senate which blocked a bill abolishing it once, would be powerless to stop its passage following the election.

Final Standing.

The final party standing with gains and losses was:

Republican 77 (five gains).
Labor (Govt.) 8 (one gain).
Nationalist (Opp'n) 48 (nine losses.
Centrist Opp'n) 11 (eight gains).
Independent (Opp'n) 8 (three losses).
Independent Labor Opp'n) 1 (one loss).

Anglo-Persian Oil Dispute Is Settled

GENEVA, Switzerland, Jan. 30 (A.P.)—Amicable settlement of the dispute between Great Britain and Persia over cancellation of the Anglo-Persian Oil Company concession has been tentatively reached, it was announced to-day.

Representatives of both governments have virtually accepted a plan advanced by Edouard Benes of Czechoslovakia, which involves negotiation for a new arrangement between the Persian Government and the oil company.

Persia cancelled the concession several weeks ago, charging among other things that the company was not paying the royalties it had contracted to pay. The British Government referred the dispute to the League of Nations Council.

Strangest Cargo of The Seven Seas

When the Canadian Government steamer, Canadian Constructor, sailed from Halifax last week, she carried one of the most unusual cargoes ever entrusted to the skipper of any ship. Carefully packed away in her storage chambers were dozens of tins and bottles containing thousands of meningitis germs, en route to Melbourne, Australia, where they are to be used in experiments on treatment of the dread meningitis disease. The germs were from the Rockfeller Institute New York City, and the Canadian ship was chosen for the precarious task of transporting the valuable cargo as an experiment. Other previous consignments of the germs, shipped from New York, became sea-sick en route, and were useless on arrival for experimental purposes. If the Canadian Constructor proves seaworthy enough to prevent sea-sickness, other consignments are promised in the future But the vessel ran into an ill omen just as she was ready to leave Halifax harbor. Titanic waves hit the Nova Scotia shore, on January 27, and the vessel was forced to delay sailing. She left last Saturday ,however, on the tedius journey.

RAILWAY WAGES ON BOTH LINES AGAIN SLASHED

Second Ten Per Cent Cut From Basic Pay of Running Trades.

EFFECTIVE MARCH 3.

Reduction Hits 26,000, Including Engineers, Firemen, Conductors, Telegraphers.

MONTREAL, Jan. 30. — Formal notice of a 20 per cent. cut in the basic rate of wages was served over the week-end by the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways on their engineers, firemen, conductors, trainmen, yardmen, and telegraphers, constituting the "running trades."

Effective March 3.

The union men affected number 26,000, scattered through every Province of Canada. The notice stated that the new rate would become effective March 3. It is a straight cut of 20 per cent from the basic rate, the rate paid the men up to Dec. 31, 1931. Between Dec. 31, 1931, and Feb. 1, 1933, the men had accepted a temporary deduction of 10 per cent under an agreement reached after lengthy discussion between union Chairmen and the railways. Consequently, the new rate will mean that the men will receive about 10 per cent less than they did during the life of the temporary agreement.

Decision as to whether or not the cut wil be accepted will be reached by the local unions of the runing tradesmen, who will inform their general chairmen. It is expected that about Feb. 20 there will be another gathering of union heads here, when the verdict of the locals will be known.

Week of Sessions.

The companies notice brought to a sudden climax a week of private meetings, in which Vice-Presidents and General Chairmen of the running trades affected have been conferring with the railway executives. The men stated their willingness to accept the 10 per cent. deduction until the end of 1933, or other such fixed period as might be agreed upon, but the company declined to accept this, spokesmen for the men stated tonight. Disappointment with the new notice was expressed by union leaders, including Senator James Murdock.

The General Chairmen have advised the railways that the proposal "will be placed before the men represented by the general conference, parties to this conference." They hope to be able to give "more definite advice as to the position to be taken on this all-important question by Feb. 23, or as soon thereafter as possible." Some 26,000 men are involved.

Men State Their Case.

The railways contended they had the right to continue the 10 per cent. wage deduction on and after Feb. 1, when the present contract expires. This is disputed by the men.

Artists Tired of Cafe's Wall Paint Redecorate It Free—As Egyptian Tomb

SEATTLE, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Business was good in Alex McEwan's restaurant. Then it boomed. Seven regular customers came in at once.

They carried step ladders, planks and paint. This was odd thought McEwan, but they were artists and artists, he knew, were odd fellows. He beamed:

"What will you have today, gentlemen?"

"We aren't eating, thanks," replied Ernest Norling. "We're painting. For three solid years we've looked at these walls. We want a change."

Step ladders and scaffolding were set up and the painters went to work. Eating ceased. McEwan fled to the potato bin and brooded. Hours later, the artists and their temperament having had their way, he came cautiously back. He found himself in an Egyptian tomb, modernized.

"Tomorrow," said Norling, "we can eat."

RELIEF FUND TOTALS $6,400

Toronto Savings and Loan Company Contributes $1,000.

CANADIAN GENERAL $500.

Peterborough's Relief Fund this morning totalled $6,400, representing 175 contributions.

Response to this community appeal is so far highly encouraging and satisfactory to the civic committee, and the initial confidence that the objective of $20,000 would be attained has been strengthened by the progress of last week.

The Toronto Savings and Loan Company subscribed $1,000 on Saturday, and the managing director of the company, W. G. Morrow, promised the committee that if the fund reached $19,000 the Toronto Savings and Loan Company would contribute another $1,000.

This is an obvious challenge to the citizens which will no doubt be taken up in the spirit in which it was made. And, incidentally it ensures the receipts of the last $1,000 which is usually the most difficult to collect.

Another substantial contribution reported Saturday by the committee was $500 from the Canadian General Electric Company which brought the present total within sight of the half way mark in the present campaign.

Averaging $36.00

A glance at the essential facts of the Relief Fund as it enters upon the third week of the appeal to the peopleof Peterborough shows that the average contribution has been $36, indicating that the bulk of the giving has been in comparatively large sums.

Many citizens have obviously been delaying their contributions, and others who can only afford small

Rumor Hinkler Found in Alps

LONDON, Jan. 30 (C.P.).—A report which could not be confirmed immediately, that Bert Hinkler, missing British flyer, had been found alive in the Alps, was received to-day by the committee which has been directing a search for him for three weeks.

Bert Hinkler started from Feltham Aerodrome on Jan. 7 on a solo flight to Australia. He was not reported after the take-off, and several days later a search was organized. On the assumption that he had come down somewhere in the Alps, the search centred there, but bad weather hampered the efforts.

The report resulted in the cancellation of a memorial service which was to have been held for him there.

RELIEF FOREMAN HURT BY BLAST

Police Rushed to Scene as Word of Dynamite Explosion is Reported.

VANCOUVER, January 30 (C.P.).—The Administration Building of the British Columbia Government Relief Camp at Wood Bay, 90 miles north of Vancouver, was shattered by a dynamite explosion to-day. R. C. Kean, relief foreman, was seriously injured.

There are 150 men in camp at Wood Bay. Several went to the assistance of Kean, who was found unconscious in the debris of the building. He was bleeding and stunned, but apparently not critically injured. He was placed aboard a boat and started for Vancouver.

The camp consists of a main bunkhouse, a number of smaller buildings and the office building, occupied by Kean alone.

Provincial Police officers from Pender Harbor left for Wood Bay to investigate the cause of the explosion.

WEST BASICALLY SOUND, ROTARY SPEAKER STATES

Will Be Quick to Rebound From Present Depression, Rotarian W. W. Emerson Declares.

CHEQUE PRESENTED.

Rotary's Donation of $1,000 to Local Relief Fund is Handed Out To-day.

A distinct note of optimism as regards agriculture in Western Canada was sounded at to-day's luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club by Rotarian W. W. Emerson, business manager of The Country Guide of Winnipeg, who, speaking under the auspices of the Canadian Advisory Committee of Rotary International, dealt eloquently with the subject of Western Canadian conditions and declared that the Prairie Provinces would swiftly rebound from present conditions when the tide turned.

Another feature of the meeting was the presentation by Rotarian George A. Gillespie of Rotary's cheque for $1,000 for relief purposes, to City Clerk S. R. Armstrong and Mayor Denne, also a guest to-day, expressed the thanks of the council and citizens generally to the club.

In beginning his address, Rotarian Emerson, who was introduced by Rotarian R. L. Dobbin said that if he were to take a text for his remarks he would choose the phrase, "reasoned tranquility," as used by His Majesty the King, in his Christmas message.

His hearers were advised not to judge of Western condition from surface indications, but to look underneath for basic conditions.

There were three questions to be answered Rotarian Emerson said:

1. "Can we assure ourselves that the practises followed in Western Canadian agriculture are basically sound, and are they such as to cope with the problems that will face us for the future?"

2. "Are there any present causes for optimism in the situation in Western Canada?"

3. "Has Rotary any legitimate place in helping to overcome the difficulties which admittedly exist?"

He pointed out that farming is the basic industry of Canada, with the largest number of people engaged in it, the greatest amount of capital invested, and the largest turnover. As agriculture waxed and waned, so waxed and waned the business man's prosperity.

"Agriculture," he continued, "should not feel any undue resentment if business presumes to criticize it, because this is a matter of national importance, and the critics are most anxious to cure the condition."

There had been a strong tendency in the east to feel that the west would have been better off it it had gone in more for mixed farming

Nazi Forms Cabinet Without Centrists Or People's Party

Fiery National Socialist Is Backed By Reichwehr Army, His Own Storm Troops And "Steel Helmeters"—Organized Labor In Bitter Opposition.

FAILURE OF BAVARIAN AND CENTRE PARTIES TO LINE UP WILL MEAN ANOTHER ELECTION.

BERLIN, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler, leader of the National Socialist party, was appointed today chancellor of Germany.

The Nazi leader formed a cabinet without the Centrists and Bavarian People's party, who will be asked to tolerate his regime or else parliament will be dissolved.

Hitler's first cabinet session was called for 5 p.m. today. The cabinet, as composed, is one of determined men who have behind them, in addition to the Reichswehr (army), "Hitler's storm troops" and Seldte's "Steel Helmeters."

That organized labor will be bitterly opposed to the new cabinet may be taken for granted.

Should the Catholic Centre and Bavarian parties, which are allies, decline to support the Hitler cabinet, new elections will be held with the slogan "For Hindenburg and Hitler."

Hitler, Former Chancellor Von Papen and Hugenberg, leader of the Nationalist Party, filed into the President's office at noon for the meeting which probably will prove one of the most fateful conclaves in the young republic's history.

That the Cabinet would have the support of a majority of the Reichstag seemed unlikely because the Centrists and Bavarians insisted upon constitutional guarantees from Hitler which virtually would make him inocuous. Hitler insisted on important posts for his Nazis and also desired to have the storm troops become an official body along the lines of the Italian Fascist Militia.

PRISONERS GIVE THEIR VERSIONS OF SMITH CASE

One Testifies Deceased Was Sent to Work Ill—"Looked Ghastly."

OFFICIAL PROBE.

Victim Given 3 Strokes of Strap in Whipping Machine 12 Days Before Death.

BURWASH, Ont., Jan. 30 (C.P.).—The statement Frank Smith was a "pitiful object" in the bull gang the day he was strapped was made to investigating officers by a prisoner to-day when the enquiry into Smith's death was continued at the Ontario Instructural Farm here.

The investigation resulted from charges Smith, who died from broncho-pneumonia on July 12, was cruelly treated and neglected.

Prisoner "R" testified to-day Smith was sent out to work although he had complained of being ill. A guard had sent the man back. "He was a greenish gray in color, and seemed on the point of collapse. His legs were shaking and he looked absolutely ghastly."

Prisoner "Q," who had been given 10 straps, considered Smith had been cruelly treated. "Were you able to be around after the 10 straps?" he was asked.

"Yes," was the reply.

Left Marks.

"Did they leave marks?"
"Yes."
"But they didn't bring blood?"
"I hardly think so."
"You think Smith was badly treated?"
"It was a shame the way the man was handled."
"The man was pretty sick to get only three straps," argued the next witness, prisoner "S." He declared he had seen John Mann recently thrown out of a dormitory by four guards.

Previous evidence had shown Smith, 12 days before his death, was placed in a whipping machine and given three strokes of the strap.

"The sergeant (M. Vincent) has been pretty lucky in whom he picks on to throw out," said the prisoner. "He picked the wrong man. This man has never worked again and has been moved away to another institution." The other institution referred to is the Ontario Hospital for the Insane at Mimico, according to Inspector Norris.

DETROIT STRIKE SHOWS NO SIGNS OF LETTING UP

Briggs Plant Opens Employment Gates, But No Lines Form.

1,800 ON PICKET DUTY.

Ten Demonstrators Arrested —One Strike-breaker Beaten Up.

DETROIT, January 30 (C.P.). — The deadline which the Briggs Manufacturing Company set for the return of 6,000 striking employees, passed at noon to-day—with no indication that the men who walked out last week would return immediately, or that their positions would be filled to-day from the ranks of the unemployed.

First violence of the five-day-old strike occurred this morning when a group reported by State Police to be members of the picket lines, severely beat Arthur Noblet, who, they said, tried to enter the employment gates of the company's Highland Park plant. Police fdced the group back and took Noblet to a hospital.

Gates Opened.

Employment gates of the company's plant were thrown open to all applicants at noon to-day. No lines formed, however, and pickets said by police to number 1,800 at the Mack Avenue plant and 2,000 at the Highland Park plant, continued to march in the streets.

Ten demonstrators, whose names were withheld by police, were arrested this morning at the Highland Park plant.

Meanwhile, no word came from the Ford Motor Company, whose plants were forced to close due to failure of the Briggs Company to supply bodies. Henry Ford on Saturday indicated if the strike is not settled to-day or to-morrow, his company will prepare to manufacture its own bodies in order to get into production.

FOUR RINKS IN DISTRICT CUP

Two Local Quartettes Matced Against Equal Number From Lakefield.

ONTARIO TANKARD PLAY.

Re-awakened activity was evident at Peterborough Curling Rink this morning, where two groups of curlers were engaged in combat in the District Cup and Ontario Tankard games respectively.

In the District Cup competition, Peterborough had two rinks matched against an equal number of rinks from Lakefield, last year's holders of the group championship.

D. M. Bissell of Peterborough skipped a rink against P. Spence of Lakefield, and J. H. Sedgewick took his rink into action against D. H. Charlton of Lakefield.

The victorious club will be awarded a cup presented by the Ontario Curling Association representative of the District Group honors, and will also earn the right to send two rinks to Toronto to play off for the District Cup against the representatives of the other fifteen groups.

In the Ontario Tankard elimination contest, Bobcaygeon, Lindsay, Fenelon Falls and Peterborough each have two rinks entered and play is in progress to decide which club shall send its two rinks to Toronto to play off for the Tankard with the other group winners representative of all Ontario.

The skips of the various rinks are: Bobcaygeon, L. Nicholls and M. Thurston; Fenelon Falls, Harry McCallam and J.H. Stanton; Lindsay, R. Butler and Frank Carew; Peterborough, W. J. Oke and Dr. N. H. Sutton.

Ain Charod, Esdraelon Valley, Jan. 10.— This is a Communist colony. For people who tremble at the mere mention of the word Communist because they imagine it was some connection with Moscow and therefore with nationalization of women, Asiatic barbarism, attacks on religion and sundry other phantoms conjured up by reaction, we will call it a collectivist colony. The population of 1,000 young Jewish men and women own in common the farm machinery, the houses, the soil, the cattle and the industrial machinery, for there are several small factories in Ain Charod.

As is usual with Communists, the People of Ain Charod and other collectivist colonies in Palestine undermine the family. This is the way they accomplish this most criminal instinct by keeping the children in separate homes. But

Two Bandits Rob Markham Bank

MARKHAM, Ont., Jan. 30 (C.P.)—Working with coolness and precision, two daring bandits to-day held up the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and escaped with 2,000 in cash.

The thugs escaped in a car previously reported stolen from Bert Dawson, Toronto, after being chased for some distance by the town constable.

The teller of the bank, S. M. Marchen, and two other employees, were forced to back into the vaults by one of the men, while the other stood guard at the door. The inside man slammed the door of the vault, but the bolt had been "shot" and the door would not close. The men held the three employees at bay with a gun, while he scooped up what money was in sight, and the two bandits then escaped.

PROVINCE ACTS TO GUIDE RELIEF STURGEON FALLS

Committee of Three, All Outsiders; Will be Named Immediately.

STRICTER CONTROL.

Chief of Group Likely to be Torontonian—Montieth Mum on Details.

TORONTO, Jan. 30.—Immediate appointment by the Henry Government of a special committee to administer direct relief expenditures in the northern municipality of Sturgeon Falls was announced Saturday night by Hon. Dr. Joseph D. Monteith, chairman of the Unemployment Relief Committee of the Ontario Cabinet.

Personnel of the committee has still to be selected. It will probably comprise three men—all outsiders—with the chairmanship possibly going to a Torontonian. Details of the arrangement will be taken in hand by the Minister of Labor today and tomorrow.

Asked if recent disclosures in connection with the Royal Commission inquiry now being conducted at Sturgeon Falls had prompted the Government's special committee decision, Dr. Monteith declared: "I wouldn't say that. All I can say is that we have decided on a committee, and the committee will be named without delay."

Last week a deputation from Sturgeon Falls, made up of A. A. Aubin, M.P.P.; Theodore Legault, former M.P.P., the mayor and several representative business men, waited on Premier Henry at Queen's Park, urging the Government to assume 100 per cent. cost of relief, on the ground that there was no longer any money in the town, the Government would not honor vouchers, and merchants could not see their way clear to further handing out goods with no assurance of payment. Following the deputations, the Prime Minister is reported to have sounded out the cabinet on the situation.

Cabinet's attitude is said to have been that while prompt measures should be taken to continue relief—in other words, no one should be allowed to go without food or clothing and distributing aid than up to the present has prevailed in Sturgeon Falls should be applied. The committee appointment, now announced by Dr. Monteith, is said to be the answer.

AMAZING RESULT FROM INVENTION

Grimsby Man Claims New Machine Doubles Horsepower Applied to It.

'INDUSTRIAL REVOLUTION.'

HAMILTON, Jan. 30.—(C.P.). — Aeroplanes that can fly as long as their parts are kept in repair, liners that can cross the Atlantic needing nothing but a little oil in their machinery, trains that can travel up and down Canada without coal, manufacturing plants self-contained so that that they require no hydro serivce, practically unlimited power and heat in the home for nothing but a song, a new industrial revolution, in short, is promised through the invention of a machine by J. M. Mitchell of Grimsby, providing the machine does everything he says it will do, when it is tested and re-tested.

"I have applied for patents," Mr. Mitchell said.

"I took my idea to Toronto university, and they could not find any flaw in my theory. They worked hard to find a fallacy, but they couldn't do it.

"But the proof of the pudding is in the eating. I have made a machine that doubles the horse power that is applied to it. That's a complete answer to the sceptics. Incredible—but it works."

A demonstration of the ability of the machine to perform what its inventor claims was given for newspaper reporters here. A small model had been set up fitted with a tiny motor. The motor runs a lifting device and certain weights are raised at a specified speed. When the Mitchell appliance was applied to the apparatus, the same motor apparently lifted larger weights without loss of speed of lifting.

Tears and Onions

CHATHAM, Ont., Jan. 30.—(C.P.)—Here man comes to bat with another idea for the prevention of tears while peeling onions. Here is George Kelly's system:

"Go into the kitchen and get a good strong, pungent onion, also get a quarterslice of ordinary bread. Now place the bread between the teeth, allowing it to protrude slightly, keeping the mouth slightly open. Then cut or grate all the onions you want and not a single tear will come to your eyes."

Other means of prevention, submitted by members of the feminine sex, include:

Placing a piece of raw onion on the head.

Holding a needle between the teeth.

Peeling the onion under water.

VARCOE HEADS CENTRAL FAIRS

Central Ontario Fairs' Association Holds Convention in Belleville.

FAIR DATES ARE SET.

Clarence W. Varcoe of Roseneath, was unanimously elected president of the Central Ontario Fairs' Association at their convention in Belleville Thursday. Mr. Varcoe is secretary of the Roseneath Fair.

H. S. Aylsworth of Warkworth, is the first vice-president, and R. M. Mitchell of Belleville, second vice-president. J. L. Hay of Campbellford, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

John Locke, of Campbellford, retiring president, said that all the fairs affiliated with the Association had received more exhibits than ever last year, and expressed the assurance that their general condition and outlook was on the upward trend.

Delegates objected to the grants from the government as arranged under the new act relating to the smaller fairs in Ontario, and passed a resolution which will be presented this week at the annual meeting of the Ontario Fairs' Association in Toronto.

Incorporated in the resolution is a request that the government base their grants on the total of personal and municipal grants and other cash. As the act now reads the government merely gives an amount equivalent to the municipal grant received in the previous year from the respective municipalities.

J. Lockie Wilson of Toronto, who for years has been superintendent of fairs, was the principal speaker, and as an appreciation of his assistance he was presented with a smoking set.

Fair dates for this year were fixed as follows:

Bancroft—Thursday and Friday, September 14th and 15th.

Belleville— August 29th to September 1st inclusive.

Campbellford—Tuesday and Wednesday, September 26th and 27th.

Centreville— Friday and Saturday, September 8th and 9th.

Colborne—Tuesday and Wednesday, October 3rd and 4th.

Coe Hill—Tuesday and Wednesday, September 12th and 13th.

Frankford and Sidney—Thursday and Friday, September 14th and 16th.

Madoc—Tuesday and Wednesday, October 3rd and 4th.

Marmora—Thursday and Friday, September 21st and 22nd.

Napanee—Monday to Wednesday, September 4th to 6th.

Roseneath—Thursday and Friday, October 12th and 13th.

Stirling—Tuesday and Wednesday, September 19th and 20th.

Tweed — Thursday and Friday, September 28th and 29th.

Warkworth—Thursday and Friday, October 5th and 6th.

Wooler— Wednesday, October 18th.

Brighton—Tuesday and Wednesday, September 19th and 20th.

Picton, Deseronto and Shannonville were not represented.

580 LOSE LIVES AS SHIP SINKS

Struck Broadside by Huge Wave—All Victims Chinese Except One Missionary.

LONE SURVIVOR'S TALE.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 30 (C.P.).—Five hundred and eighty persons, all Chinese except one British missionary, were reported by a Chinese survivor to-day to have drowned when the steamer Hsin Ningtai sank on January 15 in Hanchow Bay. He said he was the sole survivor.

(Shanghai newspapers on January 18 said reports that at least 300 Chinese were lost when the Hsin Ningtai sank were confirmed).

The report to-day was from a Chinese who arrived in Ningpo.

He said the ship carried an excessive cargo of wheat and hogs and when it was struck broadside by a big wave, turned turtle and sank, carrying every one to a watery grave except himself. He said he happened to be on deck, was washed overboard and rescued by fishermen.

(Previous meagre reports said scores of corpses were washed ashore).

COUNTY COUNCIL CUTS ROAD RATE BY A HALF MIL

Amount to be Spent on Suburban Roads Left With Committee.

DISCUSS WAGES.

Reeve Ferguson Discusses Construction on Highway 7.

A tax rate of 2 mills for County Roads expenditures during the present year was struck by Peterborough County Council at the closing sessions on Saturday afternoon. It is a reduction of a half mill as compared with the past year.

Regarding the appropriation from the city for Suburban Area roads the matter was left in the hands of County Roads Committee, under chairmanship of Reeve Rork Ferguson. Before any decision is made in this regard it will be the endeavor of the committee to arrive at an understanding with the Suburban Area Commission with a view to have the rate of wages paid to County and Suburban road employees on the same basis.

Last year wages paid to the Suburban Area road employees were higher than those received by County road employees. A recommendation made by the Council to the County Roads Committee would provide for the wages paid by both authorities being an average between the two rates of wages paid last year.

The recommendation of the Council, made on motion of Reeve F. D. Leahy, seconded by Deputy Reeve Davidson, suggested the following scale of wages: teams 40 cents per hour; machine men, 35 cents per hour; foremen and patrolmen, 30 cents per hour; and laborers, 20 cents per hour.

Last year the following scale was paid:

	County.	Suburban.
Teams	45	50
Machine men .	38	40
Foremen and Patrolmen ..	38	40
Laborers	23	28

The report of the roads and bridges committee was adopted as read in open council, although Reeve W. A. Anderson made strenuous objection to the clause which sanctioned attendance of the council at the Good Roads Convention, and sought in vain to have an amendment made.

Warden McIntosh, who was a delegate to the Convention a year ago, said that there was a great deal of practical good to be derived from the convention. The trip was regarded as a business trip and last year, he said, it had also provided the Council with an opportunity of interviewing the Ministers of several government departments concerning matters of benefit to the County.

Report Adopted

The report of the County Roads committee was also adopted as read and without amendment, although here again Reeve Anderson sought to have the salary of the County Road Superintendent reduced from $3,000 to $1,500 per annum.

It was the general opinion of the Court Would See Some Real Spirits

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 30. — (C.P.).—An open-court seance at which summons for spirits were promised appeared as a possibility here to-day with the resumption of the contest over the $40,000 estate of the late Dr. Frank E. Bishop, elderly optometrist.

Clifton Hildebrand, attorney for Mrs. Gertrude Dickson, chief beneficiary of Dr. Bishop's will, announced he was prepared to call for the seance. He said he would place Mrs. Dickson's divorced husband, James J. Dickson, self-styled "spiritualist minister," on the stand and would ask him to summon the spirits.

Dr. Bishop's five sisters, who are contesting the will, charge their brother was influenced by "spooks," allegedly prompted by Dickson, to leave his estate to Mrs. Dickson, and then commit suicide.

Two Cordova Men Hurt Cutting Wood

HAVELOCK, Jan. 30.—(Examiner Correspondent.)—Two minor mishaps involving injuries, occurred in Belmont on Saturday. Joseph Peacock, of Cordova Mines, was cutting wood with Frank Youmans when a tree became lodged in the limbs of another tree. The pair attempted to remove it by means of a pry and, in so doing Youmans' axe slipped and caught Peacock a nasty gash on the ankle. Local physicians were called to attend the wound that required several stitches.

A second accident took place near Cordova when Carmon Saunders was felling trees for the Trenton Cooperage Company. A dead limb broke from a falling tree and struck him on the lower lip and chin. Three stitches were required. Local physicians also attended Saunders.

FIND OSHAWA EX-ALDERMAN DEAD IN FIELD

Ex-Alderman and War Veteran Has Cuts About Head and Hands.

ONE ARREST MADE.

Police Find Signs of Struggle Near Spot—Inquest Ordered.

OSHAWA, Jan. 30. — His head gashed and with cuts on his face and hands, Thomas Sheridan, 60, of 327 Mary Street, was found lying dead in a field near Park Road North, at nine o'clock Sunday morning.

Later, Provincial Constable Thomas Mitchell, Provincial Traffic Officer S. T. Hilliard and Detective Sergeant N. McGee arrested Archie Hopkins, Park Road North, on a nominal charge of vagrancy.

Hopkins, whose home is near the spot where Sheridan's body was found, admitted to the police that Sheridan had been at his place on Saturday afternoon, but denied that he had seen him since.

It has not yet been decided whether Sheridan died of the injuries he received, or from exposure, Coroner Dr. F. J. Rundle stated yesterday. Estimating that life had been extinct for about an hour before the body was found, Dr. Rundle hoped that an autopsy would reveal the cause of death. An inquest is to be held later.

Few Clues.

Although blood marks were found on the ground near where the body lay, indicating that possibly a struggle had taken place, the police stated that a close investigation had revealed little. Residents living in the vicinity had heard nothing unusual Saturday night. Apparently, Hopkins was the last to have seen Sheridan alive.

Sheridan had been missing from his home since Saturday morning.

Deceased had been a life-long resident of the city and was a veteran of the 20th Battalion C.E.F. He was an alderman in 1923 and 1924. He is survived by two daughters, Rhea Sheridan, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Mrs. R. Mosier, Toronto; one son, Billy, at home; three sisters: Mrs. Harold McKeen, California; Mrs. Alfred Fursey, Leamington; Mrs. Hugh Gordon, Toronto, and two brothers, John, Toronto, and Frank of Oshawa.

No Houdini

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 30.—(C.P.)—Motorman George Pavouska, who loves to "tinker," found a pair of handcuffs in the wash room of the car barn—left there by a patrolman who walks a beat nearby. Surprised when Pavouska's car failed to leave the barn, on time an official went to investigate and found the motorman, red faced and struggling, imitating the late Houdini. Only Pavousky couldn't get the bracelets off.

Police were called, the "prisoner" liberated and, without further reply, he sprinted for his car.

SESSIONS BEGIN OTTAWA TO-DAY

Afternoon Will Be Given Over to Private Members' Business.

8 EMPTY SENATE SEATS.

OTTAWA, January 30 (C.P.). — Facing a legislative program featured by many important items, Parliament will resume this afternoon following an adjournment of a couple of months. Most of the Senators and members of the House of Commons are in Ottawa, although quite a number will not be here until to-morrow since the afternoon's sitting will be brief.

The Upper House will assemble with eight of its seats vacant, death having removed that number of Senators whose places are yet to be filled. In the House of Commons two vacancies exist—that of Yamaska, created by the unseating of Aime Boucher, and of Restigouche-Madawaska, by the death of Max Cormier. To-day the Speaker of the House will issue writs for elections in these constituencies.

Government business will not be reached this afternoon, the session being given over to private members.

UNIQUE PLANT BRINGS RADIUM FROM BULK ORE

Many Processes at Port Hope Refinery Before Precious Element Emerges.

FACTORY DESCRIBED.

PORT HOPE, Ont., Jan. 30—A prospector high above Great Bear Lake looked down. Strange markings on the shores of the lake lured him. The next year he returned and found pitchblende, mineral from which radium is derived. From that casual glance came Canada's first radium refinery here.

It's a queer place, this refinery. A long concrete building surrounded by a high wire fence. A strange place. The front door is locked. The fence seems insurmountable. A watchman at the gate scrutinizes people closely. A show of credentials and finally, admittance.

A long white table covered with jars of minerals. A big safe. Bunsen burners, one burning steadily. A small retort filled with mineral, "stewing" over the burner.

In the background the factory. Huge tanks on one side. On the other, a maze of pipes, stairs, earthenware, crucibles, pots. On the left the tanks for uranium extraction. On the right, the machinery for the production of the world's most valuable "salt." For it looks like salt, this lead-packed radium which is so greatly needed for cancer treatment. But there is a vast difference. A needle no larger than that used in a phonograph is worth $650 when filled with radium.

But with M. L. Pochon, scientist who learned his trade in Paris, let us climb to the roof, the "top of the world," as Mr. Pochon says. Wooden stairways wind around the machinery. At the top is a narrow platform. There are bags of ore, pitchblende. There are carboys of chemicals. Into two electrically-stirred vats the ore and chemicals are poured. The ore is a black powder, already ground.

Strange Things Happen

The mixture is heated and stirred. Strange things happen. It travels by gravity and vacuum pump into other vats, through rubberlined pipes. Finally the uranium and residue is drawn off. The white precipitate containing the radium is removed to the laboratory. The residue starts up to the top again and moves through a succession of wooden tanks until it emerges as a yellow powder, used for ceramics and pigments.

But that is of minor importance. Let us follow the radium to the "lab" for the final processing. There are dozens of quartz bowls in the "lab." The radium, in liquid solution, moves from one to the other. The liquid crystalizes. It travels on and on, the bulk becoming less and less. From the big vats in which it started it moves gradually into smaller glasses and bowls. Eventually, it reaches a small container no larger than Milady's thimble. It is pure radium now, nearly ready to take its place in the fight against the dread scourge of cancer.

In many cases the radium must now be placed in surgical needles. This is a delicate and dangerous operation. For radium's emanation and radiation are dangerous. Hence the chemist, as he fills the needles, must be protected. He sits before a glass case. e places his hands in rubber gloves, through holes in the end of the case. Across the section where his chest rests runs a heavy lead pad. The rays are absorbed by lead, while the sealed glass case retains the bulk of the emanation.

It takes hours to fill each tiny needle. Then the radium is weighed on scaled so delicate the marking of a lead pencil on a sheet of paper would upset their balance. They will weigh 1-100th of a milligram, and there are 1,000 milligrams in a gram. It is delicate work.

In the laboratory too is a large vat of water. After each operation the scientists wash their hands in this vat. Whens the vat becomes filled it too is submitted to the final processing given the radium itself. Every possible atom of the radium is extracted, for it is of vast value.

And, as was often said of pigs at the Chicago stock-yards, everything is used but the "squeal."

No Cabinet Position Says Owen D. Young

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—(AP)— A Washington dispatch to the New York Times says Owen D. Young, who has been prominently mentioned for United States Secretary of state in the Roosevelt cabinet, has written a letter to the president-elect informing him that he cannot be considered for a cabinet position.

The Times says this information was made known at Washington by Democrats in the confidence of Young.

The despatch says it is asserted that Young felt he could not allow his name to be considered, partly because of business affairs and for personal reasons.

The carpet bowling games were keenly contested, and the finals aroused much enthusiasm. The winners were the team captained by Mr. R. Henry, and included Mrs. R. Bethune, Mrs. A. Wilson, Mr. D. Anderson and Mr. R. Hendry. The runners-up were Mrs. J. Sherratt, Mrs. A. Milne, Mr. J. Sherratt and Mr. J. Wyllie (captain). Mr. D. Anderson presented the cups to the winning team, which will be held by them until the next contest. Following the games the committee served light refreshments and a short time was spent in dancing. A large attendance is expected next Friday for the business meeting.

FASHION SERVICE

Daintiness has this afternoon dress—and much charm!

There are modish little puffed sleeves—one of the effects of our return to more feminine attire. And narrow fur finishes the quaint sleeves and the neck.

The bodice has an open self-fabric bound slit at the back.

It is made of the dull surface of black crinkly crepe satin. The sleeves and inset bodice vest and a partial at the back belt that is caught in with the side seams, uses the shiny surface of the crepe.

You can substitute the fur trim with a narrow bias fold of the fabric, if you please.

Style No. 3370 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust.

Size 16 requires 3¼ yards 39-inch with 1¾ yards for banding.

Pale Blue Leads In Latest Styles

(By Adelaide Kerr).

PARIS, Jan. 30 (C.P.).—Pale blue is the newest preference on the color chart of styles.

A touch of this tint is worn by the smartest Parisiennes in hats, bodices, and even gloves, while styles predict a continued vogue for the color this spring.

Each designer offers a new name for the new blue tone, which is lighter and softer than the turquoise launched two years ago.

Forget-me-not, robin's egg, water-blue, and sky-blue are the names most often used.

Pale blue velvet turban designed along lines which cut close to the head is a favorite with smart continentals. It is used as a dashing accessory to black or dark brown costumes.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

IT IS SELDOM that fagotting embroidery is put on any but rather high-priced garments, and yet it is one of the ways of adorning a costume which involves the least cost, and a small amount of time.

* * * * * * *

Contrasting material, with a fagotting insertion which holds it to the main part of a sleeve, for instance, can be worked out in charming designs from very simple bandings, which are effective, to patterned insets with irregular contours in design.

* * * * * * *

Fagotting is a kind of needlework in open effect, which loosely connects two edges of goods, usually at a distance of about a quarter of an inch apart.

* * * * * * *

Large coarse stitches, usually made with heavy embroidery silk and rather coarse needle, alternately catch the two opposing edges. This makes an interlacing pattern.

* * * * * * *

As one progresses in the alternate stitches, which are at right angles to the edge which they merely catch, the thread is always put under the needle, so that in the progression it makes a weaving effect

* * * * * * *

Turn back the edges of the two pieces of material to be joined to a distance of about a quarter of an inch. Baste both pieces of goods to plain brown paper, seeing that they are from one-quarter to half an inch apart.

* * * * * * *

The basting thread shouuld run close to the edge of the goods to ensure its being held even. Taking alternate stitches through first one edge and then the other, with the thread so that it always crosses over the last stitch, continue throughout the lengh of the desired insertion turning any corners that may have been laid out in your pattern.

* * * * * * *

Any shaped piece can be fagotted in a plain surface. A circular one, crescent shaped, triangular, or any other chosen form, requires the same shaped piece to be cut out of the larger surface to make way for the new piece to be set in.

* * * * * * *

Beautiful trimming can thus be put to bed jackets of the new ripple crepe. It is very handsome for afternoon gowns, not too elaborate for either tailored waists or dresses for store or office wear, and has never been cheapened by too common usage.

* * * * * * *

It is a distinguishd way of putting a needle work touch to collar, cuffs, or jabot. It is one way of increasing the amount of surface covered by the material, and increases the size of seams instead of taking up goods and a form of trimming which sets well on the figure, molding to it without bulging.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

In people of a certain bodily type, especially middle-aged and elderly people there is considerable itching during the winter months.

The bodily type is that in which the skin is thin and silky in appearance. As atrophy of all layers of the skin occurs with the process of age, the condition is naturally worse in later life, and becomes increasingly bad as time goes on. Many elderly people are badly tortured with this condition, which, in large part, can be avoided.

The condition is aggravated by frequent bathing and by the use of strong soaps, and this is the lesson to be learned by people troubled by itching in the winter. Elderly people should give up the habit, if they have acquired it, of a daily bath during the winter months. Anyone who finds the skin irritated or with a tendency to itch during the winter, should also cut down on the number of baths taken.

The atrophy of the skin which occurs in this condition causes a diminution in the amount of secretion of the natural oil which lubricates the skin. This dryness leads to the irritable and itching sensations. Naturally, bathing and the use of soaps remove whatever there is of this oil and hence make the trouble worse.

Young people with vigorous, healthy skin and a great deal of natural secretion can afford to take a bath once a day all the year round, but after 45 it is advisable to reduce this in the cold months, and after 50 it should be still further reduced. After the age of 60, especially in those with thin, inelastic skin in which wrinkling gives an evidence of atrophy, it is well to reduce the number of baths all the year round, winter and summer included, and at the age of 70 one bath a week in the winter is quite sufficient, both for cleanliness and the sake of the skin's health.

Of course, this advice supposes that the itching of the skin is not actually due to any definite skin disease, especially itch-mites.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

Mrs. U. M.: "Does cow's milk tend to constipate babies? If so, what can be done to avoid it?"

Answer: Constipation in infants is a very complicated question. Frequently it is due to under-feeding. Cow's milk, on account of the relatively large amount of calcium caseinate in some milks, tends to delay the emptying of the intestine. Frequently more sugar is needed. The treatment of all these types of constipation requires patience and care in adjusting the food. The use of fruit and vegetable juices and barley or oat meal water, has long been effective in these conditions. Malt soup, as it is called, is often used with advantage. It is made as fololws: "Dissolve one and one-half to two tablespoons of malt soup extract in a half cup of hot water, adding enough cold water to cool the mixture. With the remaining cold water (one-half cup) mix one level tablespoon wheat flour sifted until it is free from lumps. Add one pint of milk to the salt soup mixture and pour both mixtures in a clean saucepan and bring to the boiling point slowly, stirring constantly. Simmer (not boil) for 20 minutes, then increase the heat and allow the mixture to boil for five minutes. Strain before using. If only one or two bottles of the malt soup formula are desired, the amount of the ingredients may be cut down according." (From Lucas).

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

There are some girls in this country who simply wouldn't dream of permitting their tresses to go without at least one shampoo a week. And yet oftentimes these same girls will allow their brushes and combs to go for weeks without cleansing them. As a result, such females seldom attain their full measure of hair beauty. For such a practice isn't consistent, isn't sanitary, and isn't conducive to hair health or loveliness.

As I remarked yesterday, brushing constitutes one of the greatest of hair beautifiers. But for proper brushing, one of the most essential factors is that the brushes used always be kept in a perfectly clean condition. For a good many hair ills can be traced to unclean hair brushes.

If a woman keeps a bowl or box of ordinary bran handy, she should not find it at all difficult to keep her brushes clean. For after each brushing, all she need do is to dip her brushes in the bran, rub the bran through the bristles and then remove all of it. This procedure cleanses the brushes most effectively.

And once a week, a thorough soap and water cleansing should be administered to insure absolute cleanliness. A bowl of tepid water and a bland soap should be used for this purpose. And several teaspoons of ammonia should be added to the water, in order to cut all grease. Brushes should then be rinsed in cold water, so that heir bristles retain their original stiffness.

And when thoroughly clean, brushes should be placed on their sides in the sun or a current of fresh air, in order to drain and dry.

Cleanliness of brushes is particularly important if a girl is afflicted with dandruff. For the tiny flakes of dandruff tend to adhere to brushes, and unless these articles are cleansed after use, the dandruff may be placed back on the scalp.

For perfect safety, the individual afflicted with dandruff should cleanse her brushes frequently with the tepid water, soap and ammonia, and should then also use a disinfectant. An excellent one for this purpose can be made of one teaspoon of formalin and a pint of clear water.

STAMP CORNER

By M. A. Bessey

Aitutaki, a little known island, among the ever-romantic islands of the South Seas. It is one of the larger of the Cook Island group, its area being approximately 1,400 square miles.

During the years 1903 to 1920, the stamps of New Zealand were overprinted with the name of the island and used there for postage, the entire Cook Island group having been annexed to New Zealand in 1901.

The two stamps illustrated are the low values of a distinctive set issued for Aitutaki in 1920. The half-penny is dark green, with the centre picture in black; the scene depicts the landing of Captain Cook on Aitutaki Island. The one penny has a carmine border with the centre picture again in black, on this we see the Avarua waterfront.

The balance of the issue consists of the one and one half penny, brown and black; threepenny deep blue and black; six-penny slate and red-brown; and the one-shilling claret and black. The one and a half penny shows a portrait of Captain James Cook, that famous navigator, explorer and adventurer of the South Seas, while the balance of the set show various interesting scenes.

This entire issue is still within the reach of practically any collector, as far as price is concerned, and they certainly make a fine looking little set of stamps.

Aitutaki is a country which may be completed very economically. There are, in all, only thirtysix major varieties of stamps issued and none of these is very expensive, although it is not always easy to locate some values. The most valuable stamp of the lot catalogs at $4

The stamps of Aitutaki were replaced by those of Cook Islands on March 15th, 1932, thus there will be no more new issues to worry about, and all issues that have been made up to that time, are practically sure to show an increase in value before very long.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

David Thompson, Calgary, Alta.

Q.—Are air mail covers without filling, or opened at the end, of any value?

Ans.—By all means: it is not necessary that a filler be put in an air mail cover. This is only done by collectors who specialize in these covers, and who send special envelopes for the flights. In such cases a filler of cardboard is practically necessary, as an empty envelope would quite likely become badly creased or torn. Some of the most valuable air mail covers have been opened to secure the letter they carried.

The value of a cover as far as its condition is concerned, depends principally upon the stamp being in good condition, and any post mark or cachets being complete and legible. It is, of course, desirable that the entire cover be as clean and in as good condition as possible.

The author will be pleased to answer all questions regarding stamps or stamp collecting. If your question is of general interest it will be answered in this column. If a written reply is necessary, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address your letter in care of this paper.

SUMMER RESORT FEARS FIREBUG

Three Homes Burn at Hamilton Beach, Adding to Recent Toll.

GUARDS SET.

HAMILTON, Jan. 30.—Fear that a pyromaniac may be at work on Hamilton Beach was expressed last night when another serious conflagration razed three houses on South Park Avenue.

Saturday night a Summer cottage at station nine, a few hundred feet from the scene of last night's fire, was discovered ablaze but was saved. A week ago three large homes on Warke Avenue were burned to the ground.

The toll since the end of the summer season, when the majority of residents of the Sandstrip returned to city homes, has reached an alarming total and more than ten homes with contents, involving a loss of $30,000 have been destroyed.

At first careless prowlers were blamed, but officials now regard the situation as being more serious and believe that a firebug is at work. Special precautions are being taken to guard the property.

Last night's fire was listed with the mysterious blazes of the past. Flames broke through the roof of a house owned by Mrs. W. Woodman and before firemen arrived the wind had fanned the tongues of fire to two adjoining houses. The names of the owners were not learned. The three places were burned to the ground with all furniture The total loss was estimated at $8,500.

OPENING GAME BIDS

An opening game bid trusts partner for two tricks. This is reasonable. An average dummy contributes three tricks. An opening game bid announces probable small support for any shift by partner. It also means not more than one or two defensive tricks. An opening game bid denies slam hopes, as only well fitting strength held by partner can be utilized. The hand below affords an excellent example of an opening bid of 4-Spades. Solid tops in hearts might prove to be useless in partner's hand. Only the Ace of diamonds would be worth a trick in dummy. Almost any high cards in clubs would prove valuable in dummy. But how is the partner to know which of three suits can assist the opening game bid?

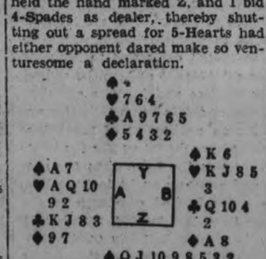
Spades— A K Q 10 7 6 4 2 Clubs— 9 8 6 2
Hearts— None Diamonds— 8

Although the next hand is a two-suiter, an opening bid of 4-Hearts should be made. It is improbable that the hand can go game at clubs unless it also can go game at hearts.

Spades— 5 Club— A K Q J 5
Hearts— K Q J 10 8 6 3 Diamonds— None

One reason for making an opening game bid is to deter opponents from bidding. If afforded an opportunity to get together it is probable that opponents may discover a game-going declaration.

Never mind quick trick, if you have game-going strength. I once held the hand marked Z, and I bid 4-Spades as dealer, thereby shutting out a spread for 5-Hearts had either opponent dared make so venturesome a declaration.



A had a mean choice to make of opening leads. He disliked leading from his major tenace in hearts. He dared not lead a club, that perhaps might enable both the Ace and Q of that suit to win against such an opening. He did not want to lead off his Ace of trumps, as it might save me the loss of a high spade honor. His safest lead appeared to be a diamond, and A led his 9. B's Ace won the trick.

It is ordinarily bad to lead from a minor tenace, but dummy having nothing to trap in hearts, B led his fourth-best card of that suit. Of course I had to trump the heart, and lead spades. All that A-B took were two trump tricks and one diamond trick. Had they played the hand at hearts I would have taken on diamond trick, and my partner would have taken one club trick. The pre-emptive bid gave us game, and it also prevented A-B from bidding their own game make.

Appointments Made Warkworth Church

(Examiner Correspondence)

WARKWORTH, Jan. 30. — The annual meeting of St. John's Anglican church was held in the Church on Tuesday evening when the rector, Rev. Floyd, of Campbellford, was in charge of the meeting.

The report of the church showed a credit balance of $19 and the report of the Ladies' Guild showed a credit balance of $105. This is considered an excellent report as there are only a very few families keeping up this Church.

Harry Brooks was appointed Ministers' Warden and Frank Meneilley was appointed People's Warden. Mr. Meneilley was also appointed delegate to the Synod. Ten dollars was voted to Missions by the Guild.

A vote of thanks was tendered the organist, Mrs. J. W. Mowat who made a suitable reply.

Orders Motorists To Get Licenses

During the past few days many local motorists returned to their parked cars in the business district to find a neat square of white paper stuck to their wind shield. The slip carries a message from Chief Newhall ordering the motorist to get his 1933 car license immediately.

The police notice is couched in the following words: "Your 1932 automobile license has expired. Do not drive your automobile any more in public places until you have obtained your 1933 automobile license."

Chief Newhall said, too, the notice carries its own warning and failure to secure the new car licenses will result in motorists appearing in court.

THE IRISH RESULTS.

For the first time Premier De Valera will have a clear majority over all in the Dail Eireann, and the Republican leader now is given a free hand to develop his plans for the complete separation of Ireland from the British Empire.

It was not a landslide by any means, for the opposition candidates polled enough votes to show that there is a considerable body of Irish citizens who are reluctant to cut adrift from the Empire, and who believe that the Free State's surest road to prosperity is to resume trade relations with England.

However, the Republican policies have carried the day; De Valera's appeal to emotionalism, his skilful linking up of the Cosgrave party with England, have been triumphant, a majority of the people of the Irish Free State have chosen to ignore their trade difficulties and trust to their country's ability to work out its own destiny.

A Republican Free State, bordered by a Northern Ireland still adhering loyally to the British Empire, represents possibilities for trouble that cannot be ignored, while a united Irish republic with the Free State and Northern Ireland in alliance seems beyond the bounds of possibility.

ELECTION TALK.

In the provincial political field a lively argument has developed over whether or not the Henry Government should go to the country this year, and as to the propriety or otherwise of that Government extending its term without a mandate to that effect from he people.

Speaking for the opposition, A. G. Slaght, K.C., declares that the measure of public opinion condemning the Government's actions in that regard will compel the Henry administration to hold an election this year.

On the other hand, Attorney-General Price retorts that the extension of the term of the Legislature was referred to by Mr. Ferguson during the last election campaign, and that when the matter came before the House no opposition to the change made its appearance.

Neither of these spokesmen, The Examiner submits, register a bull's-eye.

There is little indication that the people of Ontario are very much concerned over a provincial election, while, on the contrary, it is far-fetched on Mr. Price's part to seek to show that the extension of the Legislature's term was an issue in the last election.

The matter may have been mentioned once or twice by Mr. Ferguson, but it most certainly was not pushed to the front on any occasion and it played not the slightest part in the election campaign.

The only people greatly excited over election talk at this time are the active politicians who are beating the party drums with so much vigor that they mistake the noise for the voice of public opinion.

THE DETAILS ARE LACKING.

Miss Agnes MacPhail has no reason to complain of her reception in Peterborough.

She was given a splendid hearing by two large audiences, many members of which were enthusiastic in their welcome to the member for Southeast Grey, no one had the temerity to heckle the speaker, and the meetings were decidedly successful.

Miss MacPhail lived up to her reputation as a platform orator; she can handle a crowd, say things that register with her hearers, and utilize an effective barrage of sarcasm upon her political opponents in which by the way she includes both the old party groups.

Present conditions were skilfully used to stir the emotions of her audience, and the blame for everything from which we are now suffering aptly laid upon the doorstep of our political and economic system.

The thought that there was no salvation for Canada under the present methods of finance and government and that only through falling in line with the policies she stood for could utopia be attained was likewise implanted by the speaker.

It would be interesting, however, to cross-examine individual members of Miss MacPhail's audience to-day with a view to ascertaining how many can explain just how the promised transformation is to be brought about, for it must be admitted that there was a vagueness about the whole program that leaves most people out on the end of the limb when they are called upon to outline the proposed plan for Canada's rescue from the present depression.

There must be more to it than "soaking the rich" and using the printing press to produce more money, if it is to do half the things Miss MacPhail and other C.C.F. leaders promise.

AN IMPOSSIBLE SUGGESTION.

When Hon. Ian Mackenzie in a speech in Vancouver recently urged that tax free bonds should be made to pay immediate interest to the state, the Liberal member for Vancouver Centre was giving voice to a suggestion that is more or less often heard.

It may be that a mistake was made in the case of several of the Victory Bond issues in exempting the bonds from taxation; if the thing had to be done over again it is probable that these bonds would be taxed.

That, however, is not the point involved now.

These bonds Mr. Mackenzie referred to were sold tax-free, and because of that fact they commanded a better price.

Investors at that time had to decide whether even at a lower interest return the bonds were worth while, having regard to the tax-saving feature, and it was on that basis that they were willing to pay a higher price.

Having made that agreement and having accepted the better price, no Government having any regard for the sanctity of contracts or for the credit of the country could now repudiate the bargain and demand interest on bonds that were sold tax-free.

As the Financial Post expresses, the bond-holders are only getting what they paid for and the Governments are only granting that for which compensation was given.

When people are discontented it is easy to get cheers for such suggestions as this, but after all there is such a thing as national honor.

MIND'S MYSTERY.

Darkest of all puzzles is the mystery of what goes on sometimes in the tissues of the human brain.

A few weeks ago an Ohio farmer, 79 years old, shot himself through the head with a small calibre rifle in an attempt to commit suicide.

The bullet, lodging in his brain, should have killed him instantly; but for some reason it did not, and three weeks later he was still clinging tenaciously to life, desperately ill but not dying.

And somehow, because of what the little pellet of lead did to his brain cells, he was living in the world of his youth half a century ago. He did not know that he had tried to kill himself, didn't know that he was in bed.

He felt that he was at work, a young man, on a farm—driving a team of horses, plowing a field and so on.

To quiet him, a pair of lines was devised on his bed, so that he could hold them, as he lay there, and cluck to his horses until he fell asleep.

Now there is something eerie and fascinating about this tragic picture. Any man, in the fever of a severe illness, is apt to lapse into delirium. But this was something different.

A few mysterious bits of grey matter are destroyed or displaced, and an old man sloughed off half a century, left his sick bed and roamed the fields of his youth—what are we to make of it.

What mysterious, untraceable threads in the network of the brain were at work here?

What became of the man himself; where was he, the man and not his physical shadow, while all of this was going on?

These are questions, of course, either for a great brain specialist or for a metaphysician; and perhaps even they could only give us guesses. But the questions provide a fascination that comes only when one feels himself standing on the edge of a profound and significant puzzle.

Are we utterly at the mercy of the rounded convolutions of our brain furrows? Are we, essentially, those furrows and nothing more?

Or do we live beyond them, conditioned by them but ultimately independent of them?

The thought of this man, bed-ridden but free to re-live his youth, is a thing that provokes long and solemn speculation.—Vancouver Sun.

PITFALLS OF INFLATION.

(From the Sarnia Canadian-Observer)

The thoughtful address of W. H. Moore, M.P., before the Canadian Club here last week, revealed that gentleman's opinion that premeditated inflation is a precarious cure for the existing depression. He reinforced his arguments to that effect by presenting the case of Australia, where, he said, inflation had failed to produce prosperity, but had succeeded in intensifying the debt situation through heavy borrowing by the Government, and the depletion of old age pensions and mothers' allowance funds in the effort to balance the budget.

The inescapable inference was that if inflation in Canada produced the result now evident in Australia, it would prove very disappointing.

He also referred to the process of inflation practised in Russia and Germany. In the former country it had been a conspiracy to effect revolution and the upset of the existing order. In Germany it had reduced thrifty people of substance to the status of paupers and had brought the country to the brink of chaos. If it were adopted in Canada it might reduce the industrious and provident section of the population to poverty with the consequent evolution of acute Socialism and Communism.

Mr. Moore's analysis of inflation has occasioned serious thought among the citizens of Sarnia. Of course, the financial rearrangement involved in the manipulation of currency to produce what is known as inflation is so involved that it is difficult for anyone to gain an enlightening grasp of all the factors or to visualize possible results.

It is unfortunate that many people to-day are inclined to jump at any fantastic nostrum that pretends to offer an escape from the conditions that are oppressing us, failing to realize that, while some temporary relief may accrue, the subsequent events may prove even more disastrous then those of the present. In the declamations against governments, we are inclined to forget our individual responsibility for the unpleasant state of affairs. We are forgetful of our own tendencies to promote illegitimate prosperity, to incur unwarranted debts and to influence our governments into extravagant and unwise courses that we might have services and luxuries questionable even under the most exotic prosperity. No one was calling loudly for an application of the brakes when prosperity seemed to enshroud us like the beneficient sunshine. That was the time when the sentiments of caution and economy ought to have been enunciated. If we had exhibited one-tenth of the ardor for such action from 1925 to 1929, that is now displayed, we would have been in fairly good condition to meet the much milder depression that might have appeared.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Your donation to the Relief Fund is needed. The present situation gives a greater emphasis to the urgency of the appeal that is being made.

Parliament re-assembled at Ottawa to-day, and the balance of the session should prove of absorbing interest.

Even Miss MacPhail will have to admit that Canada has been able to make splendid progress under the party system of government.

The trouble with Parliament, according to the only woman in the House of Commons, is that the members do not think. It is difficult, however, to make many people believe that a person who believes cadet training develops a race of militarists is doing much thinking either.

"Soak the rich" and "print more money" would seem to be the basic principle of Miss MacPhail's new political system.

Having attended a soiree or something, the St. Thomas Times-Journal meanly suggests that this year's styles in ladies' dresses must have been set by Mahatma Gandhi. Perhaps. But the goat isn't like Gandhi's. This goat pays bills.—Toronto Star.

CHAPTER 29

Dorotha sat at the desk in her boudoir pouring over a sheaf of papers covered with mathematical calculations. She made one final addit on and then stared at the result.

Her breathing was heavy. She ran her fingers through her hair and gasped.

"That much!' she exclaimed. " didn't realize it wa so much."

She reached into a pigeonhole and drew forth a pile of cancelled checks. Quickly she ran through them, setting down the figures of each one on a sheet of paper. When he had finished she rapidly added up the column. Then she checked this total against the total of her previou calculation.

Dazedly, she stared at the two sets of figures. Then:

"One hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars!" she gasped. "It doesn't seem possible."

She pushed the papers back and quietly closed the desk. She went to the vanity and smoothed her hair and clothes. Quietly, she went into the drawing room and on to the front stoop, where she picked up the morning paper.

Opening it, her eyes fell on the screaming black headlines which told of Lillian Hull's confession to the murder of Richard Bailey and her being charged with the attack on Nanette LeRoi. A quizzical smile flashed across her countenance.

Without further ado she went into her employer' boudoir, drew back the curtains and raised the shades. The room was flooded with the mid-morning sunlight.

Nanette stirred sleepily and grumbled. But when she opened her eyes and saw Dorotha she bolted upright. Dorotha handed her the newspaper.

Hungrily, she read the account of Lillian's arrest and confession. She read with intense interest that portion of the article which dealt with Chivington's death. A self-confident gleam crept into her eye.

"It serves her right," she cried heatedly. "The little devil."

Dorotha smiled. "You're safe now," she exclaimed. "There's no need for you to go to the police this morning, as you said you would."

"No," Nanette returned musingly, "there isn't. I wonder—" Her words trailed off into silence.

"You wonder if it was she that left that fake message?" Dorotha supplemented hastily.

She had accomplished her purpose. The seed was planted. Nanettes eyes blazed angrily. The color mounted to her cheeks.

"She loved Bailey!" she cried. "She would do anything to hold him. I was taking him away from her. I was buying him w th my own money." She became almost fanatical. "I didn't want him. I wanted what he could do for me."

"Do you know how much you paid him since I came with you?" subtly. Nanette cast a question ng glance at her secretary.

"Do you?" she countered.

"I figured it up only this morning," with appropriate servility. "You gave Richard Bailey one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars."

Nanette gasped. "How much?" she asked, as if unable to believe what she had heard.

"One hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars," Dorotha repeated.

The actress' eyes contracted. Her lips grew thin and white. The color drained from her face.

Dorotha sat down on the edge of the bed. "You can't fool me, Nanette," she almost whispered. "I know you too well—perhaps as well as you know yourself."

The actress looked at the other querulously.

"Richard Bailey blackmai ed you out of that money," she went on, as if afraid someone might hear. "You didn't want Bailey. No. I know you didn't. You did want what he could do for you, but you didn' want even that enough to pay that price for it. He blackmailed you, Nanette, he exacted a price—"

"Yes, he did!" Nanette screamed. "He did blackmail me. He found out in some way about that affair in New Orleans. He made me pay his price for keeping silent. He knew it would ruin me. And," she added huskily, "he's paid for doing it, too."

Dorotha smiled enigmatically. "He paid dearly," she said quietly.

The actress caught the other woman's hand and squeezed it until Dorotha winced with pain. Fiercely, she demanded: "You're not going to tell, are you?"

"You know I'm not," Dorotha returned. "You have been my friend—"

"You have been more than a friend to me," Nanette interrupted. "You have been my confidante. When I could talk to no one else I could talk to you—to ease my mind."

"Of course," Dorotha agreed hastily.

Nanette gazed in her eyes for a moment. She was trying to say something, but the words would not come. But at last she found her voice.

"Dorotha, why did you ever come to Hollywood?" she blurted out. "You have often told me of your home — of your mother—"

The little blonde turned her eyes away from the other. A sob burst from her lips. Hastily, she wiped away a bit of moisture from her cheek.

"Just like you, Nanette," she said slowly, "I wanted the fame and fortune that the movies would bring to me—if I could be successful. That was after I won a beauty contest back home. I was vain. I thought the studios would throw open their doors to me. But I was wrong.

"I found Hollywood cold and hard. The price it would exact for giving me a chance was more than I wou d pay. I had been a stenographer and when I found that I could not break into the movies on ability alone I went back to my typewriter. I heard in a roundabout way that you needed a secretary and companion and so I came to you."

"Being alone in Hollywood, when there is so much laughter and gaiety about, is a heavy cross to bear," Nanette said sympathetically.

"Oh," quickly, "I wasn't alone at first. I had Buddy with me—"

"Your brother?"

"My sister. Buddy was my pet name for her. She is a pretty thing, about two years younger than I am."

"What became of her?" Nanette pressed her.

"She came home one night just as happy as a kid. She told me she was going to be married and that her hu band had a good job in the studios and that he had promised to make a star out of her."

"Did he?"

Dorotha scowled. "I never saw her after that." She hesitated and added: "But once."

"Why didn't you go to the man?"

"I didn't know who he was," hopelessly. "I didn't even know at which studio he worked. How was I to find out?"

Nanette drew her down on her bosom and held her close. Dorotha's soft body was wracked with sobs. She tried to comfort her, spoke soothing words to her.

"Oh, if I just had Buddy back!" she moaned. "Poor Buddy."

"You'll get her back some day," Nanette whispered. "She'll come back to you some day."

"No," brokenly, "I'm afraid she'll never come back!"

Nanette did not know what to say. What could she say at a time like this? There was nothing that was adequate.

"She was such a kid," Dorotha sobbed. "She didn't know what she was doing. She saw a great shining moon and she reached for it. But it was too far away."

The actress looked at the other querulously.

"Richard Bailey blackmai ed you out of that money," she went on, as if afraid someone might hear. "You didn't want Bailey. No. I know you didn't. You did want what he could do for you, but you didn' want even that enough to pay that price for it.

The actress caught her breath. What was Dorotha saying? "She saw a great shining moon and she reached for it. But it was too far away." Was that her own fate? Was the glittering moon of movie stardom too far away for her to reach?

Of course not! Why was she allowing such thoughts to creep into her mind? Had she not already managed to make herself the most talked-of woman in Hollywood? Had she not been promised a big part in Bailey's next picture?

In Bailey's next picture Bu Bailey was gone! Richard Bailey was dead! There would be no "next picture." What would be her fate? Had she reached for the moon and found it too far away?

The telephone rang. Dorotha jumped as if she had been shot. She gazed wildly about and then fled from the room.

Nanette stared after her, then, slowly, answered the 'phone. It was Rodolph Holmes.

"Nanette," he said, and his voice seemed harsh, "are you going to let an innocent girl suffer for Baileys' murder?"

ALL OF US

By MARSHALL MASLIN

TIMING IS LIVING

We live in time, time is our most precious possession, and timing is the secret of our success in anything we do.

A prizefighter told me that timing is necessary for hard punching. Without timing a man cannot throw his weight behind his fist. Without timing he cannot carry himself through a fight, saving his energy, spending it to the fullest, winning the encounter.

A golfer told me that timing is essential for a correct accurate and powerful swing in his favorite game.

• • •

I saw a small man playing a guard position on a football team. A sports writer told me that player's success was made possible by his uncanny gift of timing. Time gave him the power to hold off much bigger men or drive them out of the way.

• • •

Anybody knows that timing is important in cooking. If you ever tried to cook a simple meal you know what a mess you made of it because you didn't know how to bring everything hot to the table. (I learned that, for all time, when I tried to poach an egg and transformed it into rubber.)

• • •

Farming is timing. Pruning, spraying, cultivating, thinning, picking, so runs the orchardist's year.

• • •

Growing up is a matter of timing. Steadily, solidly we grow. Learning at the proper instant. Feeling at the right time. Acting at the right instant. Saving, spending, grieving, rejoicing, resigning, defying, accepting, receiving, living and dying, we go through life. And doing the wise thing at the right time is the secret of our best achievement.

HON. DUNCAN LOYD McLEOD

Minister of Municipal Affairs, Province of Manitoba, Agriculturist, Politician

This is the signature of a man who is by temperament non-aggressive, prudent, even inclining to be timid; by habit and training tending to be a conventional and routinous type. Although aspiration is inherent in him, he could readily content himself by recourse to his imagination with a status in life conventionally classified as obscure; for his imagination is of that sort that reads meaning and importance into the situation generally accepted as unpromising and obscure. He is the type of make up which, for the achievement of success in the worldly sense of the term must be stirred by the call of an idea or an ideal greater than that of the attainment of personal position and gain Infused with the ulterior strength of such idea or ideal he generates aggressiveness, the one element he lacks, and develops his native faculty for resolution. He is naturally energetic; he has a clear, deliberate thinking mind. He possesses the qualities of constancy, orderliness, continuity and integrity. He is therefore well qualified for the incidental achievement of personal position and authority.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Unsettled by predictions of Moisture in domestic winter wheat areas southwest and by uncertainties of Legislative developments at Washington, grain prices headed downgrade Saturday.

Wheat price setbacks were in the face of railroad reports indicating likelihood of the heaviest domestic winter crop abandonment in years. Enlarged export buying of Canadian wheat failed to act as a stimulus and was attributed to lameness of Canadian funds.

Losses Small.

Wheat closed unsteady, ¼c-½c under Friday's finish, corn ⅝c-⅞c off, oats unchanged, and provisions varying from 2c decline to a rise of 15c.

French critics regard Edgar Allen Poe as the father of the short story.

THE MARKETS

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Jan. 30.—Week-end trade on the local produce market was not very active, and supplies of butter accumulated to a fair extent with prices steady with those of Friday. Local brokers quoted new makes at 20½c to 20¾ for No. 1, and 20¼c for No. 2. Choice Ontario solids and Western were offered at 21c, but there was small movement of this quality. Wholesalers offered creamery prints to the trade at the steady levels of 24c for No. 1 and 23c for No. 2.

Cheese

There was a fair to good demand for cheese, and prices were firm with those quoted earlier in the week. Brokers moved new makes at 10c for large, 10¼c for twins, and 10½c for triplets. Quotations to the trade were steady with the recent advances at 11½c for new large, 11¾c for new twins, 12c for new triplets and 14c for new stiltons.

Receipts of eggs from Ontario districts were heavy, but the demand was stimulated by the low prices, and the movement was good. Country shippers were quoted 15c to 17c for extras, 13c to 15c for firsts and 11c to 12c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned. Quotations to retailers were steady at 24c for extras, in cartons; 22c for extras, loose; 20c for firsts, loose, and 17c for seconds loose. Brokers offered graded eggs in free cases, at 18c for extras, 16c for firsts, and 15c for seconds.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Jan. 30.—Lighter receipts, coupled with increased consumer demand and steadier markets in other cities, enabled fresh egg prices to turn upward on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market at the close of last week.

After two months of steady declines during which prices had dropped 30c a dozen, the recovery movement started Friday, following fresh extras touching 18c a dozen Thursday. The cent advance recorded Friday was continued Saturday, when prices gained another cent. Despite the 2c recovery, prices were down 4c to 5c a dozen from the previous week.

Fresh extras, in carlots or less, finished the week at 20c, while firsts or pullets were 18c a dozen. Receipts for the week totalled 8,889 cases, as compared with 9,936 cases the previous week.

Butter lost ¼c during the week, carlots or less of No. 1 grass make being quoted at 20½c to 20¾ a pound. Little anxiety was felt concerning the shipment of New Zealand butter that arrived at Vancouver at the end of the week on account of the small quantity. Last week's receipts were 799 boxes.

With off-season trading again prevailing, prices were steady. Current receipts of Ontario white were quoted at 9c, colored at 10c and early season make at 10½c to 11¼c a pound. Receipts last week were 281 boxes.

Potatoes declined 5c. New Brunswick Green Mountains, per 80-lb. bag, being quoted at 80c; Prince Edward Island Green Mountains, per 80-pound bag, at 85c, and Prince Edward Island Green Mountains, per 90-pound bag, at 95c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, January 30. — Moderate export business out of Vancouver was responsible for the steadiness that appeared in a narrow week-end market here on Saturday ,and wheat prices closed the session unchanged to ⅛c lower.

May cloed at 46⅜c, July at 47¼c, and October at 48¼c.

Offerings were light and hedging sales negligible. Outside markets, too, were firm.

The spread between Canadian No. 2 Northern and the Argentine wheat was 5½c at Liverpool, but the margin does not absorb the difference in quality between the two grains.

Australian prices are being held above those of Manitoba, so that Canadian wheat is still the cheapest wheat offered in quantity in the world markets.

Usual dullness prevailed in cash wheat and coarse grains trading.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

On this date, in 1856, Queen Victoria conferred the first title upon a native Canadian scientist. William E. Logan, born at Montreal, of United Empire Loyalist stock, in 1798, he was educated at the University of Edinburgh, but after some years in business in England he made up his mind to return to Canada. Just at that time he received an offer to found a geological survey for this country and was thus able to repatriate himself. The Geological Survey of Canada was instituted in 1843, a grant having been voted for the purpose and Mr. Logan was chosen as its director. He served in that capacity until November 30, 1869, when he retired to live in seclusion at Montreal until his death June 22, 1875. The first report of the Survey, that for 1843, is out of print, but all the others, except one or two which were destroyed when the Parliament House at Montreal was burned in 1849, are at Ottawa, having been transferred to the capital, together with the museum in 1881. These reports are accepted as the bible of geology in Canada. Logan's work having been skilfully seconded by his successors, A. R. C. Selwyn, G. M. Dawson, Dr. Brock and other distinguished scientists.

Sir Williams' memory was honored by his name being given to the highest peak in Canada and the second highest in Northern America, 19,850 feet, in the Yukon 21 miles east of the international boundary, Mount Logan, a fitting tribute to our first native born scientist of British blood.

Demand was limited for the base metal shares, Noranda and Nickel showing little if any change. In the silvers, a firmer tone ruled.

In the penny group Barry Hollinger, Bobjo, Canadian Kirkland and Brett were up from ¾ to 1½ each.

THAW SWEEPS OVER ENGLAND

Ten Days of Frost Gives Countryside Chance for Skating Parties.

PRINCES TAKE PART.

LONDON, Jan. 30 (C.P. Cable). — After ten days of severe frost which saw much of the countryside covered with snow and provided ice for skating enthusiasts, England has returned to rain and mist. A general thaw swept the country yesterday afternoon and to-day mist and rain prevail.

There were many skating parties during the week. On Saturday the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York were skating at Windsor Park and mingled freely with the crowd.

The ice in Braxted Park in Essex was utilized in quaint fashion. Parishioners decided to hold the morning church service on the ice. The surface was held, but ominous creakings caused some of the congregation to leave early.

Only one game was played of the English Rugby Union, due to the severe frost existant in most districts where matches were scheduled.

ALLANTHORBURN DIES SUDDENLY

Niagara Falls Druggist Was Well Known in Peterbrough.

PROMINENT CHURCHMAN.

NIAGARA Falls, Jan. 30.— The entire community was shocked when it became known of the sudden passing of one of its outstanding business men, Mr. Allan Cameron Thorburn. Mr. Thorburn attended and had taken part in the annual meeting of the Lundy's Lane United Church congregation the evening before and shortly before the close of the session collapsed. He was taken into the church and attended by Dr. Harris Logan and rushed to his home in an ambulance, death occurring soon after he reached the house.

Mr. Thorburn was born in Cayuga and has lived in this city for the past forty years. Thirty-five years ago he opened the Lundy's Lane Pharmacy at the corner of Lundy's Lane and Main Street and during the past three decades had opened three branch stores. Largely through his efforts the Centre shopping area was created and a similar condition developed at Stamford after he opened a branch store there. A few years ago he purchased a drug store on Queen street, adding it to his branches.

Mr. Thorburn attended the University of Toronto, graduating in 1891. He was one of the original directors of the Drug Trading Company of Conada, and was a member of Lookout Golf & Country Club.

In 1922 he married Miss Alexandrena Margaret Taylor, who survives him with their son and daughter, Mrs. W. Robertson Caven and W. Hamilton Thorburn, both of Toronto. Three brothers and a sister, James of Lamonte, Alberta; William of Gore Bay; Donald of Brantford; and Mrs. Eliza McArthur of Caledonia, also survive. Mrs. W. H. Hill, Peterboro is a sister-in-law.

The deceased was a very active worker in Lundy's Lane United Church and a member of the official board.

The funeral was one of the largest ever held in this city. It was conducted by the Rev. George A Little, of the head office of the United Church of Canada in Toronto, and Rev. Orr Bennett secretary of the Niagara Presbytery.

The official board of Lundy's Lane United Church of which Mr. Thorburn was a member, attended in a body and formed a guard of honor at the home and cemetery. The druggists of the city also attended in a body and a guard of honor was formed by the members of the staff of the Thorburn Drug Stores.

The bearers were: Frank McArthur, of Guelph; Donald McArthur, of London; Frederick Hills and J. Fordyce Strickland of Peterborough; Alex Thorburn and Cameron Thorburn, of Brantford; all nephews of Mr. Thorburn and William E. Combe and Clarence Misener of the Thorburn staff.

The honorary bearers were James McGregor of Caledonia; A. Marland Woolnough, of Toronto; George Tough, of Bracebridge; Dr. James Caven, of Toronto; Dd. H. Y. Grant, this city; A. B. Wilson, of Hamilton; S. A. Jacobs, of Toronto and J. H. Arkell, J. B. Gallinger, Dr. H. Logan, Dr. W. W. Thompson of the city; Robert Strong and Norman Gilson, of Niagara Falls, N. Y.

sums have probably been hesitant because they could not give more. In this appeal the spirit of the citizens as a community is an important factor.

If you can give one dollar you should remember that with the government's "two for one" assistance your dollar will put three dollars into the Fund. A contribution of five dollars actually amounts to $15 being made available for local relief.

One hundred persons giving $5 each, if they cannot give more for the relief of neighbors who are unable to help themselves in the present circumstances, will not only add $500 to the Fund but also another $1,000 from the government.

Contributions should be left with Frank Adams, city treasurer

DEPARTMENT OF INSURANCE WORK OUTLINED

Charles C. Johnson Addresses the Peterborough Underwriters.

GREAT OPPORTUNITIES.

Organization is Service Club of Great Value in the Community.

The work of the Provincial Department of Insurance, of which he is chief agency officer, was outlined to members of Peterborough Branch of the Life Underwriters' Association of Canada, at a luncheon at Hooper's Restaurant today, by Charles C. Johnson of Toronto.

N. J. Wootten, newly elected president of the local branch of the association, presided and commented favorably on the attendance at the meeting. There were approximately fifty members of the branch present. One of the guests of the function was Mr. McKenzie, superintendent of the Eastern section of the Dominion Life Assurance Company, who was present with I. P. McNabb, the company's manager for Central Ontario District.

Mr. Johnson spoke of the work of his department in its relation to the work of the life underwriter and the insuring pubic. Touching upon the licensing of agents, he stated that while the actual licensing was in the hands of the Department of Insurance, the actual appointment of the agents was made upon recommendation of the companies themselves.

He stressed the responsibility that went with the appointment of life insurance underwriters, and also spoke of the opportunities the companies had of improving the high standards of the insurance business through careful and discreet selection of representatives. There was never such a time, he believed, when so many good men were available for selection in this field of endeavor.

Relative to the appointment and licensing of agents, he described the functions of the Advisory Board, by whom such applications were considered, and who also had the power to revoke licenses of agents for various reasons.

Among some of the causes for which the Advisory Board might revoke a license he said, were rebating, misrepresentation, dishonesty and switching or twisting.

He referred to switching, as a means by which some agents will endeavour to have an insured person cancel a policy they have already in force with another company, in order that the agent might re-write the insurance for the sole purpose of making a commission for himself.

It was one of the biggest evils of the business, he said, and if allowed to go on would bring about ruin of the business. Switching is not an offence under the Insurance Act he remarked, although it is an offence for which the Advisory Board may cancel or revoke an agent's lincense.

The practice of switching was not only a menace to the life underwriters, but also to the insuring public. Mr. Johnson did not wish it to be believed that he thought any life underwriter who was trying to live up to the ideals of the business would be guilty of such an offence. The two were not compatible.

"We are seeking to claim for life underwriters" he stated, "a professional standing the same as that enjoyed by the legal and medical and other professions."

"What your president has said regarding this Associaiton as being a service club of great value to the community."

Mr. Johnson briefly touched upon the Sucession Duty Act, and invited discussion on the subject. He was accorded a vote of thanks on motion of E. L. Sackville, district manager Manufacturers Life Insurance Company, seconded by Lionel Scott, branch manager Imperial Life Assurance Company.

It was decided on motion of John I. Allen, superintendent Prudential Insurance Company that future meetings of the branch will be held on the last Monday in each month at noon.

HEN-PECKED

ROCHESTER, Ind.—Mrs. John Hansel is hen-pecked. When she stopped to pick up an egg, a hen pecked at her face. She may lose the sight of one eye.

A Cross-Breed

SUDBURY, Ont., Jan. 30 (C.P.).—Zoologists are scratching their heads and wondering whether Bunty, an animal owned by Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Carmichael here, is a cat or a rabbit. Bunty has a small cat face, big ears, the long hind legs of a rabbit, and no tail.

He hops like a rabbit, sits up on his hind legs like a rabbit, and can jump as high as the door. But he mews like a cat, laps milk like a cat and chases mice like a cat. His brothers and sisters in the same litter were quite normal—cats.

2ND BATTALION CHURCH PARADE

ing of the colors of the 2nd Battalion in sanctuary. This year's service was of particular interest in view of the fact that since the last service the battalion battit honors have been affixed to the colours.

Former members of the battalion were present from Peterborough, Ottawa, Belleville, Lindsay, Oshawa and other parts of Central Ontario from which district the battalion was recruited.

The Peterborough Rangers regiment which has the honour along with the Governor General's Foot Guards, of perpetuating the memory of the 2nd Battalion provided a large detachment of officers and men, which also included the drum and bugle band.

Other units and organizations represented at the service, included the Durham Regiment; the Ontario Regiment, Bowmanville Branch of the Canadian Legion and the Legion Band.

Impressive and solemn the service was conducted by the Rev. A. S. Kerr, M. A., minister of the church, and the edifice was filled to capactiy for the occasion.

Prior to the parade moving off from Bowmanville Town Hall, a brief ceremony of remembrance was held at the Cenotaph, where Colonel Lorne T. McLaughlin, C. M. G., D. S. O., former commanding officer of the Iron Seccon" deposited a wreath on behalf of the 2nd Battalion and in memory of our fallen comrades," after which buglars sounded 'Last Post" and "Reveille."

During the course of the service the Colonel also addressed words of welcome to his former comrades in arms, and outlined a brief historical sketch of some of the achievements of the battalion on the battle fields of France.

Half Major Engagements.

He pointed out that although the Canadian Corps were only allowed to carry ten battle honours on their colours that number only represented about half of the major engagements of the war in which the 2nd Battalion covered itself with glory and distinction.

Of the six thousand men who passed through the ranks of the 2nd battalion, Colonel McLaughlin stated, 1,265 officers and other ranks were killed in action or had died of wounds.

Referring to the recent affiliation of the 2nd Battalion Veteran's Association with 2nd Australian, the Colonel said, "I would ask you also at this time to remember the 1,250 men from that Australian unit who gave their lives in the Great War."

Peterborough Represented.

Among those attending the parade from Peterborough, and who have the double distinction of being former members of the 2nd Battalion and present members of the Peterborough Rangers Regiment were: Lieut-Colonel G. G. Winterbottom, M.C., D. C. M., Captain E. E. Nicholls, M. C., D. C. M. Lieut James McGrath, Sergeant Harry Kelsey, M. M., Croix de Guerre (Belgian).

Other members of the old 2nd Battalion from Peterborough also included: Lieut.-Colonel C. W. Ackerman, past president of the Canadian Legion, Provincial Command, R. S. M. Jack Playford, and S.Q. M. S. Tom Griffin, now both of the Prince of Wales' Canadian Dragoon; and Privates Bill Simmons, Albert White and Sergeant Allan Wade.

There were also present Captain and Adjutant George Melton; Captain Fred Hart; C. S. M. Joseph Gaskell and Bugle Sergeant W. Stuart, D. C. M., and other ranks from the Peterborough Rangers Regiment.

Danger of Forgetting

The Rev. A. S. Kerr expressed appreciation on behalf of his congregation in the honour of having the colours of the battalian entrusted to their safekeeping. "These are occasions", he said, "when the memory is stirred. We are so often face to face with the danger of forgetting".

He remarked that the service was one which was dedicated to the sacred duty of remembrance. It brought back memories of a yesteryear of comradeships that were formed among men while labouring under handicaps in the common cause. More specifically, said the speaker, did memory arise of those comrades who gave their all.

Memory consecrated things of the past, making them more dear and precious as seen in perspective of the years, and in the light of memory, he said, "it is our duty to see that this land is made worthy of the sacrifices that were made. It is our duty to see that this is made to be a land where justice and brotherhood prevail—a land where men and women are devoted to the public good. We have a long way to go yet before our land is made worthy of those sacrifices. Let us think of that".

The Reverend speaker also believed that the memory of the fallen dead should make the cause of peace a more sacred and hallowed thing. He pointed out forcefully that those men had responded to a challenge to engage in "war to end war".

"That was the rallying cry", he exclaimed, "and it was to that call that our men came. We must not regard the ideal of peace as an impossible dream, to do so would be to betray their trust and to be untrue to the ideal back of their sacrifice", he said.

"In the light of memory France and Canada are consecrated lands; and in the light of memory it is easier for us to live more worthy lives and to believe in the immortality of the soul", he concluded.

Before the parade was dismissed in front of the Cenotaph, Colonel R. D. Ponton of Lindsay, now Judge of Victoria and Haliburton and Colonel Ackerman of Peterborough addressed the members of the 2nd Battalion, after which Colonel McLaughlin re-echoing the sentiments expressed by the two previous speakers urged the men to face their present difficulties with the same spirit of bravery and sacrifice they had displayed during the war years.

FAVOR NURSING COURSE.

ST. THOMAS.—Hearty endorsation was given at the meeting here of district No. 1 of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario to the new school of nursing being started at the University of Toronto. The letter explaining the plan was ordered sent on to superintendents of nurses' training schools for consideration.

Relief Well Handled in Peterborough—

Mr. Malcolm complimented Peterborough on the manner in which relief is being administered in this city. "I think you are handling everything here most commendably, and doing splendid work. You deserve congratulations, and I think Peterborough could be set up as an example to many other places."

Now! Make An Investment That Will Amount to Something—

In the past four or five years many an investment was made which was then thought to be made wisely, but which has since turned out to be valueless. Whole savings in some instances and portions of individual wealth was recklessly transferred to high pressure promotion in a mad rush for fortune—all of which is regrettably recalled.

There is, however, still another investment that may be made in the community effort to raise funds for our own unemployed and their dependents. Such an investment will in a different way bring returns many times over and will not be entirely lost as it will serve to lighten the burden of taxes and brighten the homes of those in need.

DANGER LURKS FOR WORKMEN RADIUM PLANT

Utmost Precautions Taken in Port Hope Refinery Against Deadly Emanations.

EVEN AIR POISONED

(By Jack Hambleton, C.P. Staff Writer.)

PORT HOPE, Ont., January 30.—Every precaution has been taken to assure the safety of workmen in Canada's only radium refinery, which is now operating here. For radium, although perhaps the greatest cancer-cure known, is deadly poison.

From the radium, gas emanates constantly. Too, there are radiations which burn. Hence, precautions are necessary. In the tiny tubes containing the mineral are fine platinum wires which "ground" the radiations. And fans everywhere carry the poisoned air from the factory and laboratory to the outdoors

Even the pitchblende, the tarlike substance from which the mineral is derived, is dangerous because of its dust. That is why, according to M. L. Ponchon, French scientist, who is in charge of the local refinery, miners at Great Bear Lake use wet drills. That is why, too, men who grind the pitchblende at the factory here will operate their machines only one day in seven weeks.

Each Saturday, Mr. Pochon explained to the Canadian Press, two men will be taken from the plant to grind the week's supply of pitchblende. And the same two men will only be required to perform their dangerous duty once in seven weeks.

"Could the miners and grinders not wear masks?" he was asked.

"Yes, they could. But if you know men, you know the answer. They would wear the masks while we were there, but just as soon as we left, the masks would be discarded," he replied.

Looks Like Tar.

He stalked into a darkened building. There were piles and piles of pitchblende, stacked in small bags. It felt and looked like tar, crushed into pieces about the size of furnace coal. It looked ordinary, harmless.

"That," said Mr. Pochon, "is radium in bulk. There are about seven grams in that pile. We have not yet installed the fans."

"Fans? Why Surely that isn't dangerous? Those bags are harmless, are they not?" the reporter asked.

"Well—I wouldn't want to sleep in there overnight," said Mr. Pochon.

For more than 20 years he has dared death in handling this dangerous substance. Five men started the study of radium with him in Paris. He is the sole survivor. The rest died from pernicious anaemia and cancerous conditions brought about by inhaling radium emanations and by subjecting themselves to its radiation.

"I am not afraid of radium," he said, "because I am very careful. Radium is highly dangerous. The slightest fraction of a milligram taken into the system leads to cancer, anaemia, and diseases of the hip bones. Not a doctor on earth can save the unfortunate person who is afflicted. But I never felt better in my life."

All the final processes are carried out in the laboratory, which is entirely separated from the factory itself. The radium is stored in a lead-lined safe in the laboratory, too. And no one but the chemists who fully understand the danger will be allowed in that laboratory.

COUNTY COUNCIL CUTS ROAD RATE

Council that Mr. Chalmers was not being overpaid for his service, and that he had been the means of saving the County a considerable sum of money since he was appointed last April. Entire confidence was expressed in the County Road Superintendent, the Warden remarked, "When we hired Chalmers it was a good stroke of business and he has given us outstanding service."

The report of the Finance committee was adopted with an amendment providing for a grant of $150 for the local Board of the Red Cross Outpost Hospital at Apsley. The appeal on behalf of the hospital was ably voiced by Reeve Brown of Burleigh-Anstruther.

Among a sheaf of by-laws that were passed in open Council were those providing for construction and maintainence of county highways in 1933; one authorizing for the borrowing of money for current expenditures; one to provide for the borrowing of a sum of $18,619.69, to provide for current liquidation of debentures for 1933; one to borrow certain sums for the Provincial Highway Bill of 1932; one to borrow $90,000 for Suburban and County roads in 1933.

Highway Bill

Regarding the Highway Bill which the Council received from the Department of Highways, Reeve Ferguson of Asphodel called attention to the item for maintainence and construction on that section of Highway No. 7 from Concession 2 to Concession 11 Asphodel.

The only construction he knew of on that section, he said, was the subway at Norwood. He reminded the Council that at a special meeting early last year the County had undertaken to pay their share of the cost on condition that the Government could receive a sum of $30,000 from the Grade Crossing Fund, which was to be deduced from the cost of construction before the County's 20 per cent. share was figured out. He believed that that course had not been taken, in figuring out the cost to the county.

On motion of Reeve Ferguson, seconded by Deputy Reeve Davidson, it was decided that the matter be taken up with the Minister of Highways when the members of the Council were in Toronto attending the Good Roads Convention. The question involves a matter of about $6,000 to the County, it was stated.

The bond security in respect to the County Clerk and Treasurer was the sole subject of discussion at the morning session.

The subject was introduced by Reeve W. A. Anderson when the whole Council were in Committee on Finance, under chairmanship of Reeve Ernest Leeson, and on motion of Reeve C. S. Tanner, seconded by Warden McIntosh, it was recommended to the Council that the bonds of the treasurer be carried out according to the new requirements of the law, and that the previous arrangement regarding the payment of premiums be allowed to remain in force. The motion carried.

In opening discussion on the subject Reeve Anderson made it quite clear that he had absolutely no reason to doubt the honesty and ability of the Clerk and Treasurer. It was merely a matter of reviewing the situation in view of certain amendments that had recently been made in the legislation regarding such matters.

It was now required that the bonds be deposited each year with the County Crown Attorney, presumably in order that they might be forwarded to the proper authorities for verification. Mr. Elliott is at present bonded in a total sum of $15,000.

Reeve Anderson suggested the advisability of increasing the amount of the bond to $25,000, but his amendment to the motion did not receive any support, and was accordingly withdrawn.

Hastings

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Association of Trinity United Church was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Albert Brooks. The attendance was good and after the opening devotional period, and prayer by Mrs. H. J. Bell, the usual business was transacted. Due to the resignation of Mrs. Gordon Faux as president, Miss Mae Huycke was elected to fill the vacancy. Several matters of business were discussed, among them being arrangements for a banquet to be served at the Conservative convention, to be held in Hastings in the near future. The following program was then enjoyed: Reading, Mrs. H. J. Bell; duet, Mrs. M. J. Baker and Miss M. Huycke; reading, Mrs. H. Orr. The Mispah Benediction then closed the meeting.

Although inclement weather prevailed on Thursday afternoon, it did not prevent the ladies of the village from attending an afteroon tea held at the home of Miss Della Plant, sponsored by the Woman's Auxiliary of St. George's Church. A large crowd was present to spend a social hour, and partake of the delightful refreshments provided. The guests were received by Mrs. H. F. Battersby, president of the Auxiliary, assisted by the hostess, Miss Plant. Mrs. Roy King had charge of the door, Miss M. Battersby, Mrs. L. Scriver, Mrs. T. Curel, Mrs. Garside, Mrs. Jeffries and Mrs. Blackbourne capably attended to the serving of the tea. A goodly sum was realized from the proceeds.

A play, "Home Ties" will be presented by St. James' Dramatic Society of Peterborough in the Town Hall on Friday evening, Feb. 3, in aid of the relief fund. The relief committee are hoping a good crowd will be present to help towards this worthy cause.

Mrs. M. J. Baker entertained the choir of Trinity United Church at her home on Thursday evening. After the usual practice the hostess served a dainty lunch.

JIG-SAWS POPULAR.

KITCHENER, Ont.—This jig-saw puzzle craze which has now displaced cross-word puzzles and yo-yo in the affections of Canadian citizens has at least brought about increased employment at least locally. One concern with a plant in Galt and another here is working 24 hours a day turning out the puzzles.

TRENT RIVER.

The Hydro employees completed the work of placing the additional high tension line from Old Havelock Corners to Sedgwick House on Friday morning.

Messrs. John A. Ruttan and R. W. Umphrey, church auditors, were engaged for several nights previous to the annual meeting auditing the books of the various organizations for the year.

Messrs. George Armstrong and Gerald Buchanan, students at the Normal School, Peterborough, were at their respective homes over the week-end.

The February meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the United Church will be held Wednesday afternoon at the church.

Mrs. John Scott, Miss Doris, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Wight and son Herman were Friday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Wight.

COLLECTIVISM IN PALESTINE IDEAL SAY JEWISH MOTHERS

as in the Soviet country, it must be said, the children's homes are models of cleanliness and hygiene. The school buildings would do credit to Vienna, which has the finest school buildings in the world. The instruction is modern; manual training goes hand in hand with intellectual study. This is a labor colony, you see. Work is here taught as something ennobling, something worth while and not as something to be despised and fled at the earliest possible opportunity. Work is to be loved for its own sake, not for the material prosperity it might bring.

Philosopher Is Cook.

Meals are eaten in large mess halls. The cook who presides over one of the communal kitchens and who fixed me up with a snack of boiled carrots and good black peasant bread with cheese turned out to be a doctor of philosophy from Heidelberg. He is the author of a volume on the social theories of Auguste Comte. Since coming to Palestine seven years ago, he has acquired Hebrew and has become a distinguished contributor to the publication of the Semitics Department of Columbia University.

He had a few bottles of excellent Palestinian wine to top off the meal and we did not separate till dawn. His wife is one of the "professional mothers" at the children's home. They have a little cabin, where they sleep. Together they took me over to the home to have a chat with the women in charge of the childrens institution. his lady's name was Hadassah, which is Hebrew for Esther.

When we had talked for a while of people we both knew in America and Russia, I said to Esther: "Do you realize that Ain Charod has not a very good reputation and that the masters of the world's game condemn your experiment, as thy condemn everything in the Soviet country, because you separate children from their mothers and do other horrible things of that sort; for instance, the practice of free love? What is your answer to this?"

"In this colony, she said, "We are farmers. But we are all newcomers to agriculture. We come from the sombre cities of Poland and Roumania and czarist Russia. We have a lot to learn and we make many mistakes to this day. When we are at work in the fields or in our small factories we must leave our children at home. This is inevitable. Our homes are for the time being mere shacks. So at the outset we first built a childrens home and we put in charge women trained in child welfare, nurses and a few doctors. It cost us every cent we had and for years we went hungry and scantily dressed for our ideal. But we got it done. The children are our best investment in this colony and we want them to have an upbringing free and untrammelled, clean and with lots of food, such as we never had ourselves. We want them to learn to play in the sunshine, because we never played ourselves in the dark ghettoes of Kattowitz and Lodz and Vilna. We cannot give them these opportunities individually, but collectively we have succeeded to build up a system of child education that is a model not only in the Near East, but in many European and American city as well.

Reclaimed From the Gutter.

"Did you ever notice," went on this Jewish woman, "did you ever notice what becomes of the children of proletarians in the great cities of Europe?"

I said that I was familiar with the spectacle of London's terrible slums, with the Wedding district of Berlin and the Faubourge St. Martin in Paris.

'What becomes of the children in these places?' she insisted.

"They go to the gutter! No questtion about it!" I said.

"Well, here they don't go to the gutter," she came back. "Here they are looked after. There are no sordid taprooms here and other degrading establishments of the kind you see in the slums of London, Paris, Warsaw, Madrid and Lisbon, spectacles with which the impressionable mind of the young is too quickly filled and forever tainted in European cities. Our children live a healthy life, free of care. It is time enough for them to worry when they grow up to take their places in the battle of life and to find out the disillusions of life.

"We separate ourselves from our children because it is better so. We see them every night if we want to.

"We don't care," she added testily, whether the masters of the world's game say that we are undermining the family and violating the mother instinct. As soon as those masters of the world's game have set up standards—not merely in theory, but in reality—standards that do away with the slum and the saloon and the brothel, with their debasing influence on children, as soon as they do that we are willing to compare results. Until that time we will go on with this so-called crime of undermining the family in order to build up better human lives."

The streets and avenues of the colony were full of men and women, talking and singing, when I left in the evening after hearing a debate on the philosophy of Tolstoy by two of the Jewish farmers.

ENGLISH LINE EGG CIRCLE MAY CONSIDER LINKING WITH EMPIRE

Empire Co-operative Plan Outlined at Annual Meeting of Organization.

R. H. ASHTON SPEAKS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 30 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — An ambitious project, the aim of which it to unite Empire farmers in one large co-operative organization, has been launched in England under the name of The Empire Farmers' Co-operative Limited, which has been registered under the Industrial and Providence Societies Act, with head office in London, England, and if present anticipations materialize the English Line Egg Circle of Seymour Township will become an arm of this movement, through its affilation with the Central Ontario Co-operative Limited, which at present is under consideration and for which purpose a committee was appointed to attend the annual meeting of the latter body for the purpose of taking up consideration of this Empire project.

Much discussion of this phase of Empire marketing was featured at the annual meeting of the Egg Circle held on Saturday in the Campbellford Public Library and presided over by E. J. Bonney. The idea of linking up with the Empire in connection with the sale of eggs on the British market was put to the meeting by R. H. Ashton of Belleville, who has recently returned from the Old Country, where he has studied the egg situation, and who put to the large gathering his findings.

Officers Elected

The election of officers for the year resulted as follows: Honorary president, W. H. Locke; president, E. J. Bonney (elected); vice-president, Harry Barnum; secretary, Wm. McKelvie; directors, Mrs. Herbert Tinney, Mrs. Fred Todd, Mrs. M. McKelvie, Mrs. W. Stephens, Mrs. W. McDonald; auditors, Lindsay Anderson and Blythe Nelson; special committee to attend the Belleville convention: the president with Herbert Tinney, Percy Oddie, and W. H. Locke.

Speaking on the new movement in England, Mr. Ashton stated that its policy is the co-operation of all farming interests into one large co-operative organization, to bring farmers into closer touch with consumers of their produce, to develop present markets and to encourage trade within the Empire while extending trade outside and opening new markets.

The society seeks to avoid overlapping of effort and needless expense, he said, as well as to increase business efficiency by amalgamating local co-operative associations throughout the Empire by taking them into membership. It is thus that it is starting proceedings, and is already in negotiations with several co-operative concerns in Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. Present co-operative undertakings, however, are far from being its only aim. Its objective is, having established a nucleus, to bring all farmers into the fold. It is not going into the field as a rival of present undertakings, but as a co-ordinating and developing organization.

The rules call for the full control of the society by the members who actually do business through it. The dividend on capital is at the rate of six per cent, and the rest of the net profit is divided among members in proportion to the actual business done with the society.

Boards in England.

In addition to the control of the board of directors there will be local boards in England and in the different Dominions. As far as the Dominions are concerned, the policy is to encourage them to give support to industrial concerns in Britain in return for the foodstuffs sold there.

The plan, the speaker said, was an ambitious one, and aims at ensuring to the farmer full reward of his efforts and at directing these efforts along the most economical lines.

Mr. Ashton stated that last summer he shipped two car loads of eggs to England and got two cents more for them there than on the local market. He had heard of a new system of egg storage employed in the Old Land, a process of gassing, and he went there to see for himself, and he assured the meeting that it was completely successful and far beyond his own expectations, and if employed in Ontario would revolutionize the egg system here. Their system of grading was also more advanced than ours, this being done by machines, which weighed and measured eggs accurately. He experimented with these storage eggs, he stated, and there was no difference between them and fresh eggs.

Of the systems themselves, he said that he had the exclusive right in Ontario to use them. The whole system over there of handling was far ahead of the Canadian system, he declared. The eggs go straight from the grading in the country points to the trade, and are never handled by middlemen. The trade needed the protection in Canada that it had in England.

System in Belleville.

Mr. Ashton, who is also urging the cheese interests to come in on this scheme, stated that he would adopt the system in Belleville when he could get the cold storage system going, and would also install the gassing system for eggs. If this was employed in Canada for the home trade, the system of grading would have to be altered, but with the English market assured English grades would be the thing. He would like, he stated, the English Line Egg Circle to become a branch of the Central Ontario Co-operative Limited, of which he was the manager, pointing out that he wished that organization to affiliate with the English Association for they were ready to do this. He was not asking for any money. The full market prices would be paid for all eggs and the profit, if any, given. All that was required was a set fee of one-third of a cent on a dozen eggs to ensure financial stability.

The meeting backed the speaker's suggestion and formed the committee to look into the matter.

The year's statement was given by the manager, Thos. H. Rowe, who explained the same to the meeting. The number shipping this year was less, the reason for this being the low price of eggs and the lack of interest shown by many people who did not think they were worth while handling. He mentioned the difficulties of grading and the lack of satisfaction he had received both at Montreal and Toronto, the grading eventually being done right in Campbellford. There had been much breakage this year he stated, the majority of which had taken place enroute to the grading station. Expenses had been low however and the budget had balanced.

The statement is as follows for the year ending December 31, 1932.

Number shipping 117.
Cash advanced	$6,416.21
Final settlements including profits	1,152.69
Commission	531.07
Total Sales	$8,099.97
Grading
Number dozen extras	22,496
Number dozen firsts	23,261
Number dozen seconds and pullet extras	7,882
Number dozen bad	162
Number dozen sold	53,801

Average selling price per dozen 15c. Expenses $21.47.

Some discussion took place over the grades of eggs, it being the general opinion that there were far too many of these. Some were in favor of selling eggs by weight, one man declaring that there were only two kinds of eggs, good and bad, and that the bad should be thrown away and the good sold by weight.

Referring to these opinions Mr. Ashton stated that the system of grading was not satisfactory and that if the organization came to any agreement on the subject the government should be memorialized.

TERMS REQUEST MOST UNUSUAL

County Council Asked to Sign Petition Asking Remittance of Sentence.

NO ACTION TAKEN.

Described by Warden McIntosh as being an unusual request and a matter that must be dealt with very carefully, a petition was presented to Peterborough County Council on Saturday afternoon for the signatures of the councillors and ratepayers of the county urging the Parole Board of Ontario to remit the sentence of a Dummer resident at present serving a twelve months term of imprisonment.

Presumably at the request of the prisoner's counsel, the petition was brought to the attention of the council by Reeve Montgomery of Norwood. The petition was being made, it was explained on the grounds that the prisoner's wife and family of nine children were in distress, and that his father, an old man of about ninety years of age, was dying.

Reeves Montgomery, Tedford and Ferguson all more or less intimately in touch with the circumstances of the case, supported the efforts that were being made to effect the prisoner's release, although the latter believed that the law should be enforced. In this case, however, he remarked, there are several features to commend it to the attention of the Parole Board. He pointed out that there was a feeling among respectable residents of Norwood and district that justice had not been done in the case in question.

After the Warden had commented on the request as being a most unusual one, Reeve Ferguson agreed. It was a serious matter he said for the council to deal with, and he did not think it would be wise for the council to go on record as favoring the petition, but rather to leave it up to the individual members as to whether or not they would sign the petition.

The petition was signed by several members of the council.

Suggest Collegiate Become High School

ORILLIA, Ont., Jan. 30.—(C.P.)—Reversion of the Collegiate Institute from its present status to that of a High school becomes a possibility with announcement by Alderman W. M. Cramp that he purposes introducing, at the next meeting of the town council, a resolution that council recommend to the Board of Education the advisability of making the change.

"I have a letter from the Department of Education stating there is nothing to prevent a Collegiate Institute reverting to a High school, providing the trustees make application for the change to the Department," Ald. Cramp said. "The chief difference between a High school and a Collegiate Institute is that a High school does not require a lot of high-salaried specialists.

"Since most members of the town council, and most of the trustees, are anxious to save money for the taxpayer, I feel certain that council will recommend the plan to the Board of Education and that the trustees will give it serious consideration," Ald. Cramp said.

WORKING SHIRTS NEEDED AT BUREAU

Scarcity of Working Clothes for Men at Relief Bureau.

There is a personal touch about this sort of gift that must make it very valuable to the giver and receiver both. For even a small investment of money, the returns are large. Each garment carries with it the guarantee that the person receiving will get the maximum amount of comfort and enjoyment out of it. When you give a toy to a child, you know it will amuse and entertain for awhile, and then be broken or discarded for something newer. But give working clothes or underwear or, in fact, clothing of any kind, to those who are in dire need at the present time, and you know it will be worn out to the last thread and that every moment of use will bring comfort and added encouragement to the recipient, to keep on with the job of living under distressful conditions.

And think of the good wishes that are showered down on the heads of those who give to the poor. Prayers for their benefactors, known and unknown alike, are offered up in many a home by the children of those who are helped. It is the only return that they can make, but they make it with a will. If anyone has clothing of this type, donations will be gladly received or telephone 3315 and it will be called for.

GIVEN SEVEN DAYS ON DRUNK CHARGE

Pleads Guilty to Drunk While Driving an Automobile.

A piece of machinery fell on Edward Terry's right foot, breaking it badly, while he was at work last week, but that didn't keep Terry from being sent to jail this morning by Police Magistrate Langley on an L.C.A. charge.

Terry was drunk behind the wheel of his car on the night of January 14, and drove his vehicle into collision with McCarthy and Johnston's truck. He had appeared in court twice since then, the case being adjourned, but to-day he limped in on crutches with his broken foot in a cast and pleaded guilty to the charge of being drunk while operating a motor car.

He was sentenced to seven days in the county gaol.

Two local girls, who both gave their age as 19, pleaded guilty to vagrancy and were sentenced to indefinite terms of two years in the Mercer Reformatory. Both have served a previous term in the same institution.

GEORGE F. ORDE.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 27.—George F. Orde, 68, manager of the Lincoln branch office here of the North-Western National Bank, died to-day in an automobile while on his way from the bank to his home.

More than forty years ago Mr. Orde started as messenger boy for a bank in Ontario. He had been an American banker since 1894, when he entered the American Exchange National Bank of Chicago. He was cashier of the Northern Trust Company of Chicago in 1905, when he came to Minneapolis.

Besides his widow, he is survived by a daughter, Eleanor; a sister, Juliet Orde, Ottawa, Ill., and three brothers: C. W. Orde of Chicago, Bertram Orde of New York and Markham B. Orde of Glencoe, Ill.

Funeral services probably will be conducted here Monday afternoon.

This news clipping from the "Chicago Tribune" was sent to The Examiner by J. J. Sheehy, who wrote that the late Mr. Orde was an old Peterborough boy, and in his day was quite an athlete.

"I saw him last August in Minneapolis, where I spent a few hours on my way to Duluth. He then looked to be in the pink of health," Mr. Sheehy said.

A. H. Stratton told The Examiner this morning that he knew Mr. Orde when he lived on Robinson Street, East City, next to the Calcutt home.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY EXAMINER

Detroit Victory Streak Broken at Montreal

TORONTO LEAFS AGAIN WINNERS OVER CANADIENS

Clancy, Jackson, Bailey and Day Do Scoring in 4-2 Win at Queen City.

AMERICANS WIN 4-0.

Detroit, After 13 Games Without Defeat, Loses to Maroons 4-1.

TORONTO, Jan. 30. — (CP) — They're discussing indifference — the old sin—and. its. consequences along the hockey by-ways today. Hardly had Boss Frank Ahearn of Ottawa's Senators unloosed a remark Saturday that any of his Senators playing indifferently could expect a $100 fine than New York Rangers swarmed into town and drubbed the much-drubbed Barberpoles 9-2. This was a record against Ottawa who had managed to .do most of their losing by one or two-point margins.

The slumping Ottawans, iving for last place in the Canadian section of the National Hockey league have only one foe—Montreal Canadiens. Toronto Maple Leafs defeated the former Flying Frenchmen 4-2 at Toronto and kept Newsy Lalonde's team two points below Ottawa in the standing.

Rapidly recovering from a state of futility, Montreal Maroons and New York Americans gathered in two points apiece and galloped in unison along behind the Leafs. Maroons brought out the big artillery to bring down Detroit Red Wings 4-1 and end a 13 streak of games in which the border birds were unbeaten. Americans blanked Chicago Black Hawks 4-0. But the Ranger landslide overshadowed all other proceedings in the circuit. It got so bad near the end of the second period that Coach Cy Dennenney waved in Goalie Alex Connell and sent out Bill Beveridge. He didn't help at all as Rangers poured in five goals in the third period, whereas they had required nearly two sessions in which to get four shots past Connell.

While the Cook brothers rested, Bill and Bun getting only one goal each, Lester Patrick's second stringers went wild. Cecil Dillon, the speed boy from Meaford, Ont., rattled four shots into the Senator cage and Butch Keeling got two—his first of the season. Seldom has Keeling been allowed to concentrate on attack.

The odd counter fell to Ching Johnson and Ottawa's widely separated pair were scored by Allen Shields and Alex Smith, both defencemen.

Eddie Wiseman, Carl Voss, Herbie Lewis and the rest of Jack Adams' firing corps threw rubber in profusion at Kerr in the second period but it was early in the third before Lewis finally beat the Maroon custodian. It was Kerr's fourth straight win since he hopped out of the minors to help the floundering Redmen just a few days ago. Robinson got his second goal shortly after the Lewis tally.

Mighty as ever on home ice, Toronto flattened Canadiens decisively. They ran in a pair in the first period, King Clancy and Harvey Jackson scoring, and after Wildor Larochelle got the Canucks back in the battle they broke loose with another two-score rally. Ace Bailey and Happy day did the shooting. Pit Lepine scored the second Montreal goal.

Earn Their Victory

Chuck Gardiner fumbled a few at New York to help Americans build up a four-goal total but the Amerks earned their triumph George Patterson, former Kingston junior who is becoming a downright threat since he got Red Jackson and Wilf Starr beside him, jammed two shots past Gardiner and Jackson and Johnny Sheppard got the others.

Of the four only one of Pattersons' was of the kind Gardiner usually allows to pass.

ST. MIKE'S OUSTED BY NATIONALS TEAM

Parsons' Overtime Goal Gives Fleas the Round by 4-3 Count.

TORONTO, Jan. 30.—After a speedy, hard-fought and thrilling overtime struggle at Maple Leaf Gardens on Saturday afternoon, St. Michael's College Juniors were forced to make their exit for the season, when they bowed to National Sea Fleas by 4 to 3 on the round. The score on the game was 1-1, and the series victory qualified Nationals to meet Marlboros for the group championship.

From the drop of the hat the teams set a terrific pace and kept it up throughout the struggle. There was very little, if anything, to choose between them, the spectators were kept in a constant uproar, as first one and then the other team attacked viciously.

George Parsons, hard-shooting pivot man, scored the deciding tally with just 1 minute and 24 seconds of play remaining in the overtime period. Bill Nutt, who until the time had proved impregnable in the Irish net, allowed the puck to escape after blocking Parsons' first shot, and the latter swooped in to lift it over his prostrate form into the net.

LENNOX LIONS DEFEAT HAWKS

Felines Win Rough Game in Lakefield District League by 5-3 Count.

BUCKHORN ALSO WINS

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 30 (Examiner Correspondence).—On Friday evening the Lennox Lions trimmed Davis' Black Hawks, 5-3, in a snappy District League fixture which was full of ginger from beginning to end. The only goal scored in the first period was made by Pearson for the Lions, while penalties were given to P. Marsden, F. Payne and Hamblin.

The second period saw more scoring and more penalties. "Woody" Morin popped in one for the Lions and then Keith Wannamaker got past "Chief" Websters vigilant eye and put the Hawks on the score sheet. Pearson and O'Neill each added one, and the Lions ended the period with a comfortable lead of three.

Hamblin, Stenner, O'Neill all were put on the retired list, also K. Wannamaker and Stewart with the penalty timekeeper as chaperone.

The third period saw the Hawks swooping down again and again, but it was hard to get by. Dever tightened up and O'Neill, who scored first also put in the last that the bell the score stood 5-3 for the Lions got in; E. Morin slipped two into the Lions' den and at the last Lions. Hill, Stenner, E. Morin and Payne all drew short penalties.

Bruins Win From Maroons

Buckhorn Bruins won from the Young's Point Maroons in a snappy game which was handled by George Stenner. The first period was full of action and four goals were scored two for each side in this order, H. Young, A. Hall, M. Montgomery, F. Carroll. R. Montgomery was the only occupant of the penalty box for the first period.

Vince Graham scored in the second with Frank Carroll the only penalty.

In the third period the play was more cagey and both played a strongly defensive game, with no score and no penalty. Weariness after the fast pace set in the first on rather heavy ice probably slowed down the later play. The line-ups for the two games were as follows:

Davis' Black Hawks. — Stanley Dever, goal; Eric Morin, Lionel Lawless, defence; Douglas Davis, centre; Frank Payne, Keith Wannamaker, wings; F. Wannamaker, C. Wannamaker, E. Stewart, F. Wannamaker, subs.

Buckhorn Bruins. — E. Blewett, goal; B. Trude, S. Trude, defence; V. Graham, centre; C. Wilson, A. Wilson, wings; W. Shearer, R. Montgomery, M. Hall, M. Montgomery, W. Blewett, G. Nicholls, subs.

HISTORY OF TRACK SHOWS FEW UNDEFEATED HORSES

Hungarian Mare "Kincsem" Shows Amazing Record of 54 Victories and No Defeats — Man o' War Once Beaten—Vander Pool's Record.

GALGO JR. WINS 39 TIMES IN YEAR

By CHARLES "HORSES" AYERS
Central Press Canadian Writer.

There are very few race horses in the history of the sport that never lost a race. Even the mighty Man o' War was once defeated at Saratoga. But he is none the less popular with the racing public.

Vander Pool, son of Campfire and Bramble Rose, raced to his fifteenth victory at Empire City track on July 25, 1931. Right then he tied the record of straight wins made by the undefeated Colin, the fleet son of Commando and Pastorella and who was bred and raced by the late James R. Keene. Colin was a two-year-old in 1907, in which year he won twelve races. The following season, as a three-year-old, he added three more victories to the score. He was then retired an undefeated champion and the winner in fifteen battles.

It is worthy of note that Fair Play, the noted sire of Man o' War, Display and many other good ones, was a two-year-old and same year Colin was a baby racer. They met repeatedly, and while Fair Play could beat all the other youngsters he could never make things really interesting for the wonderful Colin.

Colin never followed another horse under the wire. As a matter of fact, Vander Pool's record is not quite as good as Colin's. The former has fifteen victories to his credit, but on one occasion he scored brackets only because the horse that finished in front of him was disqualified. However, the record stands as fifteen consecutive victories and we can't go back on the record.

In England a two-year-old, Ormonde, came to the races in 1886. He was the son of Ben Or and Lilly Agnes. In 1886, 1887 and 1888 Ormonde met all comers, including the illustrious The Bard, and won all his sixteen starts. The Bard, incidentally, started 23 times and won 21 of his races, finishing second in the other two.

In America two other horses, El Rio Rey and The Czar, were never beaten.

An Amazing Record.

The Hungarian mare, Kincsem, made a record that probably never will be equalled. She is credited with winning every one of the 54 races in which she started.

Kincsem means "My Treasure." She was a treasure indeed. She was the daughter of Cambuscan and Water Nymph, both English thoroughbreds. Foaled in 1874, she was an under-sized little chestnut and gave no promise of any great ability. In fact, when a yearling she was offered at auction, but she was so small and poor appearing that no one would make a bid. Once she came to the races, however, matters were different as she soon became a sensation. As a two-year-old she started ten times; at three she went to the post seventeen times; at four she raced fifteen times; at five she started twelve times. And she won all 54 starts. Surely there is scant likelihood of this record ever being approached. At five, unbeaten, she was retired to the stud.

Her first two seasons were spent on tracks of Hungary, Austria and Germany. As a four-year-old she was sent to France and England, where she continued to show the way to the finish line on every occasion on which she started. And the competition she encountered was stiff, as indicated by the fact that she won the Austrian Derby, Austrian Oaks, Austrian St. Leger, as well as the Grand Prize at Baden.

In 1878 in England she started in the Goodwood Cup at two and five-eighths miles and won easily, leading home such good ones as Pageant, Lady Golightly and other highly regarded English-bred racers.

39 Wins in One Year.

Galgo Jr., a son of Check and War Relief, races in Porto Rico, being foaled on a neighboring island, but he is of American blood, as Check, his sire, is by Fair Play-Chit Chat; his dam was by Granite Kopje. Galgo Jr. was sent to the races in 1930 and won his first start. Then in his next he finished second. After that he grabbed 39 races in a row before losing another. And he did all this in one year. They certainly did not keep Galgo in the barn very long between races.

Gloaming, the wonderful Australian racer won 57 of 67 starts. Barnum, an iron horse, won 24 races in a single racing season.

Budweiser, Back Bay, Tippety Witchet, Carefree, Sun Beau, Exterminator, Display and other popular race horses in this country each won a large number of races, but also suffered defeats. There are others like them—real iron horses—who raced for years and turned in many winning efforts, but they held no records for consecutive wins. They were popular racing idols just the same.

P.C.I. DEFEATS RANGERS 4 TO 3

Losers Stage Scoring Rally in Final Frame But Fall Short of Victory.

FAIR CROWD SEES GAME.

P.C.I. added to its string of City Hockey League victories at the Brock Saturday night by pulling out with a 4-3 win over Rangers' Meat Market. The ice, though a bit rough, was fast and the pace hot throughout. A fair-sized crowd of fans saw a close, exciting game. The victors showed superiority in the first two frames, but a battling Ranger outfit held an edge on offensive play in the third session.

Stabler and Begley scored one each in the first period for the Collegians, with Boyler getting one marker for the losers. Again in the second, the P.C.I. team got two to one, Begley and Archibald both being the marksmen, with the Rangers' scorer being Payne. All through a fast, hard-checking third frame, the losers fought hard and only good defense playing and cool network kept them from sewing it up. They did get one half-way through, Joe Bailey racing in fast to bat home a rebound. The players on both teams all turned in a smart effort, Rangers being short two of their players.

The teams:

Rangers—Goal, McCarrol; defense, Gibson and Leggett; centre, J. Bailey; wings, Payne and Boyler; alternates, Robinson and Hatton.

P.C.I.—Goal, Sloane; defense, Richardson and Jopling; centre, Lipsett; wings, Archibald and Howland; alternates, Kirkwood, Kingdon, Begley and Stabler.

Referee—Abbie Rose.

Maple Leafs To Play Fleet Street Stadium

TORONTO, Jan. 30 (C.P.)—Toronto Maple Leafs will play their baseball games this summer at the Fleet Street Stadium they previously controlled. The International League cub's executive and the Toronto Harbor Commission, which took over the park when the former Leaf management defaulted payments, came to an agreement Saturday.

The ball club will be given the use of the Stadium on a percentage basis. Amateur clubs will have the use of the park when the Leafs are on the road.

ARROW WINGER LEADS SCORERS

Tops Canadian-American League Scoring List With Total of 27.

BOYD IS SECOND.

BOSTON, Jan. 30.—(C.P.)— The scoring spree put on by Paul Runge, Philadelphia Arrows' star winner, has swept him into Canadian-American Hockey League's scoring lead with two points to spare He registered nine points in last week's games to boost his total to 29, two more than that of his teammate, 'Yank" Boyd, who had almost as much success against rival goal tenders.

Lloyd Klein, Boston Cubs' winger, stood third on the list with 26 points and his mates, Ted Saunders and Alex Cook, who led the circuit most of the season, were in a fourth place tie with 24 points. Eddie Burke, Philadelphia, followed with 20 points.

The league-leading Arrows also supplied the five-club circuit with its highest penalty carrier, Peters having 29 minors and a major charged against him and Nichols with 28 minors. Ellis Pringle of New Haven, has dropped back to third place with 26 minors and a major.

The Arrows, as a result of Saturday night's victory over the lowly Quebec Beavers, today had a two and one half game lead on the Providence Reds who had a half-game margin on the third place Boston Cubs. New Haven and Quebec followed.

OFFICE UPSETS HOCKEY DOPE TO TIE DRAFTSMEN

Switch Gear Gains First Place by Defeating Tool Room Sextet 3-2.

IN C.G.E. HOCKEY.

A large crowd of fans gathered at the Brock Street Arena on Saturday afternoon to see the regular weekly ice battles between the eight teams in the C.G.E. Interdepartment Hockey League, which have been producing some of the fastest and cleverest hockey played loccally so far this year. The games on Saturday were no exception and as the teams have started down the home stretch every battle promises to be a real struggle from start to finish.

The Office threw a monkey wrench into the works when they stopped the hard hitting Draftsmen 1-1 in a ding-dong tilt that sparkled with action. This win permits the Switchgear team to step into first place in the league standing as the latter outfit downed the best team that the Tool Room could ice, 3-2 on Saturday also. In the intermediate section of the loop the Machinists continued to strengthen their lead by trouncing the Fractional Motors 3-1 to practically assure themselves of a place in the play-downs. The Armature Winders moved up into third place ahead of the Fractional Motors by virtue of their 4-3 decision over the Structural Steel who played without substitutes.

The senior Tool-Makers opened the program on Saturday against Chris Jay's Switchgear crew in a fast game that looked like a victory for the former when they barged in fast in the opening moments of the battle to bulge the twine twice in quick succession for the first two tallies. McGregor secured both of these and with his two wing-men Jay and Williams practically dominated the play in the first frame. Maudsley got one back for the Switchmen near the end of the period when he sent a low fast shot through a maze of players near the Tool Room goal to score.

Brilliant Foward Hockey

In the second period the Switchgear forwards opened up in a brilliant display of three man attacks that sent the play into the Tool Room territory for the greater part of the session. Whatley tied it up from close in on a pass from Paggett and a few minutes after this Whatley also gave Hirst a pass which resulted in the winning goal. The winners continued to force the play with smooth combination and in the last period missed some splendid chances to score when Mowry hit the post and Higgins snapped a shot from the wing that sent the puck skimming past the goal-mouth. However Jones between the gas-pipes for the Tool Makers was right on and smothered a barrage of shot that sifted through a weak defence. Paggett on the wing for the winners together with the defence pair was the pick of the team while for the Tool-Makers Jay, McGregor and Sanderson were the smartest.

The teams:

Tool Room—Goal, Jones; defence, Griffin and Conners; centre, McGregor; wings, Jay and Williams; alternates, Earle, Wheeler, Sanderson, Routley.

Switchgear—Goal, Jack Hope; defence, Whatley and Mowry; centre, Maudsley; wings, Playford and Paggett; alternates, Higgins, Cordery, Menzies and Hirst.

Penalties—Whatley 2, Sanderson 2, McGregor.

Battle To 1-1 Count

In the second duel of the day the Draftsmen hooked up with the Office who seemed determined on battling their way to a berth in the play-offs and as a result held their heavier opponents to a 1-1 tie. The game was a masterpiece from the fan standpoint as it contained plenty of clever rushing, speedy backchecking and just enough bumping to keep the duel interesting.

Both teams bunched considerably in the first period but most of the shots on the goal were right at the goalies both of whom weathered a warm session. Tuck, Williams and Magee, the first string forwards for the Office carried the brunt of the battle for that team and only the clever back-checking of Eddie Williams who repeatedly demoralized the opposing attackers kept the score down. Cadd sifted a long shot a Miller in the Office net at the start of the second period which bounced in off his skate for the first counter of the game.

In the third frame, the Office barged in time and again on the Drafting defence, only to go to pieces there or be thwarted by the clever work of Kearns, in the Drafting net. Tuck drilled a long shot almost from the face-off which taxed the latter goalie and a few minutes after secured the tying goal on a long shot from the blueline. The Office had an edge on the play in the last part of the game holding the play in Drafting territory during the greater part of the time. Beavis on defence for the Office was one of the best players on the ice, mussing up numerous Drafting attacks and using his body to advantage whenever possible.

The teams:

Office — Goal, Miller; defense, Reeve-Newson and Beavis; centre, Tuck, wings, Wiliams and Magee; alternates, Masters, Gray, Payne and Burnley.

Drafting—Goal, Kearne; defence, Howe and Davis; centre, Palmer; wings, Allin and Rooke; alternates, Shields, Masterson.

Penalties—Tuck, Cadd, Beavis.

Secure 4-3 Victory

The Armature Winders went in against the Structural Steel and although the latter were playing without substitutes, the Winders had a difficult task in securing a 4-3 victory. The winners displayed clever team-work for the first time this season but failed to show much finish around the nets.

Milliken, Calladine and Millard on the first forward line worked nice together, the first named getting two out of the four goals. Muir on defence was again outstanding while his team-mate Auld also played clever hockey. Every one on the losing team worked hard all through the tussle although, Kearney and Busby were the most effective. Pilling did some nice rushing as did Shadgett but Howarth, the husky defence man was a marked player and most of his rushes were stopped with stiff body-checks, by Menzies, Muir or McGillen.

The teams:

Armature — Goal, Pearson; defence, Muir and Auld; centre, Millard; wings, Milliken and Calladine; alternates, Menzies, Ben Wilson, Max Wilson and McGillen.

Structural Steel—Goal, Black; defence, Howarth and Pilling; centre, Kearney; wings, Busby and Shadgett

Defeat Fractionals 3-1

The Machine Shop turned back the Fractionals 3-1 in a fast tilt that failed to produce very much in the way of clever team-work. Ashmore, Pearson and Clair McGillen carried the attack for the winners while opposing them Doug Hatton and Catheart were the best. Ashmore secured two counters for the winners, one on a pass from Clarke while Pearson scored the other on a pass from Ashmore. Hatton sunk the only goal for the losers.

The teams: Fractional Motors — Goal, Routley; defence, Hatton and Cathcart; centre, Hollingsworth; wings, Hayes and Hall; alternate, Rainey.

Machine Shop—Goal, Tice; defence, McGillen and Ashmore; centre, Clarke; wings, Pearson and Craig; alternates, Gibson, Rogers and Hetherington.

Referee for all four games — Archie Weir.

Popular Cyclist

Jules Audy of Canada, one of the star cyclists engaged in the six-day bicycle race in Cleveland, O., reads some of the fan mail he receives in big batches daily. Audy, good looking and young, is extremely popular with feminine six-day fans.

KING EDWARD HOLDS WINNING STREAK INTACT

One-sided Scores Feature Public School Games on Saturay.

QUEEN ALEX LOSES 8-0.

One-sided scores marked the three Public School Hockey League games run off Saturday morning at All Saints' rink. The ice was fair, play fast and, despite the final scores, pretty even for the most part till late in the contests. King Edward kept up its winning streak by taking a 9-2 decision over Queen Mary; the King George team shut out Queen Alex, 8 to 0; and it was 7-0 for Prince of Wales over Central.

In the first game, the Wales' team showed more speed and harder shooting at close range, besides checking back effectively to carry an edge of the game Central squad. The latter outfit fought back hard and the game was not as one-sided as the final count indicates. Both sides showed some smart hockey and kept up a fast pace from bell to bell. From goalies out, they turned in a good exhibition.

The teams:

Central—Goal, Lomax; defense, Wright, Hoy; centre, MacInnes; wings, Copperthwaite, Denson; subs, Ferguson, Wood.

Prince of Waes—Goal, Jay, Jones; defense, Webb, McIlmoyle; centre, Williams; wings, Lucas, Johnston; subs, Leether, Sutherland, McDougall.

Queen Alexandra Loses 8-0

A fast, tricky King George team rode over the Queen Alex aggregation to pile up 8-0 count at the end. The winners weren't clicking together so well at first and it was a good game, but the Ashburnham outfit began combining better later in the contest and held an edge the rest of the way. Their strong defense and fast forwards slowed the Q.A. bunch up once they began working right.

The teams:

Queen Alex—Goal, O'Neil; defense, Ash, Metcalfe; centre, Edwards; wings, Galley, Morrow; sub, Jackson.

King George—Goal, Hepburn defense, Hopcroft, McLean; centre, Bousfield; wings, Legon, Blade; subs, Davies, Craig.

Hold Early Lead

The final game saw the K.E. boys pile up an early lead over Queen Mary and come home in front, 9 to 2. They had the score, 5-1, to end the first frame, and 8-2 going into the third, but the losers put up a stiff fight to play on even terms with their husky oposition the last half. Conners and Post worked nicely together for the victors, each getting four goals.

The teams:

Queen Mary—Goal, Graham; defence, Kent, Ackford; centre, Mortimer; wings, Crary, Jones; subs, none.

King Edward—Goal, Piercy; defense, Grose, Hall; centre, Conners; wings, Post, Paterson; subs, Leggitt, Wainman, Anderson.

Referee—Eric Howe.

HAVELOCK JUNIORS WIN FROM SENIORS

"Kid Line" of Voyer, Hagerman and Chiles Star in Exhibition Game.

HAVELOCK, Jan. 30 (Examiner Correspondence). — Local Albions just couldn't stand to be held in check any longer, weather or no weather. For the past week they have just cancelled one game after the other on account of poor ice. Friday night when the Marmora squad failed to put in an appearance the Senior club took the Juniors into camp and were trimmed by the score of 11 to 10, with ten minutes overtime deciding the winner. Most of the cash customers seemed to be greatly enthused over the "kid line" that flashed a superior brand of hockey with good combination throughout. Jerome Voyer, Bert Hagerman and Nelson Chiles were right up in front most of the time.

Glen Wright had his initial working out with the Seniors, and played well. Charlie Brennan was always dangerous and with Becky Jacks, Frank McLaughlin, and Paul Voyer all turning in a fine game. The line-ups:—

Seniors. — Goal, Ernie Malton; defence, Glen Wright and Charlie Brennan; wings, Frank McLaughlin and Bill Sexsmith; centre, Lorne Jack; alternates, Ted Watson, Paul Voyer, Fred McKenzie, and Gordon Buchanan.

Juniors.—Goal, Henry Campney; defence, Bill Rose and C. Wrightly; wings, Jerome Voyer and Nelson Chiles; centre, Bert Hagerman; alternates, R. Kemp, H. Hunter.

Two referees were required to keep law and order. These were Frank Voyer and George Kennedy.

REMEDY FOUND TO SAVE DOGS

Combination Injection Wards Off New Fatal Heart Worms.

HIT SPORT KENNELS.

(By Robert Bunnelle).

AUBURN, Ala., Jan. 30 (C.P.).—Filaria-immitis is a little worm with a big name, that hides in the blood-stream of dogs and causes death.

The invasion of the parasites, commonly known as heart-worms, began to develop into epidemic form in the southern coastal states last spring probably, scientists say, as a result of immigration of a tropical mosquito during an unusually mild winter.

A dog lover, Dr. I. M. Hays, professor of small animal practice and therapeutics at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute School of Veterinary Medicine, launched the counter attack when kennel after kennel, particularly those of sporting dogs, reported a new disease.

Meanwhile, the disease spread through Florida, Georgia, Texas, Oklahoma, Alabama, the Carolinas and even into the north, and threatened to wipe out thousands of fine hunting dogs.

Using experimental patients, Dr. Hays finally developed a combination injection which, he says, will destroy the parasites.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

"GEORGIA MINSTRELS" COMING TO THE GRAND THURS. EVENING

In the world of the theatre, where reputations are made, and lost, overnight, the record of Richards and Pringle's Georgia Minstrels is more than a little distinctive.

The group has been perpetuated for 77 years, with a complete change in routines and featured performers each year. The show was taken over, 20 years ago, by Arthur Hockwald, its present owner and manager.

During their first Western engagement, Panchon and Marco witnessed their performance, and decided them ideally suited for one of their own famous picture-house presentations.

Accordingly, Le Roy Prinz was engaged to modernize their performance, create new scenes, and send it out as a Panchon and Marco "Idea." In its new form, it will be seen on the stage of the Grand theatre, one night only, Thursday, February 2nd.

Local patrons will see the Georgia Minstrels in a dazzling "first part," with the interlocutor, "end men," band, chorus, dancers and comedians on the rostrum. Clarence Dotson interrupt the proceedings while the scene shifts to a levee, with a river boat tugging at the wharf, its paddles churning water, and a harvest moon shedding its yellow light over all.

45 Colored artists make up the company. In addition to Clarence Dotson, the cast features The Three Georgia Browns, the Big Six Comedians, Billy Miller, Norvelle Reese, the band, dancers and chorus.

Prices 25c to $1 Seats to-morrow at 10 a.m.

AT THE REGENT

"SPEED DEMON"

This is a story of speed on the water rather than on land, and it is more exciting than pictures showing motor car races. They very interesting factor in this talkie is the showing of speed boats in which Johnson motors are used, the same type of motor that is manufactured right here in Peterborough. And they do some marvellous bursts of speed in boats of the hydroplane type that glide over the surface of the water when speeded up.

William Collyer, Junior, is "Speed" Morrow, and Joan Marsh, who looks like an amiable boat-builder who has his eye on the motor-boat speed competition to decide the United States championship.

The talkie abounds in thrills when the two big motor boat races are run off. "Speed" has the usual rival who seeks to gain the championship title and affairs are complicated by his own amiability at the wrong moment. He drinks before the first race and loses the event.

However, everything works out satisfactorily. A little boy actor, "Catfish," who is manifestly copying Jackie Cooper's style, is a bright element in the story, and the girl is a good actress.

The comedy, "Tired Feet, has Harry Langdon, who is as funny as ever, as the central figure.

BISONS TIE LONDON TECS SECOND PLACE

Forest City Team Drops Second Straight by Losing to Olympics 1-0.

INDIANS WIN AGAIN 3-0.

TORONTO, Jan. 30. — (CP) — There is a suspicion abroad today in International Hockey League circles that the cellar-place Cleveland Indians have pilfered the winning punch of London Tecumsehs, whom they defeated for the first time this season on Friday.

While London were dropping their second game in a row Sunday to Detroit Olympics by a score of 1-0, Cleveland chalked up their second successive win—and fifth of the season, by whitewashing Syracuse Stars, 3-0.

Buffalo Bisons inaugurated an unprofitable week-end for Windsor Bulldogs, when they defeated them 2-2 Saturday and Syracuse concluded it up upsetting the Windsorites, 4-1, Sunday.

The net result of these games saw Syracuse take over the leadership of the league from London, while Buffalo drew up into a second place tie with the demoted Tecumsehs.

Another one of those "last-second" goals spelt disaster for the Tecs. With Gordon Fraser, stalwart London defenceman in the penalty box, Leroy Goldsworthy, Olympic wingman, picked up the rebound of "Tip" O'Neil's shot and bounced it into the net. Twenty-one seconds later the game ended.

Abbie Cox, who subs in goal for both Detroit Red Wings and Olympics, relieved Johnny Clark and receives full credit for the shutout. "Red" Mitchell, former Kitchener and Marlboro player played his best game since he entered the monied ranks, on the winners' defence.

A reduction in prices brought out 4,700, the largest crowd to watch the Olympics since November.

In the first part of the game with Windsor, the Stars appeared headed for another defeat, with their poor display. The second session brought a reversal of form, however, and with it two goals. This they duplicated in the final frame to earn their win.

Downie Leads Winners

Davie Downie led the winners in their drive for markers, notching two, the other pair going to Stew Adams and Teasdale. Earl Miller and Scotty Martin each garnered two assists.

Al Huggins counted the Bulldogs' tally.

Sammy Godin, Buffalo's sub right winger and Normie Smith, Windsor's goalie, were the standouts in the game between these two teams.

Godin helped Bud Jarvis score the tying goal, after Eddie Ouellette had notched one for Windsor, and then came back to bang in the deciding counter.

A number of times, Windsor were short-handed, and Smith was called upon to stop drives from all angles. He was given no chance to stop the two that eventually beat him.

Shields Beats Hall For Canadian Title

MONTREAL, Jan. 30.—Dark, lanky Francis X. Shields wears a new tennis crown.

His cool superiority evident throughout a match that provided only comparatively good tennis, the star of New York courts lifted the Canadian singles covered court tennis title from J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N.J., by scores of 6-2, 6-4, 6-2, before a crowd that filled every available cranny at the Montreal Indoor Tennis Club, where the finals were staged.

Shields's streak of good luck failed him, however, when he returned to the court a few minutes later, and, with Edward W. Burns, of Chicago, was unable to meet the challenge of Hall and Marcel Rainville, diminutive Montreal Davis Cup ace, who captured the doubles title, 6-2, 1-6, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4 in a match replete with brilliant tennis.

BASKETBALL — OTHER SPORTS

(By C. J. P.)

That cold dip over the week-end ought to help hockey a lot for a few days, anyway. Everybody and his gal friend seemed to be out at the canal yesterday, and on Saturday a flock of hockey and shinny was played around town. If February will just act natural and come in like a lion, even a half-tame one, the boys who do their stuff on stakes will be satisfied and a bunch of hockey followers, too.

* * * * * * *

Three School League games were run off again at All Saints' rink Saturday a.m., all being rather one-sided. This loop hasn't muffed a game yet and a couple more weeks will wind up the schedule. Some more fast and furious competition was staged up at the Brock in the afternoon, where the scrappy C.G.E. Shop League games are run off. Bumpy but fast ice made for plenty of excitement, and quite a fistful of fans made the rafters ring at times.

* * * * * * *

Then in the evening at the same spot, a couple close City League games drew a fair-sized crowd. The hockey was good and the boys gave all they had, a habit that somehow leaves players after they get out of junior company. It may be the old school spirit, as St. Peter's and P.C.I. were two of the teams playing. Collegiate took a firmer grip on first place in the standing by nosing out Rangers, 4 to 3, in a fine old battle. Rotary finished strong to get a 5-3 nod over a good S.P.S. team. Lots of fun and some pretty fair puck-chasing.

* * * * * * *

Alex Kempt is handling the E.P.L. all-star hockey team that plays the Petes' intermediates at the Brock Wednesday for the Merrett Benefit Fund. It has Foley in goal; Scriver, Webb, Whatley and Lackey on defense; Northey and Epps at centre; and Pat Calladine, Fred Cripps, Maudsley, Williams and Milliken on the wings. A mighty strong outfit, that, and we wouldn't be at all surprised if they rammed the first defeat of the season down the local O.H.A. squad's throats.

* * * * * * *

King Clancy and Irvin Bailey of the Toronto Maple Leafs, will be down here Wednesday to referee the benefit game. Conny Smythe gave them permission, and the two star members of the world's champs agreed to come and help out. Real sportsmen, both these popular players and they should help pack the Brock. Bailey is well-known of course in Peterborough where he helped bring a senior O.H.A. title before jumping to the money ranks, but Clancy is known to many fans here and in the district only through the radio and newspapers. Their pro history is well-known in all hockey circles from the bright lights of Montreal to trappers' shacks in the frozen north —as well as in the States.

* * * * * * *

The local intermediates journey to Bowmanville to-night for the first game of their group playoff series. It's home and home games, goals to count on the round, with the return contest here Friday. The Peterborough juniors play their postponed Cobourg game in the Lakeshore town to-night, with one more scheduled in Port Hope before they tangle, as we expect they will, with the winner of the Lindsay-Fenelon Falls' series. The latter is being held Wednesday and Friday of this week.

* * * * * * *

Scores of these Petes' games will be sent back to this office as soon after the last bell as possible, but it's generally close to eleven o'clock before they're known here. With the local intermediate squad in the playoffs, and the juniors winding up their schedule and figuring on a playoff berth, interest will be high from now on around town. And it should be, as we have a hard-working executive and bunch of players that are trying to put Peterborough on the hockey map, despite hard times and tough ice conditions.

* * * * * * *

A bunch of minor games will be run off around town the next few nights. At All Saints' rink this evening, these Church Loop ones are billed: St Paul's juveniles vs. St. Andrew's at six; All Saints' vs. Mark Juniors at seven; St. Paul's juniors vs. George Street at eight; Murray Street vs. Trinity Juniors at nine; and the West End League game there at ten between Maroons and All Saints. Southend League intermediate games at the Sacred Heart tomorrow night are: At eight, Canucks vs. Northenders; at nine, Park Hill vs. Pirates. There are also two other games in this loop on tomorrow, postponed ones, Warne Bros. vs. Empire Cubs at six; and Albion Knitting vs. Black Hawks at seven.

* * * * * * *

Picking 'em off the grapevine: Three gals' hockey teams will make up the ladies' league, Keene, Maple Leafs and one nameless yet . . . . It has been suggested that it be called the Technocrats—sort of cashing in on publicity . . . . Maroons broke the Red Wings' great winning streak, and no one was happier than the new Maroon defenceman, Reg Noble, fired from the Wings early this winter . . . . Oshawa Senior "Bees" qualified for the play-offs by trouncing Varsity Seconds 3-2 in two overtime sessions Saturday . . . . Nationals' juniors tied St. Mike's 1-1 Saturday, but won the round 4 to 3, thereby eliminating the Saints, so Jack Gardner will be back here shortly after a fine season with the Toronto team.

ST. PETER'S LOSE TO GROVE SCHOOL

Lakefield Prep School Students Take 10-5 Victory in Minor Exhibition Game.

LAKEFIELD, January 30.—(Examiner Correspondence). — The curtain raisers at Friday night's E. P. L. hockey match was a scrappy collegiate fixture between St. Peter's team, Peterborough and The Grove.

The Grove won by a score 10-5 with a superior combination, greater speed and better technique. The Grove clicked from first to last while the visitors were, wild in the earlier part of the game, rather inclined to bunch near centre ice, leaving the goal at the mercy of the speedy locals.

G. W. Smith handled the game in a satisfactory manner.

After three minutes fast going Fletcher put the Grove in the score sheet and five minutes later Archaubault made it a tie. Wright, captain of "The Grove," in one of his speedy rushes added his bit two minutes after and then in a few minutes Wright and Fletcher got one behind Fleming who was in a state of perpetual seige, then Stewart popped in two and at the end of the first it was 5-1 for The Grove.

Wells put one in after two minutes play in the second with Macrae shooting down the ice and planting one in the visitors net directly after the face off.

Ten minutes of strenous attack and sturdy defence followed, with the visitors tightening up, then Stewart put one across. Archambault and Murdoch each got behind Burgess who had apparently relaxed his vigilance temporarily. Macrae and Wood were penalized for tripping.

The third period showed stronger defence on the part of The Grove with even more brilliant attack. Macrae, Wright and Dench each scored with Murdoch scoring St. Peter's only count. MacPherson, Wright and O'Brien spent brief sessions in the penalty box. Macrae, Wright, Dench and Gunn were the best for The Grove with Burgess a sturdy goalie and Stuart showed better form than for couple of seasons in the second period. It was reminiscent of his work with Elmsley as a team mate when they made a combination hard to beat.

For the visitors Murdoch and Archambault were perhaps the best but the team is a snappy team and will go far.

The line up was:

The Grove—Burgess, goal; Wood, r. defence; wright, l. defence; Macrae, centre; Gunn, r wing; Stuart l. wing; Subs: Hepburn, Dench, MacPherson and Fletcher.

St. Peter's—Fleming, goal; Hallihan, r defence; O'Brien, l defence; Kennedy, centre; Murdoch, r wing; Wells, l. wing;. Subs: Archambault, Devlin, Peel and McCarthy.

ROTARY GAINS 5-3 VICTORY

Club Stage Strong Third Period Rally to Gain Win Over St. Peter's.

IN CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE.

A strong third period rally gave Rotary a 5-3 win over St. Peter's in the second City Hockey League game at the Brock Saturday night. The score was two-all starting the last session, and then the fast Club team opened up to run in three in a row, with the Saints getting one late in the frame. It was a fast even game till the last, marked with hard shooting and fairly clean throughout.

They both fought hard and evenly in the opening stanza, neither side being able to get one past the goalies. Murdock put the Saints one up to start the second and then Podget and Hunter ran in two in succesion for Rotary. On pretty work, O'Brien tied it up late in the go. The third was faster and rougher, with Rotary showing more speed and better shooting. Fleming stopped a flock and then Hunter. Elmslie and Mowry all scored on smart efforts. Kennedy got one back for the losers just before the last bell.

The teams:

St. Peter's—Goal, Fleming; defense, O'Brien and Devlin; centre, Kennedy; wings, Wills and Murdock; alternates, Archambault, McCarthy, Peel, Crowe and Gainey.

Rotary—Goal, Pearson; defense, Mowry and Hickey; centre, Tranter; wings, Padgett and Post; alternates, Elmslie, LeBarr, Maudsley and Hunter.

Referee—Archie Weir.

Johnny Allen Joins Yankee Holdout List

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—(A.P.) — Johnny Allen, young right hander of the New York Yankees, can be added to the hold-out list on the basis of reports received here to-day from Florida.

Allen and Vernon Gomez were the only players on the Yankees roster who were given increases, but both balked on the grounds that they thought their work in 1932 entitled them to bigger salary boosts. Gomez came to terms several days ago and the Yankees probably will be able to swing Allen into line with a minimum of trouble.

The Giants announced receipt of the signed contract of Catcher Gus Mancuso who came to Bill Terry's club in an off-season trade with the St. Louis Cardinals.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30. — (AP) — Dates for New York's 54th international six day bicycle race were announced today as Feb. 26—Mar. 4 in Madison Square Garden.

Pairings for the coming grind have not been announced but it was said to be unlikely that Spencer and Peden would ride together.

TOWNSEND - CANZONERI TO MEET FRIDAY IN NON-TITLE MATCH

Gorilla Jones and Sammy Slaughter Matched for N. B. C. Recognition as World's Middleweight Champion in Anther Feature Bout.

NEW YORK, January 30 (C.P.).—Men of the lighter classes entertain United States boxing fans this week. On of the headliners brings together Billy Townsend, Vancouver welterweight blonde, and Tony Canzoneri, world's lightweight champion. Another will see Gorilla Jones, Akron, O., negro, and Sammy Slaughter, Terre Haute, Ind., fighting for National Boxing Association recognition as world's middleweight champion.

The Townsend-Canzoneri bout will be held at Madison Square Garden on Friday night. It is scheduled for 10 rounds, but will not involve the title, although Townsend has stipulated he will come in at 140 pounds.

While Townsend is not considered capable of outpointing the champion there is always a possibility he will slip over one of his knockout punches. Canzoneri is so confident of winning he has agreed to defend his title soon after.

Billy's garden record is punctuated with knockouts for and against. He has beaten Andy Saviola, New York welterweight, on two occasions outpointing him the first time and kayoing him in three rounds in their second meeting. He was knocked out in seven rounds by Billy Petrolle, and in two by Eddie Ran.

Away from the Garden he has had better luck, Henry Perlick, Frankie Petrolle, and other prominent welters being amongst his victims.

Title Bout at Cleveland.

Jones and Slaughter will clash in a 12-rounder at Cleveland to-night. Jones was recognized as the title-holder until defeated by Marcel Thil of France in Paris. Slaughter has come along fast and probably will be an even-money choice. A few months ago he was a victim of Frankie Battaglia's terrific punches, being knocked out by the Winnipeg youth in eight rounds.

Bill Duffy, manager of Primo Camera, has withdrawn his objections to the scale of ticket prices for Carnera's bout with Ernie Schaaf, and the match will be held as scheduled, at Madison Square Garde non February 10.

Duffy threatened to cancel the match when William F. Carey, president of the Garden, announced tickets would be priced from 55 cents to $3.30. He claimed he had an oral agreement with Carey that a top price of $5.50 would be charged.

George Street Qualifies.

George Street "A" juveniles qualified for the finals Saturday by beating George Street "B" 18-7, at the "Y." It was 11-7 for the winners in the first half, and the other team, without their star, Art Sisson, couldn't get going though putting up a good game. Gunsolus and Weese were the best of them. Fair got twelve points for the victors; with Roberts and Wright also going strong. The teams:

George Street "B" — Gunsolus, Weese, Henry, Phillips, Ash.

George Street "A"—Wright, Fair, Roberts, Heard, Galley.

Referee—Vince Holmes; scorer, D. McPherson.

Knox Juveniles lost to St. Andrew's, 21 to 4, being without three of their regulars. It was 10-0 starting the last half. Allen and Watson were fair for the losers, while McPherson and Johnston went best for the Saints, McPherson getting ten points. The teams:

Murray Street — A. Holmes, V. Holmes, Galley, Welch, Miller.

GOODNIGHT STORIES

By Max Trell

Two little soldiers
Marched in a field,
One had a spear,
The other had a shield,
They both scratched a finger
And waited till it healed.
—Shadow Song.

Have you ever heard the story of the wooden horse of Troy? The five shadow children had never heard of it until they happened the other night to crawl inside the book called Ancient History. They found this book lying on the table, late at night, after all the real children had gone to bed.

Knarf crawled inside first. Then Flor, Hanid, Mij and Yam followed right after him. None of them had any trouble getting inside because shadows are so flat that they fit between the pages of a book without anyone noticing the difference.

Well, as soon as they all got inside, they found themselves near a city. Around the city was a high stone wall. A great many soldiers were camped in front of this wall.

Knarf spoke to the soldier

There seemed to be a good deal of excitement among the soldiers. Many of them were marching up and down. Some carried swords, some carried spears, some wore helmets, and others held shields in front of them.

It seemed to the shadow children (who carefully hid behind a rock so as not to be seen by the soldiers) that the soldiers were trying to get inside the walls, into the city. Atop of the walls they could see other soldiers. Every now and then, these soldiers threw down heavy stones, or spears.

The shadows kept wondering more and more about what was going on, and finally Knarf (he was always the bravest) made up his mind to go up to the soldiers at the bottom of the wall and ask them. The other shadows tried to prevent Knarf from going. "Suppose you get hit on the head with one of the stones?" Mij said. Knarf didn't bother to answer him. He went right up to the first soldier he met and asked: "What is going on here?"

Siege of Troy

"A siege is going on," the soldier answered. Knarf didn't know what a siege was so the soldier, after gazing at the shadow boy in astonishment for a while, explained that a siege was a—

"A war?" Knarf broke in.

"Not exactly. It's just part of a war. I mean, it happens during a war. You see, that city inside the walls is called Troy. We're Greeks. We're at war with Troy and we're trying to capture the city. We can't get over the walls, or inside the gates so the only way we can get inside is to surround the walls and keep anybody from bringing food to the people inside. When they get good and hungry, they'll have to give up. Then we'll capture them and their city. That's a siege."

By this time the other shadows had come up, too. Suddenly the soldiers began running hither and thither. Something was about to happen.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Pimples On Face A Dreadful Sight

Miss C. H. Langenhahn, Vermilion, Sask., writes:—"My face was covered with pimples, and I hated to be seen by anyone, as I was a dreadful sight.

I got no relief until a friend, who had had the same trouble, told me to use Burdock Blood Bitters, and after I had taken two bottles I am happy to say my face is all cleared of the pimples."

RUMOR HERTZOG ABOUT TO RESIGN

Hint Taken From Roos-Smuts Coalition Movement.

CABINET CALLED.

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Jan. 30.—C. P. Cable.— Following indications that negotiations for a coalition party uniting the forces of Tileman Roos and General Jan Christiaan Smuts are nearing successful culmination, rumors were rampant here to-day that J. B. M. Hertzog's government was considering resigning.

The resignation of the government was said to have been discussed in a special meeting of the cabinet and was considered to be a means of forestalling the coalition of the Opposition parties. The cabinet, it was understood, would hold an emergency meeting tonight.

This new turn in the political situation which has been slowly coming to an exciting pitch was the direct result of continued discussions of coalition possibilities by members of the Opposition.

A meeting of the South African party to-day considered the proposal of Tielman Roos that General Smuts should be allotted seven portfolios in the coalition cabinet while Roos should receive four, including the Premiership.

General Smuts had previously turned this proposal down but it is understood the members of his party were to-day equally divided on the question. The caucus was adjourned until Tuesday when it is expected a more definite decision will be reached.

HUNTER DENIES YARNS OF DEATH

Wolf Trapper Missing Since Christmas Reports at Northern Town.

HAD BEEN SNOWED IN.

WAKO, Ont., January 30 (C.P.)—Jerry Drummond is alive. Tough little Jerry Drummond, whom people in the north had given up for dead, strolled casually out to the railroad track on a pair of home-made snowshoes, and like Mark Twain, remarked reports of his death had been exaggerated.

Reported missing since before Christmas, the Sturgeon Lake wolf hunter had been the object of a search early in January, when a Canadian Press correspondent hiked into Drummond's camp and could not find him. Unable to detect any tracks in the deep snow, it was concluded Drummond had started out to walk out on the ice, fallen in and drowned.

Drummond declared he had been confined to another cabin, unable to travel until he had made snowshoes strong enough to bear him over a 30-mile trail which he had to break most of the way.

rather than grain growing, but he thought that theory should be closely examined.

"Most of the people who settled the west came from the very heaven of mixed farming—Eastern Canada and the neighboring United States," Mr. Emerson said. "What induced them to change the farming methods they know?"

The people who went west did so at the call of free land, he went on, and found there for the most part a tregless, stoneless, level plain, capable of growing wheat in a way they had never known. They also found the implement companies almost begging them to buy grain implements on credit. Even if they were cow-minded when they arrived, it was hard to resist this double pressure, especially as few had much capital, and what was a 120-day cash crop, whereas mixed farming required quite a bit of capital and several years in order to become properly established.

So the country started off with the production of food grains, just as Ontario had done when it was first opened up, and just as every other pioneer land had done.

The country was semi-arid, with 15 to 20 inches of rainfall as against 35 to 55 per annum in other parts of Canada, "but this very fact makes Western Canada what we call a natural wheat country. The farmers of the west are not morons; they have used good ordinary business judgment, and don't forget that they settled the west faster than probably any other part of the world was ever settled, with the possible exception of the great plains district of the western United States. Through their efforts Canada was given a favorable balance of trade, two great railways were supported, eastern factories experienced prosperity such as they had never known, the Port of Vancouver was established.

"But if they had been restricted to mixed farming from the start, I doubt if more than a part of Manitoba would have been required for all the immigration that would have developed—the Indians would still be chasing coyotes in Saskatchewan, and buffalo instead of beef cattle would roam the foothills of the Rockies."

"But mixed farming has not been so much neglected either. According to the census of June, 1931, the three prairie provinces had 40 per cent of the farmers of Canada, and over 34 per cent of the milch cows, 35 per cent of the sheep, 40 per cent of other cattle, 40 per cent of the poultry, 50 per cent of swine and 66 per cent of the horses of Canada. Agriculture, it seems, may have diversified, to a surprising extent. In addition to supporting 25 per cent. of the population of Canada in the west, the western farmers produced hundreds of thousands of head of livestock for shipment east, 35 million pounds of sugar, and other products, with a total of about 200 million ponds of meat and meat products for export.

"I have no doubt whatever that the farmers of the west can adapt themselves to whatever conditions they may have to meet in the future."

"As for causes for optimism—there is no doubt that times are hard. Wheat is selling at the lowest price in 300 years, and other products are very low.

"A great many panaceas are being offered, but they differ so widely that you may estimate from that their value. But mark this, life and business are still going on in the west; it is true at a slower tempo than prior to the past two years. Much of the news which made the front pages of the newspapers about the west seems to be of individual cases—for example, the farmer who got a very low price for cattle received it because he had been forced to sell his cattle because he could not finish it.

"But remember this, in Ontario 88 per cent of the farmers own their own farms and 42 per cent of the farms are mortgaged; in the west, 85 per cent own their own farms and 45 per cent are mortgaged—I think a fairly comparable condition. The average mortgage in the west is $3,151 on a farm worth $6,800 with equipment. The western farmer has reduced his cost of production very substantially; he has not lost faith; and with a turn in the tide he can make a quicker return to prosperity than any other farmer in the world."

So far as oRtary was concerned, Mr. Emerson thought it particularly important to have the members do all they could to improve relations between city and country, to do what they could to help solve agriculture's problems, and to do their best in maintaining morale."

Rotarian Dr. Moir, in moving a vote of thanks to the speaker, said that Rotarians could do an excellent service if they would stop talking about depression. There was too much criticism of men in authority, he declared. "Constructive criticism is all right," said the speaker, "but much is being done that is harmful."

When Britain's Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald goes to Washington at the head of a delegation to confer with President Roosevelt, shortly after the fourth of March, he will be the outstanding figure at a conference which, if successful, will do more, in the opinion of experts, to bring back order out of chaos than any other conference in the history of the world since the great war. In this conference, it is hoped, that some settlement may be made of Britain's debt to the United States contracted during the war. And as Britain's debt is scaled down, so will be the debts of other countries, it seems likely, since Britain is owed almost as much as she owes, but will not collect any more than she must pay to the United States. It is hoped the settlement will be reached before the June 15 payment is due. The chief members of the United States' delegation will be President Roosevelt, Raymond Moley, his confidential adviser, and Norman K. Davis, who seems destined for the post of minister of foreign affairs in the new Roosevelt cabinet. Whether or not Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequor in the British parliament will be in the British party is not known. Certainly he will play a big part in the conference either from London or in Washington. Stanley Baldwin, who it was arranged for the funding of the debts of the last conference will also play a major role because of his thorough study of the situation. Sir Walter Runciman, president of the British board of trade, will no doubt be consulted if the United States asks new trade channels in exchange for reduction of debts. Sir Ronald Lindsay is the British ambassador at Washington and is now making preparations for the coming conference. To date, Britain has paid $202,000,000 of principal on the debt, and $1,149,000,000 as interest, totalling $1,351,000,000. She has still to pay $11,010,415,000.

RENTS TOO HIGH.

SIMCOE.—Simcoe Welfare Board is investigating allegations families on relief are being charged exorbitant rents. On one house with an assessment of $550 and annual taxes of $28, the owner was charging $240 a year rent, and in others rents were greatly out of proportion to assessments, the Board claims. It suggests assessments be based on the rent charged.

NOSE TWEAKING

CHICAGO, Jan. 30 (C.P.)—Frankie Diamond, brother-in-law of Alphonse Capone and regarded by police as one of the town's tougher citizens, had his nose tweaked—and right in school, too.

Sergt. Ray Crane was the tweaker. The reason: Diamond was stricken with a sudden modesty at the Detective Bureau show-up last night, and wouldn't show his face.

A score of minor hoodlums, whose idol Frank is, looked on in amazement.

What SHE TOLD WORN-OUT HUSBAND

SHE could have reproached him for his fits of temper—his "all in" complaints. But wisely she saw in his frequent colds, his "fagged out," "on edge" condition the very trouble she herself had whipped. Constipation! The very morning after taking NR (Nature's Remedy), as she advised, he felt like himself again — keenly alert, peppy, cheerful. WOMEN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY ALOCATION REACHED IN YEAR

Gordon Payne Reads Satisfactory Report on Warsaw Church W.M.S. Work.

Congregational Meeting.

WARSAW, Jan. 28 (Examiner Correspondence).—A good number attended the annual congregational meeting of Warsaw United Church, on Wednesday evening in the Sunday School room. Rev. J. W. Wilkinson presided, and Thomas Clements was secretary.

Mrs. George G. Tayor read a full report of the W.M.S. work for the year, reporting the allocation of $150.00 had been gotten, and sent away.

Mrs. Charlotte read the report of the Women's Association. Some needed building was done, work on the porch, new front doors, and a substantial balance on hand.

Gordon Payne read the secretary's Sunday School report. There are 22 teachers and officers, with an average attendance for the year 1932, of 95. This year so far, the average is 100. Robert Somers is superintendent, with Ivan Drain, assistant. Gordon Payne is secretary-treasurer, Miss Lena Miller is cradle-roll superintendent; beginners' teacher, Mrs. W. Darling; assistant; juniors, Mrs. Allan U. Payne, assistant, Mrs. James Hawthorne; intermediate girls—teacher, Mrs. Fred Crowe; assistant, Mrs. Wilkinson; boys' teacher, Percy Moore; assistant, Harold Payne; Bible class—teacher, J. Sargent; assistant, William Darling. The Star organized class is divided, with Mrs. G. G. Taylor, girls' teacher, and Everett Sloan, boys' teacher.

The Young People's class is taught by James Hawthorne, with Allan Tighe, assistant. These organized classes keep their own collections, contribute towards the school missionary work and procure their own supplies.

Treasurer's Report

Mrs. Digweed read the Sunday School treasurer's report. All expenses being paid, there is money on hand. The Sunday School gave $40.00 for missions. Mr. Hawthone's class contributed $30.00 towards the maintenance fund, from money earned by the play.

Allan Edward read the church financial report. So far as this year is concerned the budget balanced. Later the matter of using envelopes was discussed, and they will probably be used.

D. Miller reported quarterly meetings of the choir; that in majority of cases where members were absent from service or practice, it was because home ties prevented attendance. An effort is being made to have more young people in the choir.

There is a balance in the bank, after all epenses including choir books have been paid.

Mr. Wilkinson reported the Young People's Society met fortnightly on Monday evenings.

It was decided to have the reports printed and distributed.

Appoint Officers

Officers for ensuing year are: Secretary, Gordon Payne; treasurer, Allan Edwards; elders, Messrs. James Hawthorne, Robert Somers, D. Miller, T. Clements and David Taylor. Mr. Taylor was elected in place of Mr. Uriah Payne, who had served his term, and wished to drop out. Messrs. Uriah Payne, and E. Hawthorne were elected honorary elders.

Stewards are Messrs. Gordon Payne, Allan Edwards, and Stuart Clysdale. Auditors: George Tayor and J. A. Sargent; Organist and choir leader is Mrs. G. G. Taylor; assistant, Mrs. James Hawthorne. Ushers are Messrs. G. G. Taylor, Uriah Payne, Allan Tighe, Clarence Payne. The old trustee board remains, namely, the elders and Messrs. Robert Matthews, George Taylor, Allan Edwards, Arthur Edwards, D. Drain, and J. A. Sargent.

Mr. Sargent urged people if possible to begin making their contributions from the first of the year.

Meeting closed with prayer, after which the ladies served light refreshments, and a very happy homelike half-hour was spent.

U. F. O. Meeting

The United Farmers of Ontario, Warsaw branch, held their annual meeting in the Town Hall on Wednesday evening, with a good attendance. President Harry Morgan in the chair. After the reading of reports, which show a balance on hand of over $50.00 with some twine and salt payments not in.

The officers for last year were re-elected, namely: President, Harry Morgan; vice-president, W. S. Anderson; sec.-treasurer, Allan Payne; directors, Messrs. Fred Morgan, William Davis, William Hayes, and W. S. Anderson.

There is some salt on hand from last year, and it is not expected more will be ordered this year; but later twine and corn will be purchased.

The fortnightly card parties will begin on Wednesday, February 1. At the first party it will be decided whether the man will pay 25c each, and ladies bring lunch; or everyone, lady or gentleman pay ten cents each, and have no lunch.

RADIO NOTES

By R. H. CHILDERHOUSE of City Radio Services.

Due partly to changeable and unseasonable weather, and partly due to the crowding of the radio stations on some parts of the dial, we have had quite a number of stations "trembling." Usually this is caused by a strong station and a weaker station on exactly the same dial number, being received simultaneously. A very good example of this, locally, is Station WGR Buffalo, at 550 k.c. In the daytime this station is usually quite good, but often towards late evening Station WJRC, Cincinnati, Ohio, or sometimes KSD, St. Louis, Mo., both on the same dial number as Buffalo, begins to filter through as reception improves, and Buffalo becomes "trembly."

Ed.—Mr. Childerhose will be glad to answer any questions asked by radio fans. If you have any trouble just drop a note to Mr. Childerhose in care of The Examiner.

URGE CATTLE EXCHANGE

SASKATOON, Jan. 28 (C.P.) — Members of the Saskatchewan Livestock Board in session here unanimously adopted a resolution urging Prime Minister R. B. Bennett to an immediate and favorable consideration of proposals for an exchange of Canadian cattle and hides for Russian products.

The meeting was of the opinion such barter proposals would not only clear this country of its cattle surplus, but would be of direct benefit to the general level of the market in Canada.

PETER VERIGIN IS DEPORTED TO RUSSIA

EARNINGS OF FORMER MOVIE STAR SUBJECTED TO INVESTIGATION MAY BE SIX OR NINE MILLION

Francis X. Bushman is Sued In London for $10,000 Damages.

WAS BIG EARNER.

Once a Movie Star Always a Star, Witness Declares.

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 31 (C.P.)—Earnings of Francis X. Bushman, former movie star, were subjected to investigation to-day when he was cross-examined by Gordon L. Fraser, Toronto, counsel for A. E. Hamilton, Windsor, who is being sued by Bushman for $10,000 damages as the result of a crash on the highway at Wardsville, near here, December 19, 1931.

At the outset Bushman admitted he was not sure how much money he made because "an actor does not interest himself so much in money as in his business. I was a big earner and a big spender and a busy man," he declared.

Does Not Know

"You told us yesterday it was between $6,000,000 and $9,000,000. That is a pretty big spread. Which was it?" asked Mr. Fraser.

Bushman could not say.

His big years, said Bushman were from January 1915, to January, 1922.

"Then you went down?"

"Yes."

"But you were still a star?"

"I have always been a star."

"Yes, but like the sun, stars rise and set. Do you agree?"

"No. Once a star, always a star."

"A fixed star, eh?" asked Mr. Fraser.

Bushman produced a photostatic copy of a clipping of March 14, 1931. The actor admitted it referred to him.

"Ex-movie star, once wealthy, puts himself up for auction," the clipping read. "Willing to marry

"I don't need the tag now," he said when he returned. "Somebody stole my car."

REV. DR. CHOWN TAKEN BY DEATH ILL SOME WEEKS

Was Former General Superintendent of Methodist Church in Canada.

BRILLIANT CAREER.

Imperialist, Prohibitionist and Social Reform Worker for 50 Years.

TORONTO, January 31. — Rev. Samuel Dwight Chown, LL.D., D.D., outstanding Canadian churchman and former general superintendent of the Methodist Church of Canada, died last night at his home, 43 Dugan Avenue, in his 81st year. He had been ill since November.

Leader of the Church Union movement since 1906, occupant of many of the highest offices of the church organization in Canada, able speaker, able writer, internationally known as a fearless and untiring worker, Dr. Chown had been one of the most dominant figures in religious activities of this century. For more than fifty years, since his entrance into the ministry, until illness overtook him, his life had been one of unceasing effort for social and moral reform.

Continued Activity.

Even his official retirement in 1926 did not mark a cessation of his activities. Constantly in the last few years he had been asked to take a leading part in committees and conferences of the United Church of Canada, in the organization of which he played a prominent part, and had traveled across the continent and the border to confer and to promote the object dear to his heart, a larger and a greater church unity.

His death is believed to have been hastened by his devotion to his duties. Just a year ago last fall, despite his years, he was elected chairman of Toronto Centre Presbytery of the United Church, and last spring he accepted the office of chairman of the Board of Publications for the whole church, a duty which required his presence upon many platforms and in many conferences. In October he took an active part in the General Council of the church in Hamilton, and returned to his home exhausted, shortly after being forced to take to his bed. Since that time his strength gradually left him.

OPEN REBELLION COMMUNIST AIM

Hitler's Elevation to Chancellorship Subject of Trouble Over Germany.

MANY HURT IN FIGHTS.

BERLIN, Jan. 31 (A.P.)—Police were kept busy to-day dispersing Communist gatherings to protest elevation of Adolf Hitler to the Chancellorship and confiscating inflammatory literature.

The Communist Central Committee in Berlin published an appeal for a general strike. Communist handbills urging open rebellion were confiscated in Magdeburg and the Communist newspaper Rote Fahne was suppressed in Dresden.

Police kept moving all night in various cities of the Reich, separating hostile groups. Berlin police reported two slain—a policeman and a Nazi—12 injured and 50 arrested since last midnight. Many others were wounded and arrested in Nazi Communist clashes yesterday after the little National Socialist chieftain was sworn in.

Berlin's "Wall Street" was the scene of a tumultuous demonstration at noon to-day by uniformed Nazi students from a nearby university. About 500 demonstrators marched by the Bourse Building shouting, "Profiteers!" and other abusive words at the Bourse members.

The newspaper Zworif Uhr Btatt reported that General Curt Von Hammerstein-Equord, Chief of Staff of the Reichswehr (Army), handed in his resignation as a result of the Cabinet change. Official confirmation was unavailable.

ARGENTINE AND CHILE MEET ON ANTI-WAR PACT

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 31 (A.P.)—The Foreign Ministers of Argentina and Chile are to meet tomorrow at Mendoza, a provincial capital on the Argentine side of the Andes, for a conferenec that may be a most important event in the relations of the two countries.

Chancellor Esavedra Lamas, who left to-day for the trysting place, predicted a renewal of Argentina's "traditional link with Chile." It will be another step in Argentina's movement for a South American anti-war pact supplementing the Briand-Kellogg Treaty, already endorsed by Brazil. Argentine already has arranged a modus vivendi with Chile which ended a tariff war between the countries.

JOHN GALSWORTHY

British novelist and dramatist and 1932 Nobel prize winner who died today in his sixty-sixth year

J. GALSWORTHY NOTED NOVELIST DIES IN LONDON

Develops Anaemia From Cold Taken Last Month—in 66th Year.

WON 1932 NOBEL PRIZE.

Wrote 50 Short Stories, 25 Plays Besides His Many Novels.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—(AP).—John Galsworthy, British novelist and dramatist and 1932 Nobel prize winner, died today. He was 63 years old.

The famous writer had been suffering from anemia and was in a grave condition for the past week. The illness developed from a severe cold contracted last month.

This prevented him from going to Stockholm to receive the Nobel prize award December 10. His certificate was received from King Gustaf by the British Minister to Sweden, Archibald J. C. Kerr.

Galsworthy died at 9.15 a.m., after being unconscious for several hours.

He came to London during December from his Sussex County home for special treatment. Since then his condition steadily had grown worse.

Hard Worker.

Galsworthy was a hard worker and the strain of his incessant literary labors was considered a principal contributory cause to his breakdown. He never dictated, writing everything by hand. He corrected his work severely, sometimes re-writing whole pages.

His working schedule was virtually inflexible. He devoted mornings to his novels and the afternoons, from 3 to 6 p.m. to his plays.

The author had a strong dislike of publicity. However, when he declined a Knighthood in 1918 the award actually appeared in the King's New Year's honor list. A correction was published the next

Maturity Skeptic

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 31 (C.P.)—You may be old enough to vote, says Dr. William E. Blatz, director of St. George's School for Child Study at the University of Toronto, but don't be too sure you have really reached maturity.

Addressing the annual meeting of the Parents' Council of Philadelphia, Dr. Blatz defined maturity as "graceful conformity which accepted rules of behavior."

"I have yet to meet anyone who was fully mature," he said. "In my reading, the only character who seems to reach that standard is Socrates. And, considering that he married Xantippe, I am not so sure of him."

MANY ARTICLES NOT IN RELIEF

Government Regulations Restrict Assistance to Actual Necessaries.

COMMITTEES CAUTIONED.

The restriction of "direct relief" to food, fuel, clothing, footwear, shelter, medical services, and medical supplies, according to Government regulations, emphasizes by contrast the large number of other comparative necessities which are not provided for. This fact is brought out in a circular letter from the Provincial Relief Committee, advising local relief authorities of the limits of assistance that may be distributed.

Part of this communication follows:

Despite this definition, a scrutiny of some account of expenditures made disclosed charges for the following articles, which, of course, had to be disallowed—Chicken feed, pig feed, hay, oats, hops, listerine tooth paste, toilet articles (face powder, lotions, etc.), shaving cream, razor blades, arm bands, handkerchiefs, neckties, spats, fiddle strings, tobacco, snuff, oranges, lemons, candy and confectionery, fancy biscuits, fancy cheese, lump sugar, icing sugar, fancy canned fruits (pine apple, peaches), grindstone, expensive articles of clothing, curtains, shoe polish, stove polish, school books, wallpaper, ammunition.

Mounting relief costs make it imperative that relief officers exercise more care in the issue of relief orders, confining the articles to be supplied to necessities and omitting such as are listed above.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(AP) A truck driver and his helper were kidnapped and their truck loaded with $10,000 worth of silk was stolen today from in front of a West 36th street building.

The truck and silk were owned by the National Silk Dyeing Company, East Paterson, N.J.

The kidnapped men were Anthony Oliver, the driver, of Paterson, N.J., and Albert De Lotto, of Garfield, N.J.

EMPIRE CONTENT RAISE UNLIKELY TO HURT CANADA

Majority of Goods From U. S. Branch Plants Already Meeting 50 P.C. Rule.

MAY HIT CAR FACTORIES.

Ottawa Discredits Wall Street Fears Some Branches Likely to Close.

(By the Canadian Press).

Little effect in Canada is expected to follow the United Kingdom's action in raising the "Empire content" stipulation from 25 to 50 per cent. for goods from Empire countries seeking Empire preferences in the British market.

The majority of the classes of goods affected, made in United States owned branch plants in the Dominion, are already meeting the 50 per cent. requirement or else are made only for the Canadian market, it was learned.

Wall Street believed the majority of United States-owned motor car plants in Canada would be affected, but Ottawa did not share the belief indicated in some despatches that some of these might close up. It was pointed out the plants concerned might either increase the Empire content of their product to meet the British requirement, or else curtail production to the extent necessary for sale in Canada only.

30 Classes Affected.

OTTAWA, Jan. 31 (C.P.). — Approximately 30 classes of manufactured articles will be affected by the new United Kingdom regulations under which Empire content requirement is raised from 25 to 50 per cent. Canada will only be affected in the case of a couple of the classes, it is intimated here on good authority. The reason is that in the great majority of classes of goods in which increased Empire product and labor is required, Canada already is well above the 50 per cent. requirement. Others, Canada does not manufacture for export.

However, in the automobile exports, branches of United States firms in Canada may be hit if they

ONLY SERVED NINE MONTHS OF SENTENCE

Doukhobor Leader is Removed From Prince Albert Penitentiary.

BACK TO RUSSIA.

Acting With Greatest Secrecy Verigin Placed on Train.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Jan. 31.—(CP)—Peter P. Verigin, 50-year-old leader of 15,000 Canadian Doukhobors, was speeding across Canada today on his way to Russia. The Doukhobor leader was released from Prince Albert penitentiary to immigration officials last night, after serving nine months of an 18-months' sentence. Carrying out orders for the deportation, department of immigration officials took charge of Verigin upon his release from custody and placed him aboard an east-bound train.

The move was executed last night, jail officials stated. Acting with greatest secrecy and working in co-operation with Royal Canadian Mounted Police, immigration officials took up positions near the east-bound train. Shortly before the train was due to depart, R. C. M. P. officers, dressed in plain clothes, arrived with Verigin in a closed car and delivered him to the immigration officers.

Wearing the straw hat which crowned his features when he arrived at the jail last May, the Doukhobor leader was quickly whisked aboard the train and started on his long journey to Russia. The clothes which once fitted so snugly hung loosely about the frame of Verigin, who has lost about 40 pounds since his incarceration in the penitentiary here.

A number of Verigin's followers were in the city to-day anticipating a permit to visit their leader, unaware of his departure. In the city where representatives of interests which have been negotiating with the Government for the migration of Verigin and his followers to Mexico . Late to-day they learned their leader was being returned to the country from which he came in 1927 following the death of his father in a train bombing near Brilliant, B.C.

The train journey brought to an end nine months of imprisonment here for Verigin . He was convicted of perjury in Yorkton on May 5 last.

MOUNT CARMEL, Jan. 14.—The sun was delaying by the ruins of Babylon as I climbed to the top of Carmel before dawn to-day. Frightened brown lizards scurried for cover at my approach. A jackal spat venom as he retreated into the dissolving shadows of night. He had not disappeared when a Pierre van Paassen nightingale rose triumphantly to announce the daily miracle of light. As yet a fleecy mist, as delicate as Mechlin lace, enveloped the sleeping land in that pregnant hour before dawn. The mist was like a cloud of incense rising from invisible altars in the mystic groves at the mountain's feet. Below lay the valley of Esdraelon, indistinct, vague, filled

Rest Undisturbed

CHICAGO, Jan. 31 (A.P.) — A simple grave with a simple tombstone, located in the heart of the great industrial area on the south side will remain there to the end of time so far as the Universal Atlas Cement Company is concerned.

The company agreed yesterday, in purchasing a seven and a half acre plot for $250,000, that a passage would be maintained forever from the street to the grave.

The grave, surrounded by a fence, is that of Andreas Zirngible, once a German soldier who fought against Napoleon. For 78 years it has remained untouched by the march of progress.

Zirngible was one a fisherman.

FUMES CAUSE BLAST

HAMILTON.—Fumes from a furnace, collected in the jewelry store of Howard Williams, early to-day blew out the front of the shop in a blast heard throughout the uptown district. LOCAL RINKS WIN TANKARD GAMES BY SHOT

First Time in Years City Will Be Represented in O.C.A. Tankard Play-offs.

BOBCAYGEON IN FINALS.

Skip Walter J. Oke Curls Stone to Give Locals Aggregation 30-29 Victory.

Peterborough won the group series in the Ontario Tankard curling contest that concluded here early last evening in an evenly matched and close struggle in the finals against Bobcaygeon. The aggregate score was 30-29, the shot that declared Peterborough the victors being curled by Skip Walter J. Oke in the last minute of the game.

In winning the group series, for the first time in some years, Peterborough's two rinks go into the O.C.A. Tankard play-offs at Toronto in competition with other group winners representative of all Ontario. They also win the O.C.A. silver shield, emblematic of the group championship in the Tankard series.

Results of the games were as follows:

Umpire: W. G. Morrow.

The contest opened early in the forenoon, with an entry of eight rinks—two each from Peterborough, Bobcaygeon, Lindsay and Fenelon Falls.

Lindsay, last year's group champions, were vanquished by Peterborough early in the session, and the decisive struggle rested with Bobcaygeon and Peterborough.

Closely contested throughout, the finals were witnessed by a large gallery of spectators. Dr. Sutton's rink played side by side with Oke's quartet. When the Sutton-Nicholls game had reached the fifteenth end with a score of 19-16 in favor of the former, the other game had only progressed as far as the thirteenth end, with a score of 10-7 in favor of Thurston, Bobcaygeon, or a tie on the round of 26-26.

At the finish of the fourteenth end Oke and Thurston were tied with a score of 10-10, putting Peterborough 3 shots up on the round.

Dr. Sutton finished his game with Nicholls with one shot ahead. The score was 19-18. At that time Oke had still two ends to curl in his match with Thurston, and on the round the score stood at 29-28 in favor of Peterborough.

The excitement mounted higher, the Oke-Thurston contestants being the centre of interest. Oke was coming home in the final end of the game, when he curled a perfect stone that gave Peterborough a one-shot lead on the round. The game concluded with a tie score of 11 all, putting Peterborough one up on the round with 30-29.

CITY COUNCIL TO GET CHEQUE FOR $3,174.69

Sum Represents Surplus Earnings of Waterworks Department.

COMBINING OFFICES.

Reduction of $1,172.59 Made in Cost of Fire Protection.

A cheque for $3,174.69 will be turned over to the City Council immediately by the Waterworks Department of the Utilities Commission, it was decided today at a meeting of the Commission. The $3,174.69 represents last year's surplus earnings of the Waterworks Department, and will be handed over the Council to be used in defraying municipal expenses for this year.

The financial statement of the Gas Department was to have been examined today by the Commission, but it was laid over until the next meeting on February 15 for important discussion. It was confidently predicted that the Gas Department will show a comfortable balance.

The City Council will be informed by the Commission that the cost for fire protection for the city for this year will total $27,408.07. This is a reduction of $1,172.59 from last year's cost to the city for fire protection. Annually during the past five years the Commission has reduced the cost of fire protection. Since 1929 the reductions total $4,719.59. The biggest reduction was made last year when the saving to the city was more than $2,000.

IRELAND TIED UP BY RAIL STRIKE

Traffic Halted On All Lines Except One as 5,000 Men Quit Over Wages.

TRUCKS DELIVER BREAD.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Jan. 31 (C.P. Cable).—Large convoys of motor trucks loaded with bread sped over the countryside to-day as a strike of 5,000 workers paralyzed all but one of the country's railway lines. Police guarded all stations, but no trouble was reported.

Traffic continued over the Belfast and County Down Railway as its employees voted to accept a six per cent. wage and salary cut recommended by the Railway Wages Board, which caused other railwaymen to walk out at midnight last night. Across the border in the Irish Free State 2,500 railwaymen employed by the Great Northern Railway which operates in both countries were forced to remain idle by the tie-up in the north.

The Great Northern executive said it planned to operate a skeleton service starting to-morrow, presumably with volunteer workers, a large number of whom offered their services. They included white collar citizens and college students.

YOUTH'S HOLDUP PROVES FIZZLE

Clerk in Toronto Hardware Grabs Bandit Despite Pointed Gun.

ARREST FOLLOWS.

TORONTO, Jan. 31. — (CP) — George McDermott, 23, was arrested today 15 minutes after he had allegedly attempted to holdup a clerk in the Callighen Hardware store. The clerk, Jack Callighen, grappled with the intruder and disarmed him.

Callighen was serving a woman customer when the man approached. "Stick 'em up," the clerk was told. Callighen thought it was a joke and then attempted to disarm the gunman. The noise of the scuffling attracted the owner of the store, who rushed to his son's assistance and pinned the gunman's arms behind his back.

"He tried to appear hard-boiled but seemed too scared to put it over," said Callighen Sr. "My son thought he was having some fun but he realized the fellow might be crazy enough to shoot, so he grabbed the pistol from him. We noticed the weapon was not loaded."

MOVE IS MADE TO LIFT BAN ON LIQUOR EXPORT

Canadian House of Commons Re-assembles After Lengthy Recess.

NEW LEGISLATION.

Premier Bennett to Give House Statement on Bartar Negotiations.

OTTAWA, Jan. 31.—(CP)—Russian trade and the proposed barter of Canadian cattle for Soviet oil and coal is the centre of interest on parliament hill today. Premier R. B. Bennett has promised to make a statement in the House of Commons this afternoon on the barter negotiations.

The arrival in Ottawa yesterday of G. G. Serkau of Winnipeg, agent of the Western Syndicate seeking to put through the barter deal, coincided with Mr. Bennet's announcement of his intended statement.

New Legislation.

The first day of parliament's renewed session was a brief one and devoted to private member's business although in answer to questions the government made a number of important announcements. Questioners elicited the information that the main estimates would be submitted this week, likely Wednesday, that a measure of unemployment and farm relief legislation would be introduced and that a bill based on the report of Sir Alexander Gibb who made a survey of Canadian harbours was forthcoming.

Two members, one a Liberal and the other a Conservative, moved yesterday towards the lifting of the ban on the export of liquor to the United States. Col. E. C. Robinson, (Cons., Essex West) got in first when he secured first reading of his bill amend the export act by repealing the section which imposed the ban three years ago. G. G. Power, (Lib., Quebec South) was the sponsor of a resolution calling for repeal of the ban but asquiesced in the speaker's ruling it out of order in view of the bill before the House.

Debate on a motion which would make Canadian currency bilingual was cut short by adjournment which carried after a full-dress division. The resolution was sponsored by Oscar Boulanger (Lib., Bellechasse) who claimed there was now sufficient public opinion to support the change. The adjournment, proposed by Sam Gobeil (Cons., Compton) sends the resolution to the bottom of the list and practically disposes of it for this session.

Canada has had no official correspondence with Newfoundland in connection with a union of the two Dominions, Premier R. B. Bennett said in reply to a question by Col. J. L. Ralston, former Minister of National Defence.

The Liquor Export Repeal Bill was not moved past first reading but the Border Cities member said afterward he would press for an early vote in the House in an effort to have it in force as long as possible before United Sttaes repealed its prohibition law. Col. Robinson estimates Canada loses $20,000,000 revenue every year through the export prohibition.

First Division.

The division was prompted by a resolution, moved by Oscar Boulanger (Lib., Bellechasse) proposing currency printed in French and English. Sam Gobeil (Cons., Compton) moved adjournment of the debate, and, with every Conservative supporting him, forced it through, 69 to 41. Liberals and Progressives united in opposing the Gobeil motion.

There were no formalities as Parliament swung into action again. Many seats were vacant, but night trains brought in their quotas of members from distant parts. An early adjournment was made because of the Governor-General's state dinner.

Such action as is necessary and proper under the status of this country wil be taken in regard to the importation of butter into Canada Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, informed the House of Commons. He had been asked by E. O. Bertrand (Lib., Prescott) what action would be taken by the Government should there be importations of butter from Australia or elsewhere.

Ex-Street Sweeper German Chancellor

Realizing a life-long ambition, Adolf Hitler, chief of Germany's Fascist party, has been appointed Chancellor of the Reich in Germany after the resignation of Kurt von Schleicher. Hitler arose from house painter and street sweeper to the highest position, next President, in chaotic Germany.

GLORIES OF OLD ARE ENVISIONED WHERE ELIJAH WAITED FOR GOD

with vapors, wrapped in slumber, as in a prayer of stillness.

The morning star, a swaying ship of silver, was softly stealing back to its unknown harbor.

The crescent moon was a waterlily drowsy with sleep.

Already white tongues of fire were dashing into the shivering rearguard of night, splitting the sombre grays like the voice of God divided the waters and stirred the heart of continents on the morning of Genesis.

Like a flash of lightning a shaft of pure gold suddenly pierced the twilight, turning the snow on Hermon's peak into a blood-red fire of rubies.

A second bolt struck noiselessly on the pale green rim of the bowl, formed by Esdraelon's valley, opposite. Under the impact I saw an ivory city leap from the ground with Gothic cathedrals of transparent crystal. Evangelic Nazareth!

Sunrise Splendor

And then suddenly with bewildering splendor came wave upon wave of light and color crashing into the valley over the blue walls of Moab as over a parapet by the sea. Copper-red, pink and lilac swells were breaking in upon each other, like a stampede of horses before a titanic, terrifying prairie fire.

The phantoms of Shalmanezzar's chariots, that once thundered through this land, flashed across the heavens, I saw the hordes of Darius melt in a shivering pool of mercury. . . .

It looked as if there was a fire in heaven!

A conflagration in the mansion the Lord!

In that breath-taking play of changing hues weird phantoms flitted by. Shadows were moving on the granite walls of Moab; Alexander's conquering host passed through the valley once more, and Napoleon's guard moved to perdition in the burning sands of Acre. . . .

Shades for Former Glory

The whole Esdraelon Valley now aflame like the unconsuming Burning Bush, was peopled with fantastic, fast-flitting images. Jewelled scimitars were gleaming in the hands of Suleiman's warriors. I saw Gilboa awaken and I heard it moan in sorrow over Saul and beloved Jonathan, the mighty that were fallen. Richard of the Lion-Heart rode by, a purple vision of Crusaders' crosses, streaming banners and gleaming coats of mail. Winged canticlers mixed their morning anthem with the high-pitched ghost voices of the priestesses of lascivious Astaroth. David, too, I heard sing. Titus shouted a hoarse command, Pompey shuddered and pulled up his cloak at the thought of Caesar.

The history of Palestine passed before me as a series of kaleidoscopic images.

Below through that valley, now coming to light, went not only conquering hosts but also the gentle Nazarene with His father and mother on their way to the Temple in Jerusalem. That road at my feet, where now moved a caravan of camels, was trod by the itinerant Rabbi from Nazareth with His twelve disciples. Abraham, too, came here obeying the still small voice he heard in Ur of the Chaldeans.

And here on Mount Carmel, here in this cave where I sit now, stood Elijah waiting for God to pass.

Suddenly a breeze stirred the shrubbery near by and I shuddered. For I remembered that God was not in the thunderstorm and in the earthquake, but that He came in the whisper of the leaves.

And then it was full daylight. The vision passed. Reality returned with the shrill blast or a factory whistle in Haifa.

His Mistake

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(AP Alfred Rollo's mistake was in being born, or at least in having any record made of it. His birth certificate caused his conviction yesterday for burglary.

The prosecutor waved the certificate before the 18-year-old youth's eye.

"That's mine," admitted Alfred. "I lost it."

It had been found at the scene of the robbery. The jury voted guilty.

SIXTY MILLION 1932 WAR COSTS

Pensions Department Costs Canada $10,578,142—Pensions $46,701,435.

OTHER EXPENSES.

OTTAWA, January 31. — Canada's expenditures in the fiscal year 1931-32, resulting directly from the Great War, totalled $63,919,553, according to the Auditor-General's report, tabled in the House of Commons yesterday. This was an increase of $4,392,175 over the preceding year.

The heaviest item was pensions, in respect of which $46,701,435 was disbursed. Costs of administration of the Pensions and National Health Department, which comprised the maintenance of the departmental machinery for the case of patients and the pensioning authorities, staff salaries, and the like, amounted to $10,578,142.

Allowances and commission expenses under the War Veterans Allowance Act totalled $1,055,551, while adjustment of war claims accounted for $1,421,970.

Other items were: Battlefields memorials, $188,987; Imperial War Graves Commission, $160,991; cost of administration under the Soldier Settlement Act, $822,474.

RIVER FROZEN.

SAULT STE. MARIE Ont. — Except for a narrow stretch in front of the Ferry Dock on the Canadian side, the St. May's River to-day was frozen across. The ferry is still running, though continued cold weather may force an early adjournment of the service.

"IT IS SLIMMING ME!"

18 lbs. Gone—Backache Gone Too!

PLEASANT SURPRISE FROM KRUSCHEN

She wouldn't believe it—but the scales insisted! You see she did not take Kruschen Salts with the idea of ridding herself of that superfluous fat. She had backache—and that was what she was treating. So she killed two birds with one stone.

This is what she wrote about it:— "Allow me to send you a few words to tell you that Kruschen Salts has done wonders for me. My backache has gone, and what is more, Kruschen is slimming me down in a way that I would never believe, if it wasn't for the fact that the scales show 18 pounds less, in six months. This is entirely due to Kruschen Salts, and I shall never be without them."—J. F.

The condition which caused this woman to put on weight was also the cause of her backache. The whole trouble was due to the internal organs failing to expel from the body, regularly and completely, the waste products of digestion.

The combination of natural salts in Kruschen assists the internal organs to perform their functions properly—to throw off each day the wastage and poisons that encumber the system. Then, little by little, that ugly fat goes—slowly, yes—but surely. The backache and headaches disappear. You feel wonderfully healthy, youthful and energetic—more so than ever before in your life.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c. and 75c. per bottle.

M. Daladier later officially informed President Albert Lebrun that he had completed the organization of his cabinet.

RADIO NOTES

By R. H. CHILDERHOSE of City Radio Service.

Radio signals travel in waves, known as ether waves. They are expressed sometimes in "meters" and sometimes in "kilocycles." The wave length of the station is the distance from the beginning of one wave to the beginning of the next, measured in meters, (one meter, 3.281 feet). The "frequency" is the number of complete waves, or "cycles"—expressed in "kilocycles"—sent out in a second (one "kilocycle"—one thousand cycles). Station WGR Buffalo, listed at about 545 meters, 550 K.C. would send out per second 550,000 waves, each 1,788 feet long, (approximately).

Mr. W. E. K., Norwood—What is the reason my six-tube battery set refuses to work when my storage battery still tests 1225 (specific gravity) making battery re-charging expensive?

The trouble in your battery is almost certain to be a break in the battery box between two cells. In this condition, one cell would be useless, but the specific gravity could test 1225. The battery would only test about four volts, when newly charged, instead of six volts, and would only operate the set for a short time, as the tubes require five volts normally. Your battery could be repaired.

Ed.—Mr. Childerhose will be glad to answer any questions asked by radio fans. If you have any trouble just drop a note to Mr. Childerhose in care of The Examiner.

SPRINGBROOK INSTITUTE HOLDS SOCIAL EVENING

BONARLAW, Jan. 31 (Examiner Correspondence).—The Springbrook Women's Institute held their annual social evening at Springbrook in the Orange Hall, the members and their families present numbering about one hundred.

Mrs. W. J. Barlow, president of the branch, welcomed the members present and then turned the proceedings over to Rev. H. A. Bunt and J. F. Baker who had charge of the program for the evening, which consisted of community singing, group games, solos, etc., and 100 slides illustrating a lecture given by Mr. Bunt entitled "Across Canada." The slides were very clear and proved to be very interesting; the lecture being very educational.

A bountiful lunch was served by the ladies.

UNPREPARED.

LANCASTER, Pa.—Millersville's firemen had red faces as well as red hats when Miles Miller's house caught fire. The alarm came in and the "smoke-eaters" couldn't do a thing about it, for some one had drained the gasoline from the tanks of both fire engines. A hastily-organized bucket brigade met the emergency, however.

Shrapnel

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Jan. 31.—(AP)—It is 1916. War is spreading death through Europe.

Patrick (Scotty) Corrican, 22, gallant member of a Scottish regiment is slashing it out with the foes at Arras, France. Night—a German advance—star shells — shrapnel and Scotty falls, a chunk of steel in his head.

50 Per Cent Rate Proves Welcome To Motor Industry

Apprehension Among Manufacturers Is Relieved By British Announcement—Uniform Requirement Throughout Empire Appears Probable.

OTTAWA OFFICIALS WELL SATISFIED WILL BECOME EFFECTIVE ON APRIL 1.

OTTAWA, January 31. — Good news has come from London for Canadian manufacturers, particularly the makers of automobiles. The announcement of the British Government was than an Empire content of 50 per cent. would be required for the Imperial preference on a long list of commodities, including motor cars.

Apprehension Relieved.

There had been some apprehension on the part of Canadian makers that the content for motors might be as high as 75 per cent., which rate would have been ruinous to them. The 50 per cent. preference content requirement also coincides with the domestic requirement in Canada on motor cars to enable the makers to get the drawback. Fixing of the preference content requirements at 50 per cent. thus making it a certainty for Canadian manufacturers, will relieve them of considerable anxiety.

News of the content notice from London reached here during the week-end. It will become effective on April 1.

Another satisfactory feature of the British move is that it is a long step in the direction of establishing uniformity of content requirement percentage throughout the Empire, an aim discussed at the Imperial Conference here last summer. Canada's general rate is 50 per cent also, but with one exception, namely, 40 percent on cotton goods. One of the Antipodean Dominions also has a general rate of 50 per cent. In the case of Britain, however, there remains a considerable list of commodities on which the content requirement is only 25 per cent.

Ottawa Well Satisfied

Department officials here generally express satisfaction with the announcement was expressed by Lynn Meekins of the American Legation, but he was reluctant to make any comment until he had time to study the details. "Naturally, American exporters will be greatly interested in this," said Mr. Meekins.

REEVE SCORES RELIEF HEADS

Charges One Mother Died While Waiting Three Weeks For Clothing.

MAY REPLACE BOARD.

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 31 (C.P.).—Direct criticism of the manner in which relief welfare was administered in the Township of Sandwich East was voiced by Reeve J. Hyslop in the course of a council meeting in the township.

The Reeve charged one family sought clothing three weeks ago, but investigators had delayed action and the mother of the family was buried yesterday.

"It is a crying shame," the Reeve declared, "and it is chargeable to neglect on the part of our Welfare Board. If I were the father of these children I would take steps to punish such inhumanity. To-day, after the mother is buried, clothing and blankets arrived at the house."

Other members of the council expressed dissatisfaction with results secured by the welfare workers and the services of the township medical officer.

Reports were current to-day the present officers will be replaced and a new five-man relief board named by the committee of supervisors.

LIFFORD LINE.

WOMAN ESCAPES OFFICERS TWICE

Police During Search for Her Unearth Still in House.

OWNER ALLOWED BAIL.

SUDBURY, Ont., Jan. 31.—(CP).—Mrs. Sophie Luska, 30, is back in the cells to-day after she had created plenty of excitement for the local police force. Arrested on a charge of theft Saturday, she broke away from the officer who was escorting her to the police station. She was recaptured.

There is no police matron, so Mrs. Luska wasn't searched. After being placed in the women's section of the cell room, she found a hose which is utilized ordinarily for washing out the cells. She pushed off the heavy netting over a window, tied the hose to the top of a cell block and lowered herself to the ground 30 feet below.

After searching for many hours, the police finally located her in a downtown house and brought her back to the station—handcuffed.

While the police were searching the home of Nick Didiuk, where it was believed the woman was hiding, a still was uncovered. Didiuk was allowed bail of $400 until his trial under the Excise Act.

The following account from the Toronto Globe is of interest, as the artist mentioned, Mr. Harold McCrea, is a native of Peterborough. His mother, Mrs. Jessie McCrea, lives at 793 Water Street. His brother, Mr. Herbert McCrea, formerly of Peterborough, is now in charge of The Herald of Hanna, Alberta. The report from the Toronto paper is as follows: "Members of the University Women's Club had the pleasure of a private view of paintings of Mr. Harold McCrea at their weekly tea yesterday. The artist, who was accompanied by his wife and daughter explained the paintings, and gave interesting accounts of how he had come to paint many of them. Canadian in theme, some depicted scenes near Quebec, while many were historic. The skill with which the historic scenes had been reconstructed and put upon canvas by the painter brought forth a great deal of interested comment. The Northern lights, admired, perhaps, above all the others, had its place in the cardroom, while several dozen others were hung about the rooms A scene in a Western village, an old toll-gate, a corner store in a French-Canadian village; Trinity Square, Toronto; a forest fire in the Northland; a farewell to the Royal William, the first Canadian steamer to cross the Atlantic; seascapes, character studies and animal paintings—all were subjects of intense admiration, and the stories of the artist added to the interest of the paintings themselves. Mr. and Mrs. McCrea and Miss McCrea received with Miss Myra Hamilton, the president, and Mrs. Harvey Agnew, who introduced them. Spring flowers decked the tea table at which Mrs. Charles Pearson and Mrs. Frank Yeigh presided. The assistants were Miss Lillian Black, Miss Marian Price, Mrs. B. V. McCrimmon, Mrs. C. S. Just Between Us Women

A FEW DAYS AGO we talked of making bread, and to-day you will find a recipe for the raised dough variety.

• • • • • • •

For the young homemaker the explicit directions may prove of advantage since there are certain knacks that simplify the work. Perhaps next week I will be able to give you two or three recipes for different kinds of bread.

• • • • • • •

Here are the ingredients: Three quarts of flour. Put in mixing bowl. Make a good-sized cavity in the centre, and in it put one level tablespoon salt, two large spoons of shortening (butter and lard in equal proportions are recommended), three level tablespoons granulated sugar.

• • • • • • •

Over this pour one pint of scalding hot milk. Stir ingredients in cavity until shortening is melted and ingredients well mixed, gradually drawing a little flour into the pool so that about one pint gets scalded. Add more lukewarm milk or water, and continue to stir in about one quart more flour. When the mixture in the cavity is lukewarm, add one yeast cake, previously dissolved in one-third of a cup of lukewarm water.

• • • • • • •

Continue to draw in the flour, adding milk or water, either or a mixture of both, until one pint more liquid has been used. Some flours require a little more than the quart of liquid (not including the one-third cup with yeast cake solution).

• • • • • • •

Knead with the hands brushed with flour until the dough leaves the side and bottom of the mixing bowl. Flour bottom of the bowl. Crush the dough lightly with melted butter or shortening. Cover well, so no air gets in and crusts the bread.

• • • • • • •

Place bowl in a warm place overnight or from morning until the middle of the afternoon. At that time the dough should be at least twice its first size. Make into four loaves, or use enough dough to make a good-sized pan of biscuits, and the rest make into loaves. These are wonderfully good. Cover the biscuits and bread well and set in a warm place to again raise to twice their size.

• • • • • • •

When baking bread, it is well to keep the loaves covered with another pan (biscuits also) until they get well heated through and have risen as much as they will. Eight minutes is enough for biscuits to be so covered and ten or twelve for bread.

• • • • • • •

Remove top pans and bake the biscuits for twenty-five minutes, when ordinary sized ones should be a delicate brown. Bread takes a moderate oven, and should bake one hour for ordinary loaves. Bread should be turned out of the greased pans immediately.

• • • • • • •

Tops may be lightly brushed with milk. This prevents the crusts getting too hard. Keep bread and biscuits well covered until cold. Then put in a bread box. The biscuits should be eaten hot.

Luncheon Lamb Chops
Baked Potatoes
Canned Beans
Carrot and Apple Salad
Pineapple Ice Box Cake
Coffee or Tea

These so-called luncheon lamb chops may just as well be served for dinner, either at noon or night. They do, however, make an excellent main dish for a luncheon.

Today's Recipes

Luncheon Lamb Chops — Use shoulder lamb chops. Have plenty of butter in heavy skillet and brown chops on either side. Make a full cup of white sauce and season with one tablespoon horseradish and one-fourth cup grated cheese. After chops are browned cover each with white sauce and sprinkle crumbs over top. Bake in hot oven about 30 minutes till tender.

Pineapple Ice Box Cake.—Thirty lady fingers, two cups sifted pulverized sugar, one-half pound butter, four eggs, not separated; one cup shredded pineapple and juice, one-eighth cup strained pineapple juice, one-half cup chopped nuts. Cream butter and sugar until puffy. Add eggs one at a time and beat about five minutes after adding each egg. Then add pineapple, nuts and juice, and never mind if it curdles. Split lady fingers and line sides and bottom of pan, laying them flat side down. Cover with one-third of mixture, then add another layer of lady fingers. Continue until lady fingers are all used, having mixture on top. Keep in cold place 36 to 48 hours before serving. Serve with whipped cream. Enough for sixteen. Use pan about twelve inches long, nine wide and two and a half deep.

Ballyduff Society Plans Year's Work

BALLYDUFF, Jan. 31.— (Examiner Correspondence.)—The Ballyduff Young People held thir January meeting in the church recently when plans for the year's work received due attention.

Leonard Gilbanks, vice-president, took charge of the meeting, which was well attended. The program was brief on account of extra business. Miss Gwen Gray was responsible for the topic and Charles Chapman and Clifford Gilbanks contributed appropriate poetical sketches. An entertaining contest, "What We Had for Dinner," provided much merriment for the young pepole. The geograhical and historical questions provided instruction as well as pleasure to the short recreational period.

THE STRONG THREE BID

IF YOU HAPPEN to have old files of "The American Golfer." "D A C News" or "Park Avenue Social Review" for 1926, you will find in my article a style of bidding that has just been revised—"The Strong Three Bid." Present details differ somewhat from those originally employed, but the basic principles are alike.

The opening three-bid says: "Partner, I hold game-going cards. I require no trump support to fulfill a game contract. If you hold an Ace, bid that suit, no matter how short it is. I seek one or more Aces to fulfill a small slam or grand slam contract. If you hold no Ace, respond with 3-NoTrumps, so that I may show you my second suit (if I have one) or end bidding at game. If you hold more than one Ace show Aces to me in order, commencing with the lowest Ace. Do not at once show me any suit lacking its Ace."

The first hand below calls for an opening bid of 3-Spades. The second obligates an opening bid of 3-Hearts. The first hand may be bid 6-Spades, if partner shows the Ace of clubs, by a response of 4-Clubs. The second hand must be bid 4-Spades, if partner responds with either 4-Clubs or 4-Diamonds. In case partner shows both minor Aces a small slam may be bid in the suit approved by partner. He should choose between the major suits.

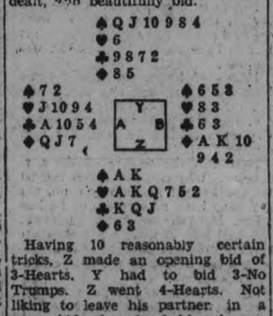
I just saw the following hand dealt, and beautifully bid.



Having 10 reasonably certain tricks, Z made an opening bid of 3-Hearts. Y had to bid 3-No Trumps. Z went 4-Hearts. Not liking to leave his partner in a game bid when he held only one low heart, Y shifted to 4-Spades, that Z had wit enough to pass.

At hearts Z must have gone down one trick, losing one heart, one club and two diamond tricks. Against spades B picked up two diamond tricks, then he shifted to a club lead. Y had shown by failure to bid clubs that A held the Ace of that suit, and B led his 6 of clubs, after garnering his two tricks in diamonds. Of course that was all Y had to lose. Dummy won the second club trick. Having taken two spade tricks in dummy, and won a single heart trick, I led and trumped a low heart. He pulled the one outstanding trump. Then dummy was put in with a club, and upon the hearts Y let go his last club.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Chapping of skin is simply the formation of fissures or cracks in the skin due to a combination of particularly dry and scaly skin and exposure to cold or wind. The condition is more likely to occur during the winter, although any condition of exposure may cause it, even extreme heat.

It occurs most frequently on the parts of the body where the skin is thickened and inelastic, especially in regions subjected to frequent movement. This includes the angles of the mouth and of the eyelids, the palms of the hands, the ridges over the knuckles and the clefts between the fingers and toes.

While naturally dry skin is most subject to this, it can, of course, occur in any person. One thing which predisposses to it on the hands is manual labor, especially the handling of dry or rough objects, such as in stone-cutting, brick-laying, etc.

With the contraction of the skin which is caused by exposure to cold, this dry and thick skin, in attempting to meet the increased elasticity due to temperature changes, becomes cracked. It is these small fissures which constitute the essentially painful nature of chapped skin. The fissures extend down to the deeper layers of the skin and irritate the fine nerves there, which are more sensitive than those anywhere else in the body.

The treatment of chapped skin becomes evident from the explanation of its nature. One of the things which is known to aggravate it, is the use of soap and water. Soap dries out the skin and removes the natural oil and moisture and, therefore, makes a naturally dry skin more liable to crack. After the fissures have occurred the soap is actually irritating and tends to prevent healing.

Movement, especially when chapping occurs over joints, tends to deepen the fissures and make the condition worse. Continued exposure is also calculated to increase the discomfort.

The use of oils and ointments, especially when they have a slightly antiseptic character, is plainly indicated. Carbolated vaseline is as good as anything for these things, but sterile olive oil is often just as good in the mild cases. Best of all, perhaps because it is animal fat, is sterile lanolin. The latter also has a tendency to help healing.

When the fissures become infected and deep, special methods to reduce the infection must be instituted, such as the use of mercurochrome or tincture of iodine applied locally. Under all circumstances, after the application of the oil or ointment, the part should be covered—the hands with gloves—until healing has begun and the skin begins to feel comfortable again.

Hopes For Coalition Fade In South Africa

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Jan. 31 (C.P. Cable).—Hopes for the formation of a coalition party made up chiefly of the South African party and the followers of Tielman Rooe, former Supreme Court judge, faded to-day.

It was authoritatively learned the caucus of the South African party rejected the proposals of Tielman Roos by which Gen. Smuts would be given seven portfolios in any coalition Cabinet and Tielman Roos would retain four, including the Premiership.

Much interest throughout the country had been focussed on the caucus to-day as it had been reported the negotiations for a coalition would be terminated successfully.

Supporters of the Government, headed by Prime Minister J. B. M. Hertzog, accepted the news as a further proof of their declarations that the country did not want another government and that the House of Assembly would not permit of the Government's defeat.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

I bumped into a young showgirl the other day, whom I had not seen in quite some time. The last time I'd seen her, she was having quite a bit of trouble with her skin, which persisted in remaining blotchy and sallow. And so I was greatly surprised to note the clear and velvety smooth appearance that her skin had acquired.

When I asked her how she had improved her complexion so greatly, she told me that she'd been on an exclusive milk diet. She briefly outlined the details of the diet for me, and told me that she followed it once each month. And since it worked such wonders for her, I'm going to pass it on to you so that you, too, may profit by its beneficial effects.

In this milk diet, nothing should be consumed for three days but milk. It is possible to prolong the diet for a greater length of time, but we personally think that three days constitute a sufficiently lengthy period of time for the average working individual.

During that time, no solid food should be taken, and as much milk as possible should be consumed. The average amount is from four to six quarts every 24 hours. That may seem like a large amount, but it's not at all difficult to drink that much, since you refrain from all other foods. Some folks may find that the milk tends to have a constipating effect. To alleviate this, in addition to the milk, the juice of four oranges should be taken daily.

After the three days, a normal diet may be resumed. That doesn't mean that improper food habits should be adopted, however. For it the skin is to retain its improved condition, the daily diet must be a sane and healthy one.

This milk diet helps a great deal in making the skin clear and smooth. The milk flushes out the entire system, dilutes the poisons, feeds the tissues and promotes a general well being that is difficult to describe unless experienced. And, as a consequence of the improved internal conditions, the skin takes on a clearnerr and glowing smoothness that adds immeasurably to the youthful loveliness.

Debutante's Launching Costs Considerably Less

NEW YORK, Jan. 31 (C.P.)—The cost of launching a debutante on her social career, The World-Telegram says, was lower this season than ever before in the history of latter-day New York.

"In fact," the paper said, "the girl who would make her debut may now count the actual cost in dollars instead of thousands. . . . With widespread suffering, Society this season took the attitude that ostentatious display would be totally out of the picture.

"Debs got by on two evening gowns, costing $12 to $25; on white rabbit coats instead of ermine; on print dresses and inexpensive hats and shoes.

"The cost of launching a deb., in fact, became this season just what Papa could pay."

A. G. Bentley Speaks Evangelist Meeting

On Monday night Evangelist A. G. Bentley began a short series of meetings, speaking on "The Coming of Christ and the Translation." He called attention to the fact that in John 14:1-3 Christ gave to His disciples a new promise, that He would come again and receive them unto Himself. That promise appears again in 1 Thess. 4:13-18 in which passages much added information is given.

"The order given there being 1st, Christ returns from Heaven; 2nd, Resurrection of dead in Christ; 3rd, Re-union of the dead and living in Christ who together are caught up to meet the Lord in the air.

"Furthermore we are taught in Phil 3:20-21, that at that moment a great change will take place in the bodies of God's children for whom Christ comes—they will be 'fashioned like unto His body of glory'." This is called in Rom. 8: 23, "the redemption of our body."

Rewards will then be given for faithful Christian service as is taught in Thess. 2:19-20."

Mr. Bentley continues these addreses on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. The subject Tuesday will be "The Anti-Christ and the Great Tribulation."

ALL-BRAN RELIEVED HIS CONSTIPATION

Delicious Cereal Brought New Health to Mr. Bartholomew

We quote from his voluntary letter: "I had considerable trouble with my stomach. Digestion was out of the question. I got medicine which gave me only temporary relief.

"Then I thought of taking ALL-BRAN. I started eating a cereal dishful two or three times a day.

"It has been over a year now since I ate that first dish of bran, but from that day to this I have had the pleasure of enjoying the proper functioning of the digestive organs.

"Thanks to ALL-BRAN. I still eat it regularly and like it better all the time."—Lester Bartholomew. (Address furnished upon request.)

Constipation is usually due to lack of "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to promote elimination. ALL-BRAN supplies both, as well as iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Certainly this food is more natural than taking harmful patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of constipation. With each meal in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

A CONVERSION LOAN?

From various quarters the session is being made that Canada should endeavor to lessen the heavy interest burden now being carried by use of the same instrument so successfully employed last year in Great Britain, namely, a huge conversion loan.

An attempt to have Canadian bond-holders accept a lower rate of interest on Government bonds would be a real test of the patriotism of the Canadian people, and if successful would lighten the load of taxation under which the country is struggling.

How heavy the interest burden is is shown in a despatch from Ottawa to the effect that without including payments on war pensions 58.5 per cent. of the gross revenues of the Dominion are consumed by interest charges; if the pension costs and the additional cost of exchange is considered it will require 76.9 per cent. of this year's gross revenues to take care of interest obligations.

It can readily be seen then that if the people of this country were to show the same spirit as their brethren in the Old Country and would exchange their present Government bonds for new issues yielding a smaller interest rate, they would be making a very real contribution to the welfare of the whole country and doing a great deal to simplify the serious problem of national financing.

The plan deserves earnest consideration from the Government as a possible way out of an emergency.

SHOULD COME TO THE RESCUE.

With $6,400 subscribed to the Relief Fund by fewer than 200 subscribers, it is evident that a good many citizens who are financially able to assist in this most necessary and desirable work have not as yet contributed their bit toward the success of the effort.

The committee of the Relief Fund has, however, every confidence that a high pressure campaign is not necessary to secure from the good people of Peterborough the objective aimed at, and that as the need is fully realized and the extent of the relief work required here is appreciated in its proper light the voluntary donations will continue to come in until the success of the campaign is established.

It is felt that citizens generally will acknowledge the desirability of as large a part as possible of Peterborough's relief funds being secured voluntarily from those who have the means to assist; otherwise the money will have to be found by taxation, a method that crushes many worthy citizens who are struggling along under great difficulties.

None of our people can be allowed to go without food or fuel; if the money to provide these things is not furnished voluntarily by those able to do so, then it will have to come out of the taxes, and that process will eventually mean more names on the relief list and a heavier burden for the community.

Citizens who are able to help should come to the rescue.

THE RIGHT STEP.

There are rumors afloat to the effect that the Henry Government not only proposes to introduce a redistribution bill that will cut down the size of the Legislature by 25 or 30 members, but that a reduction in the Cabinet is also contemplated.

If these stories should prove to be true there is no doubt of the approval of the public being accorded both these reductions, which will represent a very considerable saving.

Public opinion in the province is decidedly lined up behind the thought that a less expensive and decidedly more efficient administration of public affairs could be looked for from a smaller Legislature and from a Cabinet of fewer members.

If Mr. Henry has finally decided to face the situation and take vigorous action to reduce the cost of government he will be going a long way toward disarming the critics who have been assailing his Government, and toward strengthening his prestige throughout Ontario.

Indecision at this stage would be likely to prove absolutely fatal from a political viewpoint, and the Government's board of strategy, if it includes such a body, would be well advised to suggest a drastic reduction all round as a gesture to the people that Queen's Park recognizes the difficulties under which taxpayers are laboring in these days of sadly depleted incomes.

A NOTE OF OPTIMISM.

The Canadian advisory committee of Rotary International is doing the country a real service when it sponsors such visits as that of W. W. Emerson, of Winnipeg, who addressed the Peterborough Rotary Club yesterday on Western Canadian agricultural problems.

The Rotary plan is to have representative Rotarians from one part of the Dominion address clubs in other sections of the country, so that a more intimate knowledge may be obtained of Canadian conditions generally.

Mr Emerson's address was proof of how valuable such an interchange of ideas can be.

His picture of Western conditions, while it did not seek to hide the fact that times were bad and the prairie farmers had many difficulties to overcome, was notable because of the light that it threw upon the basic soundness of Western agriculture and its ability to take advantage of any change for the better in world conditions.

There was an optimism in his remarks that is missing from the headlines that usually accompany stories from the West at this time; it would be well for Easterners generally to take note of the fact that Mr. Emerson pointed out that as a rule it was only the gloomy stories that were given wide circulation, and that it was unwise to judge from surface indications when underneath the basic conditions might be such as to justify a reasoned tranquility.

Such addresses do much to build up a shattered morale, and more of them would serve a very useful purpose.

THE SENATE ACTS.

Decisive votes in the Senate on two silver resolutions are interpreted in Washington as ending any possibility of inflation legislation before the present session ends. And if none is taken now there is little chance, it would seem, of the new Congress initiating action toward this end, the "inflation fever" which was so rampant a few weeks ago having pretty well died down in both the United States and Canada.

Many persons who thought they saw some value to be derived by a policy of deliberate inflation have changed their minds. It is now generally recognized in Canada that inflation here, without corresponding action across the line, would be quite out of the question. And even with both countries embarked upon such a program the danger would be almost as great, because there is no telling to what lengths the movement would go.

Mr. Walter Lippman, the eminent American commentator, pointed out in an article that "a currency inflation which would really raise prices would have to be such an enormous inflation that it would be uncontrollable. A currency inflation which was moderate and under strict control would not raise prices."

There you have the situation in a nutshell. Persons who talk of "mild" and "controlled" inflation seem to overlook the fact that it would not be sufficient to achieve the end aimed at; also, the difficulties of control would be serious. There would be demands for an exension of the idea and before we knew it the country would have launched upon a program that, in the long run, could only produce chaos and, eventually, financial disaster.—Border Cities Star.

"WHO GETS THE PREMIUM?"

"Why should Calgary or any other Canadian municipality, have to pay New York in United States funds, permitting it to make a profit on our dollar?"

"What right have Americans to say that our dollar is worth only 85 cents, taking a 15 cents profit on it?"

"Who is pocketing this premium on the American dollar?"

* * * *

Everywhere one goes, these questions are asked. Many Canadians appear to believe, do believe, that when a Canadian Government or municipality or individual pays a debt in New York, and has to hand out $1.15 in Canadian currency for each one of the United States dollars with which the debt must be paid, the New Yorker gets on every dollar a profit of 15 cents.

* * * *

That, of course, is nonsense. All the New Yorker gets is his United States dollar, and no matter what it may have cost us in Canadian currency to get it for him, that dollar, when he gets it, means exactly a dollar and not a fraction of a cent more.

A precisely parallel case is when an Englishman has to pay a debt in Canada. An Englishman, let us say, owes $100 in Ottawa. In the old days, upon going to pay it, he could have bought 100 Canadian dollars for, roughly, 23 pounds. To-day, however, when the Canadian dollar is at a premium in England, and the pound at a discount here, his 100 Canadian dollars will cost about 26 pounds. But while the Englishman pays that much more, and it is a hardship on him, the man in Ottawa makes no profit. All he gets is his original contract for 100 Canadian dollars.

* * * *

There is something else. Many people say: "Canada is financially sound, and she's a good customer of the United States; why shouldn't they take our dollar at par?"

Well, Britain is financially sound, and she's a good customer of ours; why don't we take her pound at par? She is nearer and dearer to us than we are to the United States. Or ought to be.

The answer, of course, is that the matter of exchange and of the depreciation of currencies has nothing to do with sentiment; that Americans, as a people, have no more to do with the depreciation of our dollar in New York than the Bedouins of Arabia.

* * * *

The truth is that the only people on this continent who are profiting from the discount of our dollar in New York are a limited number of Canadians themselves. Hundreds, probably tens of thousands, of Canadians hold bonds—the bonds of Canadian municipalities like Calgary—that are payable in either Montreal or Toronto or New York. It is a matter of choice. If these Canadians elected to take payment in either Montreal or Toronto they would be paid in Canadian funds, and the municipality concerned would escape paying a premium. That, however, is not what is happening. What is happening is that the Canadian holders of these bonds are taking either their interest coupons or their maturing bonds to Canadian banks and asking them to send them down to New York to be paid in United States funds. In other words, they are taking the profit of the premium on the American dollar.

Mr. Bennett, in his speech in Toronto this week, referred to this. Says a report in the Toronto Star:

"The Prime Minister paused with a smile in his speech last night when discussing the monetary question and said: 'Any of you who, having bonds maturing payable in Toronto or New York, sold them here for patriotic reasons, please hold up your hands.' He turned aside and did not even look around to see if any hands went up. None did, however. A laugh ran around the audience of a thousand."

Business was simply business.

* * * *

Perhaps it doesn't lie in the mouth of many of us to pass judgment upon those who aren't sufficiently altruistic or patriotic to not want a profit from the discount of their own currency. On the other hand, it is well to have the record kept straight; this instead of going off at a confused tangent, blaming the United States for profiting from our dollar.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Parliament is under way again, and the eyes of the whole country should be on the proceedings at the capital. Much depends upon what is done at this session.

Fewer than 200 citizens have contributed to the Relief Fund. There must be many others who have the means to do their bit in this most necessary effort.

Technocracy and the jig-saw puzzle are two of the minor evils of this period of unusual conditions.

CHAPTER 30

Nanette did not answer immediately. She allowed her thoughts to wander back to last night, when Rodolf Holmes had held her in his arms, when he had touched his lips to hers and had whispered to her words of love.

The moment had been one of ecstacy. In that fleeting moment that she had lain in his embrace visions of the future arose before her, visions of days when she would be supremely happy as the wife of this man She had allowed herself to forget for the moment her desire to build a reputation for herself—as Nanette LeRoi—on the shadow screen; she had forgotten her vexing problems, her superlative hate for Lillian Hull.

Even as she awoke this morning her first thought was of Rodolf.

But now, he brought all those bitter thoughts back to her. She said in a voice that was icy cold:

"So you still think I am guilty, Rodolf."

It was not a question; it was a statement of her own acceptance of his words.

"No, I don't, Nanette," he exclaimed in a pleading voice, "and neither do I think Lillian Hull i guilty. And I think that deep down in your heart you believe she is innocent, too."

"Why should I think that?" coldly.

"Because you know, as well as I do, that she is not the kind of a girl who would do a thing like that."

"I'm not so sure of that," she replied.

"Don't be unreasonable," he beseeched. "What has she ever done to you to deserve your undying hatred? Just because, in a moment when she was not quite herself, she let you know that she knew who you really are—why, the girl isn't responsible. She—"

"That's why I am going to let her stay where she is," she snapped and hung up.

But no sooner was the connection broken than she was sorry or what she had done. She tried vainly to get Rodolf back on the line but she was too late.

Heavy of heart, she turned away from the instrument and threw herself across her bed. She wanted to cry, but the tears would not come. Dry sobs choked her and her eyes burned.

Hers was the torture of the condemned. Why had she let her temper get the best of her? Why could she not have been reasonable, as he had asked. Now, she had d iven him away. She had lost him. She felt that she had be n doomed to a life of unhappiness, a life devoid of the companionship she craved.

She knew now that she wanted him, she wanted to feel the protection of his arms about her, he strength that his companionship would provide. She wanted the friendly shield that his name would give her. She was loath to admit it to him last night; now it was burned into her heart by the seering brand of loneliness.

For she was alone. She realized it now. She had no one to whom she could turn. Rodolf had been her almost constant companion in those moments when she cou'd get away from Richard Bailey. Secret, happy moments they were. He had b en her bulwark against self-recrimination.

If she could have seen the expression on his face when she hung up on him perhaps her well of loneliness would not have been so deep and so dark. If she could know that at this very moment he was rushing to her life might not seem so empty and drab.

But she could not know these things. After all, she was only a woman, no matter what legend had been built around her by a clever publicity agent whose business was to sell an unknown personality to the public.

Nanette LeRoi—native of France, woman of the world, queen of the Continental stage! What mockery! What a cruel jest! A bitter laugh escaped her lips.

"This mockery must end!" she cried. "I can't go on with it."

She called Dorotha. Feverishly, she drew her clothes from a closet and started to dress. Her secretary came in, drying her eyes.

"I'm going to the police," Nanette asserted grimly. "I'm going to put a stop to this farce."

Dorotha leaped to her f nd tried to take her thing away from her. "You can't do that, Nanette!" she sc eamed. "You can' do it. Suppose you tell everything you know."

"Better that," the actress fairly snarled, "than to go on living a life of lies."

Dorotha stared Nanette s raight in the eyes. "I'm not going to let you do it," she threatened. "You're not going to throw yourself away like that. You've got the world at your feet—"

"Yes," with a sneer, "I have the world at my feet and I am the most lonely woman in all creation."

"Lonely!" Dorotha mocked. "You don't know what it means to be lonely. Wait until you are alone in the world, cast out from your own home, the only thing in the world you ever loved torn from you and dropped into oblivion.

"What do you know about being lonely?" Her voice rose to shriek. "You have always had everything you wanted. You have never known what it meant to go hungry when everyone about you looked stuffed and overfed. You've always had friends—"

"Friends!" Nanette snorted. "Yes, friends! Friends who cast you down when things go wrong, friends who would gladly trample on you if you got in their way. That's the kind of friends I have. That's the kind of friends I have always had."

"Rodolf is your fr end—"

Nanette forced herself to laugh. "Yes, he was my friend until he found out that he' cou'd not force me to admit that I—"

She choked back the words which were rushing from her lips. What was she saying? That she had killed Richard Bailey? What if she had? What difference did it make now?

Dorotha wilted. The fire died from her eyes; the color fled from her face. She cast a pitying glance at the other woman.

"I'm sorry," she said. "I—I didn't know what I was saying."

She started to leave. Nanette stopped her:

"Don't leave me, Dorotha. You are the only true friend I have. If you leave me now I—I—I don't know what I'll do. I need you."

Dorotha went to her and slipped her arms about her. "I'm not going to leave you," she said. "I guess we—we both need each other."

The two women stood there in each other's arms, the one an exotic creature that exuded the fragrant odor of the old world, that conjured up visions of ancient fire, romance, subtlety; the other little more than a child, modern, tempestuous, as fragile as a hot house flower.

A car rolled to a stop with screaming brakes in front of the house. A door opened and then closed with a slam. They looked out to see who was coming. The machine rolled away. Jere Kane came slowly up the walk toward the house.

"Don't let him in!" Nanette cried in a hushed voice. "I can't see him."

Dorotha cast a questioning glance at her.

"Tell him I'm not here. Tell him anything," the actress rasped, "but don't let him in the house."

A THOUGHT

FIVE MISTAKES OF LIFE

1. The delusion that individual advancement is made by crushing others down.

2. The tendency to worry about things that cannot be changed or corrected.

3. Insisting that a thing is impossible because we ourselves cannot accomplish it.

4. Attempting to compel other persons to believe and live as we do.

5. Neglect in developing and refining the mind by not acquiring the habit of reading fine literature.—The Pullman News.

THE BROWSER

KNOW WHAT the Browser did? ....You'll never believe him, but one night last week he deliberately read one of Edgar Rice Burroughs' Tarzan books....Honest, no fibbing, and cross-his-heart, he did. Sat in a chair motionless for hours and read about the Golden Lion that Tarzan trained and about the Valley of Gold and the sacks of diamonds and about the terrible Bolgani ape-people who ruled in the mysterious city and kept the Gomangani in abject slavery and all about the dangers and battles and triumphs of Tarzan and his snarly lion....Oooooooh! thrilling!

Nearly 10 years old, the story was, but it'll probably last half a century longer than many another "significant" book....Just junk, but the naive Browser read it with eager interest.

Will he ever read another? No, not ever. Once was excitement enough. But now nobody can ever accuse the Browser of being a mere literary snob who refuses to read Edgar Rice Burroughs' thrillers. After this, he can always say that he HAS.

Burroughs lives in California, and has his own postoffice, called Tarzana. He's a corporation all by himself.

Did you notice that the Browser used the word "significant" a few lines ago and put quotation marks around it?? That proves that the Browser isn't a real book reviewer. If he were he could use such words as "significant" and "stimulating" and "intriguing" and "moving" without turning a hair. But as it is, he can't.

He's one of those strong silent fellows who says that a book is "good" or a book's "bad" and that's the end of it.

What the Browser wants out of books is Life, but it doesn't need to be the same "life" in every book. Being a Browser, he is a ruminant, and some ruminants have several stomachs and so has the Browser. He reads trash and knows it's trash. He reads fact books and knows that's all they are.

But sometimes he reads a book that palpitates before him like a quivering heart on a sacrificial stone and when he comes upon a book of that sort, it's an adventure, it's glory, it's consecration....They are few indeed, but what of that? All greatness is rare. (How about going to work, Browser?)

* * *

The third number of the American Spectator, which affects the Browser like Brussels sprouts, has an article in it by Herbert Ashbury about the young women who worked in San Francisco's Barbary coast dance halls in the 70's and 80's.... Those were rough, tough times. The Browser wonders how Ashbury collected his material for that early time.

The editors of that publication print John Erskine's name in black borders. And even if the Browser isn't exactly fond of Erskine's stuff —not any more, he isn't—he still thinks that's a rather mean trick.

Ernest Hemingway is upset because the film company that made his "Farewell to Arms" into a picture, tried to give him a "romantic and false military and personal career" in a film publicity release .... He denies it all. Says he drove an ambulance in Italy because that was safer than driving one in France and "was never involved in heroic actions of any sort." He refuses to be a glamorous personality.

James Branch Cabell had a sharp article in that American Spectator about some woman novelist, and it sounded as if he was thinking of Willa Cather or Ellen Glasgow as he wrote. Nothing hurts a writer more than to have another writer last longer than he does. And if it's a woman writer, that makes it all the worse....Sage observation from

This is the signature of a man who is activated by a natural combativeness of temperament acting together with a normal amount of ambition. He revels in conquest of the position difficult in the taking. In his philosophy nothing is impossible. For this reason, although he is essentially conservative, he ignores generally accepted conclusions unless they coinside with those he arrives at independently. He has the able, planning mind, the confident and forceful personality, and the dauntless spirit of the campaigning general. He lives intensively rather than extensively and is sophisticated and worldly. But there is nothing of meanness or bitterness in him. PLAY IN COLLEGIATE SET FOR TO-NIGHT

"It Pays to Advertise" to be Presented by the Cathedral Players.

"It Pays to Advertise" is the title of the peppy play which will be presented to-night in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute, by "The Cathedral Players," a group of talented actors from St. Peter's Cathedral parish.

As well as enjoyment, those who will attend will be assured of giving to a good cause, as the proceeds are to be devoted entirely to relief purposes.

In times of depression like the present, nothing so much is needed occasionally as a good laugh, and a comedy-drama of this type affords plenty of amusement. "It Pays to Advertise" is full of action and life, from start to finish, and promises to provide lots of fun for its patrons.

George Lynch, noted for many years past as a director of spendidly-presented amateur productions, is in charge, while Joseph Minicola is leader of the orchestra which will play, with an ensemble of thirty members and a full complement of instruments.

The cast includes the Misses Marcele McNulty, Peggy Roche, Helen Archambault, Hilda Sullivan, Messrs. Ernest Archambault, Jack Madden, Jack McCabe, Jack Roach, Thomas Ryan, David Edward, F. J. Lonergan and Dr. E. M. Crough.

Miss Geraldine Collins is the vocal soloist of the evening, and Miss Veronica Scollard is the accompanist.

Remember, to-night only, at 8.15, in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute.

GETTING RADIUM FROM CRUDE ORE IS SLOW MATTER

Refiners Work Months Painstakingly to Extract Precious Grains.

MISTAKES COSTLY

(By Jack Hambleton, O.P. Staff Writer.)

PORT HOPE, Ont., Jan. 31.—It takes a long time to produce radium from pitchblende, even though the ore is the highest grade radium ore in the world. At Canada's only radium refinery here, scientists work for many days to bring forth, in a thimble-like container, the valuable salt which is used for cancer treatment.

Away up on Great Bear Lake, just outside the Arctic Circle, miners are steadily digging the ore. It is often 40-below up there and the days are short. When the ore is produced it is shipped to Port Hope in laborious manner, for transportation is not easy under the northern lights.

But even after its arrival here, it is a long time before the tiny surgical needles are filled. M. L. Pochon, French chemist who is in charge of the refinery here, explains.

"Using the fastest known process, a process invented by Canadian Government scientists at Ottawa, the concentration process requires three days. Other processes require a month or longer just for concentration. But concentration is a mere trifle compared with the laboratory treatment which follows.

"For 42 days we in the laboratory move the precipitate containing radium from container to container. Some losses are inevitable. At Ottawa, the scientists recovered 95 per cent of the radium from the Great Bear ore. But they were working on a laboratory scale. Working on a commercial basis, as we are doing, we will be fortunate to obtain 80 per cent. And this, although we work as slowly and as carefully as we possibly can.

Danger Grows

"As the processing continues, the danger becomes greater and greater and we are compelled to take more rigid precautions. The solution containing the radium is kept in a sealed glass container. Before we can start work in the morning, we must operate an electric fan for half an hour to clear the air.

"The slightest mistake during the concentrating process cannot be corrected until the entire refining is complete. For radium is something you cannot see. You may run an entire "batch' 'of ore and chemicals, only to find something is wrong. And you cannot hurry in this game.

"People hear of a pitchblende find, and right away they start thinking in millions of dollars. They do not stop to consider the extraction is a lengthy and an expensive process.

"Even after your test has proved successful," he continued, "the radium must be shipped to the Bureau of Standards. There it is tested, weighed and checked. This alone takes 40 days more. And so, it may be nearly a year before we finally have the plant operating at maximum capacity and with minimum loss."

Practically all the delicate equipment used in the local plant is imported, for Canada is not a "chemical country," Mr. Pochon says. The earthenware crucibles used in the concentration process must be changed every few months. Some of them are stirred constantly by earthenware paddles, operated by electric motors. "A careless work dropped a hammer in one of them. It took us three months to get another shipped from England," said Mr. Pochon, "but these things will all work out in the end."

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

THE GENESIS OF OUR FREEDOM.

ON THIS DATE, in 1839, the Earl of Durham made public his Report upon Political Conditions in the Canadas, probably the most important State document in our history, for from it sprang all our constitutional freedom and all our self-government. Durham's stay in Canada was short, only a few months, but he seized at once all the salient points of grievance and proposed reforms, which, in the course of time, when granted, brought peace to a distracted country, if so disuited a collection of people as Lower and Upper Canada can be called a country. He was ahead of his time; many of his proposals were then not possible of adoption; but time has more than justified the wisdom of his advice. He did not mince his language; blame for the conditions which had brought about the rebellions of 1837 and 1838 was placed where it belonged, upon the stiff-necked governors and their foolish advisers at Quebec and Toronto, stress being laid upon the failure to keep faith with the majority in Lower Canada and upon the land policy especially regarding the clergy reserves, in Upper Canada.

Durham did not live to see the first of his proposals adopted, dying from over work after his return to England (he was a very sick man all the time he was over here); but his Report lives as one of the greatest State documents of the British Empire, for from it has grown that free commonwealth of nations now proud allegiance to the British sovereign. His prediction as to what would follow a union of the British provinces in North America proves the value of his report: "It would enable all the provinces to co-operate for all common purposes, and, above all, it would form a great and powerful people, possessing the means of securing good and responsible government for itself, and which, under the protection of the British empire, might in some measure counterbalance the preponderant and increasing influence of the United States on the American Continent." No student of Canadian history should fail to read the Durham Report and then mark how its proposals have been adopted step by step and our present autonomy evolved.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WINNIPEG EXCHANGE

WINNIPEG, Jan. 31 (C.P.)—Good export business offset easier Liverpool cables, and wheat prices during early trading to-day held steady at levels around the previous close. Values at mid-session were ¼ to ⅜ higher with May at 46⅞, July at 47⅝, and Oct. at 48⅜. Most of the support was credited to seaboard houses and Eastern interests while scattered selling from Chicago houses and local accounted for most of the offerings. The selling from the southern market appeared to be in connection with spreading operations. Pit trade at the start was quite active but began to drag as the morning progressed.

Liverpool wheat eased owing to larger offerings of Argentine wheat and the continued decline in Canadian currency and quotations near the close of the English market were ½d to ⅝d lower per 100 pounds. Buenos Aires wheat at noon was ⅝ lower per bushel.

TORONTO EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, Jan. 31 (C.P.)—Stocks eased off a little in the late trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange after showing quiet firmness through most of the day. Uncertainty in the Wall Street market inspired cautiousness locally.

In the inter-listed section, C.P.R. fell back ¼ to 13½, Brazilian surrendered its early gain, Nickel finished up 1-8 and Ford was unchanged and Smelters down 1½. As a group the oil shares lacked buoyancy.

Pressure was again applied to Bell Telephone, and it weakened to 88½, its low point in many weeks.

In the food group, Westons Pref. was up 3 points and Laura Secord was strong and 1½ higher.

STANDARD EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Jan. 31 (C.P.)—Buying of the gold mining issues steamed up strongly to-day, the accumulation extending over a wide range of issues. The high-priced gold stocks are still in the lead for turnover.

More than $150,000 worth of Lake Shore alone changed hands to-day and the price ruled around $35. Teck was in strong favor and showed a gain of about 16. McIntyre was up 75, to $24. Siscoe, Sylvanite, San Antonio and Granada were heavily traded and all showed gains of 1 to 5 points.

Nipissing picked up 15 to 1.60 and Mining Corporation rained about 10. Eldorado dropped about 5.

Substantial buying appeared in Noranda and the price was a little stronger, while Nickel gained about 20 in a fairy light market.

WALL STREET CLOSE

NEW YORK, Jan. 31 (A.P.)—Stocks were narrowly irregular in quiet late trading to-day. Fractional gains and losses were evenly distributed. Rails retained early firmness. Delaware and Hudson was up 2 points. Advances of a half point to a point were shown by Baltimore and Ohio, Borden, Union Pacific, United States Steel, New York Central, and Corn Products. Allied Chemical, Case, Chesapeake and Ohio and United States Steel Preferred were steady. Public service, Consolidated Gas, North American and Columbia Gas lost about a point. Sales Approximated 700,000 shares.

COAST BLIZZARD TAKES 11 LIVES

Storms Continue to Threaten Rescue of Hundreds Still Marooned.

PLOWS GAIN SLOWLY.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 31.—(A.P.)—The toll of lives in the blizzard swept far-western United States stood at 11 to-day as winter continued to threaten efforts to rescue hundreds of persons marooned in mountain regions.

In Northern California two deaths were added to the number of known victims since the series of storms started 18 days ago. Another wanderer perished in Nevada.

The most extensive struggle was in the San Bernardino mountains, 75 miles east of Los Angeles, where hundreds of motorists who had gone to Lake Arrowhead to enjoy winter sports were trapped by a blizzard. Those directing the battle against the white drifts said most of the trapped persons, who had numbered about 2,000, were being moved out over roads which were cleared by snow plows.

FEE COLLECTION EVIDENCE GIVEN

Stubbs Listens as Brother Judge and Prominent Lawyer Give Opinions.

UPHELD IN PART.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 31.—(CP)—Granted a brief respite from the witness box he has occupied for more than two weeks Judge Lewis St. George Stubbs sat quietly before a commission investigating his judicial conduct and heard a brother judge and a prominent lawyer give their opinions on the right of a judge to collect certain fees.

All reference was postponed by Judge Stubbs until later this week when he will begin his final argument. He was interrupted by Mr. Commissioner Frank Ford from bursting into another attack "on all this rubbish."

Fees charged by Judge Stubbs, accused of accepting some to which he allegedly is not entitled, were charged for under similar circumstances by Judge L. P. Roy, of St. Boniface, he told the commission. He always felt entitled to charge these fees Judge Roy said when acting persona designata or, as the person designated for special duties for which he received no salary under the statutes.

The opinion of H. A. Bergman, K.C., on the right of judges to collect fees referred only to the Child Welfare Act, Mr. Bergman testified.

As the lawyer on whose opinion Judge Stubbs said he based his right to collect these fees, though he considered a judge entitled to charge for orders under the Welfare Act, he said he never told any judges he believed them entitled to collect fees under three other sections about which the Attorney-General complained.

Macnamara, Assistant Deputy Minister of Public Works. "Farmers have co-operated with the Government in furnishing a home for the single unemployed men," Mr. Macnamara said, "and at present the demand for men exceeds the applications for farm jobs."

Editor Vindicated For Scoring Council

WINCHESTER, Ont., Jan. 31.—(CP)—James H. Ross, editor, reeve and critic of the County Council of the united counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry, today stood vindicated by his fellow-councillors. Censured by a formal vote of the county Council for editorials published in his paper, the 'Winchester Press" last week, the reeve last night received the formal and unanimous approval of the Winchester village council.

The editorial which roused the ire of the county councilors charged them with wasting time at their meetings and with accepting payments from the county which they did not earn. As reeve of the village Mr. Ross is also a member of the county council.

The resolution passed by village council commends Mr. Ross for the "unselfish public spirit,, which prompted the editorial.

Wash boilers and roasters, combinations and hose,
The money spent sure will not fret you.

Sandy Summerville still loves his game,
There is bowling at Auburn, hockey where there is ice,
Everything's going on just the same.

Do not brush your hair downward, but upward and out,
This is no mere nonsensical fad.

With this no complaint can be made.

Then a Queen's dress at Barrie's—be careful to buy,

Go to Jopling's—get a good roast of beef
For 8 cents a pound, also grand pickled pork,
Great prices these in passing belief.

BRIGGS PLANT WILL RESUME PRODUCTION

Sufficient Number of Men Returned to Open Up Plant.

HIRING NEW MEN.

Ford Factories Expected to Open Shortly Afterwards.

DETROIT, Jan. 31.—(AP)—M. L. Briggs, vice-president of the Briggs Manufacturing Company announced this morning the company will resume production of automobile bodies some time today.

He added that a sufficient number of men had been hired to maintain a steady flow of bodies from the plants tied up for a week by a strike of several thousand workers.

If a steady flow of bodies is achieved by the Briggs Company, the plants of the Ford Company, shut down last Thursday, are expected to be reopened shortly afterward. The Ford Company's shut down when the supply of bodies was cut off, affected 100,000 men in Detroit and other cities throughout the United States.

Some 500 Briggs employees were reported back at work benches Monday. This morning another 200 were said to have joined them and word came from the Mack Avenue plant that others were seeking work there.

William F. Connolly, treasurer of the Briggs Company, who last night charged the strike was "communist-inspired," announced 500 men had been hired yesterday.

Many of the men are understood to have remained in the plant all night to avoid possible trouble with the strikers this morning.

Strike leaders emphatically denied the charge that the walk out was "communist planned and communist led," as stated by Connolly. Highland Park police this morning at the request of the strike leaders, took two men from the picket lines at the Highland Park employment gate. One of them the strikers said, was a Communist and had been ordered out of line three times.

CARTOON STIRS SCHOOL HEADS

Order All Junior Red Cross Activities Ceased Until Apology Made.

"INSULT TO 20,000,000."

SOMERVILLE, Mass., Jan. 31. — (C.P.)—All Junior Red Cross activities stood discontinued in the public schools of Somerville to-day by unanimous vote of the Somerville School Committee. Distribution of the January issue of "The National Junior Red Cross News," a publication of the American Red Cross, also was ordered suppressed at last night's school committee meeting.

A drawing in the current issue of the "Red Cross News" was denounced by school committeemen as "sacrilegious," and the bans were placed on the Junior Red Cross activities and the national publication "until an apology from the publishers is forthcoming."

The "offensive" drawing, termed by Committeeman Louis B. Connelly, "a cartoon that is an insult to more than 20,000,000 Americans," depicts a priest in vestments administering the Sacrament of Communion to a donkey held on a string by a small child.

The drawing shows the small child, in Spanish costume, and is used to illustrate a children's story of Spain. The story tells the tale of a small Spanish boy, whose donkey became ill. The lad loved the donkey dearly and, fearing the animal would die, took him to the parish priest for Communion. The Sacrament was given and the donkey saved.

Railway Bill Chief Topic Before Senate

OTTAWA, Jan. 31 (C.P.).—Death struck heavily at the ranks of the Canadian Senate during the long adjournment, and when the members meet to-night to resume their sessional duties, the first formalities will have a sad significance. Three Senators died since the red chamber adjourned on November 25, leaving eight vacancies.

Very little work lies before the Senate, except the Railway Bill, and it is expected that to-night's session will be brief. Adjournment will be taken until to-morrow afternoon when, after a short session, the House will rise to permit a session of the Railway Committee.

Resumption of the committee's consideration of the Railway Bill constitutes one of the most interesting phases of the present session. This bill is designed to implement the recommendations of the Duff Commission on Transportation.

INDIAN'S HOME IS LOST IN FIRE

Fire Completely Destroyed the Home of Kenneth Jacobs.

PROVISIONS LOST.

Fire yesterday swept the home of Kenneth Jacobs at the Curve Lake Indian reserve, totally destroying it. Consumed in the blaze was the Jacobs family's winter supply of provisions, including 700 pounds of flour, salt pork, sugar and potatoes. The fire broke out at noon near the chimney place. Two of the children were ill in bed in a downstairs room, but were removed from the blazing house. A table and a few chairs were all the articles of furniture saved. The family has found temporary shelter at Mr. Jacobs parents' home.

EMPIRE CONTENT RAISE UNLIKELY TO HURT CANADA

cannot advantageously comply with the 50 per cent. Empire content requirement to obtain the British preference. Many United States factories have their Canadian branches not only to compete in the Canadian market, but also to secure the advantage of the British preferential tariff.

Not Taken Seriously

Suggestions in United States news despatches that these branches may be closed up because of the United Kingdom regulations, are not taken very seriously here. The Canadian market is of value, it is stated, and branches of United States automobile factories were established partly to secure their share of that market. Curtailment of production in Canada might follow the enforcement of the United Kingdom regulations, but that is about all that is suggested here. On the other hand it is possible that activities of United States plants in Canada may be speeded up in order that they may comply with the increased requirements of the United Kingdom.

The new regulations of the United Kingdom are in line with those of Canada. Canada requires 50 per cent material and labor excepting in the case of cottons, which were reduced to 33 1-3 per cent at the request of Great Britain.

List Requiring 50 Per Cent.

The list of goods in which, after April 1, a minimum of 50 per cent Empire material and labor will be required has been received here. It follows:

Glass and glassware; pottery and clay products; metal furniture; certain iron and steel products; hollow ware; manufactures of aluminum, copper, lead, tin, zinc and alloys; cutlery; implements, tools and parts; scientific instruments; gauges and measuring instruments; electric goods; machinery; typewriters and cash registers; tapes and distempers; boots and shoes; manufactures of leather; transparent cellulose wrapping, arms and ammunition; locomotives; aircraft, cycles, motor cars and motor cycles; rubber manufactures; toilet preparations; broom and brushes; machine belting; sporting requirements; toys and musical instruments; clocks and clock cases, fountain pens; propelling pencils.

COMPLETE DOMINATION.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(A.P.)—Testimony that the Morgan banking interests and the Case National Bank, through interlocking directorates, have virtually complete "domination" of American industry and labor was given before a Senate committee by John P. Frey, Labor official.

Making his third appearance at hearings on the black five-day week, six hour day bill, Frey, secretary-treasurer of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor, told how in his opinion a few New York private banks "controlled" industry through directorship in commercial banks and hundreds of businesses.

He enumerated 855 directorships in all lines of industry which he said directors of the Chase institution held.

TORONTO MAN HANGS APRIL 3 FOR GUN PLAY

Tkach Calmly Admits Firing Three Shots Into Mrs. Fannie Robulock.

FOREIGN COLONY QUEEN.

Alienists Study Accused's Actions in Court and Will Report Later.

TORONTO, Jan. 31—(CP)—Mike Tkach, who calmly told a jury he had fired three shots into the body of Mrs. Fannie Robulack, reputed queen of a New Toronto foreign colony, last October today was sentenced to hang for the murder. April 3 was the date set for Tkach to go to the gallows.

Immediately after he had killed Mrs. Robulack, Tkach wounded himself and was paralyzed as he sat through his trial. Two alienists studied his actions in court and will examine him later.

Tkach told the jury the woman had taken his health and his money, and he had decided to kill her. The husband of the woman testified he had told Tkach to keep away from the Robulak home. "I told him to stay away and not come to my place again," said witness. "He had been employed at our restaurant as a Cook. We later had a mortgage business but I do not recall any money ever having been loaned to Tkatch. I had no dealings with him and never visited his home. I do not know if my wife ever visited him. I complained to the police about Tkach's visits and asked protection."

SON'S HUNT ENDS AFTER 37 YEARS

Proves Identity to Mother by Odd Birthmark on His Foot.

ONCE FEW BLOCKS APART.

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 31 (A.P.)—A birth mark, the shape of a potato, has linked a mother and son after 27 years—and Fred B. Graves of Minneapolis to-day is Bernard Frederick Apfeld.

Joseph Apfeld, the father, disappeared from Fair Haven, Minn., in 1906, and the 16-month old baby, Bernard, was taken by a family named Graves to Cottonwood, S.D., where he lived until 13 years old. When he learned he was not Fred Graves he left immediately to hunt for his parents.

Years later his search brought him to St. Cloud, Minn., where he found his birth records and discovered his mother's name. In San Diego, Cal., he found her.

His mother asked him to take off his right shoe. He did and his foot revealed the birthmark. The mother and son found that a few years ago they had lived within two blocks of each other here.

CITY COUNCIL TO GET CHEQUE

The Commission is looking forward to a difficult operating year in all departments, Chairman G. S. Matthews stated to-day in announcing that the Commission had decided to combine the uptown office of the Gas Department with the Light and Water offices. The Gas Department has occupied its present offices on Simcoe Street during the past eight years, but will now move over one door into the Light Department's office. The change will be made before March 1.

Chairman Matthews said that the Commission had been considering the combining of these two offices during the past two years, but the decision had been postponed because the office was rented from the City Trust and because all departments had maintained their earnings well. However, decreased revenue from all departments in the Commission's control had made necessary a definite attempt to reduce operating costs. He estimated that the saving by combining the two offices would be at least $1,500.

The Commission will probably have to give up its present committee room above the light office, and will hold its meetings in future in the City Council committee room.

The vacated office of the Gas Department will likely be taken over by the City Relief Officer, whose present office is proving altogether inadequate.

FIRST COMPANY GIRL GUIDES WILL DISBAND IN HAVELOCK

Use Funds to Provide Curtain Painted With Union Jack for Town Hall Stage.

LEADER LACKING.

HAVELOCK, Jan. 31.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The last meeting of Havelock First Company Girl Guides was held in the Orange Hall on Friday evening, with twenty-three members and their captain, Jean Moore, as well as Commissioner Mrs. (Rev.) Kemp and five members of the Guide Committee women.

Owing to the resignation of Mrs. Moore, who has been captain since its organization here three years ago, the Company finds itself without a leader, and no one has been found to take up the work where Mrs. Moore left off, owing to the strenuous times through which we are passing.

After thoroughly discussing the advisability of disbanding for the time being at least, the matter of disposing of the funds on hand was of major importance.

Mrs. Lancasters' Plans

The late Mrs. Lancaster who was a prompter of the Guide movement here, and President of the Ladies Committee knowing the Company was about to disband had given a splendid suggestion for the disposal of the funds on hand. Having spent a number of years in the United States, and seeing the instant attention of all within the hearing of the strains of "The Stars Spangled Banner" she had thought it strange when she first returned to Canada and saw people pulling on their coats and otherwised istracted when the National Anthem was played. She believed it would be a splendid thing, if the guides would use their funds to have a screen painted with the Union Jack placed in the background of the stage at the town hall, the same to be dropped during the singing of the National Anthem, or during patriotic meetings of any kind. She believed it would inspire respect for the flag in Havelock, and at the same time be a reminder that there had once been a Company of Guides in our midst. It would also make a fitting background at any time, and would be pointed to with pride by any of the girls who had been a member of the First Havelock Company Girl Guides, as having been put there by her company. After explaining the plan to all present, Mrs. Moore had slips of paper passed around to every one and asked each one to vote for whatever she considered the best way of disposing of the funds on hand, which was in the neighborhood of $42. When the ballots had been counted by four of the guides, assisted by Ronald Kemp, a Boy Scout who was present, it was found that every single ballot was cast for "Mrs. Lancaster's Plan", without one dissenting voice. It was therefore decided to have the screen, or drop curtain started at once, only the best materials to be used in it, and the girls as a whole to stand behind the work, and guarantee to raise any additional money that might be required to properly finish the work.

Plan Concert.

When the curtain has been completed and placed in the hall, it is proposed to have an entertainment in the hall, when a short talk on the Union Jack will be given, each cross and bar explained, and a short program probably of a patriotic nature will be given. A small admission fee will be charged, the same to be applied to the cost of the drop curtain, which it is expected will be in excess of the amount on hand.

Mr. Ronald Kemp has been assigned to do the work of making, painting and mounting the curtain.

Afterwards the girls with Mrs. Moore spent a social evening for the last time as the "First Havelock Girl Guides."

Congregational Meet Is Held At Bethany

BETHANY, Jan. 31.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The annual congregational meeting of the United Church was held on Thursday evening in the church parlors with about seventy-five partaking of the supper provided by the ladies of the congregation.

The following program was enjoyed before the reports were given: Community singing, led by Rev. Mr. Scott; piano instrumental, Miss Helen Patton; male quartet, Messrs. H. Preston, H. H. Clark, E. Bray and C. White; reading, "A Layman," Miss Ruth Rowland; processional hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers," sung by the audience.

The reports of the various organizations followed, and were exceptionally gratifying.
